BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1898. NO. 11

THE oldest lawyer in Louisville, Isaac R. Greene, aged 97 years, died last week. He had followed his profession for over sixty years in that city. He occupied the same office for half a century.

OVER twelve thousand employes of cotton mills in the Eastern States will have to submit to a reduction of wages before the close of this month. This cut of wages is being made in Mr. Dingley's section of the country.

THE prisoners in the Springfield, Illinois, jail, were on a two weeks' drunk before the jailer, with all his ingenuity, could detect how they secured the intoxicants. Finally, through an accident, it was discovered that a young negro on the outside doped sugar with cocaine placed it in a pill box and tossed it through the bars to those in the prison. Each pill box contained a full sized jag.

JUDGE STEPHENS is now entitled to the prefix "ex", he having retired from office with the going out of the old year. Besides being one of the cleverest men in the county he was a painstaking official, and discharged the duties of county Judge in a conscientious manner, and can point with pride to the excellent condition in which the close of his administration finds the county's financial affairs.

A GRANT COUNTY statesman is drawing a bill which he will present to the legislature for passage as a measure for compelling the listing of all promissory notes, andpapers of that character, for taxation. If his bill becomes a law it will increase the State revenue immensely and bring to the front a great deal of property that has heretofore escaped its burden of the public expenses. The man who can orginate a plan by which each class of property will bear its share of taxes is the one for whom search has been made for centuries past.

SOME of the pensioners are entering an indignant protest against the proposition to publish the pension roll, the cause for which his pension was granted to follow each pensioner's name. The ground upon which those objecting pretend to base there objection is that it makes public the old soldiers' mutilations. The real trouble is that a great many who are on the pension roll will be presented to the public as utterly regardless of facts in the preparation of their papers. If an old soldier deserves a pension, the mutilations that qualify him for it are no disgrace but rather a badge of honor. It is the pensioner whose conscience has not ceased to lash him since the day he obtained a pension through fraud, who is so sensitive about lacerations and disabilities. It is indeed a bad state of affairs in the pension department when a Republican Congress demands reform.

THE Fiscal Court met last Thursday to close up the county's business for the year 1897, and to turn county affairs over to its successor. It was in session until Friday at noon. The final settlement with the Sheriff shows that the county is entirely out of debt, and has a surplus of about $300 in the treasury. For the first time in the last three years the county is out of debt, and its business is in good shape, be it said to the honor and credit of the retiring court. The members of the court who retired with the old year, were, Henry Bannister, of Union, who has been on the bench constantly for twenty-four and a half years, and during all that time an appeal was taken from but one of his judgments; O. W. Gaines, R. L. Roberts and T. E. Roberts, was each au eight year man. Each of these ex-justices made safe, pains-taking officials, and discharged the duties devolving upon them in a conscientious manner, and their constituents can say unto them, "well done thou good and faithful servants."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, December 31st, 1897.

Secretary Gage is the financial boss of the whole administration outfit. He made a bluff at resigning, if Mr. McKinley was dissatisfied with his theory of legislation to clinch the gold standard upon our financial system, and Mr. McKinley at once dropped to the gold side of the financial fence, and informed his wily Secretary of the Treasury that he didn't want his resignation and was perfectly satisfied with what he had done and what he was doing. If that doesn't convince the silver Republicans in Congress that Mr. McKinley has left them in the lurch and surrendered, bag and baggage, to the gold standard crowd, it will be plain as the nose on your face that they don't want to be convinced. Although the Democrats were not at all surprised at Mr. McKinley's action, they are much pleased with it. Delighted, in fact. It's worth many thousand Democratic votes.

Hon. Richard Park Bland, of Mo., whose nickname of "Silver Dick" has always been considered by him and his admirers as one of the greatest honors he has won in his long career in the House, is jubilant over the Democratic outlook. He says the Democrats will sweep the country next year, and that in 1900 free silver will be irresistible. He condensed his reasons for this belief into the following: "The gold standard is too narrow for this magnificent country." Speaking of the Republican party, Mr. Bland said: "The Gage bill is strictly in line with the Republican policy and with Maj. McKinley's administration. They ought to enact this bill into law."

Senator Bate, of Tenn., was red hot for a few minutes, one day this week, because of what he properly considered discourteous treatment of himself by officials of the Post Office Departmen, and the matter may be heard from on the floor of the Senate. Senator Bate went to the department and asked to see the papers in the case of Peter Clarke, who was recently nominated for postmaster at Pulaska, Tenn., and against whom charges have been made. Much to his surprise he was told that he could not see them because he was not a member of the Senate Post Office committee. Representative Cox, who represents the district in which Pulaska is located, was also refused a look at the papers in the case. If there is any law for these refusals it should be brought to the notice of Senators and Representatives who do not enjoy being snubbed by department officials; if there is no law, the official is to smart for it some way.

Of course everybody expects the Spanish minister to try to earn his salary by making things appear as favorable as possible for his country bnt he overdid his part in a statement concerning the contributions for suffering humanity in Cuba, which have been officially asked for from our people by the President of the U. S., which he made public this week. If Spain has not acknowledged its inability to deal with the situation, Americans would not have been asked to contribute; yet, Senor Depuy de Lome begins by saying: "It is not true that the Spanish authorities in Cuba are not equal to the situation." In his anxiety to make a good showing for Spain he dashes wouldbe contributors with ice water by saying that many of the sufferers are such only because of their unwillingness to work. But the gallest sentence in the statement is this: "It should be borne in mind, also, that the Spanish government has remitted all duties on relief supplies sent to Cuba, so that for every dollar of supplies, entering Cuba, Spain adds considerable percentage, the remitted duties running from 50 per cent down." The rule of arithmetic by which the remittance of duty on charity donations can figure as additions to the donations may be common in Spain, but it has never been known in American schools.

THE office of Public Librarian has long since been conceded as the one State office belonging to the ladies, and the election of that official creates considerable interest at each biennial session of the Legislature, and the contest at this session will be especially interesting as there are eight fair candidates now at the Capital presenting their respective claims in a most earnest manner. Under such circumstances as these how can the Legislature, composed, as it is, of one hundred and thirty-eight chivalrous Kentuckians, be expected to accomplish anything in the way of legislation until this contest is settled by an election. As a proof of the great interest that is taken in this race it is said that each candidate has pledged to her every one of the one hundred and thirty-eight members, which shows up a pledged vote in the canvass of eleven hundred and four. Of course no true Kentuckian could be expected to refuse a lady candidate when asked to vote for her.

IF the Legislature wants to reduce the expense of criminal prosecution in Kentucky, it will pass a law providing the whipping post as a punishment for petty larceny and other small offenses. There is now in the jail of this county, a man serving a thirty days sentence for stealing chickens, the chickens he stole being worth, probably, three dollars, and to punish him for this offense it will cost the county fifteen dollars in the matter of jailer's fees alone. Had the punishment been thirty lashes instead of thirty days it could have been administered in ten minutes after conviction and proved a saving to the county and a real punishment to the petty thief. This is only one instance while there are hundreds in the State, and taken as a whole they amount to no inconsiderable sum. In many counties petty larceny is more common than it is in this, and proves a considerable burden to the taxpayers. The whipping post may be a relic of barbarism but the crime for which it is proposed is also a relic of barbarism.

THE fate of the Democratic party in this State is now in the hands of the Legislature in session at Frankfort. Because the Repuhlican members are so scarce as to render difficult to find one in a day's search, the Democrats must not conclude that the earth and the fullness thereof is theirs for all time to come, and thus be prompted to rush heedlessly into political Legislation calculated solely for the discomfeiture of those not in accord with political views of the majority of the law-makers. The behavior of the Republican members of the last General Assembly is responsible in a considerable measure for the overwhelming Democratic majority in the present Legislature, and the conduct of their predecessors should serve as a warning to those who are disposed to neglect the interest of the public to the end that some body may be punished. The State is in need of and demands an economical and businesslike session of the Legislature, and should this demand be not heeded, there will be trouble ahead for those who prove recreant. The State has enough business to occupy the attention of the Legislature for sixty days, but should it not have the session should be adjourned as soon as that business is disposed of.

THE Legislature should not entertain too many ripper bills this winter.

The State Association of County School Superintendents before adjournment of the meeting at Frankfort, last Thursday, adopted a series of resolutions expressing it as their opinion that the school laws were defective, and should be amended as follows:

1. To require the State Superintendent to visit each county at least once during his four-year term.

2. Authorizing the State Superintendent to appoint five professional teachers to act as a State Board of Education.

3. Providing for a $10,000 appropriation for a teachers' training school.

4. Abolition of the district trustee system, and establishing a single governing body for each county.

5. Authorizing the County Fiscal Courts to levy a 25 cents tax for common school purposes.

6. Requiring all school taxes to be collected by the sheriff of each county.

7. Amending the compulsory education law so as to make it effective.

Superintendent Taylor, of Mercer county, moved that the resolutions be amended by adding an indorsement of the anti-book trust bill which will be introduced in the next Legislature, but after some little discussion he announced that he withdrew his motion in the interest of harmony. The six representatives of the Book Trust had been in constant conference with the delegates since yesterday.

Yellow Fever.

Several cases of yellow fever were reported from points in Louisiana in the first week of September. On Sep. 8 it had made its appearance in New Orleans, also in Ocean Springs, Miss. In rapid succession came reports from Edwards, Miss., and Biloxi, Miss., and other southern points, until on Nov. 23 the fever was considered as practically stamped out. It has been estimated that the fever will have inflicted a financial loss of fully $60,000,000, the chief factor in which account being the loss in trade with Northern cities on the strict quarantine regulations. On Nov. 23 a report issued by the surgeon general of the marine hospital service, giving the returns up to a recent date, showed there had then appeared during the yellow fever epidemic in the south a total of 4,289 cases, of which 446 had proved fatal. Of the total number of cases 1,965 were reported in Louisiana, 1,625 from Mississippi, 740 from Alabama, 8 from Tennessee, 16 from Texas, 4 from Illinois, 3 from Georgia and 1 each from Florida and Kentucky.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

Its Purchasing Power Fixes the Standard of the Dollar.

We can make no progress in our knowledge of the money question until we have a clear understanding and correct conception of the meaning of the terms used in discussing it.

Perhaps the most important word and the one frequently employed in this discussion is the word value. In its largest sense, it is associated with utility and includes everything that is useful and which contributes to the comfort and well-being of mankind, and is called value in use. In an economic sense, that is, value in exchange, it is a relation between things, as ratio is a relation between numbers.

It would be manifestly absurd to ask for the ratio of a given number—16, for instance—without giving some other number with which to compare it. If that number is four then the ratio between them is four, because four is contained in 16 four times. In like manner, it would be absurd to ask for the exchange value of a thing without mentioning or implying some other thing with which to compare it. "Value in what?" is the necessary response to this question. Value is exchange. The only sense in which the word can be employed in this discussion is a relation and implies the presence of two things and a comparison between them. The value of a thing is some other thing that will be given in exchange for it, and is always expressed in the terms of the thing for which it will exchange. For instance, if one bushel of wheat will exchange for one dollar, then the value of one dollar in terms of wheat is one bushel of wheat, and the value of one bushel of wheat in terms of money is one dollar. As value is simply a relation there can be no such thing as intrinsic relation; there can be no such thing as intrinsic value; a relation can be expressed, but it cannot be measured.

The exchangeable relation of commodities cannot be ascertained by simply comparing them with each other. Aside from the inconveniences of exchange by barter, it is impossible to determine by inspection and comparison how many units of one commodity should be given in exchange for a given number of units of any other commodity. For instance, how many bushels of oats or corn should be given in exchange for a given number of bushels of wheat; and as the market relations of these commodities are constantly changing it is impossible to foretell what their market relation will be at any future time. This difficulty is obviated by the selection of some third commodity or material thing in the terms of which, as an intermediary, all values are expressed, and which is universally receivable for what anyone has to sell, with the confident assurance that it can readily be exchanged for what anyone wishes to buy. The intermediary so selected and employed is money. Its universal acceptability as money makes it money; and whatever best performs the functions of money is the best money, wholly regardless of the material of which it is made. The selection of this intermediary and putting it into a form for use as money is a function of sovereign power for the state. In our country there is no room for controversy on this point.

In article 1, section 8, paragraph 5, of the constitution of the United States, authority is given to congress "to coin money, regulate the value thereof and of foreign coin and fix the standard of weights and measures;" and our supreme court has held that the impression of the stamp of the government upon paper for monetary use is the exact equivalent of its impression upon the metals; that the issue by the government of paper money is in legal effect coining money, thus showing that the money quality does not reside in the substance of which money is made, but is imparted to it by the supreme power of the state; in other words, that money is wholly a creation of law, and that consequently all money is fiat money.

Associating the power to coin money with that of fixing the standards of weights and measures clearly indicates a similarity of the purposes and objects to be accomplished by the exercises of those powers. To "fix the standard of weights and measures" is to provide a standard or scale in which the weight and dimensions of the objects which are the subjects of commerce shall be expressed.

The value of money is its relation to other forms of property, in other words, its purchasing power. It has no other value. To regulate the value of money is to make of it a standard or scale in which the value of commodities and other forms of property shall be expressed. A scale of valuation is quite as necessary for purposes of trade and commerce as a scale of weights and measures.

Accordingly, by the act of 1792, section 20, which organized our monetary system, and is preserved in section 3563 of the revised statutes, it is provided;

"The money of account of the United States shall be expressed in dollars or units, dimes or tenths, cents or hundredths, and mills or thousandths, a dime being the tenth part of a dollar, a cent being the hundredth part of a dollar, a mill the thousandth part of a dollar, and all accounts in the public offices and proceedings in the courts of the United States shall be kept and have conformity to this regulation."

What regulation was this, unless it was a regulation of the value of money? The dollar is simply the unit of this scale and in the keeping of accounts all values are expressed in the terms of this unit, its multiples and fractions, and for this reason it is called the unit of value. Therefore when we say money is the standard of value we mean by it that it is a scale of valuation in which the value of commodities and other forms of property are expressed, and by which their exchangeable relations can be readily determined; for instance, if the unit of one commodity is worth $1 and that of another commodity is worth $2 then one of the former will exchange for two of the latter.

Section 9 of the same act provides: "There shall be from time to time struck and coined at the said mint units or dollars each to the value (that is of the purchasing power) of the Spanish milled dollar as the same is now current, and to contain three hundred and seventy-five grains and four sixteenths of a grain of pure or four hundred and sixteen grains of standard silver."

The statutory definition of a dollar is the "unit," and Hamilton said in his mint report that this would be appropriate designation of it, but as the colonists had long been accustomed to the use of the Spanish dollar as their unit of account it was called the "dollar," that is, by the statute above quoted, it is the unit in the scale of valuation. Thus viewed it is as illogical and absurd to talk of a "fifty-cent dollar" as a piece of a six-inch foot measure or an eight-ounce pound. Any change in the purchasing power of the unit or dollar changes the scale, and, as the value of all property is expressed in the terms of this unit, its multiples and fractions, this change affects all property or the general range of prices, while the market price of particular commodities will vary or oscillate owing to causes affecting these commodities, such as the supply as compared with the demand for them, etc.

A just and honest scale is an even scale, the unit of which does not rise to the injury of debtors or fall to the injury of creditors, and an honest dollar is an unchanging dollar, one which does not require a larger sacrifice to obtain it when a debt matures than when a debt was contracted, however long or short the intervening period may have been. The value of the unit of money is not at all affected by the character of the material in which it is embodied. If all the money in this country could be instantly changed and embodied in some other substance or substances, with a corresponding denomination, without any prospective increase in its quantity, or change in other things, there would be no change in the value or purchasing power of the unit or the prices of commodities of their exchangeable relations. It is only by increasing or diminishing the number of units or dollars in circulation that the value or purchasing power of the dollar or unit is changed; as the number of dollars is increased, the value or purchasing power of each dollar is diminished; as the number of dollars in circulation is diminished the purchasing power of each remaining dollar is increased. To suppose that dollars can have different values is as absurd as to suppose that bushels of wheat of the same grade can have different values in the same market. One dollar, endowed with the legal tender function and circulating as money, is of the same grade as the same grade and value as every other dollar. When the material of which the dollar is made is worth more as a commodity than as money, then, of course, its commodity value will be greater than its value as money; but as money it can never rise above or sink below its legal valuation.

The gold in a ten-dollar gold piece may as a commodity be worth more than $10, but it is a legal tender for only $10, for the law which authorized its coinage for monetary use says: "It shall be of the value of 10 units or dollars;" so every dollar, whether embodied in the silver coin or the gold coin or floating upon paper, has the same value as every other dollar. How misleading, then, are the current phrases in party platforms requiring "one dollar to be as good as every other dollar," etc.

All money is an emanation from the supreme power of the state, and it is a breach of good citizenship to try to inspire a want of confidence in this money, and the official acts and utterances of our late president discrediting our silver dollars cannot be reconciled with a sense of patriotic duty, a sentiment he so fondly applauds. In the destruction of values the cost of his administration was vastly greater than that of the civil war.

——This aristocratic tendency in the republican party, its sympathy and tolerance for the practices of monarchy and barbaric extravagance at the expense of the people, are rapidly alienating the people from it. But for organized bribery and coercion in the last presidential election the election of Mr. McKinley would have been impossible. His reelection is out of the question.—Columbus (O.) Press.

——The republican party is in trouble because its own notes are coming due and it has no way of meeting them. It promised that its tariff would give everybody employment at good wages and put a surplus into the treasury. It has had its own way about the tariff, and wages are going down while the deficit in the treasury is piling up. If the republican party had taken the ground that commercial and industrial conditions were independent of the action of governments, it might be less disturbed by a trade depression.—N. Y. Journal.

THE CARNIVOROUS MAID.

Missouri Girl Who Must Eat Raw Meat.

A young woman in the north part of the city was told ten years ago that she had consumption, and that unless she went to another climate she would not live many years. Her parents were unable to send her to another climate and another physician, about that time advised her to eat raw meat in the hope of prolonging her life. In less than three years she was in apparent good health. The eating of raw meat has effected a cure.

When once it has been formed, the raw meat habit is as bad as any other, and when the young woman had regained her health she found that she was still addicted to the eating of raw meat. She still has the habit. As long as she lived at home with her parents she could eat the uncooked food as often as she pleased. Her parents moved away a few months ago, and the daughter went to board with some friends in another part of the city. They did not know that she was addicted to the eating of raw meat.

Every now and then her appetite overcame her, and she longed for a rare beefsteak. The desire for it became so strong that she would go into the kitchen and pinch off pieces of the beefsteak that had been purchased for the next meal. The woman with whom she boarded began to complain of mice. She said they had never been in the kitchen before, and began to wonder how they got in. At last she bought a trap, and, placing the beefsteak on a high shelf, out of their reach, she baited the trap and set it.

The trap never caught a mouse, and the beefsteak was nibbled nearly every night. It was thrown away the next morning, because the woman said she would not cook meat after mice had eaten from it. She wondered how the mice could get upon the shelf, and why they never attempted to eat the steak with which the trap was baited.

At last the girl heard of the mystery in the kitchen and confessed. She admitted everything, and now she has all the beefsteak she can eat, and the mice are never suspected.—St. Joseph News.

"DINNER IS READY."

The Announcement as Conveyed by Mrs. Lion to Her Spouse.

I happened to be standing in front of a lion's cage the other day, about four o'clock. Mr. Lion was sound asleep in a corner, his countenance expressive of happy repose, while one huge paw was supporting the tawny head, that seemed as innocent as a lamb's. He looked amazingly like one of the seven sleepers. Opposite was Mrs. Lion, stepping about like a huge pussy cat, now glaneing at her sleeping lord, then whisking her tail impatiently, but with wifely consideration not doing a thing that could disturb his siesta. Back and forth she marched, and it seemed as if her rhythmic tread was a sort of savage lullaby, for the beast in the corner scarcely breathed under its spell. Suddenly she stopped beside him, her nose only a few inches from his ear, but her gleaming eyes were turned far away. It was only a second, but her sleeping companion lifted his head, and peered in the same direction; then he bounded to his feet. All was changed. The king of beasts was every inch a king. With quivering nostrils and head erect he gazed with all his eager might. What was it? What had she told him? And then the two danced that figure of a quadrille, the familiar "partners, cross over." Round and round, back and forth, till I, fairly dizzy watching the unceasing motions of their bodies, turned about to find it was feeding time. The watching lady had simply announced that "dinner was served!" Poor things, they did not get their share until the very last, and meanwhile they kept up the eternal "partners, cross over," expectation and hunger making them perfectly oblivious to the sympathy that was being offered by a curious spectator. The couple of pounds of raw meat actually melted in Mr. Lion's mouth, but Mrs. Lion took longer to masticate her portion, and I am sorry to relate she did not show that consideration for her old man's feelings which made me admire her so much at first. She now turned her back on him, and devoured the tidbit far away in a corner of the cage, growling fiercely whenever he moved. It is feared she is like many others of her sex, and lacks the charm of a confiding nature.—Boston Herald.

A Serf's Forethought.

Count Scheremetef, an immensely wealthy and powerful Russian noble who lived in the early part of this century, had among his serfs a man named Schalouchine, who had amassed an enormous fortune. He had offered as much as $250,000 for his freedom, but in vain. One day Scheremetef gave a dinner party, and to his disgust there were no oysters to begin the banquet with. "They were not to be had at any price," replied the steward. At that moment Schalouchine was ushered in among the guests, and Scheremetef bullied him as usual. "Your freedom," he yelled, "you cannot have it if you offered a million of rubles. A million, pshaw! a few dozen oysters would be worth more than that to me at this moment." "Do I understand, then, my lord, that you would grant me my freedom if I procured them for you?" "Yes," was the answer. Schalouchine had brought a barrel of oysters, having heard of the dinner. The deed of freedom was immediately signed, Schalouchine took his place among the guests, and his descendants are not only the wealthiest bankers in Russia, but were ennobled about a quarter of a century ago.—London Illustrated News.

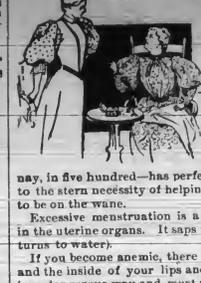
SKILL OF DOCTORS TESTED.

Fifteen Years of Suffering.

"I thought I should surely die."

When the stomach begins to fail in its duties, other organs speedily become affected in sympathy, and life is simply a burden almost unbearable. Indigestion and dyspepsia are so common that only the sufferer from these diseases knows the possibilities of misery that inhere in them. A typical example of the sufferings of the victim of indigestion is furnished in the case of John C. Pritchard. He went on for fifteen years, from bad to worse, in spite of doctors. He grew constantly weaker, and thought he would die. He got well, however, and thus relates his experience:

"For fifteen years I was a great sufferer from indigestion in its worst forms. I tested the skill of many doctors, but grew worse and worse, until I became so weak I could not walk fifty yards without having to sit down and rest. My stomach, liver, and heart became affected, and I thought I would surely die. I tried Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills and they helped me right away. I continued their use and am now entirely well. I don't know of anything that will so quickly relieve and cure the terrible sufferings of dyspepsia as Dr. Ayer's Pills."—JOHN C. PRITCHARD, Brodie, Warren Co., N. C.



This case is not extraordinary, either in the severity of the disease or the prompt and perfect cure performed by Dr. Ayer's Pills. Similar results occur in every case where Dr. Ayer's Pills are used. They helped me right away" is the common expression of those who have used them. Here is another testimony to the truth of this statement:

"I formerly suffered from indigestion and weakness of the stomach, but since I began the use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills, I have the appetite of the farmer's boy. I am 46 years of age, and recommend all who wish to be free from dyspepsia to take one of Dr. Ayer's Pills after dinner, till their digestive organs are in good order."—WM. STEINKE, Grant, Neb.

Dr. Ayer's Pills offer the surest and swiftest relief from constipation and all its attendant ills. They cure dizziness, nausea, heartburn, palpitation, bad breath, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, biliousness, and a score of other affections that are, after all, only the signs of a more deep rooted disease. You can find more information about Dr. Ayer's Pills and the diseases they have cured, in Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured. This book of 100 pages is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A TALK WITH MRS. PINKHAM

About the Cause of Anemia.

Everybody comes into this world with a predisposition to disease of some particular tissue, or in other words, everybody has a weak spot.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the weak spot in women is somewhere in the uterine system. The uterine organs have less resistance to disease than the vital organs; that's why they give out the soonest.

Not more than one woman in a hundred—nay, in five hundred—has perfectly healthy organs of generation. This points to the stern necessity of helping one's self just as soon as the life powers seem to be on the wane.

Excessive menstruation is a sign of physical weakness and want of tone in the uterine organs. It saps the strength away and produces anemia (blood turns to water).

If you become anemic, there is no knowing what will happen. If your gums and the inside of your lips and inside your eyelids look pale in color, you are in a dangerous way and must stop that drain on your powers. Why not build up on a generous, uplifting tonic, like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

MRS. EDWIN ERRIG, 413 Church St., Bethlehem, Pa., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you that I am better than I have been for four years. I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills, and can say that I am perfectly cured.

"Doctors did not help me any. I should have been in my grave by this time if it had not been for your medicine. It was a godsend to me. I was troubled with excessive menstruation, which caused womb trouble, and I was obliged to remain in bed for six weeks. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine was recommended to me, and, after using it a short time, was troubled no more with flooding. I also had severe pain in my kidneys. This, also, I have no more. I shall always recommend the Compound, for it has cured me, and it will cure others. I would like to have you publish this letter." (In such cases the dry form of Compound should be used

Making Up Her Mind.

"Why, Ethel, what are you doing with that big medical work in your lap?"

"Well, Arabella, you'd never guess, I am quite sure."

"You are not going to make a physician of yourself, are you?"

"Not at all. I am trying to find out which of my two suitors I love enough to marry. What do you think of that?"

"How can a cyclopaedia of medicine help you?"

"Well, it's this way. Mr. Spondulicks is 57 years of age. He is worth $400,000 and has consumption. Mr. Dukkats is 65 years old. He is worth $500,000 and has incipient Bright's disease. I thought perhaps this medical book would help me to make up my mind. I have about decided that I love Mr. Dukkats the better. Which would you love?"—N. Y. World.

Mr. Hoppins says he was on the shanty boat about an hour or so before the shooting, and the parties seemed to be on the best of terms. After the shooting Smith walked to Mr. Hoppins', about a mile distant. He told Mr. H. that when shot he fell into the water and asked Hammon to help him out, and he refused, when he crawled out himself; he said Hammon shot him without any cause. Smith has been at the mouth of the creek for a year, and a short time ago Hammon, who is about 20 years old, and Nellie Jenkins, came there almost destitute of clothing. The most notable event that occurred here during the holidays, was the crowning followed by the immediate death of a large Bramah rooster belonging to Mrs. Tom Wingate. On examination his neck was found to be broken—strang things do happen during holidays

On the night of the last day of 1897, the young gents and ladies of this community gathered at Gov. Moody's where they enjoyed themselves until the coming of the New Year. Among those from a distance were Misses Mamie and Grace Rogers and their brother, Clayton, of Louisville; Edward Hoppin, of Indiana. On the following night, they enjoyed themselves at Jas. Rogers' until the wee sma' hours.

It was not our privilege to feast on turkey during the holidays, as old Santa and our friends (if we have any) forgot us; but we will try and be devoutly thankful for what we have, remembering that true happiness, in this life, does not consist in feasts and fortunes, but rather an assurance of the fact, that during the past, we have had the approving smile of Him, Who rebuked sin of every phase, and cheered, conforted and ministered unto all, but more especially the poor.

Bullittsville.

Miss Mamie Winston and Charles Stephens, of Hamilton, O., were married on the 30th ult., in Covington, at the residence of Rev. B. F. Swindler.

The Christmas tree at Bullittsville Christian church was very beautiful, and quite a number drew nice presents and among them was T. G. Graves, who received a live owl, emblematic of wisdom and beauty.

A Mr. Eubanks, of Kenton county, who was hunting in this neighborhood, last Wednesday, was accidentally shot, all the muscle of one of his arms being torn off. Fortunately the bone was not injured. He was trying to prop a wire fence when his gun was discharged.

Since the arrest of Leopold on suspicion because he was selling things cheap, our merchants, Baisly and Watts have been in hiding. 'Tis thought that Watts has gone to Canada, and it is useless to say he took a large quantity of brass with him, and his friends will do well to prepare their mourning apparel, for he will be undoubtedly captured by the Canadians and a gigantic brass statue of the Marquis of Lome constructed out of his remains.

The oyster supper given by the Ladies' Aid Society was well attended and wos a very pleasant affair, everyone seeming to enjoy the occasion as much in the drawing room as at the table. Oysters were served in any style requested, and seasoned to the Queen's taste. The music under the management of E. L. Riley consisted of six instruments, and was delightful—in fact everything connected with the entertainment was perfectly grand, as has been everything undertaken by the Society.

The young people between this place and our neighbor village, Gainesville, have spent a most delightfu' Xmas. The festivities began with an Xmas tree at the Bullittsville Christian Church on Xmas eve. The tree was loaded with many valuable presents, and the large audience present was entertained with music, recitations and speeches by the little ones. Miss Fannie Gordon, the highly accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gordon, had thoroughly drilled the little ones in the several parts they played, and they reflected much credit on Miss Fannie as well as themselves.

The next evening nine couples assembled at the hospitable residence of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Gaines and spent a most delightful evening.

The following evening Miss Zada Gaines gave a very select party. No one was admitted who had passed the 90th round of the ladder of life. Your correspondent, having been so unfortunate as to have passed this limit, had to content himself in the family room across the hall with that flattering unction that though my heart is with you, girls, "thou art so near, and, yet, so far," and at 9 o'clock he took his leave, sighing, as he wended his way to his lonely room near by, "ever thus from childhood's hour I have seen my fondest hopes decay."

Monday evening Mr. Wm. Riley tendered his handsome home to the young people, and about twenty couples, composed of handsome young men and beautiful young ladies, spent a very pleasant evening. Mr. Riley commissioned your correspondent master of ceremonies with Miss Mary Gaines, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gaines, as assistant. You can well imagine the blissful feelings of your correspondent after his decayed hopes of the evening previous.

Tuesday evening the Ladies' Aid Society of the Bullittsburg Baptist church gave an oyster supper at the beautiful home of Dr. Hays. This is one of the best arranged houses for entertainments in the county. Dr. Hays kindly tendered his house to the ladies, and they gave the most delightful entertainment ever given in this neighborhood. About 100 attended, and left showering their blessings and praises upon the ladies for the pleasant evening they spent. Everyone had all the oysters, sandwitches, celery, pickles and coffee they could eat and driuk. The Bullittsville orchestra, lead by E. L. Riley, on the violin, favored the guests with lovely music. He was assisted by Mrs. E. L. Riley, on base viol; Garnett Riley on cornet; Dr. Hays, on piccolo; Will Gaines, on guitar and Miss Zada Gaines, on mandolin. Mr. Jones, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Covington, came down and brought Miss Bessie Kirtley, the brilliant and beautiful daughter of Mrs. Milton Kirtley. Miss Bessie is noted for her charming eyes, and bright and amusing sayings. Newport was represented by Miss Alberta Ross, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Grant. Miss Ross is a beautiful, intelligent, sweet-tempered, and altogether lovely young lady. She was so kind-hearted that as soon as she discovered the infatuation of your correspondent for her, she left for home without a moment's warning. Another decayed hope of your correspondent.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Menter Graves entertained in a very hospitable manner. Menter, imagining that he was a boy again, joined in the game of changing partners, but the boys soon relieved him of the hallucination by toweling him to the nursery.

On Thursday evening our bachelor friend, Temp Graves, threw ajar the doors of his large and commodious parlor, and extended a welcome to all present. Though it rained incessantly, about sixty gathered in front of the old-fashioned log fire Temp had built, and the merriest party of the week was held. Your correspondent returned home with a broken finger, sprained back and black and blue spots innumerable on his lower limbes.

Friday evening closed the festivities with a very delightful party at the hospitable home of Hon. T. G. Willis, our next Assessor. Though Tom was spending the evening on Sixth street market with a load of turkeys, his beautiful daughter entertained her many young friends in a most charming manner.

Jerry Beemon, of Limaburg, has a lot of nice male Poland China pigs for sale.

According to the Assessor's book, which is correct, Mr. Ben R. Gaines and his son, W. A., pay one-sixtieth of the property tax in this county. It is evident that they are paying more than their share, while hundreds of others pay less.

W. J. Rouse, editor of the Monroe City, Mo., Democrat, lead in a rabbit hunt that resulted in the killing of over 1,500 bunnies, which were shipped to St. Louis and distributed among the poor on Christmas day. Of such are the good deeds of an editor.

Esq. M. B. Green is 71 years old, and of these years he has served 43 as justice of the peace in this county. Where is there a man who has served his people in an official capacity for more than half of as long a life? Remember, the 'Squire is still on duty.

Dr. J. T. Boulton, Cincinnati, O.
Dear Sir—I was taken with a severe cough the first of May; for two weeks I could not lie on my left side nor breathe through my left lung. I also had hemorrhage and my friends said I had consumption. I began taking Boulton's Cough Remedy and began to improve with the first dose, and within three weeks was entirely well. I can not say enough in favor of Boulton's Cough Remedy. Respectfully,
MRS. R. J. MARSHALL.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.
For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.
W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."

The usual custom of ringing the old year out and the new year in was observed Friday night, but not so many benches, wagons and barrels were strewn about the streets as is usual on such occasions.

When the time came for C. L. Crisler to bid the jail birds a final adieu, in the language of the slangster, he flew the coop and refused to face the music, so he hied himself to the country, having engaged Elmer Beall to deliver to them the last meal he had to provide.

Commonwealth vs Stant Kirtley. same vs Henry Osborn. same vs Luther Kirtley.

The above three prosecutions were tried before Judge Stephens, last Friday. The holiday festivities were inaugurated by the colored population with a party at the residence of Geo. Campbell, colored. To assist in making the exercises interesting supply of booze was on hand, and the bibulous inclined were soon exceedingly hilarious, and some of them claim that the air was full of pistols and brass knucks at one time, during which period Hade White's mouth and Stant Kirtley's fist collided with such force as to be somewhat disastrous to the front teeth of the former. Kirtley was arrested for assault, and pleaded guilty, whereupon Judge Stephens fined him $5 and t[illegible] mings.

Henry Osborn was arraigned for carrying brass knucks. He pleaded not guilty. The witnesses were called and sworn. Two or three swore positively that Osborn was guilty as charged, while he and others swore that he had no such a weapon. The judge did not think there was anything in the charge and dismissed the warrant.

Luther Kirtley was put on trial for carrying a pistol. He deiied the charge, and his innocent looks was almost conclusive proof that he would not know a pistol should he meet one on the street. The court swore the witnesses for the commonwealth, and they testified that the young man had the pistol and drew it out of his pocket and afterwards put it back. The defendant swore he had nothing on his person except a pocket knife, and proved by several others who claimed to be in a position to know, that Kirtley had no pistol, and the court told him to go hence without day, and Lute smole a great smile in token of his apreciation of the outcome of the prosecution.

It took Judge Stephens five minutes to dispose of the above prosecutions.

The Fiscal Court met in special session last Thursday. The members present were Judge Stephens, and Esquires M. B. Green. H. Bannister, O. W. Gaines and J. H. Walton.

The principal business transacted was the making of settlements with the Sheriff on account of the county revenue. He presented his delinquent list containing the names of 797 whites and 127 colored. The list was gone over name at a time and all those the Court refused to allow were checked off. When the list was revised by the Court there remained on the list 738 whites and 119 colored—total, 847, leaving the Sheriff charged with 2,212 persons from whom to collect poll tax.

The settlement with the Sheriff on account of the sheep fund shows that there is in his hands on account of same, $351.

The settlement on account of the road fund shows that the Sheriff has in his hands, due the same $6,763 and he has yet to collect road tax on the whisky, telephone and telegraph companies.

The county fund in the Sheriff's hands amounts to $1,980 to which is to be added tax due on whisky, railroads, telegraphs and telephones.

John Costello was allowed $12 with which to pay for the coffins of two of his children that died during December.

Before the court adjourned Esquire Bannister was appointed collector of the delinquent tax, and his compensation fixed at 33½ per centof the amount he collects, the list to be delivered to him upon his executing bond for the per formance of his duty, &c.

A few days ago Clinton Gaines, of Bullittsville, and Justice of the Peace-elect, was called on to issue a warrant for the arrest of a fellow named Fox. The applicant for the legal document said that a Mr. Writeman, of the northern part of the county had driven his hogs to the river to ship them to the Cincinnati market, and two of them were about to die, when he stuck them and returned home to get a wagon to haul them back home to be dressed. While he was gone Fox came along and seeing the dead hogs, proceeded to appropriate one of them over the protest of the man in whose charge they were left. Fox said he could not make $3 easier, and thereupon shouldered the dead porker and walked away with it. Mr. Gaines not being a full-fledged J. P., directed the fellow to call upon Esq. O. W. Gaines, who furnished the desired document, but at last accounts Fox had not been taken into custody.

Mr. L. H. Voshell, of Union, Ky., accompanied by his friend, Mr. J. W. Conner, is in the city on a visit to his brother, County Surveyor A. R. Voshell. These gentlemen left to-day in company with Sheriff Houpt and others for a bear hunt in the bottoms of Ten Mile Creek and the North Fork of Saline river. It goes without saying that they will not return without big game and a taste of exciting ventures.—Hot Springs (Ak.) Daily News, Dec. 27.

We are expecting, daily, to receive a bill of laden for a car load of bear meet shipped to us by our friends, Conner and Voshell.

When Attorney Gaines opened the front door to his hall, Saturday morning, he was confronted by a big, red barrel that was disposed to enter the house, but on which Mr. G. was successful in hanging a bluff, and it rolled off down the street, very much surprised at having found a Keutucklan who refused to take a barrel.

Geo. W. Anderson, of the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, had a sow to drop a litter of pigs May 22, last. He fattened and butchered them December 1st, and they averaged 211 pounds net. There are few persons who can handle hogs more successfully than Mr. Anderson.

Farmer Reuben Tanner, living near Bullittsville, Ky., was assaulted and robbed by three masked men near Covington.—Ex.

The above item is true, except that there is nobody named Reuben Tanner living near Bullittsville, nor was there anybody assaulted and robbed by three masked men near Covington within the last few months.

The snow has been worth many hundreds of bushels of wheat to the farmers in this part of the country. By the way, it is seldom as cold a wave as that experience, last Saturday and Sunday, sweeps over this part of the country from the south. In the language of an old citizen long since gone, "it was a very cold north wind from the south."

According to the history of Crawford's life, as he related it to sheriff Roberts as he was taking him to the penitentiary, what was learned of his criminal record at the rogues' gallery is not an introduction. If what he told the sheriff is true, the bad man from Bitter creek, compared to Crawford, is an inoffensive individual. Crawford said he had done time in several penitentiaries, among them the one at Frankfort, where he was recognized when taken there last week.

It is now jailer Adams. His predecessor introduced him to the prisoners last week as their soon-to-be custodian, and instructed him in the hidden mysteries of the institution. The new jailer took charge Monday, jailer Crisler having bowed himself out, after serving the county two terms as goaler. Notwithstanding his long intercourse with many hardened criminals during his long official career, the milk of human kindness still abounds in ex-jailer Crisler's heart

In the last month John Costello, who lives down on Woolper creek, has lost two daughters of consumption. Dr. Furnish, who treated the two girls, appeared before the Fiscal Court, last Thursday, and asked it to make an appropriation for the assistance of the family, which he stated is very needy and an object of charity. The court having long since adopted a rule not to make any such appropriations, refused to comply with the doctor's request, but allowed Mr. Costello $12 with which to pay for coffins for his two daughters. It was a meritorious case, but the court could not depart from its long established policy.

A visit to the temple of justice Monday morning revealed very little change in the list of occupants and custodians, the only new face to be discovered was that of Jailer Thomas A. Adams, who went on duty that morning, and was taking hold in a very satisfactory manner. C. C. Roberts had donned the judicial ermine doffed by Judge Stephens, and had entered upon his career of administering justice for a period of four years. Elmer Beall had passed from a subordinate in the office of Sheriff to the position of high boss in that department, and instead of the deputy's badge he supported one reading "Sheriff of Boone County. The other officials who had succeeded themselves were a smiling, happy looking set of fellows. The RECORDER wishes one and all of the county officers a pleasant and successful term.

The anticipated wedding of Mr. Ira Wingate, of Petersburg, Ky., and Miss Nannie Hornberger, of this city, took place at the residence of the bride's parents on high street, Saturday evening, Rev. G. H. Murphy officiating. The groom is a gentleman well and favorably known to many of our citizens, and has recently engaged in the mercantile business in this city. The bride is the handsome and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hornberger, and her charming manuer and pleasant ways made her a favorite in a large circle of friends. Only the immediate relatives and a few near friends of the contracting parties were present at the ceremony and supper which followed. Mr. and Mrs. Wingate left the same evening for a short bridal trip in the East. The happy couple have the best wishes of the Register and a host of friends for a long and prosperous marrid life.—Lawrenceburg Register.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Among the Measures Which Will Engage Early Attention Are:

The Hawaiian Annexation Question, the Immigration Bill, the Financial Question, and Mr. Corbett's Claim to a Seat in the Senate From Oregon.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The prevailing opinion among senators is that very little legislation will be attempted during the present week. The fact congress will not reconvene until Wednesday will probably be taken by the absentees to mean that nothing will be attempted until the following week and as a consequence it is doubtful whether there will be a quorum present in the senate on Wednesday, in which event there will probably be an early adjournmtnt until the following day and then an adjournment until Monday. In any event it is not probable that any important questions will be raised during the present week.

The general understanding is however, that the work of the session will begin in real earnest after this week and that henceforth there will be no justification of the complaint of dullness of the proceedings. Among the questions which will engage early attention are: The Hawaiian annexation question, the claim of Mr. Corbett to a seat in the senate from Oregon, the immigration bill and the financial question. In all probability the committee on privileges and elections will meet during the present week and the chances are that an early report on the Corbett case will be ordered, even though it may not be favorable. The republican side of the chamber will not be a unit in Mr. Corbett's interest, Senator Burrows, of the committee which has charge of the case, is preparing an exhaustive speech antagonistic to Mr. Corbett, and the opposition are counting upon the assistance of all still others from that side of the chamber. It is not believed that there will be any serious antagonism to the immigration bill, but there may be considerable time consumed in speeches upon the subject.

It is probable that Senator Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, will make an effort during the present week to get a day fixed for taking up the annexation treaty, and there is no apprehension of any objection to naming a day in the early future. The plan of the supporters of the treaty is to take the question up in executive session on a resolution of ratification, and to debate the treaty for a few days in executive session, pursuing this course long enough to determine their strength and commit those who profess to be with them. If they find that they have the necessary two-thirds to secure ratification they will press on to the end, but if they discover themselves to be deficient in voting strength they will change their policy and take up the question of annexation on Senator Morgan's resolution to that end. There is no doubt that a majority of affirmatives votes can be secured and that a resolution of this character can be passed if a vote can be reached. The present indications are that the treaty as such will fail of ratification by from two to six votes, but friends of the agreement have by no means lost hope that they will succeed in securing the entire 60 votes necessary to ratify. They claim that they have been making headway in securing votes during the recess and are hopeful of still adding to the number.

The time of the house this week after it meets on Wednesday, will probably be entirely devoted to the debate on the civil service question. By general consent the appropriation in the legislative, executive and judicial bill for the maintenance of the commission, upon which the debate will be based went over until after the holidays. It is intended by the opponents of the civil service law that the debate shall cover the whole question and they expect to develope and exploit some very interesting facts.

The defenders of the law have made elaborate preparations to meet these assaults, and some highly interesting, if not sensational, incidents are anticipated. The records of individuals are likely to be very much in evidence. It is not expected that the debate will be concluded this week as Saturday has been set aside for paying tribute to the memory of the late Representative Wright, of Massachusetts. Gen. Grosvenor, of Ohio, who has been one of the mainstays of the opposition to the law, is very desirous of participating in the debate, but owing to the senatorial fight now in progress in Ohio he will probably not be able to return until next week. It is not believed that there will be any attempt to close the debate before he has had an opportunity to make the elaborate speech which he has prepared. No one seriously believes, however, that the upshot of the present debate will be the striking out of the appropriation for the commission. This proposition can not by any means command the full strength of the opposition, the leaders of which think direct legislation should be enacted to repeal or radically amend the law. The debate, therefore, will simply be in the nature of a general airing of the views of the members of the house, the only practical effect of which will be to place them on record for the future.

How Tony Ended the Year.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 3.—Friday night Anthony McGowan, a retired merchant of Rankinborough, quarreled with his wife. He has been drinking for some time.

SIX DEAD

And Several Others of the Reich Family, New York, Injured.

A Fire Chief Falls Through a Burning Floor and is Badly Burned—It is Believed the Fire Broke Out From the Heater in the Basement.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Six members of one family were killed by flames and smoke in a fire that occurred early Sunday morning in Jersey City. The dead are:

Adolph Reich, 42 years old, the father.

Emma Reich, 42 years old, mother.

Tillie Reich, 22 years old.

Ida Reich, 15 years.

Albert Reich, 14 years.

Gustav Reich, 8 years.

Several others were injured and it may be that another member of the ill-fated family will die. He is the 10-year-old son and his body is covered with bruises.

John Conway, chief of the Jersey City fire department, was very badly burned. He fell through a burning floor and was rescued with difficulty.

Henry Reich, 17 years old, managed to make his escape from the house, with bad burns on the neck, face and hands, but he is not seriously injured.

Adolph Reich's home was at 317 Gerard avenue, near the Hudson county [illegible] He was married [illegible] and some one, [illegible] handsome child, [illegible] much joy.

[illegible] saw the smoke and flames [illegible] the lower hall. [illegible] Mather was [illegible] to get out of [illegible] there until they managed to get clothes. Young [illegible] the room in their night [illegible] down the street and gave the [illegible] Reich ran down [illegible] father [illegible] alarm. When he returned his father [illegible] nowhere to be seen, but one of his [illegible] brothers, Sigismund, was there, badly [illegible] burned. He was taken to a neighboring house where he said that some one had awakened him, and that he jumped through the blinding smoke and flames down the stair case and out into the open air.

Several engine companies responded promptly to the alarm and ten minutes later the fire was out. Then began the search of the house. The rays from the firemen's lanterns disclosed three charred bodies against the wall at the foot of the stairs. They were those of Adolph Reich, his daughter Tillie and little Gustav. The father had fallen upon the daughter and his son was in his arms. They were burned almost beyond recognition.

In the basement of the house the searching party stumbled over the remains of Ida and Albert, two blackened corpses, with arms entertwined, portions of the limbs had been entirely burned away and the faces were horribly distorted.

The mother was found in the dining-room. She was but slightly burned. Her face showed no look of pain. She undoubtedly died from suffocation.

The bodies were sent to the morgue.

Peter Maher Challenges Thos. Sharkey.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 3.—John J. Quinn, acting for Peter Maher, Sunday mailed articles of agreement to Thomas Sharkey for either a boxing contest before a club or a finish fight, at Carson City. Maher stipulates that Marquis of Queensbery rules shall govern and the referee must be mutually agreed upon one week in advance of the fight. The other conditions are left blank for Sharkey to fill in as suits him.

Dr. Evans' Will.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—The latest information regarding the will of the late Dr. Thomas W. Evans, the American dentist, is that although it may be attacked, there is little chance to set it aside. All the clauses are not known, but it transpires that Dr. Evans remembered all his relatives. He excluded from inheritance John Evans and his heirs. Dr. Evans left five-sixths of his fortune to charities in Paris and elsewhere.

The Strike Situation.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 3.—The strike indications among the textile operatives were not so alarming Friday night and the change is brought about by the action of the loom fixers. This union had been looked upon as a body strong in strike sentiment. But at the meeting Friday night a ballot showed 189 in acceptance of the resolutions adopted by the general committee, 70 for a strike and ten blanks.

Fished From the Lake.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Frederich Wilhelm Von der Goltz, member of the celebrated Von der Goltz family of Germany and a former officer of the Germany army, jumped into the lake at the foot of Oak street with the intention of drowning himself. He was rescued by park policemen and will recover. Ill health is the cause he gave to the police.

Germany Receives Notice.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—According to a special dispatch from Shanghai a sudden stiffening has taken place in the attitude of the Tsung-Li-Yamen toward Germany, resulting in a demand for the evacuation of Kiao-Chau, and leading to the belief that Great Britain is bringing pressure to bear upon Peking.

Titles Are Cheap.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Judging from Debrett's peerage the Britishers boasted contempt to foreign titles is only affectation, as 14 members of the household hold foreign titles, while those of lesser rank are thicker than blackberries. In this connection it is interesting to note that the jubilee was a record year for the bestowal of honors, which totaled up 577. The charitable bequests of the year also toppled the record, totaling £2,000,000 ($10,000,000). Without the Wallace collection bequeathed to the nation seven testators aggregated £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) in charity.

BRITISH FLEET,

Of Eight Ships and Four Torpedo Boats, at Chemulpo.

Is France and Russia Acting in Concert?—Communications Constantly Passing Between the British and Japanese Officers—Japanese Cable Broken.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Shanghai, dated Thursday says:

"A British fleet of eight ships and four torpedo boats has arrived at Chemulpo (the port of Seoul). It is reported that there are two Japanese cruisers in the Yang-Tse-Kiang river. Japan is working night and day preparing for war. It is believed that the British and Japanesee fleets are in close touch."

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Tokio says Marquis Ito is forming a cabinet.

According to a dispatch to the same paper from Nagasaki, dated Thursday, it is believed that Marquis Ito will aim to maintain a peaceful attitude.

The Daily Mail has received telegrams from Hong Kong and Tonquin denying the report of French occupation of the island of Hai-Nan, but it regards it as morally certain that Hai-Nan was occupied about a fortnight ago when Port Arthur was occupied by the Russians, the coincidence forcing the suspicion that France and Russia were acting in concert.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Singapore dated Thursday says:

"The news that the French had occupied the island of Hai-Nan was brought here from Saigon (capital of French Cochin-China) on Tuesday by the French mail boat Ernest Simon. Before the latter left Saigon on the 25th, a French cruiser arrived there with either Adm. Bedolliero or letters from him to the French governor at Saigon. The Ernest Simon delayed for an hour at Saigon in order to take the governor's dispatch relating to the hoisting of the flag on the island of Hai-Nan to the French governor.

"The cause of the delay was known only to a few officers on board the Ernest Simon, but inadvertently the secret was imparted to a French officer here (Singapore), who, not being bound to secrecy, let the matter out. It is believed that the French hold the telegraph office at Hei-Kiw (Ho-Kow) and prevent communication to Hong Kong.

"The cable between Hai-Phong (Tonquin) and Saigon is broken and under repair, and therefore it was impossible for Adm. Bedolliero to telegraph the news of the seizure to Saigon.

"Adm. Bedolliero, with the warships Bayard and Des Cartes, left Hong Kong on December 11. He called at Hai-Phong on December 18 and attended the meeting of the defense committee at Hai-Phong about that date, when the seizure of the island of Hai-Nan was decided upon."

A special dispatch from Shanghai says that communications are constantly passing between the British and Japanese officers, and it is understood that Japanese ministers are trying to effect a reapproachment with England on the basis of a joint guarantee of reform in Chinese administration.

AN AMERICAN WOMAN

Visits the Camp of Gen. Maximo Gomez in Sancti Spiritus.

HAVANA, Dec. 31.—Sylvester Scovel, correspondent of the New York World, and Mrs. Scovel returned Thursday night from their visit to Maximo Gomez on the Demajagua estate, Sancti Spiritus. They were two days and nights with the insurgents, who dined and serenaded them. Mrs. Scovel expresses herself as very much pleased with the trip. It was the first time that an American woman had visited the camp of Gen. Gomez. Mr. Scovel says that Senor Rafael Madrigan carried a commission from the United States government, and that as he (Scovel) had none, he went through the Spanish lines with a permit from Gen. Blanco, who gave it on the understanding that he would talk autonomy to Gen. Gomez, which he did.

Sugar Beet Raising in Missouri.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 31.—Since 1890 the Missouri experiment station here has been making experiments with sugar beets with a view to ascertaining the per cent. of sugar contained in them. The experiments it is announced, demonstrate that it would not be profitable for the Missouri farmer to raise the beets for sugar purposes, if he intends to go to the expense of erecting factories for manufacturing the sugar.

India's Gratitude.

BOMBAY, Dec. 31.—The Indian national congress came to a conclusion Thursday amid much enthusiasm and cheers for the queen empress. Resolutions were adopted thanking the people of the United Kingdom, the British colonies and the United States for generous aid during the famine. It was decided to erect, at the cost of a thousand pounds ($5,000), a memorial of gratitude in London.

Going to Nicaragua.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The party of 14 prospecting engineers who are representing a number of capitalists interested in the construction of the Nicaraguan canal, sailed on the steamship Finance, of the Panama line Thursday. Upon their arrival in Nicaragua they will investigate as to the feasibility of undertaking the completion of the canal, and will submit a report.

Refused a New Trial.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 31.—The supreme court of the United States has just refused an application for a new trial for Mrs. Elizabeth Nobles, convicted of the murder of her husband, on the ground that at her trial the question of insanity was never brought up. She is therefore under sentence of death from the superior court of the state and the only hope of saving her life rests with the newly created pardon board, to whom all applications for executive clemency have been referred. The crime was committed in June, 1895, and her accomplice was a Negro.

The Chicago Medical Missionary Training School, 1926 Wabash avenue, has been established for the purpose of preparing Christian young men and women to labor in city missionary and rescue work. Consecrated young people of both sexes are received as students with regard to creed, provided they are prepared to devote their lives to Gospel [illegible] work. The instructors are physicians, trained medical nurses and [illegible] workers who give their services free; and students are furnished with room and [illegible] free of charge and boarded on the European plan at a cost of from $1 to $1.25 per week for meals. as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Destructive Storms Along the Coast.

Reports of maritime disasters along the coast come in thick and fast. People who "go down to the sea in ships" should bear in mind one thing in particular, namely, that it is highly desirable to take along a supply of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy for seasickness. Nausea, dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, malaria, nervousness and kidney trouble, all succumb to its beneficent and speedy action.

HELD AN ACCIDENT POLICY.

A Cyclist's Disgust at Not Being Hurt in a Collision.

This is the story of a somewhat unusual accident. It happened on the Conduit road one evening early in the fall, and the man who told me about it was an eyewitness. It is singularly appropriate, by the way, that he should be an eyewitness, for he is an oculist by profession. A man on a bicycle was scorching cheerily along on the way to town, when suddenly there loomed up out of the darkness in front of him a heavy wagon and a team headed straight for him. There was no time to turn out. The wheel crashed into the wagon pole, and the rider was thrown completely over the horse, falling between them and the wagon. The oculist ran to the rescue, expecting to see a limp mass of bleeding and unconscious humanity. Instead, he saw a kicking and swearing person who was apparently uninjured. The bicycle was a Chinese puzzle of twisted wire.

"Are you hurt?" asked the oculist.

The swearing person picked himself up and stopped swearing. He gazed at what had once been a fine young bicycle.

"Hurt!" he said in a tone of deepest disgust. "Hurt? Me? Of course I ain't hurt. I've got an accident policy."—Washington Post.

Goosh, S. C., writes: For several years I had suffered much from Cold Feet, Sick Headache, Dizziness in Nights, and found no relief until I commenced taking that greatest of all medicines, Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. In it I believe it is better than the others.

Enlargement of the Womb.

This may be caused by congestion, inflammation or tumors. The symptoms are a dull pain in the lower part of the abdomen, sometimes dopressing or sinking down of the womb, and some uneasiness in emptying the bladder and bowels. Costiveness should be avoided by using Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in small doses, and our Mexican Female Remedy used as an injection, and the persistent use of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine, will bring about a cure.

Julian R. Harrison

Hatteville, S. C., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family. My wife thinks there is nothing like it for Constipation, Bowels and Biliousness. It cured me of Palpitation of Heart. I have used "Zeilin's Regulator," and think Dr. M. A. S. L. M. the best, and the no other.

Irregular Appetite.

This condition is a symptom of some constitutional derangement of the system, especially of Indigestion.

A sufferer from dyspepsia generally has "the blues." He is as miserable in mind as in body. His appetite is more capricious than the whims of a spoiled child; at times there is a craving for food, at others a loathing of even the very thought of eating. This condition renders life miserable and should be corrected by the use of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine.

Knocked Out. Zeilin's big fraud has just been knocked out by the Supreme Court. The unfortunate merchants who were induced to buy the stuff find themselves with goods that cannot be sold, as the Supreme Court enjoined it. The United States Court knocked out the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" as perpetrators of fraud.

A SERMON ON HOME LIFE.

Words of Cheer for All Wives, Mothers, Daughters and Sisters.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Recalls the Interesting Story of Mary and Martha—A Flood of Human Nature Revealed Carrying Comfort to Womankind by the Eloquent Preacher.

Dr. Talmage took for his text Sunday Luke x., 40: "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her, therefore, that she help me."

Yonder is a beautiful village homestead. The man of the house is dead, and his widow is taking charge of the premises. This is the widow, Martha of Bethany. Yes, I will show you also the pet of the household. This is Mary, the younger sister, with a book under arm, and her face having no appearance of anxiety or care. Company has come. Christ stands outside the door, and, of course, there is a good deal of excitement inside the door. The disarranged furniture is hastily put aside and the hair is brushed back and the dresses are adjusted as well as, in so short a time, Mary and Martha can attend to these matters. They did not keep Christ standing at the door until they were newly apparelled, or until they had elaborately arranged their tresses, then coming out with their affected suprise as though they had not heard the two or three previous knockings, saying: "Why is that you?" No. They were ladies, and were always presentable, although they may not have always had on their best, for none of us always has on our best; if we did our best would not be worth having on. They throw open the door, and greet Christ. They say: "Good morning, Master; come in and be seated." Christ did not come alone; he had a group of friends with Him, and such an influx of city visitors would throw any country home into perturbation. I suppose also the walk from the city had been a good appetizer. The kitchen department that day was a very important department, and I suppose that Martha had no sooner greeted the guests than she fled to that room. Mary had no worriment about household affairs. She had full confidence that Martha could get up the best dinner in Bethany. She seems to say: "Now, let us have a division of labor, Martha; you cook and I'll sit down and be good." So you have often seen a great difference between two sisters.

There is Martha, hard working, painstaking, a good manager, ever inventive of some new pastry, or discovering something in the art of cookery and housekeeping. There is Mary, also fond of conversation, literary, so engaged in deep questions of ethics she has no time to attend to the questions of household welfare. It is noon. Mary is in the parlor with Christ. Martha is in the kitchen. It would have been better if they had divided the work and then they could have divided the opportunity of listening to [illegible] Monopolizes Christ while Martha swelters at the fire. It was very important that they should have a good dinner that day. Christ was hungry, and He did not often have a luxurious entertainment. Alas, me! if the duty had evolved upon Mary what a repast that would have been! But something went wrong in the kitchen. Perhaps the fire would not burn, or the bread would not bake, or Martha scolded her hand, or something was burned black that ought only to have been made brown; and Martha lost her patience, and forgetting the proprieties of the occasion, with besweated brow, and perhaps with pitcher in one hand and tongs in the other, she rushes out of the kitchen into the presence of Christ, saying: "Lord, dost Thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone?" Christ scolded not a word. If it were scolding, I should rather have His scolding than anybody else's blessing. There was nothing scorch. He knew Martha had overworked herself to death to get something to eat, and so He throws a world of tenderness into His intonation as He seems to say: "My dear woman, do not worry; let the dinner go, sit down on this ottoman beside Mary, your younger sister. Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful." As Martha throws open that kitchen door I look in and see a great many housekeeping perplexities.

First, there is a trial of nonappreciation. That is what made Martha so mad with Mary. The younger sister had no estimate of her sister's fatigues. As now, men bothered with the anxieties of the store, and office, and shop, or coming from the stock exchange, they say when they get home: "Oh, you ought to be in our factory a little while; you ought to have to manage eight, or ten, or twenty subordinates, and then you would know what trouble and anxiety are!" Oh, sir, the wife and the mother has to conduct at the same time a university, a clothing establishment, a restaurant, a laundry, a library, while she is health officer, police and president of her realm! She must do a thousand things, and do them well, in order to keep things going smoothly; and so her brain and her nerves are taxed to the utmost. I know there are housekeepers who are so fortunate that they can sit in an arm chair in the library, or lie on the belated pillow, and throw off all the care upon subordinates who having large wages and great experience, can attend to all of the affairs of the household. Those are the exceptions. I am speaking now of the great mass of housekeepers—the women to whom life is a struggle, and who, at 30 years of age, look as though they were 40, and at 40 look as though they were 50, and at 50 look as though they were 60. The fallen at Chalons, and Austerlitz, and Gettysburg, and Waterloo are a small number compared with the slain in the great Armageddon of the kitchen. You go out to the cemetery and you will see that the tombstones all read beautifully poetic; but if those tombstones would speak the truth thousands of them would say: "Here lies a woman killed by too much mending, and sewing, and baking, and scrubbing, and scouring; the weapon with which she was slain was a broom, or a sewing machine, or a ladle." You think, O man of the world, that you have all the cares and anxieties. If the cares and anxieties of the household should come upon you for one week you would be fit for the insane asylum. The half-rested housekeeper arises in the morning. She must have the [illegible] repast prepared at an irregular hour. What if the fire will [illegible] light, what if the clock has stopped [illegible] no matter, she must have the morning repast at an irrevocable hour. . . . Then the children must be got off to school. What if their garments are torn; what if they do not know their lessons, what if they have lost a hat or sash—they must be ready. Then you have all the diet of the day, and perhaps of several days, to plan; but what if the butcher has sent meat unpalatable, or the grocer has sent articles of food unlimited, and what if some piece of silver be gone, or some favorite chalice be cracked, or the roof leak, or the plumbing fail, or any one of a thousand things occur you must be ready. Spring weather comes, and there must be a revolution in the family wardrobe; or autumn comes, and you must shut out the northern blast; but what if the moth has preceded you to the chest; and if, during the year, the children have outgrown the apparel of last year; what if the fashions have changed. Your house must be an apothecary's shop; it must be a dispensary; there must be medicines for all sorts of ailments—something to loosen the croup, something to cool the burn, something to poultice the inflammation, something to silence the jumping tooth, something to soothe the earache. You must be in a half a dozen places at the same time, or you must attempt to be. If, under all this wear and tear of life, Martha makes an impatient rush upon the library or drawing-room, be patient, be lenient! Oh, woman, though I may fail to stir up an appreciation in the souls of others in regard to your household oils, let me assure you, from the kindliness with which Jesus Christ met Martha, that He appreciates all your work from garret to cellar; and that the God of Deborah, and Hannah, and Abigail, and Grandmother Lois, and Mary, and Beth Fay, and Hannah More is the God of the housekeeper! Jesus was never married, that He might be the especial friend and confidant of a whole world of troubled womanhood. I blunder; Christ was married. The Bible says that the church is the Lamb's wife, and that makes me know that all Christian women have a right to go to Christ and tell him of their annoyances and troubles, since by his oath of conjugal fidelity he is sworn to sympathize. George Herbert, the Christian poet, wrote two or three verses on this subject:

"The servant by this clause
Makes drudgery divine
Who sweeps a room, as for Thy laws,
Makes this and the action fine."

A young woman of brilliant education and prosperous circumstances was called down stairs to help in the kitchen in the absence of the servants. The doorbell ringing, she went to open it and found a gentleman friend, who said as he came in: "I thought that I heard music; was it on this piano or on this harp?" She answered: "No, I was playing on a gridiron, with frying-pan accompaniment. The servants are gone, and I am learning how to do this work." "Well done!" said the man; "women in all circles find out that it is honorable to do anything that ought to be done?"

Again, there is the trial of severe ecouomy. Nine hundred and ninety-nine households out of the thousand are subjected to it—some under more and some under less stress of circumstances. Especially if a man smoke very expensive cigars, and take very costly dinners at the restaurants, he will be severe in demanding domestic economies. This is what fills tens of thousands of women attempting to make five dollars do the work of seven. A young woman about to enter the married state said to her mother: "How long does the honeymoon last?" The mother answered: "The honeymoon lasts until you ask your husband for money." How some men do dole out money to their wives! "How much do you want? A dollar! You are always wanting a dollar. Can't you do with 50 cents?" If the husband has not the money, let him plainly say so. If he has it, let him make cheerful response, remembering that his wife has as much right to it as he has. How the bills come in! The woman is the banker of the household; she is the president, the cashier, the teller, the discount clerk; and there is a panic every few weeks! This 30 years' war against high prices, this perpetual study of economies, this life-long attempt to keep the outgoes less than the income exhausts innumerable housekeepers. Oh, my sister, this is a part of the divine discipline. If it were best for you, all you would have to do would be to open the front windows and the ravens would fly in with food; and after you had baked 50 times from the barrel in the pantry, the barrel, like the one of Zarephath, would be full; and the shoes of the children would last as long as the shoes of the Israelites in the wilderness—40 years. Besides that this is going to make Heaven the more attractive in the contrast. They never hunger there, and consequently there will be none of the nuisances of catering for appetites. And in the land of the white robe they never have to mend anything, and the air in that hill country makes everybody well. There are no rents to pay; every man owns his own house, and a mansion at that. It will not be so great a change for you to have a chariot in Heaven if you have been in the habit of riding in this world. It will not be so great a change for you to sit down on the banks of the river of life, if in this world you had a country seat; but if you have walked with tired feet in this world what a glorious change to mount celestial equipage! And if your life on earth was domestic martyrdom, oh, the joy of an eternity in which you shall have nothing to do except what you choose to do! Martha has had no drudgery for 18 centuries! I quarrel with the theologians who want to distribute all the thrones of Heaven among the John Knoxes, and the Hugh Latimers, and the Theban Legion. Some of the brightest thrones of Heaven will be kept for Christian housekeepers. Oh, what a change from here to there! From the time when they put down the rolling pin to when they take up the scepter! If Chatsworth Park and the Vanderbilt mansion were to be lifted into the celestial city they would be considered uninhabitable cookeries, and glorified Lazarus would be ashamed to be going in and out of either of them.

There are many housekeepers who could get along with their toils if it were not for sickness and trouble. The fact is, one-half of the women of the land are more or less invalids. The mountain lass, who has never had an ache or pain, may consider household toil inconsiderable, and toward evening she may skip away miles to the fields and drive home the cattle, and she may until 10 o'clock at night fill the house with laughing racket; but oh, to do the work of life with worn-out constitution, when whooping cough has been raging for six weeks in the household, making the night as sleepless as the day—that is not so easy! Perhaps this comes after the nerves have been shattered by some bereavement that has left desolation in every room of the house, and set the crib in the garret, because the occupant has been hushed into slumber which needs no mother's lullaby. Oh, she could provide for the whole group a great deal better than she can for a part of the group, now the rest are gone! Though you may tell her God is taking care of those who are gone, it is mother-like to brood both flocks; and one wing she puts over the flock in the house, the other wing she puts over the flock in the grave.

There is nothing but the old-fashioned religion of Jesus Christ that will take a woman happily through the trials of home life. At first there may be a romance or a novelty that will do for a substitute. The marriage hour has just passed, and the perplexities of the household are more than atoned by the joy of being together, and by the fact that when it is late they do not have to discuss the question as to whether it is time to get the misraps of the household, instead of being a matter of anxiety and reprehension, are a matter of merriment—the loaf of bread turned into a geological specimen; the slushy custards, the pumiliced or measley biscuits. It is a very bright sunlight that falls on the cutlery and the mantel ornaments of a new home.

But after awhile the romance is all gone, and then there is something to be prepared for the table that the book called "Cookery Taught in Twelve Lessons" will not teach. The recipe for making is not a handful of this, a cup of that, and a spoonful of something else. It is not something sweetened with ordinary condiments, or flavored with ordinary flavors, or baked in ordinary ovens. It is the loaf of domestic happiness, and all the ingredients come down from Heaven, and the fruits are plucked from the tree of life, and it is sweetened with the new wine of the kingdom, and it is baked in the oven of home trial. Solomon wrote out of his own experience. He had a wretched home. A man can not be happy with two wives, much less 600; and he says, writing out of his own experience: "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith."

How great are the responsibilities of housekeepers! Sometimes an indigestible article of food, by its effect upon a king, has overturned an empire. A disinguished statistician says of 1,000 unmarried men there are 998 criminals, and of 1,000 married men only 13 are criminals. What a suggestion of home influences! Let the most be made of them. Housekeepers by the food they provide, by the couches they spread, by the books they introduce, by the influences they bring around their home, are deciding the physical, intellectual, moral, eternal destiny of the race. You say your life is one of sacrifice. I know it. But, my sisters, that is the only life worth living. That was Florence Nightingale's life; that was Payson's life; that was Christ's life. We admire it in others; but how very hard it is for us to exercise it ourselves!

Probably the most thoroughly vaccinated man on earth is Chief Veal, of the health department of Atlanta, but he has never felt the effect of the virus that has been put into his arm. Since he has been in charge of the health department Chief Veal has handled many cases of smallpox and has been exposed too many times to estimate. Since he began the work Chief Veal has been vaccinated 263 times with the purest and freshest of virus, but not once has it had the desired effect. Although physicians have done everything known to medical skill to make vaccination "take" on him, they have failed.

Mme. Marguerite Durand is to be the editor of a new paper for women that is to be started in Paris. Mlle. Jeanne Chauvin, the would-be barrister, takes charge of legal questions, and other departments are conducted by women. All the reporting, too, will be done by women. The paper will not be run in the interests of any association, but will appeal to the public on its own merits.

Napoleon gave to Marshal Ney a watch, which has just been acquired by the army museum at Paris. It is said on the morning of Austerlitz Napoleon asked his marshal the time of day. Taking the timepiece out, Ney replied: "By your watch, sire, it is the hour of victory."

IT PRESENTS ITS PLAN.

Main Points in the Report of the Monetary Commission.

Presents What It Considers to Be Defects in Our Present Currency System, and Suggests How It May Be Reformed.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The following is an abstract of the report of the monetary commission appointed under authority of the convention of business men held in Indianapolis last January which has just been made public:

It retains practically unchanged the existing metallic money. The existing gold standard on which business has been done since 1879 is, of course, maintained on the ground that industrial interests demand certainty as to what the standard shall be. For the steady employment of labor, factories and mines must be constantly operated; and constant operation, in the judgment of business men, is impossible so long as there is uncertainty as to the standard on which prices of goods and orders are based. And to this end, it is urged that the United States should remove all uncertainty as to the payment of its obligations, thereby saving the taxpayer by the ability to borrow at a lower rate of interest.

Place for Silver.

No attempt is made to remove the existing silver dollars, nor to change their legal-tender quality; on the contrary, a place is provided for the silver in the circulation by forbidding the issue of any paper money other than silver certificates in denominations below ten dollars. The silver currency, which will [illegible] the hands of the people, must be kept on a parity with gold, as is now provided by law, and this should be done by requiring the treasury to give gold for a silver dollar on demand. Consequently, when it [illegible] for a silver dollar can be exchanged for [illegible] will circulate freely on an equality with certificates), and our metallic currency, without being diminished, will be unified on a certain basis. And, as [illegible] this silver currency will be needed to [illegible] the demands of large change (when other paper below [illegible] ten dollars is issued), it will not be presented for redemption at the treasury, and will create no drain on the gold reserve. But no more silver dollars should be coined.

Reserve Too Slender.

The commission contend that the ten different kinds of money now in use create an anomalous and confusing situation. Moreover, the whole fabric rests on too slender a reserve of gold. It is urged that the demand obligations of the government should not be used as money, because they may be, and have been, presented for gold to the injury of the nation's credit. This causes grave doubts as to the stability on which the business operations of the country rest. Everything which, by experience, creates uncertainty in values hurts trade, hinders prosperity and should be removed. Hence the fiscal affairs of the treasury relating to the receipt and disbursement of public revenues should be entirely separated from the monetary functions dealing with the exchange and redemption of the currency. By establishing a separate division of issue and redemption in the treasury, it will be impossible to take away funds set apart for the protection of our monetary system and use them for current expenditures.

Fraught with Danger.

Above all, it is regarded as dangerous to maintain the present practice of using government demand obligations as money. Our fathers never made anything full legal-tender money except gold and silver; but in the stress of civil war, confusing the different and incongruous monetary functions of the state, forms of debt due on demand were used as money not as the result of deliberation but of emergency conditions. They were issued exactly because there were no resources in the treasury; and so they depreciated, drove out gold, furnished a fluctuating standard, increased the national debt enormously, and caused change in prices whenever the credit of the paper standard fluctuated, reduced the purchasing power of wages, and by causing unexpected changes in the level of prices gave rise to extraordinary speculation, increased the severity of commercial crises, and placed the small producer at a disadvantage with the large operator. For 17 years (1862-1879) the government paper was a fatsified promise, and our standard was down, and it is below the par when it became speculative. Men of large wealth can take care of themselves; but men of small means should be protected from the evils arising from such uncertainty of the standard.

If the demand obligations of the government are used as money, reserves must always be kept on hand to redeem them. They are not therefore a loan without interest; and the expense of keeping up these reserves has made a heavy addition a very great burden to the taxpayer by an increase of the public debt. These gold reserves are necessary, unless the government permits its notes to go to protest. The mere credit of the United States behind its notes is too vague a thing, its power to tax is too remote, to provide cash on hand for instant use. So far as expense is concerned, this debt could have been more easily borne by changing it into low interest-bearing bonds.

Should Be Withdrawn.

For these and other reasons the commission strongly urge the government to withdraw its demand obligations now used as money, decline to issue any more, as reporters, and put the burden and expense of maintaining a redeemable paper circulation upon the banks. In order to meet the demand obligations, the present reserves of gold in the treasury furnish a beginning to be set aside in the division of issue and redemption; and to meet future contingencies the secretary of the treasury is authorized to sell bonds whenever the reserves need replenishment. In this way, or from surplus revenue, the demand obligations (that is, United States notes and treasury notes of 1890) can be gradually removed, and the circulation thereby can be reduced, while this process will also give the inestimable advantage of ceasing to use demand debts as money of simplifying our currency, and of adding to confidence in the certainty of our standard. By the plan of the commission, government paper is withdrawn in the first five years only as fast as the banking currency expands, so that contraction cannot possibly take place. If United States notes are canceled their place will be taken by the gold paid out for them, or by the expansion of bank notes (under the new system proposed), and in the following five years all the remaining United States notes are to be retired.

Bank Note is Lauded.

The demand obligations of the United States were put forth solely because there were no funds in the treasury to redeem them. The notes were only evidence that property had been received and used up for services or supplies or public buildings (no longer available assets). The government by the nature of the operation did not retain, as the notes went out, any property immediately convertible into coin with which to redeem its demand issues. They were not a money based on property; they were only a debt. On the other hand, a bank note is never issued (except, of course, excluded) except for a consideration in negotiable property of equal or greater value. The bank note comes forth as the sequel of a business transaction, and is based on the active property of the country which is passing between producers and consumers. This property is always negotiable and always equal to the duty of meeting the note liability. Bank notes are as sound as the business transactions of the country. The currency of the country, moreover, should increase as the transactions of the country increase; hence the rigid unchanging issues of the government make them an inelastic part of the circulation, while by the very process of their issue bank notes alone can be automatically adjusted to the changing transactions of the business community.

The Commissioners' Plan.

In view of the scarcity of United States bonds they cannot long be regarded as a basis for circulation. Moreover, any bond security of a higher character yields a low rate of interest; and in time of stringency, when borrowers need loans and the market rate of interest is high, there is no inducement to buy these bonds to increase circulation. Hence, under the present system, when notes would be most needed, it is least profitable to issue them. While providing for a partial use of bonds for securing notes (25 per cent. of the capital) the commission proposed that notes beyond this should be issued on all instead of a part of, the resources of a bank; and after ten years that no special bond security should be required. Banks may issue notes up to 60 per cent. of their capital without restraint; for issues beyond 60 per cent. and up to 80 per cent. they pay a tax of two per cent.; for those beyond 80 per cent. and up to 100 per cent. they pay a tax of six per cent. These notes would be a prior tien upon all the resources of the bank, and, in addition, upon the stockholders' liability. Moreover, all banks issuing notes contribute five per cent. of their circulation as a permanent guaranty fund. For daily redemptions, banks should keep a five per cent. redemption fund in the hands of the comptroller of the currency. Banks of $25,000 capital may be established in places of 4,000 inhabitants; and branches of banks are also permitted.

Safe and Uniform Currency.

It is apparent that the security to the noteholder under the proposed plan is greater than generally supposed. [illegible] would be issued by all national banks to the amount of 80 per cent. of their present capital, the security in the form of total assets including conversion of stockholders' liability or a guaranty fund) is more than seven dollars to one dollar. In the [illegible] banks outside of [illegible] reserve cities, the proportion would be $5.10 to one dollar of [illegible]. The greatest number of failures of banks occurred in 1893; and yet the notes of these failed banks which did not realise more than 97 per cent. of their capital out of their resources formed only one-eighth of one per cent. of the proposed circulation. Had 90 per cent. of the capital of all national banks been issued in notes under the proposed plan, since the beginning of the national banking system in 1863, an assessment upon the banks annually of only one-fortieth of one per cent. would have been necessary. Moreover, instead of a tax on circulation, a tax of one-eighth of one per cent. on capital and surplus is proposed to cover the expenses of the system. Such a plan in general would furnish a safe, elastic, uniform and expanding currency based on a fixed and certain standard.

Child's Prayer to Satan.

A Brixton clergyman vouches for the following incident, which, he thinks, is a touching instance of youthful orthodoxy. He writes: "A little girl, about nine years of age, was obliged, for some time, to endure the nagging annoyances of a maiden aunt. The child puzzled her little mind as to the best means of getting rid of her tormentor, and at last hit upon a plan which, she thought, would have the desired result. She spent the whole of one morning writing a letter, and having finished it she disappeared in the garden. In the course of the afternoon her mother asked the gardener what Alice had been doing, and was surprised to learn that she had dug a deep hole, and put a letter in it. A search was made, and the following epistle was discovered, addressed to the potentate of the nether regions at his official residence: 'Dear Mr. Satan, will you kindly come and take away Aunt Jane. She is a very fussy person, and does worry me so.—Alice.' Who will say, after this, that children are not orthodox?"—London Telegraph.

Keeping Out the Dark.

Sunnylocks used to have an insatiable desire to look at choo-choo cars, and whenever his papa could do so he would take the little boy down to the track to see the trains rush past. One day a naughty fireman shoveled a lot of coal into the furnace of a passing locomotive, and the wind blew a big, black cloud of smoke over toward Sunnylocks, and some of it got into his eyes. After that he would press his face against his papa's cheek whenever an engine rushed along, because he didn't like the black smoke. But as yet Sunnylocks doesn't seem to have a very thorough understanding of the nature and composition of smoke. The other night, when he was being carried upstairs to bed, he pressed his face against his papa's cheek, as he did whenever he saw an engine. "Why are you doing that?" he was asked. "I must keep my eyes shut so de dark won't get in them," said Sunnylocks.—Cleveland Leader.

Banting's System.

The late Princess Mary of Teck became in her middle life, enormously stout, and tried many means to reduce her flesh. Having heard much of Banting, she sent for him. She was surprised to see that he was still extremely bulky, and after a few civil preparatory remarks, she said: "But your system has not made you very thin, Mr. Banting?" "Allow me, madam," said Banting—and proceeding to unbutton his coat, he disclosed a large wire structure over which the garment fitted. Inside was the real Banting, incased in another coat. "This, madam," said he, pointing with pardonable satisfaction to his cage, "was my size before I commenced dieting." He then nimbly disembarrassed himself of his framework, and stood before the royal lady exhibiting his elegant figure!—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Clerk's Notice.

In a small village in Gloucestershire the clergyman was out visiting, but was expected back to preach on the Sunday. Early on Sunday morning, however, the parish clerk received a message from the clergyman to say he would not be able to preach, as he was going to "officiate" for another clergyman. As the service time drew near the clerk rang the bell, and when the time was up and the people were assembled, he went into the pulpit and addressed them thus: "This is to give notice that the parson will not be able to preach here to-day, as he is gone 'a-fishing along with another parson."—London Spare Moments.

NEGOTIATIONS

For Reciprocity Between Venezuela and the United States.

Regulations Under Act of Congress Prohibiting the Taking of Sealskins by Americans and Inhibiting the Importation of Sealskins Into This Country.

Washington, Dec. 31.—It is said that one of the purposes of the present visit to Washington of the United States minister to Venezuela, Mr. Loomis, is to start negotiations for a reciprocity treaty between Venezuela and the United States. This is rather an unexpected step as Venezuela was one of the few South American countries which did not make a reciprocity treaty under the former system. At that time, however, Venezuela suffered by having her coffee practically excluded from the United States because Brazil and other coffee producing countries had the reduced duties under reciprocity treaties. This experience makes Venezuela one of the first of the southern republics to consider the question of a reciprocity treaty under the Dingly law.

The secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, has issued regulations under the act of congress signed Wednesday, prohibiting the taking of sealskins by American citizens except on the Pribylof islands, and inhibiting the importation into this country of pelagic sealskins. The regulations provide that no sealskins, raw, dressed, dyed or otherwise manufactured shall be admitted to entry in the United States except there be attached to the invoice a certificate signed by the United States consul at the place of exportation that said skins were not taken from seals killed within the waters mentioned in said act, specifying in detail the locality of such taking, whether on land, at sea, and also the person from whom said skins were purchased in their raw and dressed state, the date of such purchase and the lot number.

The post office department has ruled that an ex-union soldier drawing a pension under the dependent pension law may be reinstated in a position he formerly occupied in the service. The case arose in connection with the application of a veteran employed in the Philadelphia post office. In order to obtain a pension under the dependent act he must swear that he is without means of support and is unable to do manual labor.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The post office department has prepared advertisements, which will soon be issued, inviting proposals for furnishing adhesive stamps for the government for the four years beginning July 1 next. The issues advertised for include the ordinary stamps, news and periodical stamps, postage due stamps and those for special delivery. The number required per year approximate three billion. Under a special arrangement made nearly four years ago the work of furnishing stamps is now done by the bureau of engraving and printing, the bids received by the post office department at that time for furnishing stamps having been rejected. The arrangement terminates July 1st when the new contract which will result from the advertisements about to be issued will become effective.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Assistant Secretary Day has just received a response from the superintendent of the Ward line steamers in New York in answer to his inquiry as to whether he could announce that his line would convey supplies to Cuba for the relief of the suffering people free of cost. The prompt answer was:

"Will be pleased to accept supplies for Cuban sufferers free of cost. Presume they will be consigned to Gen. Lee?"

The Acandona, Mont., Standard telegraphed Wednesday night that the secretary of state could draw on the National Park bank, of New York, for $800 already subscribed and paid in by Montana people for the benefit of the Cuban sufferers. More money is promised from the same source January 1. All of this money is being distributed through Consul General Lee.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The arrangement effected between Mr. Sifton, in behalf of Canada, and the war department, contemplates that the relief expedition shall be executed jointly by the United States army and a force of the mounted police of Canada, which constitutes the military arm of the Dominion. The United States force will go with the relief steamer to Skaguway where it will be joined by the Canadian mounted police, about forty in number, and the two forces will then proceed together to the points where the relief is to be distributed. The determination as to Skaguway is, however, still open. The Canadian officials concede much latitude to the American authorities in the actual distribution, recognizing that the expedition is fitted out on this side, although a considerable part of its work will be done on the Canadian side of the border. No duties will be imposed on the stores carried by the relief expedition.

Chas. Embry Withdraws.

Richmond, Ky., Dec. 31.—Charles M. Embry, candidate for doorkeeper of the lower house of the legislature, withdrew Thursday on account of ill health. His strength will go to McWhorter, of Lincoln. Embry is very ill.

Gales on the British Coasts Continue.

London, Dec. 31.—The gales continue about the British coasts, and the anchorages are full of vessels which have sought shelter. The channel service between Dover and Calais and Folkestone and Boulogne-Sur-Mer was suspended Thursday morning.

The Marietta Ordered to Salvador.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The navy department have ordered the gunboat Marietta, now at Mare Island, to Salvador on the report from United States Consul Jenkins that the situation in that country was disturbed and threatening.

Down in Robertson county the children attending a rural school are as busy as a brood of chickens in spring time. The seven-year itch has about broken up the school.

At Falmouth, James Robinson, a negro desperado, was shot and killed by Clarence Gifford. The negro was drinking and had tried to pick a quarrel with several other people.

A water pipe burst on the second floor of the county court house at Shelbyville at night and completely flooded the circuit clerks's office. When discovered the next morning three feet of water was standing in the office. Many valuable papers were entirely destroyed or badly damaged.

Milton Peak, living four miles from town, on the Payne's Depot pike, had killed and put up thirteen nice hogs in his meat house, and was smoking the meat. The house, together with all of the thirteen hogs and about 100 bushels of coal, was burned. Loss in all about $350.—Georgetown News.

A double wedding took place at the Monroe county poor house last week, the contracting parties being Samuel Swafford and Mrs. Nancy Bolton, Grant Ford and Mrs. Nancy Wiggins. One of the grooms has his back broken, and the other is almost an idiot, while the two brides are both old women.

The Board of Visitors of the Kentucky Institute for the Blind and Gov. Bradley have decided to greatly increase the capacity of the building by extending both wings of the structure. The crowded condition of the institution makes this step absolutely necessary. The improvements will cost about $19,000.

South Trimble, who is one of the most popular men in Frankfort, and has just as many friends out in the State where he is known, will get something good at the hands of the General Assembly. It is now said that he all but has a cinch on the Chairmanship of the House caucus, an honor he deserves and will appreciate in the fullest.

The Court of Appeals has handed down a decision to the effect that a person who secures whisky on a prescription in a prohibition town may consume the liquor on the premises of the druggist but he "may not take part of the amount prescribed at one time and part at another." Over at Danville a druggist was fined for allowing a customer with a perscription for a quart to be so dainty as to drink only a pint at a drink.

A Christmas tree that blossomed with typical Kentucky gifts is said to have created a sensation at Eddyville. The young women who decorated the tree were handed numerous tightly wrapped packages, each with the name of the intended recipient on it, by a strange man. When presentation time came, every prominent member and officer of the congregation received one of these parcels. Naturally the lucky ones opened their bundles at once. Each contained a bottle of whisky. The minister, an ardent prohibitionist, got a very large flask.

The good women of Owensboro have determined to prevent, if possible, the further sale of cigarettes in that city. The organization in Owensboro known as the M. A. I. D. S. has been in every part of Owensboro during the past week getting signatures to petition to the council, asking that body to put the license on "coffin nails" up to $500. They hope by raising the licenses to such a large sum that they will make the business of selling the "paper rolls" so unprofitable as to induce the dealers to quit handling them. The petitions are being signed by two-thirds of the citizens, it is said, and it would not be a surprise if the movement were to prove successful.

Governor Bradley has pardoned the life sentence of Pendlum, of Bath county, sent up for housebreaking, but strange to say, he will remain in the prison 3-years longer. He was charged with stealing in three separate indictments, and was sentenced for three years each under the first two charges. When it came to the third charge, the law which says any man who goes to the penitentiary three times for the same offense must remain for life on the third conviction, was construed by the Bath county authorities to apply to Pendlum's case, although he had never been in the penitentiary, so he was senteneed for life. The Governor pardons the life sentence, but Pendlum must serve out the short sentences.

A movement is on foot among some leading citizens of the over-the river towns to unite Covington and Newport and nine adjoining towns in Kenton and Campbell counties, and make of them one municipality of the first class, with a population approximate of 125,000. A bill will be drawn to this end and introduced into the Kentucky Legislature early in its coming session. The promoters of the scheme believe that its passage can be secured, and they give good reasons therefor. The plan contemplates first the erection of a new county to combine portions of Kenton and Campbell counties, and yet leaving enough to each to allow them to proceed, just as in years that are past, except that the endless conflict and jealousies between the country inhabitants and the city inhabitants will be done away with. It is proposed to name the new county Cincinnati county. At present the official county seat of Kenton is Independence, and of Campbell county, Alexandria. Court houses and jails are already in each and in good condition. They would continue the seats of the two counties, and the country people would be allowed the privilege of governing themselves and being left unto themselves. It is believed that taxes would be correspondingly lower. The new county would comprise a territory about 10 miles square. The survey would begin at the mouth of the Licking river and extend down the bank of the Ohio river a distance of five miles. This would carry the line to the westernmost limits of Bromley. From there a line would extend due south a distance probably ten miles, then east a similar distance, and north to the Ohio river, coming out at about the eastern limits of Dayton. Thence west again to the mouth of the Licking river. Embraced in this territory are the cities of Covington and Newport and the towns of Central Covington, South Covington (including Milldale Latonia and Rosedale), West Covington, Ludlow and Bromley, in Kenton county, and Bellevue, Dayton, Fort Thomas and the Highlands, in Campbell county.

One hundred and thirty-nine Confederate soldiers, prisoners of war, lie buried at Madison, Wis. and efforts are being made, at the suggestion of the Union veterans, to have the Confederate Veterans Association in Washington erect a monument to their memory.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

(Special to the Recorder.)

Frankfort, Ky., Jan'y. 3d, 1897.

The eve of Christmastide, with its vista of toy drums, and guns and mimic war, to say nothing of empty pocket books and fruit-cake incurred dyspepsia, having passed the people of the state settle down to business, all eyes turning toward the state capital, where the law-makers are meeting to remedy the legal and political ills of Kentucky by such legislation as seems to them to be essential. The fact that almost two-thirds of the present General Assembly is new timber has created more interest in its doings than would otherwise have attached to the meeting of solons. The session having been stripped of its Senatorial interest some persons wonder what of unusual import can be transacted at this term, but if I am to believe what I have seen and heard there are to be introduced some would-be measures which will attract widespread attention, owing to the heated debates which they will almost certainly provoke.

Of course the first matter for disposition is the election of the officers who are to serve in the two Houses during the new session. So far as the Speakerships of the two branches are concerned they are as good as settled in favor of Senator Goebel, in the Senate, and Representative Cripps Beckham, in the House, and it is but fair to say that both are widely known and popular and will make capable and satisfactory presiding officers. The chairmanship of the two caucuses will go to South Trimble, for the Democrats in the lower branch, and ex-Speaker Blanford for the Republicans in the upper branch. The clerkship's race is a lively one and the winner is hard pick, though I'll hazard a guess on John Bashaw, of Louisville. But Bashaw will have to beat a hustler in the House scramble in the person of Henry B. Ware.

Green R. Kellar has no opposition for assistant clerk of the House nor has Jim Stone for assistant clerk of the Senate, and it would be hard to find two more popular men. Wm. Cromwell, for chief clerk of the Senate, is another certainty whose election you may bank on. One of the most exciting contests I find here today is that for enrolling clerk of the Senate. There are seven or eight entries and all such hustlers it is almost impossible to decide which lucky woman will be chosen.

For enrolling clerk of the House there are also ten or twelve contestants, but his friends aver today that young Henry Williams, of the Bowling Green Times, will land the prize. Harry Sommers, of Elizabethtown, will be the new Segeant-at-arms of the Senate, and Will Klair, of Lexington, will be his assistant. Uncle Tod Hall says he will be chosen assistant sergeant of the House and Bob Tyler, of Bullitt, will get the doorkeepership of the Senate. There are two candidates for cloak room keeper in both the House and Senate and it is hard to name the lucky one.

One of the most spirited races before the caucus will be that for State Librarian, with fifteen pretty and popular Kentucky women to chose from. There are thirty or forty candidates for page and the other minor places are being eagerly sought by quite as many anxious young gentlemen.

Of course the Governor's message, which will be sent to both Houses tomorrow at noon, will create considerable interest. It is expected that he will recommend the passage of a bill which will everlastingly exterminate the raider and punish the would-be night riders so severely as to make such lawlessness impossible hereafter. He will doubtless ask for the creation of the office of state bank inspector and it is said may recommend the passage of a bill creating a fund for building new capital halls. The state chair matter which is becoming so mountainous in extent, will be referred to the revenue of the state.

Among the first bills to be introduced will be one by representative Morgan Chinn, of Mercer, to regulate the forces of the combine known as the American School Book concern. The measure providing for a non-partisan board of prison commissioners, will be one of the most important matters for consideration. The prison muddle, it is claimed, will be done away with by the passage of such a bill. Then the bill to consolidate the offices of sheriff and jailer of Jefferson county, will come up early in the session to cause an exciting debate. It is expected that this bill, which is a shot at sheriff Pflanze, of Jefferson county, for alleged partisan treatment of the Louisville silver daily, will pass with little effort. The old fight to repeal the Southern Pacific's charter, the bill to regulate and reduce the fare on railroads, and several others are already drawn and ready for the enrolling clerk.

Boone's Representative, the Hon. Reuben Conner, has arrived and taken rooms for the term. He looks the perfect picture of health and is ready for an exciting or an ordinary go-as-you-please session as the case may be. He is one of the most dignified looking men in the present General Assembly and has a hearty hand grasp that will make him a favorite with the men who have never met him, and before he has been here many days. He went quietly to work on his arrival getting his data together for the work before him, but was besieged by a dozen or more candidates who kept him so busy he had little time to meet the members or look the ground over.

There's little politics to talk on tap yet, the politicians having lagged back till the last hour, but politics will be the chief topic before the term is well begun. Congressmen, Senators and Presidents will be elected and seated at many a night meeting of the politician's club, and new candidates for every office in the gift of the people will be made and unmade over and over again. The only political note I heard today was that there would be a surprise in store for Col. Al Berry when he shied his castor in the Congressional ring next year. The tip is that there will be at least three formidable candidates for the Democratic nomination who will warm the wax in the ears of the "Tall Sycamore of the Licking" before he is aware of it.

A short time ago Amos Purkis, of Hartford, Me., felt a pricking sensation in his side. After an examination he pulled out a common sewing needle all threaded for use. He don't remember when he swallowed it.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

Mr. Preston sold his crop of tobacco at 10c ground up. W. A. Vest's crop at 11c. Dan Points' crop 10c. Mr. Shaw purchaser, for Liggitt & Myers. Robt. Lantern sold his crop to E. K, McClure at Crittenden for 10c.

Dr. R. H. O'Hara and wife, who have been spending the last two months at Mountain Valley Springs, Arkansas, for the benefit of the doctor's health returned home on last Friday. The doctor is much stronger and is looking much better than he did when he left for that famous health resort.

Wm. Carnes has suggested a new idea upon assessing notes and bonds by the assessors. He says there ought to be an amendment to the laws in relation to assessing notes and bonds and stock in this that the assessors of the State be supplied with stamps furnished by the counties and any person who fails to give in his notes and bonds, and stamp the same, shall not be entitled to collect the same. The stamp to contain the name of the assessor, county and year, with penalties made for the enforcement of the law. Mr. Carnes is preparing a bill along these lines and will have it presented to the Legislature.

[In memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Hall, who died Dec. 19, 1897.]

We know not a mother's love
Until it is too late—
That is when God calls her above
To enter the pearly gate.

She sleeps—our aged mother sleeps.
Her cares of life are o'er.
She has gone to her eternal home,
Where sorrows come no more.

She sleeps—our aged mother sleeps—
She sleeps beneath the sod.
She has left her friends to weep—
Her soul has gone to God.

She sleeps—our aged mother sleeps—
She has bid them all good bye;
She has gone from her home on earth
To her home beyond the sky.

Officer Petcher arrested a man and woman near Mitchell's brickyard Sunday evening on suspicion and put them in jail. It was afterwards learned that the man's name was Harry Hamlin, and that he had shot an individual named William Smith in a shanty boat quarrel over the woman at the mouth of Gunpowder creek, near Rabbit Hash, Ky The wounded man was taken to Cincinnati Monday morning on the steamer Minnie Bay, and is reported dying at the hospital. The Kentucky authorities were notified of the arrest of Hamlin and the woman, who gave her name as Nellie Jenkins, but no action being taken to secure them for trial they were discharged by the Mayor on Tuesday evening.—Lawrenceburg Register.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1898. NO. 12

THE Ohio Republicans are dwelling together in unity—like strange cats and dogs.

THE supervisors of tax increased several list in the county, but those reduced were few and far between.

A STATE that gave a Republican majority of 80,000 not long since ought to have no trouble to elect a Republican Senator.

SOME of the Democratic members of the House refused to vote for the colored nominee of the caucus. Some men are built that way, Republicans as well as Democrats.

THE Kentucky Senatorial racket at Frankfort last winter, nor the winter before, was nothing as compared with that which the Republicans have been making at Columbus, Ohio, for the last ten days.

THE storm parties that have been tendered Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, are not enjoyed by him—neither have they convinced him that he should put his shoulder to the wheel to help Hanna out of the mire.

IT is said the Legislature may indulge in the business of carving out one or more new counties. Of what benefit more counties would be is not apparent. They would increase the number of pauper counties.

THE Governor, and Commissioner of Agriculture Moore, do not agree as to the usefulness of the Agricultural bureau. The Governor wants it abolished and the Commissioner wants its field of operation extended.

THE fight for and against the civil service law in Congress is growing furious and fast. When the civil service plank in the St. Louis platform is read in the hearing of the Republicans who have repudiated that plank, they grow nervous and it takes very little nagging to make them furious.

GOV. BRADLEY'S message contains many good suggestions, but his plan for preventing lynchings, to wit: to make a county in which the lynching occurs, responsible in damages to the heirs at law of the person lynched, would not prove the success the Governor contemplates.

J. F. BLYTH, Superintendent of the County Infirmary, has reduced the cost of maintaining that institution to the minimum, as shown by his report to the last term of the fiscal court. Mr. Blyth and his wife control the inmates without trouble, and things move along there as smoothly as were the inmates members of one family.

DURANT, the California double murderer, who had tried to escape the gallows by every avenue known to up-to-date attorneys, went through the trap, last Friday, at San Quentin, California, He was convicted of the murder of two young ladies, the bodies of whom were found in a church to which he had access as Assistant Superintendent of the Sunday School.

IT seems that Mr. Hanna's political record is not up to the standard as a good Republican. He has assisted in defeating Republican nominees for office all the way from a Cleveland Councilman to the Governor of Ohio, Senator Foraker being his victim in one instance for the last named office; therefore the Governor's refusal to assist the "Boss" is not so strange at last.

THE RECORDER goes to its readers each week laden with news. It contains a full report of the proceedings of Congress, and a Washington letter; the full proceedings of the Legislature, and a Frankfort letter; a lot of general and State news, and considerable other interesting matter, besides neighborhood gossip, county news and the court proceedings, &c., &c. Now is the time to subscribe; it needs your support both morally and financially.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, January 8th, 1897.

Mr. McKinley's attempt to bluff the anti-civil service Republicans in the House into keeping quiet, by promising that he would modify the civil service rules as soon as the agitation ceased, was a flat failure. The fight on civil service began as soon as Congress reassembled. Gen. Grosvenor even left his friend Boss Hanna, who is fighting for his life at Columbus, in order to be in Washington to lead the assault on the civil service fort. And the antis are not confining themselves to talk. They have introduced a bill in the House providing that only those government employes with salaries from $900 to $1800, inclusive, and in places where there are twenty-five or more Federal employes shall be under the civil service law. The answers of three members of the Cabinet,—Sherman Gage and Wilson—to a Senate resolution are also in the nature of a fusilade into Mr. McKinley's rear, as they each say that the rules ought to be so modified as to exclude a number of places in each of their departments.

The silver men in the Senate are showing signs of an intention to take the aggressive. In line with that intention was a resolution offered by Senator Teller, declaring that all U. S. bonds are payable in silver dollars, at the option of the government. This is not a new idea. The resolution offered by Mr. Teller is identically the same that was offered in the Senate nearly twenty years ago by the late Stanley Matthews, of Ohio, and at that time adopted. The Finance Committee, to which this resolution was referred, will be sure to report it back, as a majority of the Committee are silver men.

The administration having succeeded in whipping all the Republican Senators into the support of annexation, Senator Davis has given notice that the Hawaiian treaty would be taken up next week.

Representative Benton, of Missouri, thus gives his opinion of that alleged Monetary Commission and its report: "Speaking after the fashion of our plain western people, I think the commission and its report combine a stupendous exhibition of gall. Who made the commission? The Indianapolis monetary convention. And by what authority? What act passed by any law making body gave life to this convention or its progeny, the Commission? For whom do they speak? Of whom is this Commission composed? Is there a practical cotton-planter on it? No; yet we raised in '97 $275,000,000 worth of cotton at the lowest prices for many years. What representative wheat-raiser is on the Commission to represent the makers of 530,000,000 bushels of wheat? Is there to be found a representative cattle and hog raiser on this Commission? Is there a practical miner, of coal, iron, lead or zinc on it? No. Who on this Commission represents the carpenter, mason and other mechanics? Nobody. Well, if this vast army of people representing more than a thousand million dollars of production annually and sixty million of people have no member to speak for them by authority, who do these eminently able and respectable gentlemen represent? Simply money, stocks and bonds, owned and controlled by a few thousand persons, who have by aid of legislation cornered four-fifths of our national wealth, and insist on future legislation being enacted to suit their condition." Mr. Benton says further that the legislation recommended by the Commission is for the purpose of making money scarcer; turning over the paper money to the keeping of those they represent, and enabling them to control markets and buy produce at their own prices, adding in conclusion: "In my view, the whole report of this commission, when boiled down means: 'We want the law so changed that every bond, every dollar of silver and paper must be redeemed in gold, and that National banks shall alone be empowered to emit paper, and more, to have the restrictions now on the Statute books removed so that the banks will be responsible to no one by law.'"

YARNALTON, KY., Dec. 25, 1897.

To the Hog Breeders of Boone Co.:

I find there is a great difference of opinion as to the best breed of hogs. Some claim the Poland China is the only hog; some the Thin Rind; some the Berkshire, and some the Chester White. Each of these is a good breed, and I believe fine hogs can be made of any of these breeds. I have seen some very fine hogs of each, on exhibition. Of course they had received extra attention, and, as a rule, not more than one or two and not exceeding half a dozen belonged to the same herd.

I think what we want is the hog that will be ready for the butcher at the earliest date, at the least expense; for the longer we keep the hog the more it costs, and the more liable to die.

I don't claim to know as much about hogs as some of my old friends in Boone county ought to know about them; but I raised and fed 76 hogs of the Poland China breed that averaged 310 pounds at the age of just nine months. My Chester White, Berkshire and Thin Rind brethren know that I could not have given that large number very special attention. They were fed corn, and that is what it takes to make hogs.

I sold these 76 hogs to Simon Weil, the largest livestock dealer in Kentucky, who pronounced them the best lot of hogs he ever saw, the number and their age considered. Mr. Weil sold them to John Price, the noted Kentucky butcher, who also pronounced them the best he ever saw.

Now, brother Thin Rind, Berkshire, or Chester White, if you can make the same showing, I will give up and say yours are just as good as mine, but not until then.

The sire of these hogs I purchased of Jerry Beemon, of your county, who did not raise him, but, as is his practice, went abroad for him, and purchased to suit his fancy. Hoping to hear from my friends in old Boone, I remain, Yours Truly,

M. L. ROUSE.

PAT BANE, of Pensylvania, who stands seven feet, four inches in his stocking feet, and is "big out" in proportion, is applying for a pension because of infirmatives resulting from exposure in the late war because he was not furnished an overcoat large enough to wear. He alleges that for the lack of the overcoat he caught cold and contracted rheumatism. It took Bane, like a great many others, a long time to learn that his bodily ills are due to army service. It is remarkably strange how long it takes a disease contracted by army service to develop itself—from fifteen to thirty-two years—while diseases contracted by other people can be traced to the cause in a few days or weeks. Bane, like tens of thousands of others on the pension rolls, is a fraud.

EMMETT ORR has sold the Owen News to Rice & Bourne, who took charge of the paper last week. Mr. Orr had been publishing the News for many years, and was an honored member of the press gang of the State. Messrs. Rice & Bourne are welcomed to the local newspaper ranks, and may their experience therein be one of profit and pleasure.

BY the end of this week the Legislature will have before it nearly enough bills for a sixty-days grind, and still they will come.

Figures Don't Lie.

It cost our government $1,000,000,000 more in 1897 than in 1882. Pensions cost $70,000,000 more. In 1882 there was a surplus of $145,000,000. In 1898 there will be a deficit of $28,000,000 and more though $18,000,000 were received from the Union Pacific sale.

Yet the receipts from Wilson bill in 1897 were $11,000,000 greater than Secretary Gage estimates there will be from the Dingley bill in 1898.

The country has grown marvelously, but Secretary Gage figures the receipts from the Dingley bill in 1899 will be $13,000,000 less than the receipts from revenue in 1882.

These are figures that should be thought over by every citizen.

As to receipts, the industries of the county have been protected sufficiently. They can compete within narrow margins with European factories. There is no longer need of a high tariff bill. Its tendency is to reduce the revenues by effectually barring out many foreign importations.

As to the expenditures we are fifteen years farther away from the war than in 1882, but the item for pensions has more than doubled. It should have materially decreased.

The wisdom of a moderate tariff is illustrated by these figures, and the imperative necessity for inspection of the pension lists by the public.

THE RECORDER goes to press before hearing the result of the first ballot for Senator at Columbus, but it would not be surprised did Hanna receive the entire Republican vote, as some of the bolters began weakening several days ago, having evidently been promised what they were holding out for. Mr. Hanna's political methods are so well known by those whose suffrage is influenced by a consideration other than party principles, that in all his campaigns he is subjected to the "pulls" of those who hold office or vote for the spoils to be thus obtained.

THE Grange had an interesting meeting at Union, last Saturday. The order is growing in this county now, and it will not be long until quite a number of Lodges will be under way.

BRIGHT AND DARK SIDE.

The Great Necessity of Making Your Home Cheerful,

That the Young Son May Not Stray Away—He Has His Delights That Must Be Gratified—Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Dr. Talmage's text was II Samuel, 14: "Let the young men now arise and play before us."

There are two armies encamped by the pool of Gibeon. The time hangs heavily on their hands. One army proposes a game of sword fencing. Nothing could be more healthful and innocent. The other army accepts the challenge. Twelve men against 12 men, the sport opens. But something went adversely. Perhaps one of the swordsmen got an unlucky clip, or in some way had his ire aroused, and that which opened in sportfulness ended in violence, each one taking his contestant by the hair, and then with the sword thrusting him in the side; so that what opened in innocent fun ended in the massacre of all the 24 sportsmen. Was there ever a better illustration of what was true then, and is true now, that that which is innocent may be made destructive?

At this season of the year the clubhouses of our towns and cities are in full play. I have found out that there is a legitimate and illegitimate use of the clubhouse. In the one case it may become a healthful recreation, like the contest of the 24 men in the text when they began their play; in the other case it becomes the massacre of body, mind and soul, as in the case of these contestants of the text when they had gone too far with their sport. All intelligent ages have had their gatherings for political, social, artistic, literary purposes—gatherings characterized by the blunt old Anglo-Saxon designation of "club."

If you have read history you know that there was a king's Head club, a Ben Jonson club, a Brothers' club, to which Swift and Bolingbroke belonged; a literary club, which Burke and Goldsmith and Jonson and Boswell made immortal; a Jacobin club, a Benjamin Franklin Junto club. Some of these to indicate just as some to favor the arts, some to promote good manners, some to despoil the habits, some to destroy the soul. If one will write an honest history of the clubs of England, Ireland, Scotland, France and the United States for the last 100 years he will write the history of the world. The club was an institution born on English soil, but it has thrived well in American atmosphere. Who shall tell how many belonged to that kind of club where men put purses together and open house, apportioning expense of caterer and servants and room, and having a sort of domestic establishment—a style of club house which, in my opinion, is far better than the ordinary hotel or boarding house? But my object now is to speak of club houses of a different sort, such as the Cosmos or Chevy Chase or Lincoln clubs of this capital, or the "Union Leagues" of many cities, the United Service Club of London, the Lotos of New York, where journalists, dramatists, sculptors, painters and artists from all branches gather together to discuss newspapers, theaters and elaborate art; like the Americus, which camps out in summer time, dimpling the pool with its hook and arousing the forest with its stag hunt; like the Century club, which has its large group of venerable lawyers and poets; like the Army and Navy club, where those who engaged in warlike service once on the land or the sea now come together to talk over the days of carnage; like the New York Yacht club, with its floating palaces of beauty upholstered with velvet and paneled with ebony, having all the advantages of electric bell, and of gas light, and of king's pantry, one pleasure boat costing $3,000, another $15,000, another $30,000, another $65,000, the fleet of pleasure boats belonging to the club having cost over $2,000,000; like the American Jockey club, to which belong men who have a passionate fondness for horses, fine horses, as had Job when, in the Scriptures, he gives us a sketch of that king of beasts, the arch of its neck, the nervousness of its foot, the majesty of its gait, the whirlwind of its power, crying out: "Hast thou clothed its neck with thunder? The glory of its nostrils is terrible; he paweth in the valley and rejoiceth in his strength, he saith among his trumpets, ha! ha! and he smelleth the battle afar off, the thunder of the captains, and the shouting;" like the Travelers' club, the Blossom club, the Palette club, the Commercial club, the Liberal club, the Bible Lang club, the Amateur Boat club, the gambling clubs, the wine clubs, the clubs of all sizes, the clubs of all morals, clubs as good as good can be, and clubs as bad as bad can be, clubs innumerable. During the day they are comparatively lazy places. Here and there an aged man reading a newspaper, or an employe dusting a sofa, or a clerk writing up the accounts; but when the curtain of the night falls on the natural day, then the curtain of the clubhouse hoists for the entertainment. Let us hasten up now, the marble stairs. What an imperial hallway! See! here are parlors on the side, with the upholstery of the Kremlin and the Tuileries; and here are dining halls that challenge you to mention any luxury that they can not afford; and here are galleries, with sculpture, and paintings, and lithographs, and drawings from the best of artists, Crapsey, and Bierstadt, and Church, and Hart, and Gifford—pictures for every mood, whether you are impassioned or placid: shipwreck, or sunlight over the sea; Sheridan's Ride, or the noonday purity of the farmers under the trees; foaming deer pursued by the hounds in the Adirondacks, or the sheep on the lawn. On this side there are reading rooms where you find all newspapers and magazines. On that side there is a library, where you find all books, from hermeneutics to the fairy tales. Coming in and out there are gentlemen, some of whom stay ten minutes, others stay many hours. Some of these are from luxuriant homes, and they have excused themselves for a while from the domestic circle that they may enjoy the larger sociabilities of the clubhouse. These are from dismembered households, and they have a plain lodging somewhere, but they come to this clubroom to have their chief enjoyment. One blackball amid ten votes will defeat a man's becoming a member. For rowdyism, for drunkenness, for gambling, for any kind of misdemeanor, a member is dropped out. Brilliant clubhouse from top to bottom. The chandeliers, the plate, the furniture, the companionship, the literature, the social prestige, a complete enchantment. But the evening is passing on, and so we hasten through the hall and down the steps . . . the street, and from block to block until we come to another style of clubhouse. Opening the door, we find the fumes of strong drink and tobacco something almost intolerable. These young men at this table, it is easy to understand what they are at, from the flushed cheek, the intent look, the almost angry way of tossing the dice, or of moving the "chips." They are gambling.

At another table are men who are telling vile stories. They are three-fourths intoxicated, and when they will go staggering, shouting, swearing, shouting on their way home. That is an only son. On him all kindness, all care, all culture has been bestowed. He is paying his parents in this way for their kindness. That is a young married man, who only a few months ago at the altar, made promises of kindness and fidelity, every one of which he has broken. Walk through and see for yourself. Here are all the implements of dissipation and of quick death. As the hours of the night go away, the conversation, becomes imbecile and more debasing. Now it is time to shut up. Those who are able to stand will get on the pavement and balance themselves against the lamp post, or against the railings of the fence. The young man who is not able to stand will have a bed improvised for him in the clubhouse, or two not quite so overcome with liquor will conduct him to his father's house, and they will ring the door bell, and the door will open, and the two imbecile escorts will introduce into the hallway the ghastliest and most hellish spectacle that ever enters a front door—a drunken son. If the dissipating clubhouse of this country would make a contract with the Inferno to provide it 10,000 men a year, and for 20 years, on the condition that no more should be asked of them, the clubhouses could afford to make that contract, for they would save homesteads, save fortunes, save bodies, minds and souls. The 10,000 men who would be sacrificed by that contract would be but a small part of the multitude sacrificed without the contract.

But I make a vast difference between clubs. I have belonged to four clubs—a theological club, a ball club, and two literary clubs. I got from them physical rejuvenation and moral health. What shall be the principle? If God will help me I will lay down three principles by which you may judge whether the club where you are a member, or the club to which you have been invited, is a legitimate or illegitimate clubhouse.

First of all I want you to test the clubs by its influences on home, if you have a home. I have been told by a prominent gentleman in the club life that three-fourths of the members of the great clubs of these cities are married men. That wife soon loses her influence over her husband who nervously and foolishly looks upon all evening absence as an assault on domesticity. How are the great principles of art and literature and beneficence and public weal to be carried on if every man is to have his world bounded on one side by his front doorstep, and on the other side by his back window, knowing nothing higher than his own attic or nothing lower than his own cellar? That wife who becomes jealous of her husband's attention to art, or literature, or religion, or charity, is breaking her own scepter of conjugal power. I know an instance where a wife thought that her husband was giving too many nights to Christian service, to charitable service, to prayer-meetings, and to religious convocation. She systematically decoyed him away until now he attends no church and is on a rapid way to destruction, his morals gone, his money gone, and, I fear, his soul gone. Let any Christain wife rejoice when her husband consecrates evening to the service of God, or to charity, or to art, or to anything elevated; but let not men sacrifice home life to club life. I can point out to you a great many names of men who are guilty of this sacrilege. They are as genial as angels at the club house, and as ugly as sin at home. They are generous on all subjects of wine suppers, yachts, and fast horses, but they are stingy about the wife's dress and the children's shoes. That man has made that which might be a healthful recreation an usurper of his affections, and he has married it, and he is guilty of moral bigamy. Under this process the wife, whatever her features, becomes uninteresting and homely. He becomes critical of her, does not like the dress, does not like the way she arranges her hair, is amazed that he ever was so romantic as to offer her hand and heart. She is always wanting money, money, when she ought to be discussing Eclipses, and Dexter, and Derby day, and English drags with six horses, all answering the pull of one "ribbon."

I tell you there are thousands of houses in the cities being clubbed to death. There are clubhouses where membership always involves domestic shipwreck. Tell me that a man has joined a certain club, tell me nothing more about him for ten years, and I will write his history if he be still alive. The man is a wineguzzler, his wife broken-hearted or prematurely old, his fortune gone or reduced and his home a mere name in a directory. Here are six secular nights in the week. "What shall I do with them?" says the father and the husband. "I will give four of these nights to the improvement and entertainment of my family, either at home or in good neighborhood; I will devote one to charitable institutions; I will devote one to the club." I congratulate you. Here is a man who says: "I will make a different division of the six nights. I will take three for the club and three for other purposes." I tremble. Here is a man who says: "Out of the six secular nights of the week I will devote five to the clubhouse and one to the home, which night I will spend in scowling like a March squall, wishing I was out spending it as I had spent the other five." That man's obituary is written. Not one out of ten thousand that ever gets so far on the wrong road ever stops. Gradually his health will fail, through late hours and through too much stimulus. He will be first-rate prey for erysipelas and rheumatism of the heart. The doctor coming in will at a glance see it is not only present disease he must fight, but years of fast living. The clergyman, for the sake of the feelings of the family on the funeral day will only talk in religious generalities. The men who got his yacht in the eternal rapids will not be at his obsequies. They will have pressing engagements that day. They will send flowers to the social hall and send their wives to offer words of sympathy, but they will have engagements elsewhere. They never come. Bring me a mallet and chisel and I will cut on the tombstone that man's epitaph: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his." "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." Then give me the mallet and the chisel, and I will cut an honest epitaph: "Here lies the victim of a dissipated clubhouse!"

I think that damage is often done by the scions of some aristocratic family who belong to one of these dissipating club houses. People coming up from humbler classes feel it an honor to belong to the same club, forgetting the fact that many of the sons and [illegible] sons of the large commercial establishments of the great cities are now as to minds imbecile, as to body, diseased, as to morals, rotten. They would have got through their property long ago if they had full possession of it; but the wily attorneys, who earned the money by hard knocks, foresaw how it was to be, and they tied up everything in the will. Now there is nothing of that unworthy descendant but his grandfather's name and roast beef rotundity. And yet how many steamers there are which feel honored to lash fast that worm-eaten tug, though it drags them straight into the breakers.

Another test by which you can find whether your club is legitimate or illegitimate—the effect it has on your secular occupation. I can understand how through such an institution a man can reach commercial successes. I know some men have formed their best business relations through such a channel. If the club has advantaged you in an honorable calling it is a legitimate club. But has your credit failed? Are bargain makers more cautious now they trust you with a bill of goods? Have the men whose names were down in the commercial agency A1 before they entered the club been going down ever since in commercial standing? Then look out! You and I every day know of commercial establishments going to ruin through the social excesses of one or two members. Their fortunes beaten to death with ball players' bat, or cut amidships by the front prow of the regatta, or going down under the swift hoofs of fast horses, or drowned in large potations of cognac and Monongahela. Their clubhouse was the "Loch Earn." Their business house was the "Ville du Havre." They struck, and the "Ville du Havre" went down.

A third test by which you may know whether the club to which you belong, or the club to whose membership you are invited, is a legitimate club or an illegetimate club, this: What is the effect on your sense of moral and religious obligation? Now if I should take the names of all the people in my audience and put them on a roll and then I should lay that roll back of the organ, and a hundred years from now some one should take that roll and call it from A to Z, there would not be one to answer. I say that my association that makes me forget that fact is a bad association. Now, to many of the cities there are two routes, and you can take the Pennsylvania railroad or the Baltimore & Ohio, but say: "I have a choice of two

EXCELLENT DEPARTURE.

Road Building to Be Taught in a Rhode Island College.

A most excellent departure has been made in Rhode Island, where a course of construction in practical road-building has been instituted in the Agricultural college, at Kingston, and the papers announce, with justifiable exultation, that "this state leads the world" in such an undertaking.

The course of instruction is to extend over two years, and has been laid out after consultation with Gen. Stone. In the class-room, theoretical instruction will be provided, and the road-making plant of the college will furnish ample opportunity for the acquirement of practical knowledge. Students, who wish to enter the course, must be well grounded in the common branches, including algebra and geometry. During the first year, the course will include higher geometry, trigonometry, surveying and other English studies. In the second year, physics, electricity, physiography, geology, mineralogy and steam engineering will be taken. The practical work will run side by side with the theoretical during the course. It will include actual work on the roads, handling the shovel, driving horses, running the stone crusher, traction engine and road roller, and all machinery operated by the department. The student will thus actually perform all the varied operations connected with road-building, as well as receive competent instruction in all that pertains to the art. In this way, not only will a large number of young men receive most valuable training, but a demand will probably quickly arise for special instruction for older men, who now are superintendents of streets, commissioners of highways and engineers.

There is here a field which is not yet crowded, or even full. As the Providence Journal remarks, "of late years there has been a demand for competent road-builders all through the states that have been constructing macadam highways. In most instances, either theoretical engineers or highway superintendents have risen to fill the places. And to the sorrow and costs of the big cities and the disappointment of the counties, in many instances, the latter have been compelled to pay for the lack of practical knowledge of the civil engineers and the lack of theoretical knowledge of the highway supervisors.

"But, even with this school of men, who have been educated to build the roads, there have not been enough to go around in all the localities where good roads are needed, and where there is money to build them. A man who thoroughly understands road construction to-day may easily get a position. What is needed is the educated man, who not only knows how to build a costly, ident road, but one who can economically construct an eight-foot country road—a man who knows both the theoretical and practical end of road construction. This is the style of graduate which the Rhode Island institution aims to turn out. * * * At the end of the course, they will have graduated a man who can plan the highway, draw the contracts, and who is able to run the machinery to build the road; a man who knows the business from the hoe handle to the tripod, from shoveling coal under the boiler of the steam roller to drawing the plans—a road engineer. * * *

"There are a number of openings which a practical road-builder may fill. He may become a road expert for the United States government. By passing the civil service examinations of the road division, department of agriculture, he will be put on the list of eligibles, and as soon as a vacancy occurs will receive an appointment from the government. Then, the builders of road machinery have a constant call for men to set up their plants in the various towns and cities which are constantly acquiring such equipment. They have to send with the machinery men who know all about operating it. As a rule, the men they send out are shop hands, and beyond the rule-of-thumb experience with these identical machines, they know but little. The builders say there is a constant demand for road-builders with these plants, and that they consider that this is a good field for young men.

"But the largest field for men educated as road-builders will probably be found as highway superintendents among the various counties and towns. There are few first-class men in this line and, with the spread of the good roads movement, the demand for such experts is growing."

Wood Ashes for Orchards.

It is because of the potash they contain that wood ashes are so beneficial to fruit trees. Farmyard manure contains a certain amount of potash, but the nitrogen it also contains is apt to cause too great a growth. It contains too great a proportion of nitrogen to potash, hence wood ashes come in well to supply this deficiency. Every farmer should save his hardwood ashes in a dry place, so that they will be in the best condition to apply to the land in the spring.—Dakota Field and Farm.

See that the food given to your cows is of the best quality and in the best condition for digestion. This is very important.

PRUNING THE PEACH.

Why Spring Is the Best Time for Performing the Operation.

With nearly all other kinds of fruit, pruning may be done at any time during the fall and winter that the trees are not frozen; And in a majority of cases it is better to prune at this time than later. But with the peach as a rule the better plan is to wait until the danger of severe freezing is past in the spring. The principal reason for this is that the new growth of wood of the peach is easily injured by freezing, and in pruning it is always best first to remove all dead or injured wood and then a sufficient amount of other wood to secure an open, spreading head. The peach requires rather more severe pruning than any other variety of fruit. Unless properly pruned, the trees will have few long straggling branches with leaves, and fruit on the ends of the limbs and little or none on the rest of the tree. The reason of this is that the new shoots—the strongest from the terminal buds, the largest shoots of the previous year becoming the largest the succeeding year, so that in a short time the fruit is out of reach, as it is the habit of the peach to bear fruit on the previous season's growth of wood.

Prune in the spring, cutting out first all dead or diseased wood and then cutting back the new growth until the desired form is obtained. Usually from one-third to one-half of the new growth can be cut back with benefit, and more and better fruit be secured than if the tree is allowed to grow as it pleases.—N. J. Shepherd, in Ohio Farmer.

AMERICAN BEET SUGAR.

In a Few Years Its Production Will Be a Great Industry.

In America about one-fourth of all the sugar produced throughout the world is consumed; four-fifths of this amount is imported at an annual cost of $135,000,000. In 1880 two-thirds of the sugar used came from sugar-cane and one-third from beet roots; in 1897 the proportions are exactly reversed; yet while France, Germany and Austria have been developing their beet-sugar industries until they practically control the trade all over the world, the United States, having far richer beet-sugar lands, boasts an annual output of only about 40,000 tons.

Within the past few years the department of agriculture has carried on an exhaustive series of experiments over different parts of the country suitable for the growth of the sugar beet. These experiments have conclusively demonstrated that this important staple can be grown in profitable quantities and of the highest grade over a considerable area of the United States. There is, in fact, nothing to prevent this country from becoming the largest beet-sugar producing land in the world. With the same encouragement France has given to the industry, America might have 700 factories instead of seven, which is now her limit.

It has been estimated that it would require from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 acres devoted to beet-culture to produce the sugar necessary for home consumption. This would mean an addition to the agricultural income of the country of $50,000,000 or $60,000,000 a year, with as much more for labor and supplies.—Demorest's Magazine.

STARTING PLANTS.

Suggestions for Those Who Wish to Have Early Vegetables.

Every winter in thousands of homes the gardening operations of spring are anticipated by starting plants in boxes in the kitchen windows. The conditions are admirable for this purpose, so far as the day is concerned, for then there are sunshine, the heat from the kitchen stove and a moist atmosphere from the cooking operations. But the tender little plants suffer at night, and much of the stunted growth seen in plants started in the house can be traced to the chilling effects of cool nights following the very warm, moist conditions of the day. The cut shows a plan for keeping an equitable temperature both night and day. A dry goods box is cut away, so that the top may slope. A cover is hinged at one side to shut down over the top at night. Little iron or wooden rods are put in to support the boxes, in which seeds are planted. The lower side is turned toward the window. In the bottom can be set at night a couple of big jugs of hot water, and the box, tightly shut up, will keep a very warm temperature inside, even on very cold nights. The tender seeds or plants thus receive no check in their growth, and not only advance much more rapidly, but make much more vigorous and productive growth when they come to be transferred to the garden.—N. Y. Tribune.

Activity in North Carolina.

At the road congress, lately held in Raleigh, N. C., a committee of 25 was appointed "to act with the North Carolina Good Roads league in considering the revision of existing road laws, and in urging the next general assembly to adopt such legislation as will provide for the employment in public road improvements of all able-bodied male convicts whose term of sentence does not exceed ten years."

If you choose butter making, see that your cows give milk rich in butter fat, and that the fat is in large globules, so that it will readily separate from the milk.—Colman's Rural World.

Bad Digestion, Bad Heart.

Poor digestion often causes irregularity of the heart's action. This irregularity may be mistaken for real organic heart disease. The symptoms are much the same. There is, however, a vast difference between the two; organic heart disease is often incurable; apparent heart disease is curable if good digestion be restored.

A case in point is quoted from the New Era, of Greensburg, Ind. Mrs. Ellen Colsom, Newpoint, Ind., a woman forty-three years old, had suffered for four years with distressing stomach trouble. The gases generated by the indigestion pressed on the heart, and caused an irregularity of its action. She had much pain in her stomach and heart, and was subject to frequent and severe choking spells which were most severe at night. Doctors were tried in vain; the patient became worse, despondent, and feared impending death.

Mrs. Ellen Colsom.

A CASE OF HEART FAILURE.

She was much frightened but noticed that in intervals in which her stomach did not annoy her, her heart's action became normal. Reasoning correctly that her digestion was done at fault she procured the proper medicine to treat that trouble and with immediate good results. Her appetite came back, the choking spells became less frequent and finally ceased. Her weight, which had been greatly reduced was restored and she now weighs more than for years. Her blood soon became pure and her cheeks rosy.

The case is of general interest because the disease is a very common one. That others may know the means of cure we give the name of the medicine used—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves.

ON THE WAITER.

Why His Customer Couldn't Eat the Soup.

A certain literary German whose manner of speaking was extremely deliberate, and who disapproved of impetuosity of any sort and under any circumstances, had an amusing experience in a restaurant one day.

He was a well-known figure among the patrons of this particular establishment, as he seldom dined anywhere else, and he was generally served by a waiter who had become used to his way of speaking; but one day a new waiter took his order and brought his soup.

"I cannot eat this soup," said the gentleman, slowly, not looking up from his plate.

The man seized the soup plate before the customer could finish the sentence, and vanished with it.

He reappeared in a moment with another supply of the same soup, which he placed before the gentleman, and then stood regarding him with an anxious face, wondering what could be the reason for the soup remaining untouched.

"I cannot eat this soup," again slowly remarked the literary man.

"Why not, sir? What is the matter?" stammered the unhappy waiter, who had been told he was serving an important person.

"I cannot eat this soup," said the literary genius, calmly, for the third time, "because I have not yet been provided with a spoon!" — Northwestern Christian Advocate.

A WISE PEDDLER.

He Knew Very Well How to Dispose of His Goods.

He carried a big load of brooms, and as he zigzagged along the sidewalk with his burden on his back he cast his pale, gooseberry eyes over the houses to see a possible customer. Then he ascended a flight of steps and was hailed by the woman next door.

"You can't sell any brooms there. The woman in that house never buys at the door."

He rang the bell and waited. Sure enough the woman of the house opened the door, and when she saw the broom vender she was about to close it again.

"I don't want anything," she said.

"I know it," said the man. "The woman next door said you wouldn't buy anything."

"She did, did she? Perhaps I'm as able to buy things as she is. How much did you say your brooms were?"

"She said I couldn't sell you nny—that you never bought anything at the door."

"Dear me, I wonder how she knew? Give me that broom with the covered handle and the one striped red and blue. And I'll take two of those small whisk brooms, too. I never buy anything at the door! The idea!" Then he called on the first woman who had talked with him and sold out the rest of his brooms at a big advance over his original prices. He had been in neighborhoods before.—Chicago Times-Herald.

"I'd like your candid opinion of this new novel," she said to the young man who talks literature a great deal. "Are you sure you want my candid opinion?" "Yes. I wish to know exactly what you think of it without prevarication or concealment." "Well, to be downright honest with you, I think it is one of the prettiest books whose advertisements I have ever read."—Washington Star.

"THAT TERROR of MOTHERS."

How it was overcome by a Nova Scotian mother

Who is well known as an author.

Of all the evils that attack children scarcely any other is more dreaded than croup. It so often comes in the night. The danger is so great. The climax is so sudden. It is no wonder that Mrs. W. J. Dickson (better known under her pen name of "Stanford Eveleth,") calls it "the terror of mothers." Nor is it any wonder that she writes in terms of praise and gratitude for the relief which she has found both from her own anxieties, and for her children's ailments, in Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It would be impossible to better state the value of this remedy than is done in Mrs. Dickson's letter, which is as follows:

"Memory does not recall the time when Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was not used in our family, for throat and lung troubles, and the number of empty Cherry Pectoral bottles collected during the season, told where relief had been sought. This medicine was in such constant use in my father's family, that when I had a home of my own, and had childish ailments to attend to, I still proved efficacious. That terror of mothers,—the startling, croupy cough—never alarmed me, so long as I had a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house to supplement a hot water bath. When suffering with whooping cough, in its worst form, and articulation was impossible on account of the choking, my children would run to and get-sticulate toward the bottle; for experience had taught them that relief was in its contents."—Mrs. W. J. Dickson ("Stanford Eveleth"), author of "Romance of the Provinces," Truro, N. S.

To show the prompt action of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in severe cases, we print a letter from C. J. Wooldridge, Wortham, Tex., who writes:

"One of my children had croup. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Having a part of a bottle of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given the child's breathing grew easier, and in a short time it was resting quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved its life."—C. J. Wooldridge, Wortham, Tex.

These statements make argument in favor of this remedy unnecessary. It is a family medicine that no home should be without. It is just as efficacious in bronchitis, asthma, whooping cough, and all other varieties of coughs, as it is in croup. To put it within everyone's reach, Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is now put up in half size bottles, at half price—50 cents. Send for Ayer's Curebook (free) and read of other cures effected by Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Address the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

WHAT MAN DOES NOT LOVE BEAUTY?

Mrs. Pinkham Counsels Young Wives to Keep Their Attractiveness. A Letter From a Young Wife.

Seven-eighths of the men in this world marry a woman because she is beautiful in their eyes.

What a disappointment then to see the fair young wife's beauty fading away before a year passes over her head!

I feel as if I would like to say to every young woman who is about to be married—"Strengthen yourself in advance, so that you will not break down under the new strain on your powers." Keep your beauty, it is a precious possession! Your husband loves your beauty, he is proud to be seen in public with you; try to keep it for his sake, and your own.

The pale cheeks, the dark shadows under the eyes, the general drooping of the young wife's form, what do they mean? They mean that her nerves are failing, that her strength is going and that something must be done to help her through the coming trials of maternity.

Build her up at once by a course of some tonic with specific powers. Such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You can get it at any druggist's.

Following we publish by request a letter from a young wife—of her own accord she addresses it to her "suffering sisters," and while from modesty she asks to withhold her name, she gives her initials and street number in Chambersburg, Pa., so she can easily be found personally or by letter:

To my Suffering Sisters:—Let me write this for your benefit, telling you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I am but nineteen and suffered with painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, dizziness, burning sensation back of ears and on top of my head, nervousness, pain and soreness of muscles, bearing-down pains, could not sleep well, was unable to stand without pain, and oh! how I longed to be well!

One day I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham telling her all, knowing I could do so in perfect confidence.

She wrote me a lovely letter in reply, telling me exactly what to do. After taking nine bottles of the Compound, one box of Liver pills, and using one-half package of Sanative wash, I can say I am cured. I am so happy, and owe my happiness to none other than Mrs. Pinkham.

Why will women suffer when help is near? Let me, as one who has had some experience, urge all suffering women, especially young wives, to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice.—Mrs. R. S. R., 113 E. Catherine St., Chambersburg, Pa.

John Collier is a rouster on the Workum. This completes a sentence that was commenced in our last correspondence. (The reason was that the dictionary was consulted about a certain word, and before a chance to finish the sentence, the whole matter was forgotten. Moral—Don't commence a new job till the old one is finished.)

David Haley, a former prominent citizen of this place, but now of Illinois, was visiting friends and relatives here during the holidays. He was accompanied by his bride.

Our postoffice was changed from B. F. Bedinger to L. D. Jackson on the 1st inst. Mr. Bedinger made a very efficient officer, and his many friends regret that the office was taken from him for political reasons.

Your correspondent is in receipt of a copy of the Hamilton (O.) Republican containing a good cut of Willie Howe and his drug store in Hamilton. The same paper coutained a good cut of James I. Tully, who was born in Florence 38 years ago, and is now a prominent citizen of Hamilton.

Union.

Miss Lou Williams is visitiug in Cincinnati.

Miss Annie Rice was visiting in Union, last week.

Misses Opha and Marietta Riley entertained Mr. Ad Rogers and bride, last Saturday.

Charley Baker begins the new year with a nice wire fence along the pike in front of his residence. A much needed improvement.

Ira Adams, of Riddell's Run, was doing the "walk act" from Union home, Monday—missed connection with Neal Bros., overland stage.

Rev. T. L. Utz has been in Union several times recently, and is well preserved and youthful looking as if the world was handling him gently.

The grangers were in evidence, Saturday, and the meeting including dinner, public installation of officers, recitations, speeches, &c., was a success in every particular. It was not our pleasure to be present, but reports on the outside justify the statement that it was a grand success.

Thomas J., says many men will get up and caper around over the beginning of '98, like a Wm. Goat playing baseball on a rail fence, as they make resolutions for the new year (to be broken in 30 days,) but not so with him, as he has made some "good ones" and proposes to paste them down—solid and fast.

The children of the Baptist Sunday School were given a nice holiday treat. To say they were made glad and happy is to put it soft. It is likely that no man or woman ever lived long enough to forget when their heart was made glad by the coming of old Santa Claus at the silent hour of midnight to fill their socks and stockings with goodies, or at the hour of noonday when the sunlight passed in through the church wiudow. It's all the same—never forgotteu.

B. L. Rice, of Covington, took your "cor." for a spin of the circle, one day last week, and as we were spinning along the Big Bone 'pike, Granville Rouse tipped off a meeting of the B. B. Improvement Co., being held at the toll-gate. Our credentials were a copy of the "B-le-Rice" which proved ok and gave us reserved seats near a good warm stove. Messrs. R. L. Willis, J. S. Mason, F. M. Howlett and Wallace Garrison were the members present, and it is a settled fact that when these gentlemen start out for business they generally succeed. They are preparing for extended improvements on the pikes of that section. Mr. Rice was taken into full membership, and in two hours, found out the strength of treasury department, had enough work laid out for Granville Rouse to last him five years and was on his way to Covington again. Of such is the kingdom of hustlers.

Mr. Ed. there is one item I want to give you on the q. t. confidential-subrosa order. That is to say, your correspondent was in Burlington and at the Boone House for several days. The editor in chief of the Boone House is one of the best known and perhaps as well liked man as there is in the county; he is liked because of his ability to state a proposition and stick to it until "hades freezes over;" because he has a heart in him that is as free from selfishness as it is possible for the human heart to be; because he will divide the last cent or money—the last crumb of bread with any man he believes to be his friend, and fight any man who insults him from one xmas to the other. The assistant editor in chief is the editor-in-chief's good wife, who, according to our judgment, is a better man in many particulars, than the chief himself, and as a good, motherly woman can out shine him by a long distance. When the Circuit Court edition of the Boone House menu was published, the work of the assistant editor was very much in evidence (notwithstanding it at last came to pie) in the form of roast turkey, roast beef, roast pork and everything accordin'. The chief boarder of the Boone House is the quietest of gentlemen, the "prince of good fellows," and has the kindest wishes of your correspondent for his future success. Here is hoping the Boone House and its host and hostess a happy New Year, and much good luck with it.

Gunpowder.

Miss Effie Daughters, of Cincinnati, is visiting relatives here.

James Rouse's horse was stolen one night last week. He has found no trace of him yet.

If you want to see a boy run his head off, tell W. N. Surface to get a roman candle after him.

Something funny to see:—A young lady trying to make a hen's nest, and after having it finished finds it too small. Tools were scarce, only saw and hatchet.

Levi Tanner had a tobacco stripping last Friday and is now ready to sell.

Tom Stephenson was seen in this neighborhood on the 7th, but no sales reported as yet.

Richards, Houston and Utz are very busy stripping tobacco. Bob says that he has the best crop in the county.

Losses like troubles never come singly It is reported that Spencer Smith has lost or will lose another valuable horse, which makes the second in a short time.

Our new blacksmith and wagoumaking firm, Busby & Kirkpatrick, has been very busy this the first week in the year. May success and plenty of work attend you all this year.

There is somethiug strange going to happen in the near future, for E. A. Blankenbecker, George Barlow and W. P. Utz have not been seen enroute for Jim Utz's toll gate on Sunday this year.

Ask a certain young man of our burg what he intends to do next year, be assistant jailer or crop with cousin Billy, and see what he will say.

Hear that our merchant, D. H. Ryle, is thinking of selling out and leaving us. We would be sorry to see him leave as he would be greatly missed.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan'y. 10, 1898.

The second week of the new General Assembly opened more auspiciously than the first, and with every condition favoring a sixty-day whirlwind of bills, pertinate debate, revelent resolutions and discussions of timely topics by the men of the two Houses of lawmakers. The adjournment of the two Houses on Friday over to today, gave those men who had rather be at home on Sunday than anywhere, an opportunity for worshipping on their native heaths. The event of overshadowing importance in the capital city this week is the caucus to nominate a State Librarian, which has been set for tomorrow night. Then it is that the tug of war 'twixt friends will come, in a rallye. Third to elect one of thirteen women who are contending for the honor. The man who insists that woman knows nothing about politics has never been in the State Capital and watched one of these unusual races for the Legislative offices which are usually filled by our dearly beloved female statesmen.

The campaign waged by the thirteen, and how unlucky the number, has been as vigorous an untiringd as that of William J. Bryan, whose energy expending swing 'round the circle in his great Presidential handicap will never be forgotten. Lobbying, canvassing, soliciting, arguments and appeals have been resorted to, but all of these are fair weapons, and pity 'tis men can not say they follow the chaste political example set by their fair cocandidates. It is just as hard now, as when I wrote last Monday, to foretell the result of the Librarian's race, but I can at least tell the status of the contest as I find it at this time—less than 24 hours prior to the battle of cancus ballots. Miss Pauline Hardin, of Covington, and Miss Calhouu, of Owensboro, are conceded to be leading by a few votes, with Mrs. Martin, of Glasgow, Miss Barnett, of Henry county, and Miss Sublett, of Grant, close seconds. Miss Ingels, the pretty Paris free silver orator, Miss Crutcher, of this city, Miss Lucus, of Lexington, and Miss Cochran, of Louisville, claim more strength than they are accredited by the figures with having. But the dropping of candidates after the balling begins, will change the entire out-look and may elect the aspirant who now seems to have the least show.

As I stated in my letter last week, the present Legislature is composed of as conservative and clear-headed men as I ever saw, and no bloody-shirt exhibitions of fireworks may be looked for. All sorts of rumors have been current about the probability of resolutions belug passed, reading men out of the party, establishing proscriptive methods and showing a geueral dictatorial spirit, but this is the veriest rot. As I write this, a gentleman sits near, discussing with a friend the very matter I've just mentioned, and both agree from all they have seen there is no more danger of auy unprecidented partisan-like action in this term than there was in the Woman's Christian Union Convention at New Madrid the other day. Power does not always mean that the men who have it will use it arbitrarily, and I find that just the opposite sentiment prevails among he members—an inclination to be fair and at all times magnanimous.

Mr. Reuben Conner, who is so ably representing Boone county, has lost no time in fixing his plans for a busy session. He will be found in the forefront at all times, and when there is an opportunity to introduce a bill, offer an amendment or a resolution, which will improve the conditions in his district or benefit his constituents, he'll be armed with the data necessary to improve the opportunity. Mr. Conner has several bills in the course of construction, which will be of State interest, and no one of them will attract more attention than the measure which will provide for the regulation of salaries. This bill is not completed, and its salient points cannot yet be given, but enough is known to warrant the statement that it will be of more than ordiuary importance.

Representative Owen, of Grayson county, today showed me the dratt of a bill which promises to provoke much discussion and cause interest. It will amend the statute on revenue and taxation. The measure proposes to lighten the burden on small property owners. It will divde the amount of tax to be paid on property, where money is owing, with theparty owning the notes or securities, and thus prevent the double taxation.

It is said a resolution asking that Congress take no action in regard to moving Ft. Thomas soldiers, will be introduced in both Houses. Friends of the soldiers now on duty at the Fort say the President is going to have the present fort moved to Texas, and it is to prevent this action that the resolution will be offered.

The gerrymander-redistricting rumors are still persistent, but I can learn of little or no foundation for them. One of these reports is that the Sixth Congressional district is to be completely changed by a gerrymander, and that Boone and Grant are to be changed from their present company. I have inquired diiligently about these non-responsible echoes, but nobody knows where they continually emanate from. I suppose the formation of the steering committee has caused the frequent reports of a gerrymander.

The Goebel gubernatorial boom is tugging uneasily at its guy ropes, and I learn that it is to be launched fully and finally before the end of the present term. The frequent trips of leading Democratic politicians to Frankfort, the numerous conferences the Senator from Kenton is holding, and all such portents are taken to mean that he is fixing his fences and getting his wires well laid. That he is going to surprise the opposition with his early strength, I feel satisfied my scores of readers have talked with during the past week regard him as the political Moses who can, and HE alone, lead them from the wilderness.

I heard this week, that notwithstanding his recent election to the judgship, Judge Tarvin was being urged to announce as a candidate for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination. I think he will not, but I would not be surprised to see the Judge sit by his case in the Congressional ring before the race for Mr. Berry's seat is very old. There is a sentiment among the Licking district Democrats I have seen, in favor of a new man for Congress, but they all admit that Mr. Berry is the most formidable candidate who could offer.

The expected fight on the Aayium appointees of the state, sent to the Senate, with but one exception, did not materialize. But the name of Dr. Wiley, as Superintendent of the Lexington asylum, was not sent in for confirmation. He, it had been said, was to be the special target for Democratic paper balls, and it is presumed that this is the reason for the Governor holding up his name for a time. I have been informed today, however, that the opposition to his confirmation had dwindled away, and that even the partisan silver men were in favor of the Republican appointees enjoying the spoils of the brief time they will have a chance to do so.

Went Over The Bank.

About 5 o'clock, last Wednesday evening, as Sam Hall was returning from the city with a large spring wagon load of goods, his wagon slipped off the fill between Hiram Long's tobacco barn and Mrs. Aylott Snyder's residence. The wagon was turned over, and broken in several places, while there was a general mixup of boxes, barrels and bundles. He borrowed a wagon aud reloaded a portion of the goods and came on home. He returned next morning for his wagon and goods left with it. He will demand of the turnpike company that it make good his damages.

Joe Birkle's produce wagon was considerably disabled while going down an icey hill, one day last week, and after reaching the level road near Colonel Moody's, one of the wheels broke down, and the team came near running off.

In this issue appears the card of Frank Hossman, carpenter and builder, of Hebron. Mr. Hossman is a rapid and painstaking workman and understands his business. If you employ him to construct a building or to put a roof on he will do you a good job.

The statement in the last issue that none of the ice houses had been filled, came very near involving us in a serious difficulty with the portly host of the Boone House, who filled an ice-house, last Tuesday, with as fine 5½ inch ice as every grew on pond or creek. We knew he was hauling ice, but he fooled us by filling the house without taking two or three "hitches" at it. We offer this as our apology.

The largest slices of land cut off of Boone by the county line as recently located between it and Kenton county, are 144 acres of Goodridge Bros.' farm; 182 acres of Geo. N. Buffington's, and 135 acres of Marion Stephens'. The line divides Judge Stephens' farm into two equal parts, giving each county 65 acres. The work done on and along the line by those locating it, cost the county $500 as shown by the allowances made for that purpose by the County and Fiscal Courts.

He criticised her pudding, and he didn't like the cake; he wished she'd make the buscuit his mother used to make; she didn't wash the dishes and she didn't make a stew, and she didn't mend his stockings as his mother used to do. Oh, well, she wasn't perfect, but she tried to do her best, until at length she thought the time had come for her to have a rest; so one day when he growled and whined the whole day through, she turned him up and "fanned" his pants—as his mother used to do.

Harry Hamlin, the boy who shot William Smith near Gunpowder bar, and Elia Jenkins, who was with him, were released from jail, as the Kentucky authorities refused to come after them. They told Marshal Griffith that if they had money enough they would get married. The marshal was not long in taking up a collection and presenting them with the marriage license. Mayor Winegardner married them gratuitously, and they left on the evening boat for Cincinnati. — Lawrenceburg Press.

An Enjoyable Affair.

Orin and Lawrence Phipps, of the Middle Creek neighborhood, and Miss Emma Scott, of Florence.

Who Was He?

A well known Kentuckian came over to Aurora a few days ago to get his wet goods. After he had his jugs filled he said he never came to Indiana without going in swimming. He went to the river and began to disrobe. Persons standing near told him he would be arrested. He asked if he could go in with his clothes on. He was told that he could and the fellow plunged in. He swam around for a few minutes and then crawled out, went to the ferry and started home well satisfied with his bath.—Aurora Bulletin.

Elder E. Stephens, of Erlanger, was in town, one day last week.

In renewing his subscription, our friend, B. L. Stephens, of Pittsburg, Kansas, writes: "These parts are in the swim this year, and prospects good for the future."

Hear that Onnie Rouse has been quite sick for several days. He was coming from the city, one day last week, and was hardly able to reach home.

Our bachelor friend and tobacco merchant, O. W. Adams, spent the holidays at West Baden Springs, in Southern Indiana, where he refereed a hostile meeting between a dog and a badger, to the perfect satisfaction of all concerned.

One of Robert Wilson's shoulders jumps out of the socket occasionally, and one night last week, it was guilty of that unaccountable performance. Drs. Smith and Furnish were summoned and worked several hours before the shoulder was readjusted.

W. D. Cropper, the Utzinger merchant, was in town, one day last week, and made affidavit before Judge Roberts for the issual of the necessary writ for the arrest of Russell who is supposed to be Leopold's partner in the robbery of Gaines and Cropper's store.

John L. Jones, of the Utzinger neighborhood, was in town, last Thursday. He is one of the best tobacco raisers in the county, having more than an average yield per acre every year. On three acres of land he raised, last year, 1,552 pounds, which he sold for ten cents a pound. Mr. Jones has been living on Mr. Ben R. Gaines' farm for 21 years, and the probability is he will remain there many years yet.

He Waived Examination.

John Leopold, who is in jail here charged with robbing Gaines & Cropper's store at Utzinger a few weeks since, was taken before Judge Roberts, last Thursday, for an examining trial. He waived examination and his bail was fixed at $300, in default of which he was recommitted to jail.

The distillery at Petersburg had a narrow escape from destruction by fire again last Sunday. Some repairs were being made in the coniumn house, and it became necessary to unjoint a pipe from which some whisky escaped and was iguited by the lights the workmen were using, and a terrific explosion followed, after which the fire burned rapidly.

The Workum was sent to Lawrenceburg and brought down one of the fire engines and a company of firemen, and by hard work the fire was confined to the column house, the building and 400 or 500 barrels of whisky being lost. Superintendent T. B. Mathews estimates the loss at $25 000.

The worst feature of the fire was the serious burning of Adam Hoffman, Tobe McWright and Frank Collier, three of the mill men, who were stunned and nearly buried by the debris that was hurled in every direction by the explosion. It took heroic efforts to rescue them. They are thought not to be fatally injured.

The work of clearing away the wreck for building a new column house was begun early Monday morning, but it will take several weeks to have repairs made so the distillery can renew operations.

Another Kentuckian in Luck.

EIGHT VESSELS

For the Use of the Revenue Cutter Service Contemplated.

An Amendment to the Copyright Law Offered—Civil and Criminal Cases in Alaska—To Make One Territory Out of Indian and Oklahoma Territories.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Senator Frye Thursday introduced a bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to have eight vessels constructed for the use of the revenue cutter service, four of them to cost $160,000 each, one of them to cost $250,000 and the other three $45,000 each. The first four are to be used in replacing the Seward, the McLane, the Colfax and Boutwell, and the last three in replacing the Washington at Philadelphia harbor, the Hamlin at Boston harbor and the Chandler at New York harbor. The $250,000 vessel is to be used at the Columbia river bar on the Pacific coast. The bill was introduced at the instance of the treasury department. The old vessels to be replaced are complained of as absolete and unfit for the services required.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Representative Overstreet, of Indiana, introduced in the house Thursday a comprehensive bill for carrying out the plan of the monetary commission for the reform of the currency. The bill was referred by Speaker Reed to the committee on banking, and Chairman Walker has arranged to give early hearings to Senator Edmunds, chairman of the commission, and perhaps to other members. The bill contains 47 sections and embodies in legislative form every feature of the recommendations of the commission. The earlier portion, relating to the maintenance of the gold standard, the creation of the bureau of issue and redemption, and the gradual retirement of the legal tender notes, are embodied in the bill in almost the same language as in the report. The banking features are more elaborate and carefully define the character of guaranty fund for the protection of notes issued upon assets and the manner of redeeming the notes of failed banks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—In the senate Thursday Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, called up and the senate passed the bill providing for the holding of a congress of the representatives of different Indian tribes of the United States at Omaha in 1898, and appropriating $100,000 therefor. THE NEW YEAR

Begins With Disappointment for Speculators in Stocks—Failures in 1897 Less Than in Any Year for the Last Five Years.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade Saturday says:

In failures 1897 was not only the best year since 1892, but on the whole the best ever definitely known. With 13,522 failures, in number 11.5 per cent. less than 1896, and $182,351,771 defaulted liabilities, 34.0 per cent. less than in 1896, the year's banking failures counted for $28,249,700, and the commercial failures were but 13,351, with liabilities of $154,332,071, the average per failure being only $11,559, the lowest ever known except in 1892. But even in that year the failures during the last half averaged liabilities of of $10,477 per failure, while in the last half of 1897 the average was only $9,593. The returns by branches of business show that in 15 out 28 classes the failures were lower than in any previous year of which there is record, with especially large decrease in the great number of unclassified manufacturing and trading failures.

The new year began with disappointment for speculators in stocks and grain, which is not a bad sign. Cotton manufacture is a little encouraged by larger demand for goods since the reduction in prices, and the abstention of buyers for months past has been due in large measure to expectation of that reduction. But with the certainty that the print cloth works are to continue prices have further declined to 2.12 cents. The woolen and worsted mills are both buying wool quite largely at prices probably close to the best, for reports which declared there were no concessions a month ago are now rejoicing that recent raggedness in prices has passed away. Behind all the market reports there is the fact that consumption of wool has for about five months been the largest ever known, and the buying indicates, as does the demand for such heavy weight goods as has been opened, that a satisfactory half year is expected.

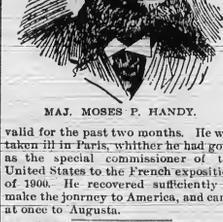
SEMINOLE NATION.

An Alarming State of Riot Prevails and an Uprising May Result.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 10.—A special to the Republic from Muskogee, I. T., says:

An alarming state of riot prevails in the Seminole nation, and unless immediate steps are taken by the United States authorities a bloody Indian uprising may result:

This is on account of the burning of two Indians by whites for the murder and outrage of Mrs. Leard, January 5.



Late Sunday night Dr. C. P. Linn, chief physician of the Seminole nation, telegraphed to both Indian Agent Wisdom and Marshal Bennett for assistance in quelling the state of war that prevails in the nation. He confirmed the news of the stake-burnings and gave the names of the sufferers, Lincoln McCrosey and Palmer Samson, two young Seminoles.

Both the Indians came from respectable Seminole families and their fearful death has roused their friends and relatives to frenzy. Dr. Linn had just arrived from the scene of the burning and states that both bodies were burned and mutilated in a most horrible manner and are unrecognizable.

All the authorities here recognize that the situation is nearer bordering upon a dangerous Indian uprising than any in recent years and are taking prompt measures to quell it.

DISTRIBUTION

Of Needed Supplies to the Cuban Reconcentrados Commenced.

Insurgent Leader Nunez and Five Other Insurgents Reported to Have Surrendered—A Lunatic Runs Amuck in the Cathedral in Havana—Shots Fired.

HAVANA, Jan. 10.—Sunday at the residence of Dr. Villiosola, of the special committee appointed by Senor Bruzon, governor of Havana, and Consul General Fitzhugh Lee, to superintend the work, took place the first distribution of supplies received from the United States consulate for the reconcentrados. La Discussion refers in phrases of profuse gratitude to this American charity. It published Sunday a special supplement, the proceeds of the sale of which will be turned over to the relief fund.

In a leading editorial La Discussion asks the insurgents, in the name of humanity and for the sake of their mothers, wives, sisters and children dying of starvation, to lay down their arms and to make peace with the government.

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN

Of Memphis Shot By Mrs. Mary Sanbrink—The Woman Then Sent a Bullet Through Her Heart.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 8.—Friday afternoon Dr. Shep A. Rogers, professor of anatomy at the Memphis medical college, ex-president of the board of health and one of the most prominent physicians of this city, was shot by Mrs. Mary Sanbrink, a widow, and Friday night lies in a dying condition at St. Joseph's hospital. After shooting Dr. Rogers the woman turned the revolver to her breast and sent a bullet through her heart. The cause of the tragedy is veiled in deepest mystery.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness, in fact as soon as he was seen by those who went to his aid, Dr. Rogers blamed her for the deed. From what can be gathered in connection with the tragedy substantiated Dr. Rogers' statement.

The dead woman's clothes were unruffled and there were no footprints or other evidences that any struggle at all had occurred prior to the tragedy. The right hand of the dead woman was ungloved, showing that she took ample precaution that the shooting contemplated should not miscarry.

Mrs. Sanbrink was stylishly dressed. Every effort has been made by the police and reporters to discover the cause for the shooting, but up to a late hour Friday night the mystery had not been unraveled. It is said that the woman was infatuated with the physician and on one occasion had threatened to kill herself in his presence.

Value of Kansas Farm Products.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 8.—Secretary Coburn, of the state board of agriculture, has completed a tabulation of the values of farm products and live stock marketed in Kansas during the last ten years. The figures show that Kansas farmers realized over $1,300,000,000 for these products. Contrary to the general impression wheat is not king in Kansas. Corn ontranks it. In the ten years the total value of corn has exceeded that of wheat by $127,000,000.

RIVER DISASTER.

Boilers on the Towboat Kelsey Explode Near Pittsburgh.

Six of the Crew Were Instantly Killed, and Seven Were Seriously Burned and Injured, Three of Whom Will Probably Die—Tow Went to the Bottom.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 10.—The tow boat Percy Kelsey, owned by W. H. Brown's son, of this city, blew up while going down the Ohio river, near Gleufield, Pa., about 11 o'clock Saturday morning, and so far as is known six or eight of the crew were killed and at least four others were injured. The boat was commanded by Capt. Leslie Jones, of Shoutzown, Pa., and the crew was made up of two pilots, two engineers, two mates, two firemen, a chambermaid, cook and deckhands, it all about twelve persons. The Kelsey left Pittsburg about 8 o'clock Saturday morning for Cincinnati with a tow consisting of seven barges and two flats of coal, and everything was apparently all right till the explosion took place, when the boat was literally blown to pieces and the tow scattered and lost. The hull sunk almost immediately and the shuttered portions of the upper works floated down the river and covered the water in the vicinity of the wreck.

The explosion was most terrific and was heard for miles. Hundreds of persons ran to the river upon hearing the noise and an awful sight met their gaze. Bodies were floating down the river, and the debris was scattered far and wide, but no live person was seen.

A few minutes later Capt. Jones and three others were picked up alive, but badly injured, and one body floated ashore near Neville island. The injured were removed to Capt. Crowe's residence on Neville island, here everything possible was done to alleviate their sufferings. It is believed that the rest of the crew were killed and purses are now searching for their bodies.

The list of dead and injured as far as known at 1:30 p. m. was:

Killed—Milton Woods, pilot, of Allegheny, Pa., aged 70 years; Thos. Flinn, second engineer; Joseph Lalley, second mate; Lee Webster, fireman; Lee Rechtold, fireman, and another fireman are still missing.

Injured—Leslie Jones, captain, badly burned and hurt about the body, condition serious; Percy F. Woods, apprentice pilot, aged 25 years, will probably die; David Walker, one of the crew, serious; Adolph Wundell, steward, serious; Harry Hanna, deck hand, not dangerous; Hugh Close, iron worker, not of the crew, will die; Wm. Alexander, Mt. Washington, deck hand, skull crushed and burned, will die.

It is not known at present what caused the explosion. The boat's boilers were recently tested and found to be in good condition, and the boat was considered one of the best and stanchest on the river.

The boat was valued at $25,000.

When the boat blew up, Pilot Woods was asleep in the pilot house only a few feet from Capt. Jones. Others of the crew were also asleep. The pilot was thown high in the air and fell right where a few minutes before the pilot house was. He was dead when found and a pitiable sight was his son, only a few feet away, injured very badly. He was pleading to help his father. Capt. Leslie Jones was injured by a bad cut in the head and is badly sprained. The body of the fireman was blown ashore right near where the accident occurred. Only three of the crew escaped uninjured.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 10.—Further death and loss of property are being caused by the explosion of the Percy Kelsey's boilers Saturday. The number of known dead reached four Sunday when Daniel Gamble, the boat's second cook, died at Mercy hospital. The list of dead now is: Daniel Gamble, cook; Milton L. Wood, pilot; Thomas Flynn, second engineer; Lee Webster, fireman; John Smith, deck hand, body not recovered; Lee Bechtold, fireman, body not recovered. The eight men who were injured in the explosion will all recover with the exception of Harry Hammerr and Wm. Alexander, whose wounds will probably result fatally.

BOTH CREMATORIES

Refuse to Handle the Remains of Theodore Durrant and No Cemetery Will Receive Them.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—There seems to be no place for the body of Theodore Durrant.

Both crematories here have absolutely refused to handle the remains and no cemetery has yet consented to receive them. They are still at the Durrant house and it looks as though they would stay there for some time. The elder Durrant said Sunday:

"My efforts to carry out the last wishes of the dead boy have been unavailing. The crematories refuse to take the body and cemeteries are likewise reluctant. We may ship the remains to Los Angeles and have them cremated there, or we may take the body and bury it at sea. We do not know yet what we can do."

THE HOSTETTER CO. WINS ANOTHER CASE.

Infringements on Their Bitters Not Tolerated by United States Court.

The United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, Judge Townsend presiding, handed down an opinion December 23d, 1897, granting injunction and accounting, in the suit of The Hostetter Company against Isaac Sommers and Louis Joseph, for infringement of its Trade Mark. The jurist states, in bold and clear language, the rights accruing to the Hostetter Company, and the liability incurred by all who would rob them, by fraud or misrepresentation, of the well-earned reputation and profits of a business built up by the efforts of half a century. The [illegible] says, in part:

"The complainant is entitled to protection against the appropriation of its trade mark [illegible] any and all unfair and dishonorable [illegible], and a court of equity has power to [illegible] such protection whenever it is satisfied [illegible] that an attempt has been made by ingenious [illegible] subterfuges, to invade the rights of another in a trade mark. * * * In the [illegible] contest between the individual manufacturer, who strives to acquire and retain the fruits of industry and honesty, and the field of keen rivals, seeking to wrest from him the prize of the public goodwill, the inventive ingenuity of the infringer has conceived a great variety of devices for evading the established rules of fair dealing. * * * Courts of equity finding that their ultimate object and effect were to enable and induce the retail seller of a fraudulent imitation to palm it off on an unsuspecting public for the genuine article, and thus to contribute to the infringement upon the rights of the original owner, have not hesitated to apply the remedy."

Wifehood.

It is of vital importance to every woman who contemplates wifehood that her mental state and physical condition be right at their best, since the desire and happiness of mankind are consummated in marriage and procreation. If she is feeble, it is impossible that her children should be strong. Every woman should know that female weakness can be cured; that Dr. Simmons Liver Medicine Wine will prove most beneficial during wifehood; that it will impart physical, mental and local strength, nourish the nerves, blood, brain, and vitalize the feminine organism and insures a safe and comparatively painless delivery.

Puffiness and Dark Rings Under Eyes.

The symptoms of liver disease may differ according to the circumstances, temperament, age, or constitutional weakness of the individual. In sufferers the complexion becomes pale and sallow and there is a puffiness and dark rings under the eyes. The functional powers of the stomach are impaired and there is loss or irregularity of appetite. These and all other disorders of the liver may be cured by the old reliable remedy, Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. The fact that imitators undertake to sail under our colors and sell on the million dollar reputation of our Dr. M. A. INJURY TO KENTUCKY.

Gov. Bradley's Message Recommends the Suppression of Mobs.

Economy Advocated and New Public Buildings Suggested.

State Property is Depreciated by Night Raiders—Wants the Separate Coach Law Repealed—A Reform School is Urged—The Indebtedness of the State.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 5.—Gov. Bradley sent the following message to both branches of the legislature Wednesday:

To the General Assembly of Kentucky:

In pursuance of law enacted at the last session, the $600,000 bonds were prepared and the interest, 6 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually, and have but ten years to run, but, despite these facts, they were sold at a premium of 12 per cent. This is the best sale of state bonds ever made in the union outside the state of New York.

The present bonded indebtedness is $3,483,000.86.

The floating debt past due is $1,262.135.33; with bonded debt added it makes a total indebtedness of $5,046,166.19. Resources of the sinking fund are $561,612.72.

After deducting the latter amount the net amount of indebtedness is $4,459,503.47. Of this amount the educational bonds are not subject to redemption, but constitute a perpetual debt, the interest upon which is payable semi-annually.

To the shame of the commonwealth, I am again compelled to call your attention to the fact that organized bands of lawless men have continued and are continuing their nefarious work throughout the state, notwithstanding the presence of legislation especially intended to prevent their operations.

In Hancock county, in open day and without masks or even pretense of secrecy, a Negro was forcibly taken from the jail and hung on the public streets of Hawesville. Rewards were promptly offered, but the coroner's jury, doubtless composed of blind men, before whom none but blind witnesses testified, returned a verdict that deceased had come to his death by hands of persons unknown to them. There can be no excuse or palliation for the conduct of the brute who was swung into eternity, but, nevertheless, the mob, in handing him, were guilty of murder.

Such swift punishment is not attended by the anxiety and suffering endured by the condemned criminal, and does not justify the dread or terror of a legal execution. Doubtless, had the guilty wretch been given his choice of punishments, he would have selected that meted out to him. So, also, in this case, the execution, the law was robbed of its victim, the punishment inflicted less severe than it would otherwise have been, and the law violated and trampled under foot.

As said in my inaugural, "mob violence (when home is in the breast of cowards) should be promptly, at any hazard, or if committed promptly and severely punished. It is an open declaration of contempt for the laws, the courts and the administration of justice, and in end of promoting, destroys the welfare of the state. The certainty of crime's punish crime can find no apologist in Christian civilization."

In this connection allow me to call your attention to the insufficiency of the law concerning an attempt at assault. In such cases, where the person assaulted receives injury, the law should provide for punishment by confinement in the penitentiary for not less than ten years, or life, or by death, in the discretion of the jury, as the extent of injury may demand.

Your attention is especially directed to the frequent occurrence of what is called "turnpike mails." Persons engaged in this character of crime have become more emboldened, while law-abiding citizens seem to have become paralyzed. The Martin law should be extended, has failed to accomplish its purpose. I have faithfully tried to enforce it by offering rewards and employing detectives, but do not know of a single conviction under its provisions. On the contrary, in many localities public sentiment is reported as indorsing the crime. In nearly every instance where these crimes have been committed the house was a loud-mouthed in approval, while peaceable citizens, more or less, are overawed and afraid to speak. This appears strange in a state which boasts of the prowess of her sons. Nevertheless, it is true. Be it said, however, to the credit of Kentucky, that the citizens of the greater portion of the state condemn such high-handed outrages. I am satisfied in numerous instances many of those who pose as good citizens have winked at outrages, because the result would be the depreciation in value of turnpike stock, and thus enable the counties to purchase them at nominal prices, thereby preventing, in a large degree, the levying of taxes. Advantage has been taken by some of the final course of this condition of affairs, and counties have become beneficiaries of crime, which would not have been committed but for the worthlessness and cowardice of officials and the connivance of citizens, who openly countenanced the law breakers. Frequently counties have voted for free turnpikes by large majorities and at the same time voted against the issuance of bonds to pay for them. In other words, they declare they will have free roads without making compensation.

Under such circumstances, as might be expected, turnpike stock owned by the state, which was valued at $409,000 three years ago, and which produced nearly $21,000 dividends annually, is comparatively worthless.

In many places turnpike officials fear to ask for guards lest their houses should be burned or they should be assassinated. In one case the state inspector was compelled to serve out a trouble to make the application for guards, but, on his arrival, was notified by the former gatekeeper that they would not collect toll because of fear that the guards would not protect them, or that the guards would be soon withdrawn, when they would be killed. It is very clear in many places that peace officers are in sympathy with the mob, in others that they prefer that the outrages should continue and the turnpikes be bought for a song, rather than the county should be taxed to pay for them, and in others that guards can not be found who have the courage or desire to do their duty. Again, the friends and relations of the raiders, and in some instances the raiders themselves, have been appointed as guards, and promptly surrendered to the outlaws. Arbitrary prices, merely nominal, have been placed upon some of the roads, and the owners notified that they must accept them or be forced to cease the collection of toll. But in all localities the counties have seen that pikes were assessed at good values and taxes promptly collected. In one instance the raiders carried their work to its proper conclusion by robbing the gatekeepers of the tolls.

This evil so long continued, is seeking other fields of operation. It naturally occurs to the raiders that if tollgates can be taken with impunity, all other property can be taken in like manner. And so it is, bands of knights of the road have undertaken to regulate the quantity of tobacco the farmer should cultivate, destroying his plants if he dared to disobey; have notified the miller that the usual charge was no more for flour than the price fixed by them, threatened with the shotgun and the torch farmers who had posted their lands, if the boards were not taken down and they allowed to hunt without hindrance; and, notwithstanding all this high-handed conduct, not one of the ruffians has been punished.

Candidates for office have been known to openly champion these criminals in order to be, and have thereby been, elected; while those who have stood for good government have almost universally gone down to defeat.

If this spirit is not stamped out the day is not far distant when the state will be completely under the control of swash-bucklers and highway robbers who will rob, steal and murder at will.

The stock in turnpikes owned by the state is bought from taxes assessed upon the whole people, and was thereafter set apart as a portion of the sinking fund, and under the provisions of the constitution can not be diminished by act of the legislature until the debt of the commonwealth is paid. Thousands of public-spirited citizens, and in many instances the widow and the guardian of orphans, have have invested in these stocks, relying on the laws of the state and their enforcement for protection.

Granting, for argument's sake, that free roads are desirable, it by no means follows that their owners should be robbed and plundered.

You are now boldly confronted with the question, whether these crimes are to continue or whether the state has the will and the power to protect the lives and property of its citizens.

In January, 1896, I recommended in a general message, and again in the called session, the passage of a law making the counties where mob violence prevailed responsible in damages to the widows, children and heirs of persons killed and responsible to the unoffending injured in person or property. This law has proven salutary in every state of the union where it has been enacted. With the should be connected the absolute right of change of venue, so that a trial may be had by unprejudiced juries in unprejudiced communities. I have been informed that among the objections and contentions which prevented the adoption of such an act in 1896, it was asserted that corporations would burn their property, or prevent the collection of tolls in order to compel the passage of the act. Other channels, when we are becoming a spectacle in the eyes of the people of other states and other countries, not only save for my native state, but, official duty, demands plain speech and prompt and severe action.

It is idle to talk economy in the public service as long as the extravagance now suffered to continue. It is better to curtail expenses than to increase taxes. Hitherto the attention of your predecessors has been called to this matter without avail. I hope, however, that different action will be had by you.

Useless offices should be abolished. The bureau of agriculture has been fully tested, and if continued, the extraordinary appropriations are worth anything, has fallen far short of accomplishing any material good. Yet thousands of dollars are appropriated annually to carry out its purposes. This can be abolished only by constitutional amendment, which I recommend may be done.

The payment of the land office entails an expense of thousands of dollars each year, without corresponding benefit.

The present salaries are in nearly every instance twice as much as they were at the conclusion of the war, when the premium on gold was greater than ever before. There is no reason why such a condition of affairs should exist.

Perhaps the most exclusive drain on the treasury is criminal expenditures. In this are comprised jury fees, witness fees, sheriffs, marshals, jailers and constables' fees, costs of examining courts, etc.

Under the present laws a large number of persons are yearly sent to the penitentiary who should be fined and compelled to work out the same on the public roads.

Shortly after the present administration came into power the contract with the Frankfort Chair Co. was forfeited by the directors of the penitentiary because of the company's failure and refusal to pay the royalties due to the state, and the inability, by reason of that fact, of the directors to continue operations. This, of course, left a floating debt then owing and which could not be paid for lack of funds in the treasury, rendered it imperative in carrying on work in the penitentiary to collect from current money due. There was no other source from which the funds necessary to pay operating expenses could be had. In this condition of affairs the company demanded that the directors should not appoint a superintendent if they had selected. This demand was disregarded, whereupon the company purchased, at a discount, a sufficient amount of state scrip owing by the state to cover its indebtedness, and offered it to me and the auditor in payment, refusing to pay a single dollar in money. By their own action they terminated the contract.

It then became necessary to advertise for bids for convict labor, which was done promptly, resulting in what is known as the "Martin contract," at the annual payment of 650 men. Considerable complication grew out of the terms of the contract, and, in order that the real merits of the transaction might be understood, I ordered the late inspector [illegible] to make a careful examination of the working of the same, and for that purpose ordered him to employ an expert accountant. His report will be placed before you and will doubtless have your close study and attention.

The contract has not realized the money which it was thought it would at the time it was made, and there is a controversy between the state and Mr. Martin. In the former claims that the latter owes the additional sum of $9,000.

Immediately upon the termination of the contract with the Frankfort Chair Co., came the destruction of the workshops at Eddyville by fire. This threw out employment a large number of convicts, and the Mason & Ford Co. decided to engage further in business at that penitentiary except to work up a small quantity of material on hand. They agreed to and did hire 400 convict at 35 cents each per day, to be employed in the manufacture of shoes and brooms at the Frankfort penitentiary, provided that the portion of the shops destroyed by fire prior to December, 1895, should be rebuilt, and an additional building erected.

Under great difficulties the shops were constructed, and, in addition to this, an expenditure of nearly $10,000 in equipping the Frankfort penitentiary with machinery. The penitentiary is now better equipped with machinery and better prepared to make convict labor profitable than it has been in the past.

I suggest that an appropriation be made to pay for the workshop at Eddyville and thus save the payment of interest by the state.

Your attention is called to the danger of fire in these institutions.

The directors of the penitentiary at Frankfort are now paying for water the enormous sum of $500 per year.

I suggest that you investigate these matters through committees, and take such action as you believe the interests of the state demand.

Our charitable institutions are in a most shriving condition. The total expenses for the asylums for six months of 1895, and corresponding months of 1896, are: 1895, $168,837.93; 1896, $175,230.39, showing a decrease of $21,607.93 and an average decrease in per capita of $3.60.

I again urge upon your honorable body such legislation as will carry into effect the present state constitutional provision for a reform school. It is recommended that you so amend the statute as to provide specifically for the issue of a warrant, in order that this great work may be speedily completed.

I urge upon your honorable body to take the necessary steps immediately looking to the erection of new and suitable state buildings.

The common school system is the nursery of liberty, and everything should be done that is calculated to improve and enlarge it. Much progress has been made in this direction, but there is room for greater advancement.

It is claimed that Kentucky pays twice as much for school books as states north of us. If this be true, such laws should be enacted as will remedy it. If uniformity in text books should be required, the prices would necessarily be reduced.

And, among other matters, your attention is called to the school system for the Negroes. The old common school law, which levied a tax upon blacks and whites to be used separately for each race, was held unconstitutional, and, after a vote by the people, the fund was divided equally per capita.

As the colored people are generally poor and unable to pay large costs of transportation, it is suggested that another normal school should be established in western Kentucky.

The corruption of the elective franchise and the defeat of the will of the majority should not be tolerated for a moment. Appreciating the full force of this sentiment the makers of our present constitution, defining who should vote, provided that "the first general assembly held after the adoption of this constitution shall pass all necessary laws to enforce this provision, and shall provide that persons illiterate, blind, or in any way disabled, may have their ballots prepared as herein required."

In conformity to the foregoing sentiment and in order that every man may be able to cast his vote, I again recommend that a circle or square should be placed below each party device in which the voter may make his mark. Many mistakes are made under the present regulation, as many in one political party as in the other, and this will prevent persons deprived of their votes. Every facility should be afforded the humblest man in the commonwealth to intelligently cast his vote and have it counted. Mutilation in politics in the end bring retribution to any party that denies or abridges the rights of citizenship.

Where intimidation is necessary, especially in large cities, it is charged that repeating registered voters, in some instances, are falsely impersonated, and, on this account persons who are not entitled, vote, and in this way prevent legal voters from exercising their privileges. As to whether this charge be true I do not know, but the fact that such a thing might be done is sufficient to call for the enactment of such laws as will in some measure identify the lawful voter.

Primary elections should be prohibited from being held at the same time or place where regular elections are held, to prevent confusion and undue excitement. The selection of candidates should not be allowed in any manner to conflict with or affect the election of officers.

There is a diversity of opinion as to whether canvassing or examining boards have the right to pass on returns. This should be made plain and the right of every citizen to have counted to have his vote counted as cast, whether there is or is not a contest. The law should be such that no citizen shall lose his vote on account of the carelessness or any officer to discharge a plainly mandatory duty when the officers of the election are satisfied of the will of the voter as last deposited.

According to the present law, when a political party has failed to nominate a candidate by convention or primary election, upon a petition signed by fifty per cent. of the party number, any individual, however objectionable, may have his name placed under a party device. Frequently this may prove distasteful to the party and should not be allowed.

Section 1158, Kentucky Statutes, provides the secretary of state from certifying another county clerk from placing the name of a candidate properly certified by the party nominated, on the ballot whenever notified by such party date that he will not accept the nomination. Section 1159, Kentucky statutes, provides that, in case of the death, refusal or resignation, after the printing of the ballots, certain steps may be taken to meet the contingency. I suggest that in either state of case referred to by the last named section, or in the case mentioned in Section 1158, it be made the duty of the secretary of state or county clerk, as the case may be, to give notice to the chairman or secretary of the party committee, the chairman of the county committee, and that posters may be provided and used in such case, and also, if necessary, by the party organization such as will enable such party to supply the place as provided in Section 1161.

Section 1357, Kentucky statutes, prescribes a fine and imprisonment in the county jail against any officer, or board of judges, who disposed in Chapter 41, who shall wilfully neglect to perform his public duty, or who shall wilfully act improperly in such a way as to hinder the object of the law. A glance at the many important duties which this section governs will demonstrate that the punishment is entirely disproportionate as to officers of registration and officers of election in large primary elections. Particularly is this true as to the duties assigned to the secretary of state, commissioners and judges of election to the clerk in the proper preparation of the registration of scrolls and ballots, the sheriff in delivering ballot boxes; the county judge in the appointment of officers of election and giving the notice of same; the admission of unauthorized persons into the booth or within less than 50 feet of the polls; the counting of votes and the preservation of contested ballots.

Section 1418, Kentucky statutes, limits the appointment of officers of election to house-keepers. Many competent persons are excluded by this section, and it should be altered.

Proud of the liberty secured to the advocates of the free coinage of silver. He was satisfied that the president and Secretary Carlisle were in accord upon the financial question. He attacked the Republican party because it was a party advocating the gold standard and expressed his intention of doing all in his power to defeat the party in 1900 and to drag the present administration from power because the policy of the party was, in his opinion, inimical to the best and highest interests of the people of the United States.

House—The civil service debate continued throughout the day in the house. All efforts to fix a time for its termination failed and it is likely to now run over into the next week. The interest in the discussion grows as the debate. The debate Friday was without marked incident. The speakers were Mr. Gillette (Mass.), Burton (O.), republicans, and Fitzgerald in support of the law; Messrs. Cummings (dem., N. Y.), Faris (rep., Ind.) Mahany (rep., N. Y.), Driggs (dem., N. Y.) and Bartley (dem., N. Y.) in opposition to, and Mr. Kerr (rep., O.) in favor of the modification of the law. At 4:55 the house adjourned.

STRANGE CASE.

A Man Lies in a Comatose Condition for Three Years.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Three years and two months ago Wm. Gipp shot and killed his mother and wounded his father. Gipp was found shortly after the murder wandering around apparently demented. He was taken to police headquarters, where he fell into a trance. He was removed to the state hospital in this city and since that time has remained in a state of coma. Food was administered to him by the hospital attendants. Saturday morning Gipp surprised his keeper by arising from his bed and walking across the room. When spoken to he found great difficulty in framing an answer, but improved as the day wore on, and is now apparently on the road to complete recovery.

Dogs for the Klondike.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 10.—The steamer Portia, from St. Johns, N. F., landed here Sunday a cargo of the dogs for the Klondike. There were 190, all told, and they were having a howling time between decks, when the steamer reached her docks. In the transfer to the railway for shipment to the west, several managed to escape and were not recaptured. The man in charge of them said he was sick of his job. It is estimated that by the time the dogs reach Vancouver they will have cost about $80 a head.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—SENATE—The presentation of replies of the members of the cabinet to the resolution calling for information as to the application of the civil service law to the several departments of the government, together with the consideration of the bill establishing a bureau for the twelfth census, precipitated a sharp civil service debate in the senate Wednesday. Mr. Cullom (Ill.), the author of the resolution thought the information in the law ought to be made as the authorities had drifted far away from the original intention of the authors of the civil service law. Mr. Allen (Neb.) charged that the law was openly and daily violated and said it was a bliss and byword among the people. Mr. Lodge (Mass.) declared that it was presumptuous in Secretary Sherman to make recommendations to congress that certain positions in his department should be excepted from the civil service when the president had full authority to make the exceptions he recommended. He thought an effort was being made to tie the president's hands. Mr. Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, gave notice that he would next Monday and daily thereafter move that the senate consider in executive session the Hawaiian annexation treaty until it was disposed of or finally.

HOUSE—The civil service debate began in the house Wednesday, based on the item in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill for the maintenance of the commission. It promises to continue at least until the end of this week, with a possibility that it may run longer. There is generally admitted on both sides that the appropriation in the bill will stand, as the anti-civil service reformers do not clearly contemplate an attempt to destroy the institution [illegible] administration [illegible] enemies of the law [illegible] members of the house [illegible] are apparent [illegible] the nature of which [illegible] not anticipated. [illegible] Grow (rep., Pa.) defended the law [illegible] Robb (dem., Ala.) opposed it [illegible] and favored [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—SENATE—While the senate was in session only a few hours Thursday [illegible] practically all the business transacted was [illegible] the passing [illegible] Among the measures which [illegible] favorable consideration were the bill [illegible] for the relief of the representatives of the Indian tribes of the United States to be held in Omaha during the progress of the International exposition this year; bills providing for the erection of public buildings at Fergus Falls, Minn., and Newport News, Va., and a measure to protect the name and badge of the Red Cross society. At 5 o'clock the senate adjourned until Friday.

HOUSE—The friends and enemies of the civil service law exchanged broadsides in the house Thursday. Cannon guns on each side were brought into action, Mr. Grosvenor (O.) and Mr. Johnson (Ind.) each made exhaustive speeches and kept their respective sides in a constant uproar. The speech of Mr. Robb (dem., Ala.) was much more lively than Wednesday. The crowded galleries, which were plainly in sympathy with the opponents of the law, became [illegible] in their demonstrations of approval [illegible] Speaker Reed that the chair was compelled to call them to order. Mr. Johnson was warmly sustained by the friends of the law on the floor but he got very little applause from the gallleries. Mr. Grosvenor did not believe this attitude in detail, but gave his adhesion to the bill based on the constitutionality of the law in caucus Wednesday night and warned his colleagues that unless modifications of the law were made he and his friends would find a way to completely destroy the law. Mr. Flood, of Missouri, was the only speaker. He favored the repeal of the law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—SENATE—The feature of the senate session was a speech delivered by Mr. Teller (col.) regarding the report that the recent efforts to make it appear that Secretary Gage had tendered his resignation was a move of the cabinet to President McKinley were a part of a conspiracy of the silver men to disrupt the cabinet and create dissention between the president and his advisers. Mr. Teller branded the publication as an insult to the advocates of the free coinage of silver. He was satisfied that the president and Secretary Gage had taken no such position. He attacked the Republican party because it was a party advocating the gold standard and expressed his intention of doing all in his power to defeat the party in 1900 and to drag the present administration from power because the policy of the party was, in his opinion, inimical to the best and highest interests of the people of the United States.

HOUSE—The civil service debate continued throughout the day in the house. All efforts to fix a time for its termination failed and it is likely to now run over into the next week. The interest in the discussion grows as the debate. The debate Friday was without marked incident. The speakers were Mr. Gillette (Mass.), Burton (O.), republicans, and Fitzgerald in support of the law; Messrs. Cummings (dem., N. Y.), Faris (rep., Ind.) Mahany (rep., N. Y.), Driggs (dem., N. Y.) and Bartley (dem., N. Y.) in opposition to, and Mr. Kerr (rep., O.) in favor of the modification of the law. At 4:55 the house adjourned.

DURRANT DEAD.

The Murderer of Two Girls Dies on the Scaffold—Justice at Last Overtakes the Criminal of the Century.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Jan. 8.—When W. H. T. Durant awoke at 5:20 Friday morning, he was apparently greatly refreshed by his night's sleep, which had been sound and peaceful throughout the night. His last night upon earth had been one of excitement as he had been visited by his parents, a minister and newspapermen for some hours, and did not retire until midnight, half an hour after his mother had left him.

At 9:30 a. m. Warden Hale visited the death chamber for the purpose of reading the death warrant to the condemned man, who listened to the well known contents of that document with respectful attention, no outward sign of fear.

When it was finally decided that Durrant should accept the Catholic faith, his parents met Father Lagan in the warden's office, and accompanied him to the death chamber, where the prisoner was given extreme unction and the Catholic service performed. Durrant evinced the most lively interest in the service. He then conversed with his parents for a few minutes, and shortly after 10 o'clock bade them farewell for the last time and prepared for his march to the scaffold.

There was no scene at the gallows. Mrs. Durrant did not witness the execution. She remained in a room in the lower part of the prison and showed unmistakable signs of grief tempered with a dogged desire to create the impression that she was too proud to weep.

At 10:34 o'clock the frail door that guards the threshold of the gallows room swung open and the little party conducting Durrant to the gallows entered. Father Lagan led, draped in cassock and surplice and chanting the prayers for the dying. Durrant, his father, a friend, Warden Hale and the guards followed. The father and his friend left the party and walked around the gallows to the front, while the condemned man and his escort climbed the 13 steps that led to the platform and the waiting trap. At last Theodore Durrant stood upon the gallows. He gave no signs of weakening. His slight figure was as erect as though it had been his marriage morning. The broad leather strap that bound his arms to his sides allowed his wrists some play and his fingers wrested lightly on the strap. Five minutes after when his body was swinging like a pendulum beneath the trap, the fingers, now all blue and chilled looking, still rested where he had placed them as he left the cell. Instantly upon arriving upon the gallows the rope was knotted about his neck. The murderer held his chin high in the air to make room for the stiff new line, knotted in the peculiar fashion of the hangman. By an unusual privilege the condemned man was permitted to wear a low collar, opening in front, and a white satin tie. His face was pale, but it was not the ashy paleness of terror. It was the face of a man who, knowing that he has a momentous thing to do, is resolved to do it like a man. The rope about his neck and the hangman turned to get the black cap, when the erect head turned and Durrant whispered a request to be allowed to speak. It was granted. Then, with his feet on the trap, the cord about his throat tied fast to the cross beam on the gallows, the holy water of his baptism in the Catholic church on his head, he said these final words: "I desire to say that although I am an innocent man, innocent of every crime that has been charged against me, I bear no animosity toward those that have persecuted me, not even the press of San Francisco, which hounded me to the grave. If any man thinks I am going to spring a sensation, I am not, except it is a sensation that I am an innocent man brought to the grave by my persecutors. But I forgive them all. They will get their justice from the Great God who is Master of us all, and there I expect to get justice that is the justice of an innocent man. Whether or not the perpetrators of the crime of which I am charged are discovered, it will make no difference to me now, but I say this day will be a shame to the great state of California. I forgive everybody who has persecuted me, an innocent man whose hands have never been stained with blood, and I go to meet my God with forgiveness for all men."

The guards, impatient for their task, for the suspense was harder on them than on the condemned, drew the white cap over his head. As the descending cap covered his face there was no change in the expression of the man, who almost in the same instant was dead. Hardly was the cap adjusted when the trap dropped with its loud rattle, the only sound in the intense silence. The body dropped, there was the sound of the tugging of the rope as it drew taut under the weight of the body, and that was all. A vibration or two and the body hung at the end of the hemp quite motionless. The elder Durrant gazed steadily at the proceedings until that moment then his head fell forward upon the shoulders of young Smythe, Deupree's clerk, and he buried his face and the expression of his grief from the sight of men.

The doctors gathered about the suspended body, listened for the respiration and watched the pulse. In just 11 minutes and 28 seconds all action had ceased and the Durrant case was ended.

HOUSE—At 12 o'clock Tuesday the house of representatives was called to order by Clerk T. S. Kirk, of Johnson county, and opened with prayer by Rev. George Dorsis. The members-elect came forward in sections of two and took the oath of office, administered by Squire Thompson. Humphreys, of Fayette, asked if Alvin Bertram had been sworn in, and the clerk told him that Bertram was not a member and could not be sworn in. This case was intended to show and did show that Bertram had no right to vote in Monday night's caucus when his vote nominated Henry Williams to be enrolling clerk. J. C. W. Beckham, dem., of Nelson, and J. P. Haswell, rep., were placed in nomination for speaker. Beckham received 79 to 25 for Haswell, a strict party vote. Five members were absent and did not vote. The following officers were then elected, all of them being the nominees of the democratic caucus: Clerk, J. Breck Hill; assistant clerk, Creed Keiler; sergeant-at-arms, Percy Haley; enrolling clerk, Henry Williams; doorkeeper, W. M. Lyons; janitor, Thomas Spurrier. The house then adjourned until 11 o'clock Wednesday, when it will complete its organization and hear the governor's message read.

The joint committee then waited upon the governor, who formally sent in his message, which was read.

HOUSE—The house opened Wednesday morning with prayer by Rev. George Means. The house then hurried through the journal and went into the election of their ironbiesome nominees. George Kinkead and Alfred Clark took room keeper by a strict party vote, and then came the bitter pill. South, of Trimble, put J. H. Ely colored, of Todd, in nomination for assistant cloak room keeper, and Rogers, of Louisville, named the colored candidate for page. Most of the democrats voted for the colored house nominee, and all the republicans voted for Ely. One or two men explained their votes. The absence of some of those who did not vote was the cause of suspicion, as they had been in the house a few minutes before. Democrats did not vote for Ely, but were absent. There was no trouble over the election of young Lockey, the son of the populist member from Trigg, who was given the place over one of the pageships, but some democratic members were again absent for a few minutes. The afternoon session completed the organization of the house, but it was not over in time until afternoon. The governor's message was then read.

The governor sent in for confirmation a number of appointments heretofore made for the asylums, several of which have been serving for many months. The appointments will lie over till the committees are appointed.

HOUSE—The committee on rules reported Thursday morning, and its report was read and adopted, no important change from last session's rules being made. The committee in the absence of Alvin Bertram (dem.) against D. S. Powers (rep.) was drawn by lot Thursday morning, as follows: Chinn, Combs, May, Richardson, D. G. Lykins, Lee, G. W. I just gave up a blamed good mule to get a divorce from the other woman in order to marry this one."—Somerset Reporter.

GOOD ROADS.

[M. J. Crouch, of Union.]

Winter is here with its long evenings and mud-roads. They come together but do not always go together. Long after grim winter has taken his flight for the north pole, mud roads cling to us with continued fond embrace. The long winter evenings invite us to think, read, study and good cheer. The time is auspicious for the good people of old Boone to study the road question along with many others.

Too many of us allow others to do our thinking and follow these self-appointed leaders whithersoever they choose to lead. We are beginning to wake up, and, as we open our drowsy eyes, find ourselves like the cat in a strange garret. We can hardly believe our eyes and our sense slowly understands, so many things have gone wrong. Like old Rip Van Winkle, we have been asleep a long while. Unlike him, we are awakened by a vigorous pulling, knocking and tugging of the little giants—not dwarfs. When we open our eyes we find they have robbed us. These little giants are the politicians, the office-holders, lawmakers, socalled statesmen and great men—patriots who love us so dearly. They never intended to wake us—in fact that is what they did not want. What they did want however, was all the labor or money they could get. In their greed or haste they have unwillingly aroused us. We propose to stay awake, now, and use our eyes while we think a little for ourselves. I am sure nothing can be more profitable.

Turn as we may in any direction and we find abuses of all kinds. The hard earned money of the people has been extravagantly used—misused and wasted. A few individuals have grown fat while the masses have become lean.

The truth of the matter is that we, as a people, pay too much to be governed. If our affairs from county to national were administered in an honest, economical, business-like way, we could accomplish what we do for less than half the money. This is a sweeping statement, but I believe it is true and can be proven. These things, I trust will furnish food for thought on many a long winter evening.

Now, let us study the road question. I take it for granted that everyone is in favor of having and maintaining good roads—at least the road one travels. There is the trouble. We are all prone to take a narrow view of this subject. Men who are capable of taking a broad view of other subjects narrow this one to the road they travel to the postoffice, store, or may be church.

If there is anything little and selfish in a man, he will show it when you talk about public roads, or pass the contribution box. It takes a broad-minded, public spirited, generous man to put his hand into his pocket for the good of the general public. I believe the county of Boone can boast of as many of this class of citizens as any county in the State, and that is saying a great deal. The people of Boone county may be slow to understand and see some things; but when they do, you may trust them to act and vigorously, too.

This confidence in the people and the immense merit of the question is the basis of my efforts to have them see and understand the pressing need and great importance of good roads.

It is not only necessary to know what we need; but we must be able to understand that need and feel it, not for ourselves only but for our neighbors and our country at large.

Let us then take a broad view of the subject and see the relations of transportation, travel and rapid communication to progress, prosperity and civilization. We see the results in the Nation over which floats the star-spangled banner. We glory in her greatness—we rejoice in her progress—are proud of her achievements and exult in her prowess, but do we understand it?

The reason for wanting good roads then, is not selfish—rather unselfish and even patriotic. That is from the stand-point of the greatest good to the greatest number. Then they are a necessary part of a progressive and highly civilized community, county or country.

All who visited the World's Fair will recall the "Golden Gate" or beautiful entrance to the magnificent Transportation Building, and this inscription: "There be three things that mark the progress of a great nation:—Rapid transit, easy transportation and good roads." Judged by the intimate relations of every day life, nothing could be a surer index, considered as an influence in the progress of civilization—nothing could be more powerful.

When we remember that the railroads alone of this country represent an investment of capital to the amount of twenty or thirty billions of dollars, we can form an idea, by comparison, of their vast importance. Ramifying, like numerous arteries—as they are of commerce—through every part of this vast continent of ours, they carry with their trains the [illegible] facilities of civilization. Hardly could a stock of money—[illegible] paper—would hardly [illegible] were scarce, one-third of its railroads [illegible] roads we add the [illegible] portation by water [illegible] anized common [illegible] fails to grasp the [illegible] invested, much less the [illegible] powerful influence [illegible]

This rapid transit [illegible] portation has made [illegible] National greatness. [illegible] to grow and expand [illegible] lantic on the one side, the Pacific on the other, Canada and the gulf of Mexico can no longer contain us.

In the mean time we must adapt ourselves to the requirements of a denser population, and make permanent our greatness by internal development of our resources.

Some contend, and among them, Ingals, the great railroad man, that railroad building has been overdone in this country. That may be true; but it continues to go on. Some of our own as well as foreign economists have gone so far as to say that our national life was a mushroom growth. That its very exuberance rendered it insecure, and would necessarily hasten its downfall. The point of this criticism is well taken; but it does not concur with the wonderful elasticity of the American people. The Yankee does not do things like other people. He knows no obstacles, and the laws of history are as utterly ignored by him as the foreign menial aristocracy.

It is true the wonderful possibilities of the railroad and the iron-horse attracted the attention of capital and the country at large at a time when it was looking toward improving our common road thoroughfares. Be that as it may, we have no cause to regret it; but should at least profit by that experience. Any way, we can truthfully boast that we have the most complete, extensive and magnificent railroad system in the whole world. Then, on every navigable stream ample water transportation meets every demand.

It is true our merchant marine is not what it should be. It is not in keeping with our other achievements—not equal to the requirements of a great commercial nation. Congress is largely to blame for this and not the people, and there is a big difference between Congress and the people.

Finally on our great lakes alone sufficient commerce is carried yearly for a proud nation to boast of the achievements.

Now, I think it has been shown that every dollar that we have spent to improve rapaid, and easy transportation has been of uncalculable advantage, to not only those directly interested but to the country at large.

What has been said of the railroad, and water navigation must also be said of good roads—common roads. Their purpose and effect are one and the same. Common roads come into close relation to the domestic life of a people it is true; but that can not render them less important or desirable, in fact it makes them more so, for the home of our people is the very foundation of our Nation's life. Put that home in rapid communication and easy reach of the influence of civilization, and you have rendered the inmates a lasting benefit. When you remember that a group of these homes make a community; of these communities, a county; of counties, a State; of States, the United States, the great progressive and powerful nation, you can not overestimate the importance of good roads.

It is not necessary for me to show you the relations of good roads to the intellectual advancement of a people—the moral, financial and religious. You, no doubt, have already seen these things and felt them as well.

The very earth we live on and the atmosphere we breathe, largely makes us what we are. This will hold good the world over as well as at home. Go into a community where the land is rich and productive, beautiful homes, large barns, well kept farms, fences and good roads everywhere—what kind of people do you find? Intelligent, moral, religious and industrious, as well as a cleaner, more healthy, beautiful and vigorous. Go into a community where the land is poor, rocky [illegible] ountainous, [illegible] roads save the unimproved passes and what kind of people do find there? Just the reverse [illegible] portion as their disadvantages are mitigated or exagerated. Now, what makes this difference? land at first, other conditions being the same then,—the absence those things that make our civilization what it is.

CROP AND STOCK.

Farmers say wheat is growing in a jump.

The Orange and lemon crops of California have been injured by frost.

About 2,000 cattle on the market at Mt. Sterling on court day. The best feeders sold as high as $3,90.

Farris & Whitney, of Boyle county, sold to Seir Miller, of Pennsylvania, a car load of long yearling mules at $37 per head.

Nine hundred pounds of Bartlett pears were taken from a single tree in an orchard at Corvallis, Ore., this season.

There are fewer good horses in the county at present than at any time during the past twenty-years.—Glasgow News.

Mr. B. F. Bedford, jr., of Bourbon county, shipped last week two car loads of 850-pound feeding cattle to a party at Washington, Pa.

One of the best sales of tobacco of the present season is that of Thos. C. Robinson and F. M. Poer of Clark county, to Charles B. Stewart. The entire crop of fifteen acres, amounting to 27,356 pounds, was sold at fifteen cents a pound.

Woodford county in 1897 produced probably the finest crop of tobacco in point of quality in the State, and the farmers are now selling at excellent prices. R. Early sold a crop of 90,000 pounds to Liggett & Myers, of St. Louis, at an average of eleven and one-half cents a pound, realizing over $10,000. Mr. David James sold a crop from 12 acres of land to Lexington buyers at thirteen cents.

JUDGE ROBERTS took hold of business as the head of the Fiscal Court as though he had been filling that position for a long time. Business was dispatched in an expeditious manner, all the new Justices giving it close attention.

THE offerings on the Cincinnati tobacco market, last week, were remarkably light, says the Western Tobacco Journal, and the prices were fully as high as at the close of the sales before the holidays, and the best grades of the new crop were some firmer.

THE Legislature will attempt to pass a law which will provide for cheaper books for use in the schools in this State. Indiana has a law under which she prints her own school books, it is claimed, at a great saving to her people. At first the law was somewhat defective, but it is now working very well—at least no complaints are being made. Kentucky might profit by her neighbor's example.

[News]

As we go to press we learn of the horrible death of LaFayette House, who has been living with Mr. John Tilley, near Easterday, for about a year. Mr. House had been sitting up with the corpse of Sam Southworth, and went home between the hours of eight and nine. It is supposed that he buitt a fire, and having lost sleep on the previous night, he was soon fast asleep. At what time the house burned no one can determine, as no one saw the flames, and not until an early hour this morning was it known. Some passers by saw the smouldering embers of the house, and amid the debris they were horror stricken to find the charred remains of Mr. House. Mr. Tilley and wife were not at home; he having gone to Owen county to make preparations for the burial of Mr. Southworth, and Mrs. Tilley had gone to some of the neighbors.

Samuel Southworth, one of the oldest residents of Carroll county, died at his home near Easterday, Monday, January 3, in the eighty-third year of his age.

The Barker Tobacco Co. received 90,000 pounds of tobacco Wednesday.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1898. NO. 13.

THE board of tax equalizers had a very difficult duty to perform in examining the various tax lists of the county, and in attempting to bring about a just distribution of the burden of taxation upon the people, no doubt the board did the best they could, yet there is some dissatisfaction with the work, especially on the part of many of those whose lists were increased, as there always has been and always will be in such cases.

A possibility, if not a probability, exists that at some time there may be an approach to an equalization of tax upon the lands of the county, but all attempts to equalize tax upon the personal estate, such as notes, money and other personal demands, will surely be a failure until some law be devised which will compel a true exhibit of such property to the listing officer.

As to lands the Assessor or taxing authority can see the property, and may, if they choose, fix a fair value upon it; as to other characters of taxable property no one but the taxpayer has a perfect knowledge of its existence and value—hence its concealment from the law is easily effected, and we may, therefore, expect much of it to escape assessment, unless the taxpayers get more liberal and patriotic than heretofore. The probability that the law making power will ever be able, except by the most radical legislation to compel a fair or full exhibit of such property to the taxing officers, or reach all of it, is very remote indeed.

The law as to corporations has, at last, succeeded generally in compelling them to exhibit and pay tax upon all their property at its value, fairly assessed. Such a thing was possible as to them, simply because their business is somewhat of a public nature and known to their stockholders and the public, which, together with the supervision and inspection claimed and exercised by the State has been sufficient to make them toe the mark. Notwithstanding the prejudice against corporations they pay more taxes according to the value of their property than others, simply because they can not help it, for they would dodge as quickly as individuals if they could.

The most palpable inequality of taxation as administered in our county is in reference to real estate. Take any section of the county and you will find that the rates at which the valuable lands and the poor lands are fixed for taxing are wholly and unreasonably out of proportion. The valuable lands are charged far below their value, while the poor lands are charged, some above their actual value, and all of them up to or very close to it. That a farm worth $100 an acre should be taxed on a valuation of $60 per acre while another worth $20 per acre is taxed upon that value, surely presents a case of gross inequality against the owner of the poorer land. Nevertheless such cases—or many cases of that sort are supposed to exist in the county. Such errors and inequalities have crept into our system of taxation, and have been continued year after year, until the people submit to them as a legitimate and necessary part of the system itself. Such a system or such an execution as the system as we now have as will produce these unjust results must be wholly indefensible. The remedy of these evils as to land now exist in the law as it stands, and only needs to be applied by the authorities who assess for taxation and the board of equalization. These evils have been suffered so long that now it will cause bitter complaint and criticism against those in office seeking to properly apply the law for their correction; and we may rest assured that no correction will ever be had in these matters if the approval by those who have been benefitted by them is first to be had.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, January 15th, 1898.

How can a President who is an honest and conscientious bimetallist keep a Secretary of the Treasury in his Cabinet who is so wedded to the gold standard as to endorse the statement that bimetallism—a double standard—is an impossibility? That was the question asked in the minds of many when Secretary Gage, sitting beside the chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, endorsed that statement made by ex-Senator Edmonds, president of the so-called monetary conference, and believed to be the paid attorney of the gold ring, who appeared before that committee in behalf of the gold standard bill prepared by the Commission. The question would probably not have been asked had not Senator Chandler just previously stated that he had Mr. McKinley's own word for it that he was in favor of bimetallism, and to clinch his statement added: "Mr. McKinley is as good a bimetallist as I am." If that is true, Senator Chandler can hardly be a good bimetallist, notwithstanding his constant claims to be such. Senator Chandler at the same time said that Mr. McKinley told him that the international bimetallism fake was not dead, and that he intended to send the commission to Europe again. A considerable number of voters were probably fooled in the Presidential campaign by that international bimetallism plank of the Republican platform, but Mr. McKinley must have lost much of the political shrewdness with which he has been credited if he believes it can be used to fool them again.

So far as they can be seen, the results of the first week's consideration of the Hawaiian treaty by the Senate are not satisfactory to the advocates of annexation. Last week when notice was given that the treaty would be taken up Monday and considered daily until disposed of, its friends were very confident that votes enough were in sight to furnish the two-thirds needed for ratification, and it looked as though their confidence was justified. Presto, change, And ratification is again in doubt, owing to the defection of Senators who had been counted for it. Among those who have changed and come squarely out against ratification are Senators Thurston, of Nebra., and Gear of Iowa, both of whom claim to have been influenced by the sugar beet industry of their states; and Senators Wellington, of Md., Spooner, of Wis., and Mason, of Ill., are now placed in the doubtful column. Unless Mr. McKinley can whip these Senators back into line, or bribe them with patronage, into voting for annexation, there isn't much probability of the treaty being ratified.

The boss of the big boss is what they are calling Senator Joseph Firealarm Foraker just now. There isn't the slightest doubt but that Boss Hanna owes his election to the Senate to Foraker, nor that he would rather have owed it to any other man in the world. Foraker was in Washington waiting for Hanna through Mr. McKinley, to get down and ask for his help and agree to his terms. Hanna thought he could buy his way through without regard to Foraker. At the last minute he got rattled and notified Mr. McKinley to get Foraker's help on the best terms he could, but to get it. It took Mr. McKinley and Senator Foraker two or three hours to come to terms, but in the end Foraker had his way and had sent the telegram to Columbus that ensured Hanna's election to the Senate. The terms upon which Mr. McKinley secured Foraker's assistance for Hanna were, of course, secret, but they probably include much that would interest Ohio Republicans and were certainly advantageous personally to Foraker.

The irrepressible Jerry Simpson injected a little amusement into the close of the civil service debate in the House by telling the anti's that when they would be allowed to consider a bill for the modification or repeal of the civil service law, later on, would depend entirely on the Speaker, of whom he added: "He is the whole thing and runs the House." Amid the laughter which followed Lemuel Eli Quigg, Boss Platt's man, tried to get funny by turning to Jerry and asking: "Have you consulted the Speaker?" Quick as a flash Jerry replied: "No; he never consults me and I never consult him."

The Republican members of the Committe on Finance want to pigeonhole the Stanley Mathews resolution, declaring that all U. S. bonds are payable in silver, at the option of the government, which was offered by Senator Teller, and referred to this committee. They say that the reporting of the resolution will cause needless legislation; that it has been adopted by Congress and that its readoption now by the Senate, when it is known that the House would not be allowed to vote upon it, would accomplish nothing. But the Democrats have no idea of allowing the resolution to be smothered. They intend that it shall be reported and voted upon. It will put the Senators on record, as well as serve a notice to the gold standard administration that its efforts for gold bond legislation also belong in the "needless agitation" class.

The House having let off its surplus steam in discussing the civil service question a whole week is now jogging along with routine work on the appropriations.

THE law makes it a penitentiary offense for a person to draw a check on a bank, knowing at the time that he has no money in the bank, upon which the check is drawn, and down in Owen County a man is now in jail awaiting trial for this offense.

SEEING that the Republican management of the asylums and other public institutions of the State is a failure, Gov. Bradley wants to call Democrats to his assistance, and therefore asks the Legislature to provide that these institutions shall be placed under nonpartisan control.

OF the present Legislature Col. Walter Forrester says in his News Letter:

"There are fewer cranks in this body than in any that has assembled in Frankfort in the last two life-times. Even Bill Lyons had sense enough to feel himself out of place here and he only staid a couple days. He set up his mouth at various prominent points about the Capital and started it to talking and then went off to watch the results, but nobody dropped anything into the slot and so "Windy Bill" went back to Washington where Bill Deboe registers from Kentucky, alas!"

THE Kentucky Legislature manifests a disposition to instruct Congress how it shall act on the several important questions now before the nation. The Legislature seems to be laboring under a misapprehension as to the scope of its duties, and thinks it comprehends national as well as State affairs. Kentucky long since chose those whom she wanted to represent her in national affairs, and they are not proposing to interfere with the business of the aggregation of Statesmen at Frankfort, to whom State affairs have been assigned, and they should withdraw their minds from national questions for the present at least, as the correction of State evils will require all their time and ability. Gentlemen, confine your labors to Kentucky, and let Congress take care of itself.

The end of President McKinley's first year in the White House is to find Ohio hopelessly in twain. Already New York Republicanism is squarely split beyond the possibility of unity for long to come. The President has lots of trouble on his mind.—Anaconda Mont. Standard.

It was a sorry victory. It was worse than a defeat with good principle at stake. It presages the downfall of the corrupt Hanna despotism. In the effort to carry Hanna through the Republican administration suffered as much damage as Hanna himself.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MR. HANNA was elected United States Senator by the very slim majority of one vote in the Legislature of a State the Republican majority in which is anywhere from 80,000 to 100,000 and his election in this instance is believed to be due to the business principles which he says he applies to politics. Some times a victory is a defeat, and such it is in the case of Mr. Hanna's election.

A NATURALIST pointed out the reason for trees growing in their irregular shapes. The sap irregularly serves a most important purpose. When a gale is blowing the branches will be seen to sway in all directions, and their movements tend to balance the tree. Were they to sway in the same direction the tree would be uprooted or broken off.

THE carters who haul into the city of Rome the sand used in making mortar work 19 hours a day. They are always exposed to dangers, the greatest of which are the landslides in the country and the fines of the guards in the city. The five hours' rest is taken in the stables with their mates as bedfellows. All this for about 35 cents a day.

PRINCESS CHRISTIAN planted a tree in Windsor park a few days ago to be known as the "Queen's Diamond Jubilee Oak." A tablet was inscribed as follows: "This tree, raised from an acorn of the Queen's Jubilee Oak of 1887, was planted in 1897 by Princess Christian, Princess Helena of Great Britain and Ireland, in commemoration of the 60th year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria."

THE new postal cars now being constructed are said to be burglar proof. The platforms are said to be closed in, sides and ends, the doors opening only from the inside. A series of bars and bolts precludes the idea of an entrance with the use of anything short of a battering ram. The side doors are provided with chains and bolts, so that the door being partly open can not be pushed back save from the inside, and the windows and glass doors are covered with iron bars.

THE London Times tells of a Ceylon sapphire now in that city, the property of Maj. Gen. Robley, which is not less remarkable for its size than for its translucency and the brilliance of the optical effects it can show. The weight of the gem is 633 carats, and it is of a dark, milky blue color, perfectly transparent and flawless. Larger sapphires have been known, but they have usually, if not always, been dull and muddy, instead of having the clear, translucent color of this specimen.

IT is said that the famous Mountainside farm at Mahawah, N. J., which was owned by the late Theodore A. Havemeyer, is to be sold at auction by direction of the executors, who are arranging for the petition of the estate among the heirs. The sale is to include the live stock, buildings and appertenances. When Mr. Havemeyer bought the property, 19 years ago, it embraced only 300 acres; but he kept adding more land from time to time, until now the total area is more than 2,700 acres.

ANDREW JACOBSEN and Harry Christensen, two sailors from Seattle, had an experience as stowaways on the Umatilla, which arrived in San Francisco, recently, that they will not soon forget. At Port Townsend they were sealed up in one of the cold storage compartments of the steamer, and for 60 hours suffered terrible tortures from hunger, thirst and cold. When they were released from their unpleasant position, they were nearly dead, and for a time it was believed that one of them had gone mad.

COL. MORRIS HAMILTON, the oldest state official, and for years the state librarian, for the third time within three years has shattered the bone of his left arm and is laid up at his home near the statehouse at Trenton, N. J. A few days ago he tripped over the new company's gas pipes in front of his home. The bones of his left arm were shattered and his face was bruised by the fall which followed. Col. Hamilton, who is now in his seventy-eighth year, has carried his left arm in a sling during the Christmas holiday season for the last three years.

THE minimum height in the mikado's army is a fraction of an inch over 5 feet, that in the Italian army 5 feet 3 inch. As the height of individuals in Japan does not often exceed 5 feet 4 inches for males, it follows that there is wonderful uniformity observable in the physique of the Japanese troops, and this fact operates beneficially in long marches, very few falling out of the ranks. What one can do all can do. The emperor is himself much above the average stature, and the empress is just as tall as the princess of Wales. Both are of spare build.

IN Bloomsbury, England, the other night a lady, being awakened by a noise, opened the door, to be confronted by an utter stranger. The position was so entirely novel that the conventions of society were lost sight of. The only remark that occurred to her was: "Who are you? With equal frankness he replied, "I am a burglar." Then, perceiving that this failed to put her at ease, he added: "But a very quiet one." The entrance of the police put an end to what promised to be a very interesting description of his character and methods of procedure.

AN extensive sale of feathers, which occurred the other day in London, afforded some idea of the gigantic scale on which birds of beautiful plumage are slaughtered for the purpose of feminine adornment. It was the ospreys, the aristocrats, unfortunately for their lives, of the feathered creation, that excited the keenest competition. The greater number of the lots at auction were sold at over $5 an ounce, many of them fetched upward of $7.50, while the highest price paid per ounce was no less than $22.50. A choice South American variety at a recent sale fetched $50 an ounce.

IN THE SENATE

The Hawaiian Annexation Treaty Will Be Considered This Week.

A Vote Will Be Taken on the Immigration Bill—Our Foreign Relations Will Receive Considerable Attention in the House—Death of Gen. Augur.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Hawaiian annexation treaty will this week again occupy the major portion of the time of the senate. It appears improbable, however, that the treaty will be taken up on Monday. There is a unanimous agreement to vote upon the immigration bill during that day, and it is altogether probable that this vote will be preceded by some discussion of the merits of the bill. The friends of the measure are confident of its passage, but they are not very hopeful of getting it through without further debate.

Senator Wolcott has given notice of his intention to address the senate on Monday, when he will make a report of the transactions of the recent international bimetallic commission. Mr. Wolcott has never given extended public utterance concerning the commission's work and there is very general interest manifested as to the course he may pursue in his speech on Monday.

When the senate resumes consideration of the Hawaiian treaty Senator Morgan will take the floor, and it is understood will consume at least another day in the presentation of his views in favor of annexation. He will be followed by Senators Pettigrew and White in opposition to the treaty and by other senators for and against it. There is no hope that the discussion will be concluded during the week. A great many senators wish to speak, and as long as the result of the vote is as uncertain as it is at present neither side will be disposed to allow the vote to be taken.

The senate has agreed to work on the confirmation of Attorney General McKenna as associate justice of the supreme court on next Friday, and the probabilities are that this vote will be preceded by some discussion as to Mr. McKenna's merits.

The urgent deficiency appropriation bill will, in all probability, be reported on Monday, and there may be an effort to secure its consideration during the week.

The house is likely to become the arena for a general discussion of our foreign relations in connection with the consideration of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill during the present week. The Cuban situation, the annexation of Hawaii and the designs of the European powers toward China will, of course, be the principal topics to attract attention. The house managers do not want an extended debate on Cuba precipitated at this time but the minority is determined to press the question during the consideration of this bill. They believe the time is particularly opportune, owing to the anti-autonomy riots in Havana. Monday is District of Columbia day and on Tuesday the consideration of the army appropriation bill will be resumed. This is likely to be finished Tuesday, after which the consular and diplomatic bill will probably consume the remainder of the week.

Mrs. Lucile Lane, youngest daughter of ex-Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, shot herself in her apartments at the Wellington hotel Saturday night about midnight just as she was preparing for bed. The statement given out by the family is that the shooting was accidental and was caused by a small pistol which, catching in some laces in the drawer, fell as she lifted them and exploded by the hammer striking the edge of the drawer. The wound is in the left breast and is probably fatal. Mrs. Lane is suffering from the shock so severely that the physicians have not yet made any attempt to locate the bullet.

Gen. Christopher Colon Auger, U. S. A., retired, died of old age at his home in West Washington Sunday night. Gen. Auger was one of the three surviving members of the class of '43 at West Point, the class with which Gen. Grant graduated. Gen. Auger served with Grant in Mexico and afterward with distinction through the civil war. After the civil war he saw considerable active service in the Indian uprisings on the frontier and was later in command of various departments of the army. He was retired in 1885 and has since lived in Washington. Subsequent to his retirement he was shot by a negro desperado in the doorway of his own home but though seriously wounded, recovered. He has two sons now in the army, Capt. Colon Augur, stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas, and Maj. J. A. Auger, now at Leavenworth.

The Catacombs to Be Lighted by Electricity.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 17.—Within twelve months the catacombs of Rome will be illumingted by nineteenth century incandescent electric lights. The Westinghouse Co. has received a cablegram from its Rome representative announcing that he had secured the contract for lighting the catacombs. Six motors capable of supplying current for not less than 350 lamps will be placed in the six catacombs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—There will be a great emigration of cyclists to the south Monday. The cream of the foreign and American racing talent will sail for Florida, and there will be merry times on the new third of a mile track at Belair.

A SATISFACTORY

Showing for the Beginning of the New Year—There Is No Wild Excitement in the Speculative Markets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says in its issue of Saturday:

The year has opened with a very satisfactory prospect. It is all the better that there is no wild excitement in the speculative markets, and while stocks advance a little, grain yields a little. The payments through principal clearing houses, notwithstanding a decrease at New York owing to less activity in stocks, are 2.6 per cent. larger than in 1892 and 10.1 per cent. larger outside of New York.

Earnings of all railroads in the United States reporting for December, $43,304,279, indicate substantially the same rate of increase, exceeding last year's by 10.5 per cent. and the earnings of 1892 for the same roads by 1.6 per cent. Since 1892 was on the whole the most prosperous year thus far, comparisons indicate, notwithstanding the lowest prices ever known, that the volume of business is larger, and, in spite of some cutting of rates, the earnings of railroads are larger than in the best year of past history.

The wheat market has been curiously languid, although Atlantic exports amount [illegible] bushels for the two weeks of January, against 3,980,317 last year, and Pacific exports for the week have been 31,415,010 bushels. Western receipts continue so heavy that with the greatest accumulation of wheat at Chicago ever known there is little encouragement for a speculation. Receipts were 5,724,250 bushels for two weeks, against 3,088,068 bushels for the corresponding period last year. Corn exports continue large, though equal to [illegible] years, amounting to 3,150,668 bushels, against 4,143,052 bushels for the week last year, and the price declined about ¾ of a cent. Spot cotton is a sixteenth lower for middling uplands, mainly because of the stoppage of some mills by difficulty about wages. But nothing is definitely known about the quantity of cotton yet coming forward, and one report of creditable character puts the year's yield at 10,570,250 bales, though results thus far do not quite justify so large an estimate.

The iron furnaces in blast January 1 report an output of 226,608 tons weekly against 226,034 weekly December 1, with an increase of 12,481 tons in the unsold stocks held by furnaces. While this shows a consumption 53½ per cent. larger than a year ago, there would be discouraging indications of consumption but for the fact that several furnaces were stopped for the holidays, and these with several others have started since January 1, while the demand for finished products does not diminish. The Pennsylvania railroad has ordered 100,000 tons steel rails, and a new railroad in Maine 12,000, and other orders for cars, railroad supplies, plates, bars and structural material are unusually large for the season.

The woolen manufacturers have been buying wool largely and for reasons not public by explained.

The leather situation is now absolutely controlled by the abnormally high cost of hides and the shoe manufacturers have reached a point where they must demand more money for shoes.

OHIO TOWNS

Raided by a Gang of Hobos—Citizens Prepare for a Battle.

BRIDGEPORT, O., Jan. 15.—Word reached here Friday of the looting of the mining towns of Dillonvale and Long Run Thursday night by a desperate gang of tramps. The gang numbered a score or more, and plundered right and left without fear. One general store and at least 25 houses were robbed, the thieves secured in the aggregate about $2,000. The foreigners are terribly excited over their loss, and have armed themselves with revolvers to hunt the thieves.

A delegation of miners came here Friday and purchased all the revolvers in stock. There be no bank in either town, the miners have deposited their savings in burglar-proof safes until the thieving tramps are run off.

In some cases the entire furniture of houses was carried away. Part of the same gang robbed the big general store at Adena.

FOUR MEN,

Suspected of Being Professional Thieves, Arrested in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—Four men, who are suspected to be professional thieves of New York, were arrested by detectives here Friday while following a well-known jewelry salesman who was visiting his "trade" with a satchel containing thousands of dollars' worth of diamonds.

They gave their names as Charles Hoyt, 34 years old, of Little Washington, Pa.; Wm. Devlin, 21, of New York; Jas. Riley, 24, of St. Paul, Minn., and Jas. Sullivan, of Reading, Pa. All were pleutifully provisied with money and carried loaded revolvers and a quantity of tools used by diamond and bank thieves. They resisted arrest and were only subdued at the pistol point.

Death of Mrs. Gen. Shafter.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Harriet Shafter, wife of Brig. Gen. Wm. Shafter, commanding the department of California, died at her home at Ft. Mason Friday after a short illness. She was stricken by paralysis after leaving an entertainment at the Century club on Wednesday last and never recovered consciousness.

Bridge Jumpers Outdone.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—An unknown man threw himself or accidentally fell from a parapet on the Washington bridge over the Harlem river at 181st street Friday. The distance from the point where he fell to the water is 147 feet, which is 19 feet further than the distance traveled by the Brooklyn bridge jumpers. The man was fished out by two laborers who saw him fall. He will live, and is only suffering from a wound over the right eye, apparently caused by striking the river bottom.

Contrary to the expectations of the physicians the man died late Friday.

MILD METHODS

Of Gen. Blanco Disqualify Him to Use Energy With a Mob.

The Theaters and Cafes Were Closed—Gen. Solono Denies That He Called the Rioting Officers Drunkards—No Americans Are in Danger or Threatened.

HAVANA, Jan. 15, via Key West, Fla., Jan. 16.—(Delayed in transmission.)—Although outwardly order is restored here, great excitement continues, and unless the newspapers exercise, under the press censorship, great prudence, a general revolt is probable, with much bloodshed, because in such an event the army volunteers would fraternize.

Gen. Blanco's position is most difficult, because his mild methods [illegible] fare disqualify him to use energy with a mob.

The rioters intend going in a pacific manner to the palace to request Gen. Blanco to [illegible] Jesus Trillo, a prominent attorney, who has been unjustly charged by political intriguers with fomenting mob violence.

Up to the time this dispatch is sent no American has been in danger, nor has there been any hostile demonstration or shouting against them, nor have any Americans taken refuge at the United States consulate. Consul General Lee, the British consul and other consular officers witnessed the disorders from the balcony of the Hotel Inglaterre.

On the first day of the riots, when a crowd of 5,000 men that had massed in Central park began stoning windows and shouting, "Death to Diario!" "Viva Weyler!" and "Down with autonomy!" Gen. Parrado, Gen. Solono and Gen. Garrichsona rode up and Gen. Solono ordered the cavalry to charge the mob. The cavalry commander replied: "Whom shall I charge? Loyal Spaniards for shouting 'Long live Spain' and 'Long live the Spanish generals?' The commander then dismounted and endeavored to persuade the mob, in which were a number of officers and several adjutants, to retire. Gen. Garrichs, an intelligent, noble Cuban whose loyalty has never been doubted, confronted the leaders of the mob, Maj. Fuentes and Capt. Calvo, of the artillery. Maj. Fuentes resented the rebuke, and Gen. Garrichs, infuriated, snatched several decorations from the breast of the officer, saying "You have dishonored the army." Maj. Fuentes and Capt. Calvo were arrested.

Gen. Solono, in the course of an interview, has denied that he called the rioting officers drunkards, but he confirms the report that he characterized them as "unworthy of the uniform they wore." Some of the papers having criticised this language, Gen. Solono said: "I used those words and I am willing to sustain them at the point of my sword."

Wednesday and Thursday nights the theaters and cafes were closed and the military band did not play at Central park as usual. When the newspaper offices were being attacked, Gen. Blanco called upon several of Gen. Weyler's friends to use their influence to calm the rioters. They replied that they deplored the outburst, but did not know the leaders of the riot. They offered to do everything in their power to calm the agitation but pointedly suggested that Gen. Arolas should try to calm himself also as he was "increasing the disturbances by his intemperate and insulting language."

At one point the mob moved toward the private residence of Senor Bruzon, the civil governor of Havana, but was promptly dispersed by the police.

LOGAN CARLISLE

Dies Suddenly at the Home of His Father Ex-Treasurer John G. Carlisle.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Logan Carlisle, chief clerk of the treasury department during the last Cleveland administration, died suddenly Sunday at the home of his father, John G. Carlisle, ex-secretary of the treasury.

He has been in poor health for more than a year and recently returned from a fruitless search for relief at Hot Springs. Five days ago he was forced to take to his bed, but his condition was not considered alarming until Sunday afternoon. The cause of death is given as heart failure.

Logan Carlisle was born in Covington, Ky., in 1860, and was graduated from the University of Virginia. He practiced law in Kentucky, and later removed to Wichita, Kas. He was active in politics, and especially in the campaign of 1892. He was appointed chief clerk in the department in March, 1893. He held that position until after the inauguration of President McKinley. Last month Mr. Carlisle came to New York and joined his father's firm. Arrangements for his funeral have not been completed. The body will be taken to Coving ton for burial.

Death of a Cincinnati Pioneer.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 17.—John A. Gano, one of Cincinnati's pioneer element, died at 7 a. m. Saturday, at the Losanti hospital, on Twelfth street, near Elm. His illness was kidney disorder, which begnn to trouble him the latter part of December, when he returned from the annual meeting of the national board of trade, at Washington. The body was taken to the Gano residence on College Hill. At the time of his death Gano was president of the Atlas Copper Mining Co., in the Neave building.

Timber Is Expected.

HARRISONVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 17.—There has been a heavy downpour of rain in this section for the past 15 hours. Small streams are bankful and fears are felt for some of the booms. Guyandotte and Mud rivers are rapidly rising and a good run of timber and ties is expected.

Battleships to Join the Squadron.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The battleships Massachusetts and Texas put out from Sandy Hook Sunday on their way to join the squadron now assembling under command of Adm. Sicard at Hampton Roads.

RAINY REMINDER.

Characteristic Bit of "Auld" Ireland in America.

A Cleveland landlord has one of his houses tenanted by a family that is out of all proportions to the size of the dwelling. In fact, he strongly suspects that there are at least two distinct families in the house, and he is quite anxious to get rid of them. He doesn't want to turn them out, and he has been hoping they would take the frequent hints he gives them and seek some other location. Lately they have complained of a leaky roof, but the landlord has determined to make no repairs until they leave.

A few days ago the head of the household waited on him.

"Well, sor," he said, "that roof has been lealin' again."

"Has it?" asked the landlord.

"Yes, sor. It leaks right over me sister's bed. Drips right down on her, sor. This marnin' she came out o' the room a-cryin', sor. It had been raining on her all night. Yis, sor, cryin'."

"Well, why in Tophet," inquired the landlord, "didn't she move the bed?"

"Twasn't that, sor," hastily remarked the tenant. "'Twasn't that."

"What ailed her, then?"

"Why, you see, sor, she were just a-cryin' because it reminded her so much of home."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Best Route to Klondike.

The quickest and cheapest route is via St. Paul or Minneapolis, the Northern Pacific Railway, Taiya (Dyea) and Chilkoot Rail & Tramway, or via Skagway and wagon road to summit of White Pass. The lines over these Passes we are assured will be in operation in February, 1898, by which time the worst storms will be over and the snow packed down fit for traveling.

The ice goes out of the upper Yukon basin lakes May 15th to June 1st or simultaneously with the opening of the Stikeen River 300 miles south, but you can reach the Salmon, Belly, Stewart and Klondike country from three weeks to a month earlier by properly equipping your party and sledding your outfits, Lake Lindeman to open river at foot of Lake Le Berge, 100 miles, thus avoiding possible portages at Miles Canon and White Horse Rapid.

Send two cents postage to Chas. S. Fee, St. Paul, Minn., for latest illustrated Alaska map. The Northern Pacific is the only railway running its trains (all equipped with Dining Cars, Standard, Tourist and free Colonist sleepers) through to Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

As the pioneer line in Alaska passenger traffic, the Northern Pacific will give the latest authentic information as to reliable routes of travel.

The Brass of Critics.

"I often marvel," said Pennington, the author, "at those critics who in an hour's time blast a work over which we authors have spent a year."

"Yes," replied Cawstle, who had read Pennington's latest, "when a minute would suffice them to say all that is necessary."—Philadelphia North American.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CELIBACY FOR WOMEN.

Dr. Talmage Thinks All Girls Should Learn a Trade,

And Be Ready to Assume the Battle of Life Without Depending Upon Any Man—Marriage is Often a Curse Instead of a Blessing.

This sermon of Dr. Talmage is a great encouragement to women who have to earn their own living, as well as to all tollers with hand or brain. Text, Prov. xiv., 1: "Every wise woman buildeth her house."

Woman a mere adjunct to man, an appendix to the masculine volume, an appendage, a sort of afterthought, something thrown in to make things even—that is the heresy entertained and implied by some men. This is evident to them, because Adam was first created and then Eve. They don't read the whole story or they would find that the porpoise and the bear and the hawk were created before Adam, so that this argument, drawn from priority of creation, might prove that the sheep and the dog were greater than man. No. Woman was an independent creation, and was intended, if she chose, to live alone, to work alone, act alone, think alone and fight her battles alone. The Bible says it is not good for man to live alone, but never says it is not good for woman to be alone; and the simple fact is that many women who have prepared for life in the marriage relation would be a thousandfold better off if they were alone.

Who are these men who, year after year, hang around hotels and engine houses and theater doors and come in out to bother busy clerks and merchants and mechanics, doing nothing, when there is plenty to do? They are men supported by their wives and mothers. If the statistics of any of our cities could be taken on this subject you would find that a vast multitude of women not only support themselves, but masculines. A great legion of men amount to nothing, and a woman by marriage, manacled to one of these nonentities, needs condolence. A woman standing outside the marriage relation is several hundred thousand times better off than a woman badly married. Many a bride, instead of a wreath of orange blossoms, might more properly wear a bandage of nettles and nightshade, and instead of the wedding march a more appropriate tune would be "The Dead March in Saul," and instead of a banquet of confectionery and ices there might be more appropriately spread a table covered with the apples of Sodom.

Many an attractive woman, of good sound sense in other things, has married one of these men to reform him. What was the result? Like when a dove, noticing that a vulture was rapacious and cruel, sat about to reform it, and said, "I have a mild disposition, and I like peace, and was brought up in the quiet of a dove-cote, and I will bring the vulture to the same liking by marrying him," so, one day, after the vulture declared he would give up his carnivorous habits and cease longing for blood of flock and herd, at an altar of rock covered with moss and lichen, the twain were married, a bald-headed eagle officiating, the vulture saying, "With all my loumion of earth and sky, I thee endow, and promise love and cherish till death do us part." But one day the love in her fright, saw the vulture busy at a carcass, and cried, "stop that! did you not promise me that you would quit your carnivorous and filthy habits if I married you?" "Yes," said the vulture, "but if you don't like my way, you can leave," and with one angry stroke of the beak, and another fierce clutch of the claw, the vulture left the dove eyeless and wingless and lifeless. And a flock of robins flying past, cried to each other and said, "see there! that comes from a dove marrying a vulture to reform him."

Many a woman who has had the hand of a young inebriate offered, but declined it, or who was asked to chain her life to a man selfish, or of bad temper, and refused the shackels, will bless God throughout all eternity that she escaped that earthly pandemonium.

Besides all this, in our country about 1,000,000 men were sacrificed in our civil war, and that decreed 1,000,000 women to celibacy. Besides that, since the war, several armies as large as the federal and confederate armies put together, have fallen under malt liquors and distilled spirits, so full of poisoned ingredients that the work was done more rapidly, and the victims fell while yet young. And if 50,000 men are destroyed every year by strong drink before marriage, that makes in the 33 years since the war 1,650,000 men slain, and decreed 1,650,000 women to celibacy. Take, then, the fact that so many women are unhappy in their marriage, and the fact that the slaughter of 2,550,000 men by war and rum combined, decides that at least that number of women shall be unaffianced for life, my text comes in with a cheer and a potency and appropriateness that you may never have seen in it before when it says, "Every wise woman buildeth her house;" that is, let woman be her own architect, lay out her own plans, be her own supervisor, achieve her own destiny.

In addressing those women who have to fight the battle alone, I congratulate you on your happy escape. Rejoice forever that you will not have to navigate the faults of the other sex, when you have faults enough of your own. Think of the bereavements you avoid, of the risks of unassimilated temper which you will not have to run, of the cares you will never have to carry, and of the opportunity of outside usefulness from which marital life would have partially debarred you, and that you are free to go and come as one who has the responsibilities of a household can seldom be. God has not given you a hard lot as compared with your sisters. When young women make up their minds at the start that masculine companionship is not a necessity in order to happiness, and that there is a strong probability that they will have to fight the battle of life alone, they will be getting the timber ready for their own fortune, and their saw and ax and plane sharpened for its construction, since "Every wise woman hath built her house."

As no boy ought to be brought up without learning some business at which he could earn a livelihood, so no girl ought to be brought up without learning the science of self-support. The difficulty is that many a family goes sailing on the high tides of success, and the husband and father depends on his own health and acumen for the welfare of his household, but one day he gets his feet wet, and in three days pneumonia has closed his life, and the daughters are turned out on a cold world to earn bread, and there is nothing practical that they can do. The friends come in and hold consultation. "Give music lessons," says an outsider. Yes, that is a useful calling, and if you have great genius for it, go on in that direction. But there are enough music teachers now starving to death in all our towns and cities, to occupy all the piano stools and sofas and chairs and front-door steps of the city. Besides that, the daughter has been playing only for amusement, and is only at the foot of the ladder, to the top of which a great multitude of masters on piano and harp and flute and organ have climbed.

"Put the bereft daughters as saleswomen in stores," says another adviser. But there they must compete with salesmen of long experience, or with men who have served an apprenticeship in commerce and who began as shop boys at 10 years of age. Some kind hearted dry goods man, having known the father, now gone, says, "We are not in need of any more help just now, but send your daughters to my store, and I will do as well by them as possible." Very soon the question comes up. Why do not the female employes of that establishment get as much wages as the male employes? For the simple reason, in many cases, the females were suddenly flung by misfortune behind that counter, while the males have from the day they left the public school been learning the business.

How is this evil to be cured? Start clear back in the homestead and teach your daughters that life is an earnest thing, and that there is a possibility, if not a strong probability, that they will have to fight the battle of life alone. Let every father and mother say to the wedding march a more appropriate tune would be "The Dead March in Saul," and instead of a banquet of confectionery and ices there might be more appropriately spread a table covered with the apples of Sodom.

Many an attractive woman, of good sound sense in other things, has married one of these men to reform him. What was the result? As proofreaders, as translators, as modelers, as designers, as draughtswomen, as lithographers, as teachers in schools and seminaries, for which they are especially endowed, the first teacher of every child, by divine arrangement, being a woman. As physicians, having graduated after a regular course of study from the female colleges of our large cities, where they get as scientific and thorough preparation as any doctors ever had, and go forth to a work which no one but women could so appropriately and delicately do. On the lecturing platform, for you know the brilliant success of Mrs. Livermore and Mrs. Hallowell and Miss Willard and Mrs. Lathrop. As physiological lecturers to their own sex, for which service there is a demand appalling and terrific. As preachers of the gospel and all the protests of ecclesiastical courts can not hinder them, for they have a pathos and power in their religious utterance, that men can never reach. Without need of those who have heard their mothers pray.

O, you women of America! as many of you will have to fight your own battles alone, do not wait until you are flung of disaster and your father is dead and all the resources of your family have been scattered, but now, while in a good house and environed by all prosperties, learn how to do some kind of work that the world must have as long as the world stands. Turn your attention from the embroidery of fine slippers, of which there is a surplus, and make a useful shoe. Expend the time in which you adorn a cigar case, in learning how to make a good, honest loaf of bread. Turn your attention from the making of flimsy nothings to the manufacturing of important somethings.

Much of the time spent in young ladies' seminaries in studying what are called the "higher branches" might better be expended in teaching them something for which they could support themselves. If you are going to be teachers or if you have so much assured wealth that you can always dwell in those high regions, trigonometry of course, metaphysics of course, Latin and Greek and German and French and Italian, of course, and a hundred other things of course, but if you are not expecting to teach and your wealth not established beyond misfortune, after you have learned the ordinary branches, take hold of that kind of study that will pay in dollars and cents in case you are thrown on your own resources. Learn to do something better than anybody else.

"No, no!" says some young women; "I will not undertake anything so unromantic and commonplace as that." An excellent author writes that after he had in a book, argued for efficiency in womanly work in order to success, and possible appreciation by way of preparation, a prominent chemist advertised that he would teach a class of women to become druggists and apothecaries if they would go through an apprenticeship as men do, and a printer advertised that he would take a class of women to learn the printer's trade if they would go through an apprenticeship as men do, and how many, according to the account of the authoress, do you suppose, applied to become skilled in the druggist business and printing business? Not one!

"But," you ask, "what would my father and mother say if they saw I was doing such unfashionable work?" Throw the entire responsibility upon us, the pastors, who are constantly hearing of young women in all these cities who, unqualified by their previous luxurious surroundings for the awful struggle of life into which they have been suddenly hurled, seemed to have nothing left them but a choice between starvation and damnation. There they go along the street at 4 o'clock in the wintry mornings, through the slush and storm, to the place where they all shall earn only half enough for subsistance, the daughters of once prosperous merchants, lawyers, clergymen, artists, bankers and capitalists, who brought up their children under the infernal delusion that it was not high tone for women to learn a profitable calling. Young women! take this affair in your own hand, and let there be an insurrection in all prosperous families on the part of the daughters o this day demanding knowledge in occupations and styles of business by which they may be their own defense and their own support if all fatherly and husbandly and brotherly hands for ever fall them. I have seen two sad sights, the one a woman in all the glory of her young life, stricken by disease, and in a week lifeless in a home of which she had been the pride. Her hands were folded over the still heart and her eyes closed for the last slumber and she was taken out amid the lamentations of kindred and friends I thought that was a sadness immeasurable. But I have seen something compared with which that scene was bright and songful. It was a young woman who had been all her days amid wealthy surroundings, by the sweet art of death and bankruptcy of the household turned out on a cold world without one lesson about how to get food or shelter, and into the whirlpool of city life, where strong ships have gone down, and for 20 years not one word has been heard from her. Vessels went out on the Atlantic looking for a shipwrecked craft that was left alone and forsaken on the sea a few weeks before, with the idea of bringing it into port. But who shall ever bring again into the harbor of peace and hope and Heaven that lost womanly immortal, driven in what tempest, aflame in what conflagration, sinking into what abyss? O God, help! O Christ, rescue! My sister, give not your time to learning fancy work which the world may dispense with in hard times, but connect your skill with the indispensables of life.

The world will always want something to wear and something to eat, and shelter and fuel for the body, and human intelligence must be employed for the soul. And all these things will continue to be the necessaries, and if you fasten your energies upon occupations and professions thus related, the world will be unable to do without you. Remember, that in proportion as you are skillful in anything your rivalry becomes less. For unskilled toil there are women by the millions.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—SENATE.—In accordance with his previous notice, Senator Davis, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, brought up the subject of the ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty in the senate Monday. His motion was made soon after the disposal of the routine morning business and the entire remainder of the day's session, except the time given to the confirmation of nominations was devoted to the consideration of the question as to whether the treaty should be considered in open session or behind closed doors in executive session. After a debate of almost two hours upon this point an informal vote was taken by ayes and noes not being demanded. The decision was overwhelmingly against an open session.

HOUSE.—The opponents of the civil service law had much the best of the debate in the House Monday, so far as the number of those engaging in it were concerned. Nine of the eleven speakers were of the opposition. The friends of the law are very anxious to shut off further debate, and in this will have the cooperation of Speaker Reed and the rules committee. Mr. Moody, who has charge of the bill, gave notice that he would next the sense of the house Tuesday on a motion to close the debate. The opposition immediately sent word to all in their ranks to be on hand, and they say they will have no difficulty in defeating the motion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—SENATE.—Except for a few minutes given up to the consideration of some minor post office confirmations, the entire time of the executive session of the senate Tuesday was consumed by Senator Davis, of Minnesota, in a speech in advocacy of Hawaiian annexation. Mr. Davis is chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, and his speech was generally accepted as the semi-official utterance of the majority of the committee. He spoke about two hours and when the senate adjourned had not finished. Mr. Allen introduced and secured the adoption of a resolution calling upon the president for information in his possession relative to the boundary line between Venezuela and British Guiana, and to inform the senate whether the United States now has any clerks or other employes at work upon the Venezuelan boundary question and also what part of the $100,000 appropriated for the Venezuelan commission has been expended. At 3:35 p. m., the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The civil service debate which was inaugurated in the house a week ago was finished Tuesday. It took up now, but ended very tamely. There was not even a vote on the appropriation for the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill for the commission upon which the civil service law rests. The republicans who are seeking to modify or repeal the law decided to let the debate come to a close Tuesday, but it required the casting vote of the speaker to so accomplish this.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—SENATE.—Senator Davis continued and completed his speech in the executive session of the senate Wednesday on the Hawaiian treaty, and was followed by Senator Allen, of Nebraska, who spoke in opposition. There was apparent Wednesday a disposition on the part of some senators who announce themselves indefinite as to what course to pursue on the Hawaiian question to mix it with the Cuban problem. They are friends of Cuba, and their desire is to have the administration take more decisive action in the interest of Cuba as a return for their assistance on the Hawaiian treaty. At 2:50 the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The house Wednesday passed an urgent deficiency bill carrying $1,741,863. One of the items authorizing a further expenditure of $850,000 for the soldiers' home at Danville, Ill., for which $150,000 was appropriated in the last sundry civil bill, was used by Dearmond (dem., Mo.) as a basis for a bitter personal attack upon Chairman Cannon, whose home is at Danville. The bill was passed. There was also a lively debate over the provision in the bill requiring the owners of bullion hereafter to pay the cost of transporting bullion from assay offices to the mints.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—SENATE.—The senate did not make great progress with the Hawaiian annexation treaty Thursday. Several speeches were delivered, but in every instance the speakers announced that Thursday's remarks were merely preliminary to what they should say before the close of the debate. The executive session opened shortly after 1 o'clock with Senator White on the floor, but Senator Stewart interrupted and others cut the California senator out of the floor temporarily. Those who spoke were Senators Stewart, Frye and Morgan.

HOUSE.—The house Thursday completed the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill in committee of the whole, and then adjourned upon the motion of those opposed to the printing of another edition of the famous "Horse book." There was also a lively passage over the question of free seed distribution to the farmers, but the effort to strike out the appropriation ($120,000) failed as usual; the majority against it Thursday being 100. One of the important amendments adopted provided for the inspection of horse meat for export purposes in the same way that the meat of cattle and other animals is now inspected. During the debate Thursday some very caustic criticisms of the proceedings in the senatorial election in Ohio from Dr. Dearmond (dem., Mo.), called forth a warm defense of Mr. Hanna from Mr. Mahany (rep., N. Y.), who eulogized the Ohio senator as the man who had overthrown the bosses of the republican party in Ohio.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—SENATE.—Almost the entire four hours of the executive session of the Senate Friday were devoted to the indirect consideration of the nomination of Hon. Joseph McKenna, now attorney general, to be associate justice of the supreme court. The discussion was the result of an effort on the part of Senator Allen, of Nebraska (pop.), to secure a postponement for two weeks, in the end a compromise was reached whereby consideration of the nomination went over Friday, on the condition that the Nebraska senator should agree to allow a vote to be taken on that day. The Hawaiian treaty was not reached upon during the session, but will be in the afternoon before an agreement was reached for concluding the McKenna matter at the sitting on next Friday, and by general consent the senate postponed consideration of the Hawaiian treaty until next Monday.

HOUSE.—It was the intention of the House managers to proceed with the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill Friday, but owing to the excited condition of affairs in Havana and the wildly exaggerated reports afloat, they decided to avoid the possibility of opening up a Cuban debate by relinquishing the day to the committee on claims in charge of bills of the private calendar. Before this order was entered upon the agricultural bill was passed. Most of the day was consumed in a debate against a bill to pay the publishing house of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Nashville, Tenn., $36,000 for the seizure and use of the property of that corporation during the war.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—SENATE.—No business of importance in the senate Saturday.

HOUSE.—Bills introduced: Requiring that all employes on public works, aside from those under contractors, be engaged by the engineer in charge, the object being to fix beyond question responsibility for the force employed; providing that with exception of farm laborers, eight hours shall constitute a day's work. The House devoted two hours to general debate on the army appropriation bill and the remainder of the day to eulogizing the life and public services of the late Representative Seth W. Milliken, of Maine, who served for 14 years in the lower branch of congress.

He built the Big Four and Lake Erie & Western railroads and was the first president of each. He was one of the most prominent men in Indiana. He had been sick one week.

A DECREE ISSUED

Prohibiting the Publication in the Havana Newspapers of Cable Dispatches Without Previous Censorship by the Authorities.

HAVANA, VIA KEY WEST, Fla., Jan 15.—In spite of the official Spanish declarations that the city is quiet, which are the only reports allowed to be sent by direct cable, the situation here continues very serious and the city is in the greatest excitement. The city presented Thursday morning the most terrible aspect of military disorder.

The Plaza de Armas, or the main square in front of the governor general's palace, is defended by strong artillery forces. Without this security the palace would be exposed to assault from the rioters. Gen. Arolas assumed the military command of the city and was in constant conference with Gen. Blanco.

In spite of the great military display made, the rioters continue parading the streets.

At 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon a large crowd of rioters were about to attack the Diario, and resisted a charge made upon them by the civil guards, but finally dispersed, gathering again in other streets.

Many arrests have been made, and among them are wealthy Spanish merchants.

The peaceful residents and all the Cuban families are panic-stricken.

The situation is considered identical with that when Capt. Gen. Dulce was deported to Spain by the volunteers in 1869.

The decree just issued by Gen. Blanco against the press is positive proof of his weakness, and he has promulgated it to mollify the rioters.

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—A decree has been published prohibiting the publication in daily newspapers of cable dispatches without previous censorship and without twelve hours' notice of their receipt.

In addition, in future, the post office here will detain national and foreign newspapers not having been previously censored.

Violators of the law are warned that they are under military jurisdiction.

Another ediet will be published shortly, forbidding the gathering of groups of more than four persons either in the streets or in the stores.

M. Molina, the chief of the staff of the insurgent Gen. Majia Rodriguez, has, it is announced, surrendered to the Spanish authorities.

Gen. Parrado has issued a manifesto announcing his willingness to do everything possible to bring about peace in the district of Sancti Spiritus, province of Santa Clara.

It is announced from Spanish sources that Lieut. Col. Felix Tegon, of the insurgent army, has been killed.

SECRET SOCIETIES

To Take Part in the Anti-Department Store Movement in Denver, Col.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 15.—The anti-department store movement is spreading to the secret societies. The members of the different organizations form a large part of the workmen, woodmen, foresters, red men and other fraternal and social organizations. Most of these organizations have branches and auxiliary branches composed of women, the chief patron of the department establishments. The trades and labor organizations are already pledged to a withdrawal of their patronage from the department stores and are working to have similar action taken by the secret societies. All of the labor organizations are demanding the passage by the city council of the ordinance designed to prevent the encroachment of the department stores, and such action will probably be taken at the regular meeting of the aldermen next week.

Will Be Re-Sentenced.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 13.—Jas. C. Mc. Kibben, charged with having made counterfeit five-dollar bills while in the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, was brought to Topeka Friday by Deputy Marshal W. G. Neely. His term expired at the penitentiary Thursday, and he was at once rearrested on the charge of making counterfeit money in prison. He will be sentenced by Judge Foster.

Letter Box Robbers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The banks of this city were notified Friday that a large number of checks had been stolen from letter boxes in Detroit, Buffalo, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Toledo, Cleveland, Kansas City and Milwaukee, by an organized gang of thieves. Some of the checks have been raised and altered by means of acids. In several instances the thieves have been successful in getting the checks cashed.

Miners and Operators' Meeting.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Nearly six hundred coal miners and operators, representing Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, will meet in joint convention in Chicago on Monday for the purpose of bringing about, if possible, the adoption of a wage scale and working agreement in order to prevent a general strike next summer.

One of the New Counterfeits.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—One of the new counterfeit $100 silver certificates was handed in at the sub-treasury here Friday. It came from a New York bank which had received it from a savings bank in Brooklyn. The note was handled by three tellers before its spuriousness was detected.

Departure of the Relief Expedition Postponed.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 15.—Gen. Merriam, commanding the department of the Columbia, Friday morning received a telegram from the war department instructing him to postpone the departure of the relief expedition to Alaska.

Sailed For Alaska.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 15.—The steamer George W. Elder sailed Friday night for Skaguay and Dyea with 55 passengers and a full cargo. Six hundred horses and nearly 600 dogs go out by the Elder.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 11. SENATE.—In the senate Monday Mr. Sims presented a joint resolution providing for two servants to be appointed by the sergeants-at-arms of each house, whose duties it shall be to clean up and keep the rooms in order, and whose pay shall be $2.50 per day. After several bills were given their second readings the senate adjourned till Tuesday at noon.

HOUSE.—Speaker Richardson presented a list of standing committees to the house Monday morning. Only one republican was given a chairmanship. New bills introduced: To regulate fire insurance companies; to repeal an act for the protection of lessees of real estate; to provide for taking depositions in shorthand; to prohibit seining, setting and trapping of food fish in all streams in Kentucky; to prohibit the sale of cigarettes in this state; to amend section 2364 of the statutes relating to redemption of land sold under decree of court; to prevent individuals or corporations from discriminating against labor organizations; to abolish registrar of land office; to amend Article 13 of Kentucky statutes so that the contract system may be adopted in supplying school books to the public schools; amending Section 980 of Kentucky statutes. [illegible] to spreading fire on the land of another; to abolish the state board of equalization; to abolish office of register of land office and consolidate it with auditor's office; to acquire owners of dams across certain streams to construct fish rounds or ladders so fish can pass over the dam.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 12.—SENATE.—The senate, after deciding upon its committees and receiving a number of new bills, including the antischoolbook trust measures, adjourned till Wednesday.

HOUSE.—Representative Chariton moved the adoption of the following Hawaiian resolution Tuesday: "Whereas, there is at present pending in the United States senate a treaty providing for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands and Whereas Annexation would be tantamount to the establishment of a slave state, the representatives of which would necessarily work and vote for the enslavement of labor; therefore be it Resolved, That we urge the United States senate to reject the treaty of annexation and to take such other steps as may be necessary to maintain [illegible] with Hawaii." Burnam made a speech and MacQuot moved to refer the matter to the committee on federal relations. The house by a vote of 38 to 57, refused to refer, and the vote came on the resolution proper. The resolution was adopted by a big majority on a viva voce vote.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 13.—SENATE.—Wednesday W. H. Jones presented the following resolution, which was adopted: "Whereas, During the late civil war many Kentuckians enlisted as state volunteers and rendered efficient service in behalf of the union; and whereas, many of said soldiers were wounded while in service, or contracted disease; and whereas, there has never been any provisions made for pensioning them; be it therefore resolved, that our senators and representatives in congress from this state be requested to secure the passage of such laws as will secure to the volunteers such advantages and pensions as are now enjoyed by those who were regularly enlisted in the United States army."

HOUSE.—Mr. Lackey (pop.) presented a resolution expressing sympathy for the struggling Cubans, and asking Kentucky congressmen to use their influence to have the United States acknowledge the belligerency of the patriots. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Conner, of Boone, introduced a resolution favoring the reduction of salaries and fees paid to public officers whether paid by the citizen or the state. Mr. Jarnigan (rep.), of Ohio county, presented the same resolution about pensioning Kentucky volunteers as Jones presented in the senate on Wednesday, and it was defeated. Mr. Ingram's resolution asking congress to appropriate money to cut a channel around Cumberland falls in the Cumberland river so as to permit passage of fish in said river, was also defeated.

North Bend.

Good morning friends: — Will you welcome one more correspondent? It has been a good while since North Bend was numbered among the columns of the RECORDER and I now pick up the broken threads and endeavor to make a hearing for it. I wont promise that my writings will be as eloquent as those the Bullittsville correspondent sends you, as I have never had my heart stirred by beautiful ladies, and don't know how it feels to have a charming little maiden with eyes as blue as the heavens, and an abundant of glossy chestnut curls, make you think you are the "one" fellow in the world and then go off and leave you in the very depths of despair, and feeling as though you should "have to go home and commit suicide." so you see I can't sympathize with you "poor soul," but will promise to do my very best.

Last Friday, Mrs. W. O. Kirtley gave a dinner in honor of her brother, G. P. Kirtley and his bride. Those who attended enjoyed excellent company and a splendid dinner. Mrs. Kirtley makes a charming hostess, and under her welcome words and beaming smiles, one would certainly have to be void of feeling not to enjoy himself while in her presence. The dinner was one that was not to be forgotten. The table fairly ached under its load of turkey, old ham, dressing, cranberry-sauce, vegetables, cakes, pudding and custards—a dinner like those you read about. Saturday, they were entertained by Mrs. W. P. Cropper, and were served equally as well as they were the day before. The bride and groom spent Sunday with their sister, and Monday morning, amid the last good-byes, boarded the Str. Mr. and Mrs. Wade have the sincere sympathy of there friends in this community.

The tomato growers of this vicinity have made a move to try and hold a meeting at the Walton Opera House on Saturday, the 29th day of January. The purpose of this meeting will be to establish a uniform price to be paid for tomatoes raised during the ensuing year. The Snyder Co. put their plant here, last year, and only paid the small price of 16 cents per busbel. The growers claim they can not afford to raise them for less than 25 cents and make anything—all they want is a living price. They are only offering 18 or 20 this year. The question is asked why cannot the company pay as much for tomatoes grown and put up here as they did for tomatoes canned in Ohio. They have before been paying there 35 cents for those delivered in August, 30 cents for those delivered in September, and 25 cents for those delivered in October. Weller, who also have a number of canning plants, pays 20 cts. for tomatoes, yet our retail merchants claim that they have to pay a great deal more for canned goods put up by the Snyder Co. than those put up by Weller. There is no reason why Snyder should not pay more for the tomatoes bought by him. It is also claimed that the tomatoes grown in this section is far superior to those grown in Ohio and Indiana. Let the "tiller of the soil" strive for a price equal to that paid in the latter mentioned states, and if he will only hold off for a better price there is not much doubt about his getting it. It is an assured fact that the company is not going to let that much capital lay idle during the coming season.

If the people of Burlington and vicinity should see what they believe to be an "angel" flying over that section with two 16 ft. plank for wings, the crown sheet of a boiler sticking to his back for a rudder and pieces of cranks, pulleys, &c., projecting from various parts of his anatomy, they don't need to be excited, for it will only be George Burkett on his way to Klondyke with the remnants of Rouse & Co.'s mill hung to him after trying to engineer it for a day.

The following conversation took place between J. L. F. and O. R. N., and will be of much interest to persons who are interested:

"Say," Jonas, "is water a conductor of electricity?"

"Of course it is. Did you think it was a conductor of street cars?"

"Squire, can you tell me why Romulus, the founder of Rome, got up at 3 a. m., one September morning, and with no clothes on except his night shirt, crossed the Tiber near Ross' point at the Marshall ford, and went half a mile beyond to a woods, where his dogs had treed some co[illegible] in a beech tree that was tall but not very large?"

"Simply because he loved coon hunting better than he did going to the Roman Senate to deliver orations over the remains of dead gladiators."

"Do you know how many coons he caught, and at what time he returned to the city?"

"Yes, we read in the history of those times that he caught two big, fat ones and returned to the city about seven o'clock."

"Was the sun up at that time?"

"Yes, the sun had risen and as he plodded along toward the river, the sun cast its bright rays over the meadows and caused his shadow to look like a two mast schooner under full sail with a zoological garden on each side."

"Why was he so late getting back?"

"History is uncertain on that point, yet we are justified in saying the Tiber had risen suddenly and instead of waiting for it to run out, he endeavored to cross in a dug-out and was carried down the river several miles by the rapid current—run into a Sycamore tree, upset and climbed into a fork of the tree where resting his feet, he put his hands in his pockets and began to yell for his brother Remus."

"Did his brother come to his rescue?"

"No, but his feet slipped from the fork and he plunged into the Tiber and would have drowned had not the two coons come swimming along, making for shore, when to their tails he made fast and was dragged out. In this case it was good the tail holt didn't slip."

"What did his wife and children think when they saw him coming home with his uniform on upside dowu and a coon in each hand?"

"He brought her was a plaster of paris statue of their husband and pape, that had been exposed to the fall rains for a couple of days."

"Did Romulus see any other birds or animals while on this hunt?"

"Yes, he saw a goat and twelve vultures."

"What effect did this have on his mind?"

"No particular effect, but when the goat struck him a 400 pound blow about the central part of his anatomy, and knocked him headlong into a spring, he saw he bought had a vision."

"What did he see in the visiou?"

"He saw his two sons, a favorite daughter and a niece who lived at Frakfort, Ky., conducting a funeral service over the remains of a pet cat"

"Was the ceremouy a solemn one?"

"Oh, yes; it went off in fine style until a brother of the same Billy Goat that knocked him in the spring, decided to take a hand."

"Did he hold a full hand and stand pat?"

"Yes; he made for pat, missed him and knocked his niece senseless; chased the favorite daughter up a peach tree and had the other boy on a run for the barn in less thau two minutes."

"Is it a fact, Lynn, that Romulus made a prophesy when he saw the 12 vultures, or, more properly speaking, had covered from the blow given him by the goat and regained his recollection?"

"Yes; he prophesied that Rome would endure 12 centuries."

"What became of Romulus?"

"He is still living and is one of the most active, energetic, liberty loving-Democratic citizens of the Union precinct and can tell the best farm products to buy for the Covington markets the same as he could years ago."

FRANKFORT LETTER.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan'y 17, 1898.

The events of the past week have strengthened the belief of your correspondent that the new Legislature is going to do the work before it as only business men can. Though there are many young statesmen in the body they have shown themselves as aggressive and as omnipresent in their watchfulness of matters of moment as the older and more experienced heads. This is especially true of those from whom bloody-shirt resolutions and pyrotechnic speeches of acrimony were expected. With but few exceptions, the general trend of legislation already presented for action, and about to be offered for serious consuneration, is of a conservative and timely nature. The people who are awaiting the exciting times in the House or Senate may have to wait until the end of the session and then be disappointed, but I expect some matters of moment are incubating which will bring the vigilant Republicans out of their shells, turtle-like, and that spirited debates will be the rule on most of the public matters brought up for action. As the bills are advanced from entry to first and second reading, the real merit or crudity of them is being seen more and more, and the soions who refer to their notes as the legislation progresses, get ready to make deductions which will furnish themes for "wool pulling," as the old and homely saying goes.

One of the measures which bids fair to attract State attention, and become a subject of attack from the Republicans, is the bill introduced by Hon. Reubeu Conner, whose purpose is to reduce the salaries of various officers. The bill is one of the clearest cut and most evenly balauced the term will know, and it is already causing much talk. It provides for an investigation which will be searching in its nature and conclusive in its results. This will bring to the surface the informatiou Representative Conner is anxious for the people and his constituents to know. Then will be the time to act, and act promptly in the matter of furnishing a remedy which will eradicate the ill effects or correct any faults which may exist in the methods now operative.

One of the most important moves made during the past week was the step taken to investigate State prisons and public institutions. While there is always more or less discourse over the management of these public institutious, there never has been quite so much talk of "muddles" as since Gov. Bradley took charge of the helm of State. Representative Trimble's resolution for an investigation of the affairs of the public buildings was hotly fought by Representative Haswell, of Breckinridge, who asked that an investigation covering the administration for the past twenty years be instituted, and that the Republicans be allowed an equal number of representatives on the committee. This brought up a debate which has seldom been equaled in the old Assembly Hall. It was the meaus of bringing to the fore eloquent members, who had studied the question well, and all presented their facts in convincing style. Mr. Haswell said that he felt satisfied that behind succeeded in getting a committee in which an investigation was ordered to the beginning of the Brown administration.

It is understood that Senator Jolly, of Breckinridge, and Senator Petre, of Todd County, will lead a similar move from the Republican side in the Senate this week. They will seek to have Republicans recognized as being entitled to equal representation, but they will find themselves in the same hopeless minority. Only unusual forensic talent and a whirlwind of overwhelming arguments can bring them any good results. And, by the way, this prison and asylum investigation, it is said, may develop some sensations which will be nothing short of startling in import. The committee appointed to probe the affairs of the con cerns will begin the work Thursday or earlier, and when they report the fur will indeed fly. The Republicans will be on their mettle, and the Democrats will be grimly determined in their efforts to see the report well through both Houses and on its way to the Governor.

I find much doubt as to the introduction of a bill for a gerrymander of the Appellate Court districts. In some way the Democratic leaders are said to have gotten it into their heads that the measure might prove a boomerang, and as they are not anxious to be run over by any more political jaugernauts, it is more than likely that they will let the gerrymander alone. I have asked several of them about it, but they refuse to discuss the matter more than informally. Senator McChord refused to say anything about it, but will probably oppose it. Chas. Nelson, of Hardin, will probably be against it as will be Mr. Lee, of Bullitt, and Mr. Perkins. But I expect the steering committee will refuse to recommend it, and that it will not be introduced.

There are all sorts of investigating resolutions in the sleeves of the Democratic members and I understand two or three of these are loaded and loaded to the muzzle. I am not at liberty to tell all I have heard, but I expect the next ten days will bring out one or two resolutions which will provoke some more heated debates.

The next really large bill for discussion will be the anti-school trust measure which will be called up today or tomorrow. The school book combine has men to the number of six on the ground lobbying like the mad to prevent the passage of a bill cutting off the trust's perquisites, and it will be a hard fight in any event. I expect to hear some of the strongest speeches of the session on it. Morgan Chinn will lead the fight against the trust.

Representative Conner will introduce another bill to regulate the salaries of state officers which will be a companion measure to the ordering an investigation and asking a reduction of salaries. This will make a decided change for the cause of economy and will, if it becomes a law, put many hundreds of dollars in the State Treasury each year.

The very first thing of political importance I have heard is that Congressman Berry is coming here within a few weeks to look after his fences, ahead of time, by seeing his friends and getting his plans well laid.

There is still talk of a bill cutting down the pensions which pour into the State by the thousands every month. The two Houses have had hard sailing in trying to get through a resolution calling on Congress for a retrenchment in this regard.

I saw a young man from Boone Co., yesterday who told me he had intended making the race for page, and had decided to announce himself, but when he saw the formidable list he would have to tackle, he decided to let the honor pass.

The bill to appoint a milk inspector in each town or in each county seat of the State, will pass, I believe. I find a growing sentiment in favor of it on account of the numerous deaths from impure milk in the past few summers.

The first bill to come up for actual passage was the one prohibiting the marriage of first cousins in Kentucky, and it precipitated an exciting cross fire of floor expressions before it ran its stormy course to recommitment. This means that there is a large element in the House which is opposed to such a law and it will hardly pass at this term.

Representative Lee is going to try hard to have passed a law fixing days who run at large at night; in other words a general State Curfew law, which will cause another hot debate.

The authorities expect to have Hanlin, who shot Smith, the shanty boat man, in custody in a few days.

Quite a number of persons were in town last Thursday to appear before the board of supervisors of tax.

The Western Tobacco Journal says the new crop is attracting the most attention on the Cincinnati market.

Lots of damp, gloomy weather this year. It has given the tobacco growers good weather to handle their crop.

Atty. Castleman is devoting his spare time to farming, breaking calves to lead and building wire fence being his specialty.

The people at Warsaw are considerably worked up over the prospect of having the Black Diamond railroad come their way. It is hoped they will realize in the near future their greatest expectations.

Several icehouses about town are waiting for another harvest. Schloser, the Covington ice king, says there will be plenty of ice next month. He is depending on a sign which he claims has never failed him.

The County Attorney and Sheriff were in Cincinnati, one day last week, and took the statement of Smith, the victim of the recent shooting at the mouth of Gunpowder. The fellow who did the shooting is still at large.

Hon. Reuben Conner was made chairman of the Committee on Retrenchment and Reform, and has introduced a resolution to investigate the salaries of the public officers, and make report on them with a view to reduction.

Several of the members of Viola Lodge I. O. O. F. visited Venus Lodge, at Florence, last Saturday night, and assisted in giving Ezra Rouse the initiatory degree. They report a very pleasant evening spent with the Florence brethren.

The inhabitants of the usually quiet little hamlet of Limaburg, on the banks of Gunpowder, were thrown into a high state of excitment last Sunday, by a fox pursued by a large pack of hounds, fleeing down one of the principal streets.

Wm. Neal, colored, who was in jail serving out a fine imposed at the last term of the Circuit Court, was taken before Judge Roberts, last Saturday, for trial on the indictment for carrying a pistol. The indictment was filed away and Neal discharged.

Our local poultry man, A. M. Acra, shipped a trio of Black Spanish chickens to Cerulean Springs, this State, last week. He has an order from a man in New Orleans, La., for six Plymouth Rocks, and is negotiating with a man at Bolivar, Tenn., for a sale of other chickens.

A very large crop of tobacco has been raised in several neighborhoods of the county during the winter, but as spring approaches it will soon prove that the actual crop to be pitched in 1898 will fall short of the plans laid while sitting around hot stoves and cheerful fireplaces. If something does not intervene to reduce the acreage which will otherwise be planted, the 1898 crop in this county will be very much in excess of that of 1897.

A Big Haul of Meat.

Not many nights since eight middlings, three hams and six shoulders were stolen from Stanley Clutterbuck's meat house. He had put up considerable meat for the purpose of supplying his store next summer, and some person who could not wait so long for the meat made a draw of the above named quantity.

E. E. Fry, of Verona, was appointed and sworn in as deputy County Clerk.

A few days since a letter was received at the Postoffice here, directed to the Mayor or City Council. The letter was delivered to the sheriff, and it proved to be from what purported to a company that proposes to build a railroad from Covington to Rising Sun via Ludlow, Erlanger, Florence, Limaburg, Bellevue and Rabbit Hash. Burlington was asked to invest in $3,000 worth of the bonds, the company agreeing to have the road in operation in 60 days after that amount of bonds was taken. So far no one has agreed to take any part or all the bonds.

A Nip and Tuck Race.

C. C. Hughes witnessed a very close race between a fox and a hound, last Thursday. He was at home when the hound, which was a mile ahead of the pack, and the fox came close to him, the fox about forty yards in the lead. They did not go far until they came back, and started across some level fields, and for at least a mile he says it looked like the dog was just ready to pick the fox up. The hound was a large dog, black with yellow breast and legs. It belonged in the north part of the county.

J. H. Smith, who was shot, last Christmas day at the mouth of Gunpowder creek, is lying at the point of death, in a Cincinnati hospital. He made the following dying statement in regard to the shooting, last Saturday: "I met Harry Ruffey (that is his nickname. I don't remember his right name) at the mouth of Gunpowder Creek, Boone County, Ky., on Christmas day, Dec. 25, between 1 and 2 o'clock p. m. He had an old musket in his hand. I spoke to him, and in a calm manner protested against the manner in which he was treating and acting toward Susie Jenkins. He thereupon became angry and fired off his musket at me, hitting me in the neck and shoulder, from which wound I am about to die.

W. B. Adams, who resided on the Burlington and Big Bone road, about three miles from town, died suddenly, last Friday evening. He was returning from Tony Cook's, who lives on Woolper, and when near what is known as the Cason school house, some of the school children saw him fall off his horse. Assistance was summoned and he was taken to Mr. Alfred Cason's, where he died in a short time after the arrival of Dr. Furnish, who had been called. He was never conscious after he fell off his horse. He had been complaining some a few days before his death, but it had not occurred to him that anything serious was the matter. Mr. Adams was 74 years old. His wife was a sister of Mr. Alfred Casou. He leaves no children. The remains were placed in the vaiut here last Sunday. The deceased was a good neighbor, and one whose energy never failed him, and thus it was that he died, it might be said, on his feet. His widow has the sympathy of all in her bereavement.

The Supervisors of Tax met as per adjournment, last Thursday morning, to give those whose lists they had increased, a hearing. The following appeared in person or by representatives:

Wm. Clore, R. O. Ryle, J. M. Baker, M. E. Hance, Mrs. Malvina Mason, C. C. Sleet, R. O. Powers, Justis Hudson, D. M. Bagby, Sam Hind's estate, Rouse Bros., of Walton, Jas. L. Huey, Mrs. Frances Tanner, J. W. Kite, J. C. Revlil, S. W. Tolin, Wood Sullivan, J. Frank Grant and the Boone County Distilling Company.

The several arguments in opposition to the increases made last week were heard, but in one instance only did the board recede from its action of last week. At last week's session C. C. Sleet's list was increased $2,000. He appeared before the board on Thursday and satisfied it that it had added too much to his list, and it took of $830 of the increase, leaving his increase $1,170.

D. M. Bondurant, who was notified to appear and list his property for taxation, wrote the board that he had listed his property in Gallatin county for this year. Mr. Bondurant's voting and running for office in Boone county makes it appear strange to some that he should choose to list his property in Gallatin county, where the tax is at least double that in Boone.

The supervisors completed their work before night and adjourned. The County Court allowed each member $21 for his seven day's work.

A Good Man Gone.

Cruel death has again invaded our little city, and taken from us one of our best citizens, a neighbor, friend, a christian, a man honored and loved by all who knew him. Mr. James W. Barnett was born in the Bellevue neighborhood, July 14th, 1848, and has been a resident of Boone county his entire life. He has lived on a farm the greater part of his life, but ten years ago moved to Petersburg and has since been a team and practiced veterinary. At past year of his life he has not been able to work but was able to be out around until Wednesday night the last., he took to his bed and died Sunday night the 9th inst., at 11.30 o'clock. Up to the last moment he was conscious and died happy and contented, as he was a true, earnest christian in the truest sense of the word. He was a member of the Methodist church of Petersburg for 28 years. He was married to Miss Mary A. Perin, February 13th, 1861, and six children were born to bless this union, five of whom are living—Mrs. Laura Sherman, of Dillsboro, Ind.; Mrs. Sarah Carpenter, of Sparta, Ky.; Mrs. Belle White, of Aurora, Ind., and Miss Lou and William A. Barnett.

The funeral services were held Tuesday at 2 p. m., at the Methodist church by Rev. Harris, who spoke of the good traits of character of "Uncle Jim," as he was so lovingly called by all, of his helping hand in sickness and distress, and as a christian gentleman of a life for all to example from; also as an officer of the church for several years, after which his remains were taken to the Petersburg cemetery and placed in the vault. "Uncle Jim" remarked a few days before being confined to his bed, "It makes my heart go out for the poor wretches who are going on, on, in sin and do not realize the sin of their folly and never stop to think of the hereafter. My days are growing near, I'm ready to die, and die happy, for I feel that I am prepared for the judgment of God." This is a beautiful lesson for us all, and we pray that when God claims us, one by one, those after us can say, as we say of Uncle Jim Barnett, "he was a christian."

The bereaved wife and children have the sympathy of the entire community in their hour of sadness, and let them be consoled by God's promise, "All christians will meet and live forever and ever in Heaven in peace, love and happiness." EVERETT HELMS.

One of the saddest deaths that has happened is this vicinity for a number of years, was the death of little Lillie Cora Mitchell, daughter of Pryor and Lulu Mitchell. Death angels visited that home January 9th, at 6 o'clock p. m., and took from the mother her only little daughter. She has taken her flight to a happy home. The hard hearted father, who forsaken the mother and little child about this time last year, was sent for but refused to come to his dying child. The little one called for him only a few hours before the spirit took its flight to that happy home. The mother is heart broken and also the grandmother, and grandfather. Lillie was a sweet child, and won the affections of all who knew her both old and young. The remains of the little one was laid to rest in the Florence cemetery, while her spirit rests in heaven. The mother of the child and also the grandmother, is very poorly at this time. Rev. Milton Hoover will preach the funeral of the little one at the Erlanger Baptist church as soon as the mother and grandmother are permited to leave their room by the physician.

The residence of John E. Walton, on Dry Creek, in the Erlanger neighborhood, was destroyed by fire last Monday afternoon. Most of the household goods were saved. A defective flue is said to have been the cause. A man who worked on the farm was assisting to carry things out of the house, and dropped dead during the progress of the fire.

Logan Carlisle, son of Hon. John G. Carlisle, died of heart disease at the home of his father in New York, last Sunday. He had been complaining for several days, but he was not thought seriously ill until it was discovered he was dying.

In the family of Benjamin Akins, of the Petersburg neighborhood, there have been seven cases of diphtheria, one of the children dying last week. At last accounts the other members of the family had about recovered.

It is claimed a gold mine has been discovered in the Verona neighborhood. David Hudgins is the discoverer, and is awaiting for an expert's analysis of a sample he has before he will reveal its whereabouts.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. Annie Rice, of Bellevue, was in town Monday.

Deputy Sheriff Allphin was in town two or three days last week.

County Clerk Adams attended by all invitation as President of the Union, on account of his bad health, but was persuaded to withdrew it on the promises of members of the committee that they would take up his work while he took a long rest and tried to regain his health. The committee will prepare and issue literature opposing the arguments put forward in support of Gage currency bill by the day night the 9th inst., at 11.30 o'clock. It will be ready Friday.

THE VESPER LAND.

When evening bells are blending
Their vespers with the breeze,
Look o'er the waste unending
Of airy summer seas,
And there thou'lt see, dim, faint and far,
Unbounded save by evening's star,
The isles that are not, yet that are,
The sweet Hesperides.

Here cloudy waves beat golden,
Along the ruddy shore.
Here bards and heroes olden
Dwell on forevermore.
Here dawn brings night, and night brings morn,
But Death sounds not his hunter's horn,
Nor men of life and love are shorn,
Nor sorrow strides before.

And sounds come ever winging
Across the misty miles,
Of clear-voiced poets singing
The praises of the isles.
But none may sing with them, 'tis said,
Save he whose lips have sometime shed
A song to live when lips are dead,
And dead their songs and smiles.

Long have I toiled and striven,
Nor thought to cease or rest,
To gain the goal, God-given,
Valhalla of the west.
But still I s. ive, and still I fall,
Yet, yet, my heart, fear not, nor fail,
One day they'll cry to thee: "All hail!"
Those spirits of the blest.

"STILL WATERS."

By F. Lindsey.

THE SUN was setting in crimson splendor over the sea, flushing the white sails of a schooner a rich pink, and glorifying every little detail in her rigging. Annette Lane stood on the breezy downs looking out to sea, her admiration of the beautiful scene before her rendering her quite oblivious to the time as she waited and watched until the deep, rich colors faded from the horizon, and were followed by more subdued yellows and pinks and grays, as the sun went down.

She was an artist, and lived in the little Isle of Wight village nestling under the downs. As the light faded from the sky she realized the lateness of the hour and that she had still a long walk down the steep hill roads to her home. As she turned into the straggling village street at the bottom of the hill a cab passed her laden with luggage. It was such a sleepy little place that strange faces were always interesting, and she wondered who they could be; none of the people she knew—and she knew every inhabitant of the quaint little village—had been away from home.

It must be going on to some house at a distance, she thought, and then forgot all about the incident. It was growing chilly in the evenings now, for September had come; so she walked on briskly, and, opening the door of her cottage with her latchkey, went in.

The next evening Annette was upon the downs again, and this time she had a canvas with her, and was busily engaged trying to catch one of the fleeting sunset effects. They glowed and faded so quickly as they followed each other in varying succession that her clever brain and brush found it a more difficult task than usual to get an effect. However, at last the light was too bad to paint any more, so she packed up and started home in the gathering twilight, determined to come again and again until she succeeded.

As she walked home the next evening, an idea struck her: that cab last night must have been taking the new tenants to the Red Cottage. Annette popped the painting materials she was carrying on her hall table and resolved to stroll on past the Red Cottage and see if her conjecture was correct. A red-shaded lamp was alight in the front window, and there were curtains up, so the cottage was evidently tenanted. The front door stood open, and as Annette passed the gate a fat spaniel puppy bustled out, and, barking loudly, trotted after her, trying, puppy like, to bite her skirts. Annette stopped in perplexity. She didn't want to appear too friendly by going in so soon, but the puppy persisted on following her. Just as she was about to stoop down and pick the little thing up and shut it inside the garden, a girl of about 20, with a tiny figure, pretty curly hair and big, dark eyes, ran out calling: "Max, Max; you naughty puppy! Come in."

Then, noticing a stranger standing by the gate, she caught the pupy up in her arms and ran in, slamming the door hastily after her. Annette felt quite hurt; it was so abruptly done, and the behavior of the girl was so inconsistent with her appearance, which was extremely ladylike and refined.

Annette puzzled over it, and, happening to meet the agent next morning who had left the Red Cottage, she asked who the new tenants were.

"They are a Miss Leprimaudier and her servant, a crusty old Scotchwoman, apparently devoted to her young mistress, and they have taken it furnished for the year."

Annette thanked him, and thought it very strange that she should have behaved so brusquely. Perhaps there was some mystery, and she didn't want to contaminate with any of her new neighbors. She tried to dismiss the subject from her mind, but whether she was sitting at her easel in her studio at the cottage, or up on the downs trying to catch the sunset effects, it returned to her memory. She got quite cross about it at last. What business of a total stranger to her need she keep thinking about? Perhaps, after all, she was only in the dusk—had merely hurried in out of the chill evening air.

The picture of the sunset upon which Annette had been working was finished, and after she had packed it off to the dealer, she began another, a study of village life, for which she bribed some picturesque little urchins to act as models. It was getting too cold for outdoor work, and this picture could be done entirely in the studio.

She had only seen Miss Leprimaudier twice since the first evening, and despaired of ever making her acquaintance. She could not account for it, but almost against her will she felt a strong attraction for her.

One bright, chilly day in October, Annette had been for a ramble through the yellowing woods with Mike, her quarrelsome little Irish terrier. As she was returning home Mike set off in hot pursuit of something; thinking it was only a rabbit, Annette took no notice, but presently she heard a frightened yelp, and hurrying on there was Mike standing over poor little fat Max, who was trembling in every limb.

Annette rescued the puppy, and looked round for his mistress, but no one was in sight, so there was nothing to be done but take him home, as he was evidently lost in the woods. From his distance Annette saw two figures around sud- Red cottage garden, one of w[illegible]scharged, the certainly Max's mistress, but [illegible] shoulder of was not the servant; [illegible] went in just un[illegible] and came out in girl rather older and [illegible]b and making a one Annette had seen before. Having done its some one approaching, the girls looked up, and as she opened the gate the taller of the two ran hurriedly indoors. The other, looking very agitated, came to meet Annette and held out her arms to take Max. Annette explained how she had found him, and Miss Leprimaudier thanked her politely, and then asked her if she would come in.

Annette wondered where the other girl had disappeared to, but did not like to ask; her hostess gradually lost her nervous manner and chatted in a very friendly way, asking questions about the people round about the village.

They walked round the garden together while the austere-looking Scotch woman got the tea ready in the cozy little parlor. Annette admired the pretty little place, and the two girls became quite friendly over a cup of tea, and Miss Leprimaudier, who had found out that he new friend was an artist, begged to be allowed to call and look at her pictures.

The friendship thus begun deepened as time went on, and autumn faded into winter. Hardly a day passed in which Annette Lane and Grace Leprimaudier did not meet each other. They took long walks across the downs, inland, Max and Mike, grown friendly, too, like their mistresses, running in front, or loitering behind if they scented game, and could get off in pursuit before being detected.

One day, when they had been intimate friends for months, Annette said to Grace, "I have always meant to ask you who was the girl I saw working in the garden with you that day I brought Max home?" A deep flush spread over Grace's face before she turned to the window to hide it. They were having tea in Annette's studio.

"You must have been mistaken," she replied, coldly. "I know no one but you in the village. It must have been Martha," she added after a minute's pause.

"Oh, no, it wasn't Martha," said Annette, decidedly. But seeing the other's evident reluctance to explain, she let the subject drop. For a few days after that she noticed Grace looking furtively at her when they were together, and she seemed on the point of saying something, and then would flush up and start talking nervously upon the first subject apparently which entered her head.

However, at the end of a week they were sitting over the fire together in Annette's studio. It was nearly dark, and she got up to light the lamps.

"No, don't do that yet," entreated Grace, "I want to tell you something, and I would rather say what I have to say in the dusk. Annette, I have deceived you, there was a girl with me that day in the garden. It was my sister. Forgive me, dear, for not telling you before," and her eyes filled with tears.

"Never mind, Grace, perhaps you had your own good reason for not telling me."

"Ah, that's just it," interrupted Grace, eagerly. "I couldn't tell you then. It is a secret, no one knows she is there. She is mad, Annette—and I try to keep it from all the world," and she broke down and sobbed.

"Oh, Grace, how dreadful!" cried her friend, shocked beyond expression at this revelation. "Poor, pretty Grace!" she murmured, laying her hand tenderly on the other girl's arm. "What a dreadful burden for you to bear!"

"Yes, but we all have our skeletons in our cupboards, and that's mine. Don't let's talk about it any more," and she dried her eyes. "Keep my secret, I feel I can trust you. Come and see her to-morrow; she isn't dangerous," and she laughed.

Somehow that laugh jarred upon Annette. She promised, however, to go and see her next day.

With secret uneasiness Annette put on her hat and jacket to fulfill her promise to Grace, and started for the Red Cottage. As she opened the gate she heard an extraordinary blood-curdling laugh from one of the upper rooms. Annette was not easily daunted, but that laugh set all her nerves on edge, and she hesitated; then, smiling to herself at the absurdity and cowardice of being afraid of a poor mad girl, she hurried up to the door and rang the bell with a firm hand.

Grace was very pleased to see her, and proposed at once that they should go upstairs to see her sister for a few minutes.

"She is in one of her silent, sullen moods to-day," she remarked, as she followed her visitor upstairs, "and only laughs, but will not speak."

In all Annette's visits to the Red Cottage she had never been upstairs before, and she had rather wondered sometimes why Grace had never asked her to come up; now, the reason was explained. They entered a large sunny room, arranged half as a bedroom and half as a sitting-room; there was a window at either end, and thick red velvet curtains divided the room in two.

Mary Leprimaudier was sitting in front of a window with a book on her lap; she was not reading it, but gazing straight before her out of the window. She was even prettier than Grace, and there was a striking likeness between the two sisters; but her appearance was spoilt by her untidiness. Her hair hung down her back in thick curly masses, and did not look as if it had been brushed that day, and her collar was undone. She turned round as the two girls entered the room; but, beyond fixing a searching glance upon her visitor for a few seconds, took no further notice of them.

"Poor thing!" whispered Annette to Grace, and then she went up to the object of her pity, and made some remarks to her about the book on her lap. But as she would, Mary Leprimaudier [illegible] triumph.

Once or twice after that visit Annette saw the poor mad girl, and on one of her good days, when she was talking sensibly, Grace sent a note round to Annette asking her to come and have tea with them in Mary's room.

Annette quite enjoyed it. Mary sang and played, and talked rationally, and Grace was more full of fun than usual, her manner having lost all trace of nervousness. Grace walked home with Annette, and as she said good-night to her, she added: "Come round in the morning, and bring my book if you have finished it," and, calling Max, turned homewards.

The following morning Annette walked over to return the book. As a rule Max came bounding out to meet her; but this morning he was not at his usual place. Some bits of straw lay on the neat gravel path. Annette looked up. The blinds were drawn down. With a chill dread at her heart she pulled the bell. It clanged loudly with an eerie sound through a deserted house.

Annette walked round to the back and looked in at the dining-room window, the only one in which the blind was not lowered. The room was empty, except of the bare articles of furniture and a little straw. The Leprimaudiers had flown. It was a nine days' wonder in the village, but Annette kept the knowledge of Mary's existence to herself, and not until ten years later did she ever hear the slightest tidings of the sisters.

Annette was sitting in a big London studio one evening ten years later. She was married now to a famous artist, and was waiting for him to come in.

"I heard some startling news to-day," were the first words he said, as he kissed her. "I saw a photograph of Mary Leprimaudier. I recognized it from your sketch of her."

"Where did you see it?" cried his wife.

"In the 'Black Museum' at Scotland Yard. Her real name was Mary Cousens. She disappeared ten years ago, and was 'wanted' for the murder of the man she was engaged to. He was shot in the back at his own front door as he was returning home after dining with a woman his fiancee was jealous of."

"Then that madness was only feigned," cried Annette. "Was she caught?" she added, anxiously.

"No, neither she nor her sister has ever been heard of from that day to this."—St. Pauls.

AUTOMATIC SALOON.

Barrel of Whisky, a Tin Dipper and a Contribution Box.

The honesty of the miners in pioneer days was illustrated by an incident which occurred during a stampede from Florence. In the crowd of 600 that followed the eight men sent back to Florence after provisions was a man nicknamed "Boston," of a thrifty turn, who bought two barrels of whisky and a wagon hauled by a pair of mules. His knowledge of the average prospector leading him to the conclusion that the crowd, limited to water as a beverage, would soon begin to suffer from the pangs of thirst. On the way to the diggings one Vandeventer offered him a handsome advance on the first cost of the whisky, and, the offer being accepted, the whisky was turned over to Vandeventer, who set the barrels on end under a tree, took out the heads, hung a tin dipper on the side of each barrel, fixed a contribution box up against a tree, with a slot in the closed lid, and went on with the crowd, leaving the improvised saloon to take care of itself. The miners passing to and fro would take a drink, drop a contribution into the box and pass on. Sometimes several drinks would be taken without a resort to the bucksakin, but in the end the drinks were well paid for, nuggets worth a dollar or more being frequently dropped in for a single drink. Strange as it may seem, there was no excessive indulgence at the barrels, and no one meddled with the contribution box, and before the close of the season Van's barrels formed one of the landmarks of the country. As long as the diggings lasted he kept his regular bar, but always had a keg of whisky, a cup and a contribution box on the outside of the cabin, to accommodate those who preferred this method of indulging in the miner's delight.—Philadelphia Times.

THE BELATED BUTTER.

A Story with a Moral Told by a Six-Year-Old Girl to Her Grandfather.

"See here, June Bridegroom," said Mr. Golden Wedding, as they seated themselves together in the ferryboat, "what do you think of children?"

"Think of children!" stammered June Bridegroom, taking on a color that an ancient ballet girl would have envied him. "Children," he repeated, "I can't say that I have ever thought much about 'em. You know I'm an only child, and my wife is an only child. So we have never had any nieces or nephews around, and we haven't been married"—another painful blush, "but—" and then he stopped, too embarrassed to go on.

"Ah, ha," ejaculated Mr. Golden Wedding. "I understand. Well, young man, let me give you a piece of advice born of experience. Study your children. Don't merely love them, but study them. Not only science demands it nowadays, but the children themselves demand this study. I never did anything but love my four boys and my darling little girl, and I'm afraid I made a mistake. I should have studied them, for since my grandchildren came on, and I've been observing them very closely, I'm often puzzled to know to just what extent my children studied me when they were youngsters. They must have gone into me, subject very deeply, for Mrs. Golden Wedding insists that they always ruled me with a rod of iron, that could wheedle me into doing anything or into allowing them to do anything, and that if it had not been for our firm discipline the whole lot of 'em would be sitting up to the table and would've amounted to a hill of beans by this time."

Whatever started you off on this train of thought?" asked June Bridegroom, regaining his self-possession. "Two of your boys are most successful business men, two are making fine records in Yale and your daughter promises to be a great success in society. What more could a man ask of his children?"

"Oh, just a little story I heard my little granddaughter, Dorothy, telling her brother last night. Dorothy has been teasing me for a pair of roller skates for weeks. I didn't mind getting the skates for her, of course, but I was afraid she'd break her neck on the darned things. Well, a few days ago, while Dorothy was cavorting around the yard on her pony, she fell off and sprained her ankle. I had spasms, as the women say, because, if there is anything on earth a man can love more than his own child, it's his grandchild, June Bridegroom. You see, you don't feel so much responsibility for your grandchildren, and you can put the force expended in anxiety on your own offspring into just that much more love. But to go back to Dorothy. She saw how upset I was, and great tears rolled down her cheeks.

"'Tell me something you want, Dorothy,' said I. 'Grandpa will get it if he has to go to the moon for it.'

"'Roller skates,' promptly responded that youngster, for she saw she had me.

"'I'll bring 'em home to-morrow,' I meekly promised, and so I did.

"When I carried them to her last night she was beside herself with joy, and as for me, why, I was as happy as if all my investments had advanced ten points in a day, and happier, too. Presently Dorothy's face grew very thoughtful, and she called her little brother Arthur up to the bed. She is six and Arthur is three, and worships her.

"'Arthur,' she said, 'Dorothy wants to tell you a story.' Arthur was all eyes and ears in a minute, because Dorothy is a very imaginative child, and her stories are sometimes worthy of yellow journalism, in a very adulterated form of course. 'Arthur,' she began solemnly, 'once there was a little girl an' she cried 'cause she was him-ger-y and had no bread to eat. After awhile, when she kept on cryin', a piece of bread fell down in her lap, and then the little girl cried an' cried an' cried because she had no butter to eat with her bread, and her tears ran down on the bread and made dravy (that's what Dorothy calls gravy), an' when she had eaten her bread an' dravy all up, down fell some butter in her lap an' then the little girl cried because the butter had come too late after she had eaten all of her bread.'

"'I tell you, June Bridegroom,' said Mr. Golden Wedding, as he concluded the child's story, 'what that baby said set me to thinking as she went on with her story, but when I glanced at her and found her big, sad brown eyes fixed on me, I never felt so conscience stricken in my life, and I felt positively guilty when she said before she had drawn her breath after telling the story:

"'Grampa, why didn't you give me my roller skates before I broke my little leg?'

"Nobody can ever convince me that that six-year-old girl has not realized already in her inner consciousness that our butter often comes to us in life too late, that it generally comes after we've eaten all of our bread. No, sir, June Bridegroom, we do not study our children properly. I am sure that we often wound our children sorely, because we do not treat them as we should; because we do not trust them as if they were big people grown little, but deal with them as if they were wholly irresponsible little beings without reasoning power. Take my advice, June Bridegroom, when you have children of your own study them in addition to loving them, for they'll surely study you, and if you don't look out they will laugh at you up their sleeves for being a dear old ignoramus."

"You bet I'll study 'em," exclaimed June Bridegroom, proudly, as the gong sounded and everybody made for the front deck.—N. Y. Sun.

—To test the power of the telephone in transmitting tuneful sounds Mrs. Helen Buckley sang two songs into a funnel at the office of the Chicago Telephone company, and the notes were distinctly heard in New York by a number of musical managers who had assembled for that purpose.

BIMETALLIC MONEY.

The Kind of Money the Free Silver Advocates Want.

When equally used for monetary purposes the value of the two metals, gold and silver, is their relation to each other. For more than 200 years prior to 1873 the world's money was made from these metals and for this reason they were called "the precious metals." When so used they were practically of the same value commercially and for monetary purposes in the different countries on the ratios upon which they were coined, and any change which took place in their relation to each other was not caused by any change in their annual production, but was wholly due to changes in the mint regulations of the different countries using them. These changes were very slight and did not interfere with their uninterrupted inflow into the world's money stock for more than 300 years.

In 1875 France, by a royal edict, adopted the ratio of fifteen to one, and in 1803 her mint was opened to the unrestricted coinage of both metals upon that ratio, and this became the prevailing ratio in Europe. During the first half of this century the annual production of the metals was upon the ratio, about three of silver to one of gold. For about ten years after 1849, their annual production was nearly four of gold to one of silver, but during this entire period down to 1873 there was no practical change in the relations of the metals to each other. The ratio did not rise to 16 for about two years owing to political convulsions in France, and never fell as low as 15.

Fifteen and one-half pounds of silver would exchange for one pound of gold in all the markets of the world. Accounts between England and India were uniformly reckoned upon the basis of the equivalency of ten rupies silver and one pound sterling gold, and this was the established par of exchange between gold and silver using countries during the whole of that time. So England, a gold using country, and India, a silver using country, enjoyed the full benefits of bimetallic money.

During this period an increase in the yield of either of the metals simply had the effect of enlarging the volume of the world's stock without in any practical degree disturbing their relative value. When used equally for monetary purposes the facility with which the coins struck from one of the metals take the place of the coins struck from the other metal in making payments caused them to rise to a common level, just as fluids in two different vessels with a connecting pipe between them will rise to a common level without regard to whether one or both of them receive the supply.

William H. Crawford, secretary of the treasury under President Monroe, said in his report February 12, 1820: "Like fluids the precious metals as long as they are employed as the general measure of value will constantly tend to preserve a common level. Every variation from it will be promptly corrected without the intervention of law."

Bimetallic money is a single money, as the fluid from the common outflow of the two vessels having a connecting pipe between them is a single fluid, though in the inflow the color of one may have been white and that of the other yellow.

Having destroyed this connecting pipe by the act of 1873 by depriving silver of the legal tender function and reducing it to the situation of merchandise, because it has with merchandise fallen as compared with gold, the advocates of the single gold standard point derisively to its low value as compared with gold as the reason, and the only reason, why the connecting pipe should not be replaced and silver restored to full monetary use; and they have the effrontery to claim that to do this would be dishonest; that it would degrade our standard of value by reducing the purchasing power or value of money; that it would injure the credit of our government and bring upon us the animadversion of all gold standard countries. They insist that all property, including wages, shall be degraded by falling prices, but that money given in exchange for property shall constantly rise in value; that the only standard of the nation's honor and integrity is a money standard that is continually rising in purchasing power and which subjects the people to monstantly increasing sacrifice to obtain money with which to pay their debts and taxes, and this they call honest money.

The advocates for the restoration of silver are simply pleading for an enlargement of the value of our circulation by readopting the money senie of valuation as it existed prior to 1873, when it was clandestinely and without exciting observation changed. Their entire claim and the reason for making it are clearly stated by Hamilton in his mint report of 1792, where he says: "It is most advisable not to attach the unit exclusively to either metal, for this cannot be done effectually without depriving one of them of the character and office of money, and reducing it to the situation of mere merchandise. To annul the use of either of the metals as money is to abridge the quantity of the circulating medium, and is liable to all objections which rise from a comparison of the benefits of a full with the evils of a scanty circulation." And Jefferson wrote to Hamilton in February, 1792, saying: "I return you your mint report, which I have read with a great deal of satisfaction. I concur with you in thinking that the unit must stand upon both metals."

The advocates of silver coinage would place the dollar or unit of valuation upon both metals instead of confining it exclusively to one of them, in order that the country may enjoy the benefits of a full and not be subjected to the evils of a scanty circulation. For this they are denounced by the advocates of the single gold standard as anarchists, repudiationists and enemies of their country. They invoke as their shield the revered names of Hamilton and Jefferson, and also that of George Washington, who signed the bill which gave to the people of this country almost the first breath of their national life, the silver dollar. Clad in this armor, the shafts whose source is ignorance and unholy greed will fall harmless at their feet.

It will be observed that Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the democratic party, insisted that the unit should stand upon both metals. Grover Cleveland, who calls himself a democrat and proclaims his own love for the traditions of that party, insists that the unit must stand upon gold alone. This was the declared doctrine of his party in 1896; and the sole and only purpose of that organization was to defeat the candidate of the democratic party for the presidency by electing a republican.

HENRY G. MILLER.

THE ONLY ISSUE.

All Interest Centers Upon the Money Question.

With the announcement of the gold clique's plan of monetary "reform," as expressed in the report of the self-appointed monetary commission, comes the clarion voice from both republican and democratic bimetallists.

Former Senator Joe Blackburn expressed the sentiments of the democrats when he asserted that the great question before the people is not that of tariff nor of social problems, but that of the currency.

Emphasizing this proposition, Blackburn says: "The mass of American people cannot be turned from their purpose. They are convinced that the ills that afflict this nation cannot be cured by the single gold standard, and they have made up their minds to try the remedy that so many millions of our countrymen upheld in last year's campaign.

"That they will succeed next time I have no doubt. The majority sentiment has always ruled this country, and it always will. If the coinage of silver dollars is a fallacious idea, which, if carried out, will lead to disaster, which I deny, why not settle the matter once for all by a trial? This is what is going to be done in 1900."

Blackburn's words will find a responsive echo, not only in the hearts of the 6,500,000 men who voted for William J. Bryan at the last presidential election, but also in the hearts of innumerable republicans who were deceived by the false promises and the hypocritical pretenses of the spellbinders.

Silver republicans are becoming alive to the situation and their voices are raised in protest. Wolcott and Chandler have spoken, and Charles E. Towne dissects the monetary commission's report with a keen-edged scalpel.

Referring to this matter, he says:

"But we who are fighting for the cause of bimetallism, in the interest of the producers and the masses of our citizenship, are much gratified at the appearance of this report. It aids in clearing the deck for action. It strips off more of the cowardly disguise in which the gold standard has so long masqueraded and in which it has so wilely deceived the people. It assists in more shapes defining the great issue before the country."

Thus the forces of bimetallism respond to the assaults of the enemy. The battle is to be in the open, and shorn of the protection of an ambuscade the enemy will be defeated.—Chicago Dispatch.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

—Had as Forakerism is and has been in Ohio politics, it is saintly in its integrity compared with Hannaism.—Columbus (O.) Press.

—Postal robberies must hereafter be classed among the safest of crimes. In a single day recently President McKinley pardoned five convicts who had robbed post offices or mail carriers.—Collier's Weekly.

—Oh, no; there are no factions in the republican party. Of course, Speaker Reed is working right into the hands of McKinley, Wolcott and Gage are David and Jonathan, Mason and the president are together on Cuba, Hanna and Foraker are like two kittens in one basket.—Peoria Herald.

—Senator Chandler's discovery that the gold standard is responsible for the reduction of wages in New England is a little late, but encourages the hope that when McKinley is beaten for reelection the New Hampshire statesman will understand that McKinley was committed to the gold standard.—St. Louis Republic.

—Prosperity under the Dingley law has struck New England with a dull thud, and the cotton operatives who have been hit by a reduction in wages, as prosperity fell on the robber barons, are expected to turn the other cheek on election day and vote to continue "prosperity" for robber barons, and poverty for the rest of mankind.—Louisville Post.

—If prosperity means huge fortunes for a few, hard struggles for worthy business men and reduced pittances for the workingmen, then it is unquestionable that the administration is getting that sort of prosperity. But if prosperity means the general welfare, a fair chance for brain and capital to earn steady profits, and fair remuneration for honest labor—then we demand that the McKanna jugglers explain the situation in New England and harmonize the misery there with their pretenses of having made good times.—Kansas City Times.

—Mr. Bryan in his recent Jackson day speech said that the results of the republican party's policy are being written in newspaper headlines all over the country under two headings—namely, the formation of new trusts and the reduction of wages. This is notoriously true as to the headlines, and it is a tribute to the general truthfulness of the press that not even the radical republican organs dare to refuse publishing the news. Of course, the McKinley editors will cheerfully buckle on the armor and try to convince their readers that more trusts and less wages are merely prosperity in disguise, but the average voter has fairly good powers of penetration.—Chicago Chronicle.

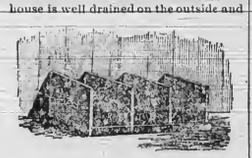
HOUSES FOR DUCKS.

They Need Not Be as Warm as Those Built for Hens.



Houses for ducks are simple affairs. They are built plain and comfortable, and have no furnishings whatever. A duck is differently constituted from a hen, and must be cared for under different conditions. The hen needs warmer houses and drier surroundings than does the duck. A duck will not mind the cold, if she can keep herself warm; cold feet will affect a duck as a frozen comb does a hen, retarding laying and inducing ailments. The feathered coat of a duck are almost impenetrable, and will withstand almost any degree of cold. Again, a duck cannot stand the confinement in a house that a hen can; she is more restless in disposition and is given to exercise in a greater degree than is a hen. Indigestion is not so prevalent with ducks as with chickens; the duck's ceaseless motion aids the digestive organs and keeps her generally in good health.

In Fig. 1 is shown a simple house that may be built at small expense. It is plain and has a shed roof. Such a house should be built of rough boards, 12 inches by one inch, and joints covered by three-inch by one inch strips. The roof should be made watertight and covered with tarred paper, shingles or tin. The outside should be well drained around the bottom, that it may not be damp. Some advocate board floors, raised from six to eight inches from the ground and covered from four to six inches with dry earth, straw or leaves. The writer favors the using of board floors in all houses for chickens, but thinks it not essential for ducks. If the house is well drained on the outside and the earth floor is covered with hay, straw or leaves, it will be perfectly satisfactory. There must not be dampness in the house, as the birds will not do so well; while they are given to water on the outside they must have comfortable quarters in which to "warm up," or "dry out."

The building shown in Fig. 1 may be constructed of any dimensions desired, according to the size of flocks to be kept. A house 12 by 14 feet will accommodate nicely a flock of a dozen. There are no interior arrangements whatever, simply the floor surface of the building. It is better not to use nests. Some raisers use a plain nest, as shown in Fig. 2. These nests are made of one-inch boards, 12 inches high and 16 inches long, set 14 inches apart, and held together in front with a three-inch strip. The nests are nailed to the back of the house or in the yard, and, if permitted, a duck will build herself a nest to her liking. Again, a duck is liable to injure herself by falling over the strips in front of nests or other obstructions that may be in the house.—Bulletin U. S. Dep't of Agriculture.

STRAIGHT FARMING.

More Popular Now Than It Has Been for a Long Time.

The past five or six years have been a period of shifting, experimenting and trial with a large number of farmers. Urged by low prices of staple products they left the old and ventured into new fields of live stock production, cropping and methods of farming. These experiments have not been satisfactory to the vast majority, for no sooner did they get into a new field than it was overran with their competitors. But the experience has been valuable. The result is a general tendency to return to the production of the staples in a system of mixed farming as being the most satisfactory in the long run. Most of the so-called "specialties" which were to do so much for the average farmer have failed to enrich him. Most of the new crops which were so loudly praised in the beginning have been found no improvement over the old. But in methods of farming, which involved cheaper production and a better product, there has been considerable advance. For these reasons "straight farming" is now more popular as well as more promising than for a long time—and this is for the greatest good to the greatest number of farmers.—National Stockman.

Future of Fish Farming.

Fish farming has never been taken up seriously by our farmers, although hundreds of farms have suitable water privileges or are so constituted that ponds could easily be made on them. The rage for German carp which swept the country a few years ago has acted as a setback for fish farming, because the German carp is a coarse, flavorless fish, its flesh full of bones and its habits that of a buzzard, no feed being too foul for it and no pond too muddy. We have native fishes that are first-class for the table, and with very little trouble they could be bred with profit. No doubt an acre in fish could be made more profitable than it would be put to any other use. This is one of the industries that will come later.—Farmers' Voice.

MAKE LIFE ATTRACTIVE.

Otherwise Children Cannot Be Kept Upon the Farm.

We often hear it deplored that so many farmers' boys and girls leave the farm so early, but it is all in their bringing up, and nine times out of ten the parents are responsible. They do not make farm life attractive enough. They forget that God designed every farm for an Eden, and stalk through life as unconcerned to the beauties around them as the dumb brutes under their care do.

I heard a young man of 23 say the other day that he wouldn't leave home for anything—that he considered it the prettiest spot on earth. Come to find out, that boy never had to get up at three o'clock in the morning and work until sunset. He was blessed with parents who considered their children of more importance than overwork or money. Pleasures were furnished at home to keep the boys out of danger. Even Fourth of July was celebrated so splendidly at home that the boys had no desire to go anywhere. I went to one of those farm entertainments, and there was a picnic all day in the orchard, with swings and boat rides on the mill pond, ice cream and fireworks. The farmer was not a rich man, either; he only looked out for the good and enjoyment of his boys.

Some farmers and their wives take time to interest their children in beauties around them, and set them to work making collections of flowers, leaves and grasses, with names written neatly under each. They let their children bring mosses and stones into the house and form little cabinets of their own. They encourage them to draw and paint pictures of all the birds and insects they see, to learn their names and become acquainted with their habits. Such children will not want to leave the farm, but the average farm of to-day is so dreary and monotonous, with its endless routine of duties, oftentimes accompanied with hurry and harsh words, no wonder the young people want to leave the farm and hunt up something more cheerful.

There is nothing in the world so sweet, so healthful, as farm life when carried on right, and "there's love at home." Let parents look to it that their children are entertained, and so many of them will not want to leave the farm, but will be satisfied to remain at home with papa and mamma as long as they live, and then take their places afterward.—Mrs. A. E. C. Maskell, in N. Y. Tribune.

FACTS FOR BEEKEEPERS.

The queen is the life of the colony.

Always set beehives close to the ground.

Keep the hives well painted, especially the roofs.

Hives should be set with entrances facing south or east.

Smoke is the only thing that will subdue or control bees.

Thorough ripening of honey is more important than color.

Do not winter bees in a house unless it is frost-proof and dark.

Put a good layer of sawdust around the hive, especially in front.

The air should always circulate between the ground and the hive.

Never smoke bees at any time more than is necessary to quiet them.

Wind breaks on the north and west sides of the apinry are beneficial.

Heavy canvas or duck is a good material to cover the frames in winter.

Very late swarming out is good evidence that the bees are starved out.

Bees hatched during the summer months almost all die before spring.

Hives should not be set flat on the ground, but be raised about two inches.

It is an advantage always to furnish a new swarm with a frame of young brood.

In order to insure straight combs in empty frames comb guides must be used.

Neither honey boards nor boards of any kind should be placed directly in the frames.

Some kind of absorbing material should be placed directly over the combs in winter.

The proper time for transferring bees is early in the spring, when the bees are gathering their first honey.

Roofs of hives of every kind should have a good coat of paint every fall; leaky roofs are very damaging.—St. Louis Republic.

the best. No small part of its irksomeness is the necessity of holding down the stick with one's knee while the stick is being sawed. The sketch shows a mechanical holder whose construction is seen at a glance. The rod is of steel, so that it can be bent tightly over the wood. The pegs and the ratchet permit its use with either large or small sticks. —Orange Judd Farmer.

"I had a strong appetite for liquor which was the beginning of the breaking down of my health. I was also a slave to tea and coffee drinking. I took the gold cure, but it did not help me."

This is a portion of an interview clipped from the Daily Herald, of Clinton, Iowa. It might well be taken for the subject of a temperance lecture, but that is not our object in publishing it. It is to show how a system, run down by drink and disease, may be restored. We cannot do better than quote further from the same:

I Retired to City Life.

"For years I was unable to do my work. I could not sleep nights or rest days on account of continuous pains in my stomach and back. I was unable to digest my food. Headaches and painful urination were frequent, and my heart's action became increased. I left my farm and retired to city life, for I was a confirmed invalid, and the doctors said I would never be well again.

"Soon after I happened to use four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and since then I have been free from all pain, headache and dyspepsia. I eat heartily and have no appetite for strong drink or tea or coffee, and feel twenty years younger.

"My weight has increased 48 pounds. I cannot say too much for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and claim that they have cured me.

A Music Box That Knew What Air to Play.

"I am fond of music, and, as I do not play and have no little ones about the house, I bought one of the finest music boxes that I could find. It was a large box and had nearly a score of melodies, from the sacred to the catchy negro airs, stored up within its recesses. There were bells and cymbals, too, and a tiny drum. It was a swell music box and no mistake. Well, one day I lost my position and was in absolute need of ready money. My prospects were excellent, and I did not want to injure them by borrowing from friends, on whom, however, I knew I could depend. To tide me over my difficulty I determined to pawn my music box (it cost me upward of $100—imported, you know), and I readily secured $25. Well, things did not turn out exactly as I expected—things seldom go just as they are scheduled to go—and it was a year almost before I found myself in a position to redeem the music box from the pawn shop. I took the ticket, went to the shop and told the man in charge that I wanted to redeem my instrument, and asked whether it had been kept in order and had not been injured. He assured me that it had not been tampered with, and, in proof thereof, he offered to let me wind it up and make it play before I paid back the money I had secured by its pledge. I accepted, and, after winding the box up, it started to play. Now, what do you think that darned old, long-forgotten musical instrument played?"

As he looked around the crowd no guess could suggest the name of the air. At last he said: "Darn my buttons, if the tender, right in and fashion as President of deemed it, on account of his bad health, but was persuaded to withdrew it on the promises of members of the committee that they would take up the work while he took a long rest and tried to regain his health. The committee will prepare and issue literature opposing the arguments put forward in support of the postage currency bill, and it will also ask Moriarity, the famous newspaper." The agent started the machine, but the old lady dropped the tubes and exclaimed: "Jest hold on a minute till I come back. That dratted cook's openin' another can of tomatoes in the kitchen with a table knife."—Detroit Free Press.

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE.

Heat, sense of tenderness and swelling of a part, are all indications that there is need of instant repair—the stitch in time. Where these symptoms exist on the left or the right side of the womb, disease of the ovary is setting in, and soon there will be, if there is not already established, a discharge, trifling at first, but later copious and irritating. Soon, also, there will be felt dull, dragging pains radiating from the ovary.

Do not, my sister, let your malady go so far, but those of you who are already suffering in this way should begin at once a course of treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will restore the organs to their normal condition.

In this connection MRS. E. L. MYERS, Quakake, Pa., says: "My ovaries were badly diseased, and for almost a year I suffered with severe burning pains which were almost unendurable, and a dull, heavy pain in the lower portion of my back. If standing I was most relieved with my foot resting on a stool or chair. The doctor told me I would have to take my bed and keep quiet. I had not used half a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before it worked wonders with me. I now owe my health to the Compound. To those who are suffering from diseases peculiar to women, I would say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is just what they need."

Mrs. Pinkham wishes to befriend you, and if you will write her at Lynn, Mass., telling her just how you feel, she will give you the very best advice free of charge. BISHOPS DON'T LIE.

"A Legacy from Two Bishops.

Two of the brightest lights in the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church, South, were the late Bishops Keener and Kavanaugh, who, before they went to their reward, left Dr. M. A. Simmons a rich legacy which has not only been of value to us, but has proven a boon to suffering humanity.

Below we give these own words in which they made the bequest:

From Bishop Doggett:

RICHMOND, VA., July 23rd, 1880.

"Your Liver Medicine has been of great service to myself and family. We find no substitute for it. The parcel which you generously sent us a few years ago is not exhausted. We can't do without it. Please send us sent us another supply. IT IS INVALUABLE." Very respectfully,

D. S. DOGGETT.

From Bishop Kavanaugh:

The following is from Rev. Bishop H. H. Kavanaugh, D. D. to Dr. M. A. Simmons, March, 1881: "I confess that I have been reluctant to give in advertisements in regard to medicines, but feel myself so much a debtor to your VEGETABLE LIVER MEDICINE, that I feel it a matter of gratitude on my own part, and justice to the public requires that I should waive this objection, and allow you to publish whatever I may have written in regard to the character and value of your medicines. May many a sufferer be as much benefited by them as I have been." H. H. KAVANAUGH.

Presbyterians Believe In It.

Rev. Dr. Crimean cured of Dyspepsia and Rheumatism.

Edgefield Cumberland Presbyterian Church, E. H. Crimean, D.D., Pastor,

NASHVILLE, TENN., Oct. 14, 1893.

I am still using Simmons Liver Medicine. It is invaluable to me. I began its use eight years ago and it cured me of both dyspepsia and rheumatism and keeps me in perfect health. I prefer to order from you direct for I know then that I get the genuine and get it fresh. I am to start on the 23d inst. to a meeting of the Synod of Tennessee at Cleveland. If I can serve you in any way on the trip I will be glad to do so. Respectfully,

E. H. CRIMEAN.

An Eminent Baptist Has Spoken.

Rev. J. R. Graves, editor and proprietor of "The Baptist," Memphis, Tenn., says: "To M. A. Simmons, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.: I have received a package of your Liver Medicine and have used half of it. It works like a charm. I want no better Liver Regulator and certainly no more of Zeilin's nostrum. J. R. GRAVES, Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 17, 1876."

Catholics Endorse It.

St. John's Hospital, Cor. 23d and Morgan Sts.,

St. Louis, Mo.

Respected Sirs—"We have found your Liver Medicine very beneficial as an Aperient and Liver Regulator. It does all that it is recommended to do." Respectfully, SISTERS OF MERCY.

On the trial of our case against Zeilin & Co. their counsel said: "When Simmons' ancestors were crucifying hickory nuts with four nails in the forests of Germany, Zeilin's ancestors were Princes in the House of Israel." We will make no stand in Jewish origin, much less to being "Princes in the House of Israel," we prefer an ancestry of honest, American blood, to the highest title in the synagogue of unrighteous Jews.

Beware of any article called "Simmons Liver Medicine" which has on it the name of "J. H. Zeilin & Co.," or "A. W. Simmons' & Co.," or "F. C. Chase & Co." The genuine has none of any outside represented as "the same," or "just as good" as Dr. M. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine.

Be sure you get the original which has the name, picture and signature of Dr. M. A. Simmons on the wrapper, and is entwrigned by C. F. Simmons Medicine Co., St. Louis.

GOOD ROADS.

[M. J. Crouch, of Union.]

I do not wish to exagerate my subject, but I believe it will warrant the previous statement that the importance of good roads to a community cannot be overestimated. Just as the railroad carrying with it the powerful influence of civilization has made possible the development and progress of this great country of ours, so the good common roads makes possible the development of the natural resources of a community, and brings it into easy and rapid communication with the advantages of civilization, indirectly making the people better, wiser and enabling them to rise higher and higher on the highway of development.

What constitutes good roads in this county? I don't suppose there is but one opinion on this subject. Facts, at least, won't admit but one answer to the question. That is macadamized roads or turnpikes These are turnpikes, and turnpikes good, bad or indifferent.

The Romans built the best roads. They prepared a road bed and lay in cement hewn stones so when complete it looked like a solid, single rock, curbed and finished as our paved sidewalks. Remains of such a road exist today in Itily as perfect as when constructed more than 1,700 years ago. This road is about 15 to 18 feet wide, and 140 miles long. Rome built good, stone roads wherever the empire extended, and in the construction of these roads she was building, at the same time, lasting monuments to her civilization and power—more lasting, indeed, than anyother monument she erected.

Other countries have built good, stone roads. The most permanent monument the great Napoleon built for his contrp or himself was the numerous good roads throughout France. England and Germany have their good roads as well as our own America.

I trust to see our government take up this work as well as our State, and build good roads everywhere. The twentieth century will certainly inaugurate an era of good roads.

I am of the opinion that the State could use its convicts this way instead of manufacturing goods in competition with private individuals, etc.

I—merely mention the Roman and other well known roads constructed of stone to show the permanent nature of the work, and by way of digression some poignant thoughts. Anyone familiar with the subject will be able to follow up the broad suggestion.

We do not want to emphasize the important point, when we build public roads—or anything else for that matter—we must build good ones. Not for today but for posterity. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well. The American people forget this I am afraid, too often. They are in too much of a hurry.

If our government would spend half of the money it throws away on navigable rivers and useless ditches, in the construction of macadamized roads, our people would be better off, our Congress do something worthy of note, and our government build for itself a lasting monument to its wisdom and greatness.

The old mud road must go. It has seen its day. Perhaps they served the requirements of their day; but today they are worn out. They are like an old garment: full of holes and when you patch one place you have two others needing attention. Originally these roads followed the branches, creeks, etc., without any definite arrangement only as occasional travel happened to go to avoid mud, obtain shelter, or because any place was good enough for a public road. The desirable ridges or good ground was not disturbed for this, to the early settlers, unimportant use. It is true some of these roads have been improved, but a great many have not. Besides the road bed has worn down to a mean clay. You notice these and you will find the road bed from one to ten feet below original surface. It does no good to ditch and throw dirt up in the middle. In most instances it only serves to make [illegible] ruts worse. Did you ever [illegible] think that we have been [illegible] way for more than 50 [illegible] and making a

Our roads are no better to-day than they were years ago, if as good, only so far as they have been more or less macadamized. You will all admit this, if you are true to your judgment. I have yet the first instance, to my positive knowledge, where a dirt road was permanently made good during the winter and spring by ditching, and piling up dirt in center, as is the custom in this county. How much time and money has been spent on these same roads in the past 50 years? I will not bother you with an estimate in figures. We have spent enough, I believe, to have every public thoroughfare in Boone county graded and macadamized 15 feet wide, 2 feet deep, with good culverts and bridges everywhere needed. If you doubt my statement figure on it for a while. Count every day's work at $1 and teams at $2 50 a day. What will posterity think of us if we hand down to them such a monument to our selfishness as these same mud roads? No less than we deserve, I am sure.

It is not necessary for me to say that we must have our roads macadamized before we can have good ones, or that they must be sufficiently deep, smooth and broad to permit easy travel and trafic. Nor should it be necessary to appeal to one's selfishness by pointing out personal advantages to accrue from the construction of such good roads. Everyone knows that good roads make the lands more valuable, brings markets for the farm produce nearer, and enables the farmers to reach that market when it is best, and not only when the roads will permit. That it places the farmer in easy reach of the church; postoffice, stores, and everything necessary for his comfort and pleasure as well as business.

Good roads, then, will not only make the farmer many dollars in addition to what he is able to make now but save him many more, to say nothing of the wear and tear of himself, horses, wagon, buggy and other appurtenances of the farmer. All these advantages may be had for a trifle and money saved besides to help pay off that old debt, or make more attractive the home. But I do appeal, with all the earnestness of my soul, to the broad-minded patriotism of the good people of Boone county; to their business sense and love of improvement and progress; to their love of home, with all its comforts and luxuries; to their local pride and love for the old Commonwealth of Boone, that she may not be behind her sister counties, lost in the slough of despondency in her own mud roads, while all the other counties of the grand old State of Kentucky have good, macadamized roads, and march onward to a higher, more progressive, and nobler civilization.

AN Iowa Republican writes his representative in Congress: "Please send me quick all the obituaries about Congressmen that are published. I do so like to read about dead Congressmen. I am naturally so despondent and melancholy that I must have continually cheerful objects in view."

The report issued by the Stock Department of the Government of South Wales shows how disastrous to the sheep and wool industry has been the drought. It is said that since December 31, 1896, in the neighborhood of 8,500,000 sheep cannot be accounted for. This grievous loss of sheep, together with the lighter yield of wool, will cause a shortage of approximately 50,000,000 pounds.

WHEN the President's appointments become of a character that cause the New York Tribune to criticise them, they are certainly outrageous. The Tribune says:

For Mothers!

THE discomforts and dangers of child-birth can be almost entirely avoided. Wine of Cardui relieves expectant mothers. It gives tone to the genital organs, and puts them in condition to do their work perfectly. That makes pregnancy less painful, shortens labor and hastens recovery after child-birth. It helps a woman bear strong healthy children.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has also brought happiness to thousands of homes barren for years. A few doses often brings joy to loving hearts that long for a darling baby. No woman should neglect to try it for this trouble. It cures nine cases out of ten. All druggists sell Wine of Cardui. $1.00 per bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. LOUISA HALE, of Jefferson, Ga., says: "When I first took Wine of Cardui we had been married three years, but could not have any children. Nine months later I had a fine girl baby."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1898. NO. 14.

THE separate coach law will remain in force in this State.

DAVID B. HILL'S announcement that he voted for Bryan will change no Democrat's opinion of Mr. Hill.

INDIANA matrimonial statistics show that for every seven marriages in that State there is one divorce suit.

THE influx of bills at Frankfort continues. There will be no cessation until the approach of the close of the session.

UP to date neither ex-President Harrison nor Speaker Reed have congratulated Hanna on his election to the United States Senate.

THE RECORDER tips its hat to the last issue of the School Record for its favorable mention, and will reciprocate at the first opportunity.

VIRGINIA is proposing to tax old bachelors and dogs each one dollar. The old bachelors are making a vigorous kick, but the dogs are silent on the proposition.

THE Georgetown Times put on a new dress upon entering its 32d year. The Times has served the people of Scott county well for that long period, and they have attested their appreciation by a liberal patronage.

GOV. BRADLEY will give the members of the General Assembly a dinner at the Capital Hotel in Frankfort tonight. The Governor is on better terms with this Legislature than he was with its Republican predecessor.

THE party platform is no longer regarded as in the least binding by those who boss the Republican party. They depart from its declarations without hesitancy, and the platform adopted at St. Louis is now viewed in the light of a huge joke.

IF no corrupt means were resorted to to accomplish the election of Marcus A. Hanna to the United States Senate, why is it that his supporters are doing everything in their power to thwart an investigation? It is those whose deeds are evil that fear the light.

THAT Republican member of the Legislature who rushed to the front early with a bill to reduce official salaries, does not desire his bill or any one like it, shall be passed at this session. The failure of the Republican Legislature to pass a similar bill is hoped to be offset by a failure on the part of the present Legislature along the same line. Considering the source from which the bill came it looks very much like a political play.

THE school book trust has its lobbyists at Frankfort, to prevent, if possibly, any legislation against its interests in the fertile and profitable field of Kentucky. Kentucky is paying too much for school books—much more than Indiana or Ohio pays, and the Legislature is disposed to provide a remedy for an evil that bears heavily upon the poorer class of citizens, and it remains to be seen how much influence the powerful lobby will wield with the lawmakers.

THE Legislature is getting down to business, and if it continues to labor throughout the session as it has to the present time, when it adjourns it will have acquired for itself the distinction of being one of the best bodies of business men ever assembled at Frankfort in the capacity of lawmakers. Very few of the members have manifested any disposition to indulge in the bumcombe business, and bills that do not have a business ring about them are shortlived. The interests of the State are being looked after in an intelligent manner, and the indications are but few strictly partisan measures will be considered. It looks very much like Kentucky has at last secured a Legislature whose acts will benefit the entire State.

[Williamstown Courier.]

An unspeakable crime is reported to have been committed in Grant county on last Sunday night near the town of Crittenden, on the Covington & Lexington turnpike road. A man and his wife, journeying through the county in a wagon, pitched their tents at the road side and retired for the night; doubtless supposing they were in the heart of a civilized community where the rights and liberties of all were respected.

About 10 o'clock in the night four young men riding along the road coming from the direction of Crittenden, stopped at the little encampment and aroused the weary travelers. Among the young men were Robert Bolden, John Sturgeon, Elmer Points and Kirt McBee, all of the Sherman and Mt. Zion neighborhoods. Pistols were drawn, the travelers were intimidated, vicious language was used and threats of assault were made. Some of the boys, Bolden and Sturgeon at least were drinking. While the husband was covered with a pistol and taken to the road side the woman was criminally assaulted by two of the young men. The next morning she and her husband went to Crittenden and before Esquire B. T. Sechrest swore out a writ against John Sturgeon and Elmer Points. Kirt McBee and young Points came to town as soon as they heard that a writ was to be issued and Points gave himself up, and McBee offered to surrender himself, but no affidavit having been filed against him he was not required to do so. They state that they had nothing to do with the commission of the offense. That in company with the other two young men they left Crittenden and stopped at the camp of these wandering nomads. That when Bolden and Sturgeon attempted to lay violent hands upon the person of the woman and covered her husband with their pistols they attempted to prevent it and did all they could by persuasion and force to prevent the outrage. That Sturgeon and Bolden turned their pistols on them, and seeing they could not prevent an outrage, if attempted, they got in their buggy and drove on, hoping to entice the other boys away before they had committed any crime. After getting some distance away they heard the cries of the woman and the threats made at the man, but did not know what had happened or was being done at the time. They say they had no pistols and used no violence or unseemly language in the presence of either the man or his wife, that if a crime was committed it was done by Bolden and Sturgeon. Elmer Points was held to bail in the sum of $1,000 to appear for examination next Friday, the bond being signed by his father, W. H. Points. Writs for Bolden and Sturgeon were put in the hands of Sheriff G. S. Webb and he has been scouring the hills and hollows of Mt. Zion and Crittenden for Bolden and Sturgeon, but the birds have evidently flown. From the affidavit of the woman assaulted it is understood that only two persons were engaged in the assault.

Points and McBee were acquitted at their examining trial.

IT is almost impossible to imagine a condition of affairs worse than that prevailing in Cuba. War, starvation, disease, murder—with all their attending evils are preying upon the people of the island.

THE Republicans are having a great deal of trouble keeping the members of their party in line when electing United States Senators. Think of their experience in Kentucky, Ohio and Maryland.

NOTWITHSTANDING all the blow and bluster about currency reform, the indications are nothing along that line will be accomplished by the present Congress. It has been impossible for any scheme yet presented to attract to its support enough members to make it even formidable.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, January 21st, 1898.

The Democrats in the House believe that Cuba deserves recognition at the hands of this government; the Republicans, whatever they believe, voted this week to a man to help Spain, by a continuation of the do-nothing policy. And in addition, Mr. Dingley, the Republican floor leader, admitted that the Cuban question was a partisan question. Surely the Democratic party could not ask for more good campaign material to be given them in a single week by their opponents. If the Democrats get the votes of all who believe that it is the right and duty of this country to end the war in Cuba by aiding the Cubans to gain their independence, at the Congressional elections, they will get about three-fourths of the entire vote of the country. Mr. Dingley may dare to make opposition to doing anything to help Cuba the platform upon which he will appeal for votes in his own district, to be returned to Congress, but there are few Republicans in the House who will dare to do the same. But no matter what these men may do or say at home they cannot escape the record they have this week made by voting down the Democratic amendments to the Consular and Diplomatic bill, declaring for recognition of Cuba by this government. Let that record be kept before the voters.

The administration in its anxiety to keep down the appropriations in order to wipe out the Treasury deficit has made one mistake that may give it considerable trouble. This is, in reducing the number of letter-carriers in cities. There was some plain talk on this subject in the Senate from Republican Senators. Senator Hoar said: "It is absolutely intolerable that this great branch of the public service should stop or be crippled. Many of the smaller cities of the country are to be deprived practically of mail delivery facilities, and it is time that something be done to avoid serious business embarrassments." And Senator Allison said: "The point is, that the Postmaster General has presented estimates to Congress too low to cover the expenses of his department." The cut in the appropriation for the District of Columbia, which has no representation in Congress to make a fuss about it, is the deepest of all, the amount being nearly two million and a half dollars less than the estimate of the Commissioners, and more than half a million less than the appropriation for the current fiscal year. All of this cutting is done for the purpose of enabling the Republicans to make a good showing in the Congressional campaign of this year, regardless of the inconvenience it may cause.

The slowness of the debate in the Senate on the treaty for the annexation of Hawaii has not prevented its reaching an acute stage, and there may be some sensational developments before it is ended. The bringing of the President of Hawaii to Washington by the administration for there is little doubt that Dole came to the U. S. at the request, direct or implied, of Mr. McKinley, is being somewhat harshly criticized and many believe that his presence in Washington will be much more likely to make votes against annexation that they have not yet secured a sufficient number of votes to ratify the treaty. Senators who oppose it say they never will.

The Republicans did not succeed in their efforts to have the old Stanley Mathews resolution, declaring all U. S. bonds payable in silver dollars, at the option of the government, which was introduced by Senator Teller, pigeon-holed. The Finance committee has favorably reported the resolution to the Senate and there isn't the slightest doubt that it will be adopted with a number of votes to spare when it is voted upon, nor is there any doubt of its being pushed to a vote. It is in charge of Senator Vest.

The quarterly meeting of the executive committee of the American Bimetallic Union was held in Washington, this week, for the purpose of taking the preliminary steps for participation, in the Congressional campaign, of this year. Gen. A. J. Warner, of Ohio, tendered his resignation as President of the Union, on account of his bad health, but was persuaded to withdrew it on the promises of members of the committee that they would take up his work while he took a long rest and tried to regain his health. The committee will prepare and issue literature opposing the arguments put forward in support of the Gage currency bill. It will also issue a full and exhaustive reply to the report of the Indianapolis Monetary Commission. The committee was also enlarged and now consists of one member from each State and Territory and the District of Columbia.

The election of a silver chairman and a silver secretary was the convincing answers of the Democratic Congressional Campaign committee to the thousand and one tom fool stories that have been told about the possibility of its doing otherwise.

THE Legislature was invited to be present at the dedication of a new building on the A. and M. grounds at Lexington last Friday, and straightway the Frankfort people imagined a sly capitol removal scheme was being worked by the Lexingtonians.

MARY FORBES COBB, of New London, Ind., who has the distinguished honor of being the only daughter of a revolutionary soldier now living between the Allegheny mountains and the Pacific coast, celebrated her 95th birthday the other day.

THAT the Canadian Pacific Railroad Co. have no doubts about the number of people that will come to the coast in the next ninety days is evidenced by the fact that the company is now buying and chartering a fleet of steamers such as has never been equaled on the coast.

ONLY three of 17 mayors recently elected in Massachusetts are lawyers. Two are physicians and one a civil engineer. Among the others are a marketman, a pork packer, a druggist, a fish dealer and a shoemaker. Most of them were born outside of the state, two going from New York.

ADVANCE notices of a forthcoming book by ex Queen Liloukalani, of Hawaii, show that she praises Mr. Cleveland's "splendid ability and rare judgment and lofty standards of right," while she disposes of President McKinley as "a most agreeable gentleman, both in manner and in words."

WILLIAM M. SINGERLY, president of the Chestnut street national bank of Philadelphia, which recently failed, is 64 years old, but until recently has shown no signs of advancing age. He has been owner, editor and publisher of the Philadelphia Record for 20 years and had a clear income from that property in 1896 of $310,000.

MR. C. W. POST, of Michigan, has devised what he calls the Post cheque for use in transmitting small mail orders. It is a slip of paper resembling the old paper fractional currency, to be bought at the post office, to be stamped with a two-cent stamp, signed by the sender, mailed to the payee, who is also to sign it, and to be redeemed at any post office.

LORD SANDHURST, the governor of the Bombay presidency, is a strong believer in women physicians, and at the recent opening of a hospital which is in charge of a woman, he said that those who made fun of the new woman's desire to follow the medical profession could have no idea what a blessing such women were to the unfortunate of their sex.

THE present court season at Berlin bids fair to be shorn of much of its gayety and splendor, and it is doubtful whether any of the balls or fancy dress functions which are so prominent a feature at the imperial palace every winter will take place this year. This is not only due to the fact that the grand duke of Baden, uncle of the emperor, is lying on what generally is believed to be his death bed, but likewise because of the condition of health of the empress.

FOR 40 years in Massachusetts the male birth rate relative to the female has not noticeably changed, the number of male births to each 1,000 female births being 1,053 in the past 20 years, as compared with 1,050 in the two decades preceding, and holding at about 1,055 year by year of late. A European ten years' observation in various countries revealed the fact that to every 1,000 females born an average of about 1,060 males were born, the extremes being 1,038 in England and 1,071 in Italy.

CARVED leather is now attracting much attention. The design is traced on dampened leather, and worked out with small iron tools, being raised by striking with a heavy mallet. The leather in its natural tints is generally used, but it is sometimes dyed to imitate Russia, or in any desired color. Belts, chatelaine bags, fancy boxes, purses and traveling bags are ornamented in this manner. The work is of Mexicen origin, the artisans of that country being adepts in this species of decoration.

THOMAS A. EDISON, JR., has invented a machine for utilizing the wave power of the sea. When in place the machine will be 20 miles out at sea, and will consist of a series of gigantic air pumps. The air compressed by these will be used to run dynamos. For $25,000,000 he can construct a plant, he says, that will furnish 4,000,000 horsepower, enough to supply the entire state of New York. He says that a powerful syndicate has the matter of immediate construction of the plant under consideration.

THE bureau of information of the League of American Municipalities has begun the task of gathering statistical matter pertaining to municipal and private ownership of electric lighting plants. Statistics will be gathered from all cities and towns of 5,000 inhabitants and over, to show the cost of lights under both private and municipal ownership, giving the cost of each plant, capacity, operating expenses, the items of interest, depreciation, repairs, etc. It is the intention to make a comparison between municipal and private ownership.

THERE is a constant increase in the utilization of the products of nature for the manufacture of gloves. The skin of the kid, dog, rat and even the lizard are staple for this purpose, and now a use has been discovered for the soft but serviceable skin of the frog. Like all novelties, frog-skin gloves are at present extremely expensive. They are especially recommended on account of their fineness and toughness, to the cyclist. The demand for frogs until now has been solely for use as dainties for the table, but before long we shall have frog farms springing up all over the country.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Teller Resolution Will Be Disposed of in the Senate This Week.

Not Much Attention Will Be Given to Hawaii—Programme in the House Little of Interest Beyond the Limits of the District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The present outlook is unfavorable to the senate's giving much attention to the Hawaiian treaty during this week. The agreement to vote on Thursday upon the Teller resolution reaffirming the doctrine that United States bonds are payable in silver at the option of the government will in all probability result in the senate's giving the major portion of its time until that date to this measure with the exception of that necessary to the consideration of appropriation bills. Senator Turpie has given notice of a speech on the Teller resolution for Monday and it is expected that speeches for it will be made by Senators Teller, Pettigrew, White and others, and that there also will be some addresses in opposition. Senator Nelson has offered an amendment declaring for the maintenance of the parity of the two metals, but the silver men, considering this proposed modification hostile to their purpose will not accept it. They say they will insist upon a vote upon the resolution as it stands.

FRANK G. CANNON.
(United States Senator from Utah.)

The pension appropriation bill will be called up Monday, and as soon as it is disposed of the senate will be asked to take up the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. Each of these will provoke some debate, but it is not expected to be prolonged in either case.

When the treaty next comes up Senator Teller will be recognized to speak in its support, and he probably will be followed by Senator White in opposition. The vote on the treaty now appears at least three weeks distant.

The house programme for this week includes little or no interest beyond the limits of the district of Columbia. Almost the entire week will be devoted to the District of Columbia appropriation bill. It is expected that the Indian appropriation bill, the consideration of which was begun Saturday, will be completed Monday. The only item in the bill which is likely to cause much of a contest is that providing for the leasing of the Gilsonite beds of the Uncompahgre reservation in Utah. This provision was beaten in the last Indian bill and will be stubbornly contested now. The district bill will probably consume the remainder of the week.

So far as could be learned the administration had no advices from Havana Sunday. Both the state and navy departments affirmed that nothing had been heard from Gen. Lee and professed to look upon the lack of news as a good sign. On the other hand the city was full of rumors ranging in importance from the statement that the white squadron had sailed from Key West to that of Lee's being assassinated at Havana. Inquiry however failed to reveal any basis for sensational reports.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The senate was in session Saturday for the first time since the opening of congress.

The reason given is that private orders were received from the president that he feared a crisis in Cuban matters and wanted the body to be ready to act at a moment's notice.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—On the desk of Mr. Allen (Neb.) at the opening of Saturday's session of the senate, was a stand of beautiful American beauty and bride roses. It was "a testimonial from ladies of the department for your noble and brave defense of woman's honor." Mr. Allen championed the cause of Mrs. M. E. Roberts, who was summarily dismissed from the pension office.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The president sent to the senate Saturday the nomination of Gov. Griggs, of New Jersey, to be attorney general, to succeed Judge McKenna, who was confirmed Friday as associate justice of the supreme court.

In the house Saturday Mr. Cannon (Utah) introduced a bill providing for the publication of the pension roll.

Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) offered an amendment to the pension appropriation bill, providing that hereafter no pension shall be paid on power of attorney from pensioners residing in foreign countries.

The resolution of Mr. Teller (Col.), providing that the bonds of the United States may be paid in silver dollars was then laid before the senate, and in accordance with notice given Friday Mr. Stewart (pop., Nev.) addressed the senate.

Snow Storm in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—The snow storm of Saturday night and Sunday morning was the worst in this city for years. The greatest damage as well as inconvenience was caused by the breaking down of telegraph and telephone wires. In this respect the damage was widespread.

British Warships Ordered to Leave.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 24.—A semi-official communication purporting to emanate from London says that the British war vessels at Port Arthur have been ordered to leave there without delay.

HIS VISIT EXPLAINED.

Misunderstanding Regarding Annexation Has Arisen, Says President Dole.

People of Hawaii Would Be Disappointed Should the Treaty Fail—President Dole Will Not Lobby for It, But Will Assist Annexation Commissioners.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Jan. 24.—President Sanford B. Dole's progress is being watched at every station by a crowd of people anxious to see the Hawaiian president.

President Dole was not visible to the public at Laramie, but at nearly every station between here and San Francisco, where the train stopped long enough, he has been upon the depot platform, carefully muffled up, accompanied by his wife and physician.

The president is in precarious health, but the long journey and the change from his official duties are having a good effect. The president is not disposed to complain. He said:

"During the last day and a half of our stay in San Francisco the people of that city were very kind to us, indeed, and did everything to disprove the charge of neglect which the newspapers of that city made.

"We have made no arrangements regarding our stay in Chicago or our journey on from there, having been notified by Mr. Hatch that it would be attended to for us. We are enjoying our journey immensely. Mr. Hatch wires me that I probably will go to Washington by way of New York.

"I am going to Washington with the view of explaining, if possible, some misunderstandings which seem to have arisen in regard to annexation. I shall not lobby for the treaty, but shall assist the annexation commissioners and probably meet the senate committee on foreign relations.

"If the present treaty fails the people of Hawaii will be badly disappointed, but they will not be discouraged. What opposition there is to annexation in Hawaii is mostly through misunderstanding of what it will do for us.

"As far as I am able to learn sentiment in the United States is almost unanimously in favor of it. I fully appreciate President McKinley's conservative policy and his desire to let things take their time. If the present treaty fails we shall attribute it largely to the more pressing Cuban situation and the fact that the United States senate does not want to do two things at once.

"One object of my visit is to find out just how sentiment lies, and the Hawaiian legislation at home will be determined very largely by that.

"I am not, as has been said, going to New York to see about refunding the Hawaiian debt, because that is held almost wholly in London and at home."

President Dole was reticent on the subject of his plans for a provisional government in the event of the treaty being ratified by the United States senate.

"Has the Japanese government any inclination to secure control of the islands in case they should not be annexed?"

"That I do not know. There is a difference of opinion among our people on this question, many believing that no serious danger of Japanese interference will exist, and others that the danger will be great."

Asked if he believed annexation would involve the United States in difficulties with any other nation, Mr. Dole said:

"Not as I have thought of this phase of the question. I have not looked forward to any trouble, and I do not think there would be any. This, too, is the general opinion of our people on the subject.

"The reports of leprosy on our island are greatly exaggerated. It is said that we have 4,000 lepers, when, in fact, there are fewer than 1,400."

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—President and Mrs. Sanford B. Dole, of Hawaii, arrived in Chicago 8:05 o'clock Sunday morning. Nothwithstanding the heavy storm, which delayed suburban trains in the vicinity of Chicago half an hour, the first section of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad train No. 2, known as the Overland Limited, from San Francisco, pulled into the depot at Chicago, within 20 minutes of the schedule time.

A distinguished party greeted the president of the little island republic on his arrival. The federal government was represented by Judge Grosscup, Gen. John C. Black, United States district attorney; Mr. Thos. E. MacMillan, clerk of the United States district court, and Hon. Thos. W. Cridler, of the state department at Washington. Chicago was represented by Mayor Harrison and the army and navy by Maj. Reistand and lieutenant Commander Phelps respectively, who were resplendent in full dress uniform. In addition to these gentlemen the president was welcomed by Gen. Brooke and his staff, consisting of Capts. Richards and Lieuts. Dean and McKenna; Hon. F. M. Hatch, minister to the United States from Hawaii; Wm. Penn Nixon, Dr. Henry O. Leman, and the Chicago consul, Mr. Job. President Dole's party consisted of himself, Mrs. Dole, Secretary Isukea and Dr. Day, his physician.

Whisky Warehouse Burned.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 24.—Shortly after midnight one of the largest warehouses of the Old Hurricane Springs distillery, near Tullahoma, was destroyed by fire. Nearly one thousand barrels of whisky was also burned. Loss is about $75,000; insurance not ascertainable.

LOUISA, Ky., Jan. 24.—A Pittsburgh company prospecting for oil at Blaine, this county, has struck a rich flow of fine lubricating oil in the first well put down. It is getting ready to sink another well at once.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—SENATE—The features of Monday's proceedings were the speech delivered by Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, chairman of the bimetallic commission, upon the negotiations of the commission with European countries relative to international bimetallism, and the passage of the Lodge bill restricting immigration into the United States. At the conclusion of the morning business Mr. Wolcott, at 12:30, was recognized to begin his address. He was in fine voice and commanded the earnest attention of his auditors. At the conclusion of his speech the immigration bill was taken up and discussed until 3 o'clock, the hour at which, by previous agreement, it had been arranged to vote finally upon the amendments and the bill. The bill as passed provides that all immigrants physically capable and over 16 years of age shall be able to read or write the English language or some other language, but a person not able to read or write who is over 50 years of age and is the parent or grandparent of a qualified immigrant over 21 years of age capable of supporting such a parent or grandparent may accompany the immigrant, or the parent or grand parent may be sent for and come to join the family of the child or grandchild over 21 years of age qualified under the law; and wife or minor child not able to read or write may accompany or be sent for and come to join the husband or parent who is qualified. The act does not apply to persons coming to the United States from the island of Cuba during the continuance of present disorders there who have heretofore been inhabitants of that island.

HOUSE—Monday was District of Columbia day in the house; but only three bills of local importance were passed. The remainder of the session was devoted to further consideration of the army appropriation bill, which was completed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—SENATE—Tuesday's open session of the senate was brief. Practically the only business accomplished aside from the routine proceedings was the passing of the urgent deficiency appropriation bill. The measure as finally passed by the senate carries $1,913,810. The Teller resolution providing that bonds of the United States may be paid in standard silver dollars was favorably reported by a majority of the finance committee and notice was given that it would be called up at an early date.

HOUSE—Cuba had a hearing in the house Tuesday and for a time it looked as if parliamentary precedents would be set aside and the senate resolution recognizing the insurgents as belligerents would be attached as a rider to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Mr. DeArmond, a Missouri democrat, precipitated the issue by offering the resolution as an amendment; but a point of order against it was sustained. Mr. DeArmond appealed. The chair was sustained by a vote of 152 to 114. Before the diplomatic bill came up the army bill was passed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—SENATE—A spirited debate was precipitated in the senate Wednesday by the introduction of a resolution by Mr. Hoar (Mass.), providing for an inquiry by the committee on post offices and post roads concerning the recent order of the postmaster general reducing the force of letter carriers in several cities of the country. Mr. Vest gave notice that he would move Thursday to take up for consideration the Teller resolution reported by the finance committee providing that bonds of the United States may be paid in standard silver dollars.

HOUSE—All day long the question of granting belligerent rights to the Cuban insurgents was argued in the house, but Tuesday the minority hurled itself against a stone wall. The only vote taken Wednesday—a motion designated to overrule the decision of the speaker and direct the committee on foreign affairs to report without further delay the Cuban resolution passed by the senate at the last session—the republicans stood stolid and voted to sustain the chair.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—SENATE—By the decisive vote of 41 to 25 the senate Thursday decided to proceed at once to the consideration of the resolution introduced a few days ago by Mr. Teller (Col.), providing for the payment of bonds of the United States in silver at the option of the government. Mr. Vest announced his intention to secure a final vote upon the resolution as soon as one could be reached and accentuated his intention by forcing the displacement of the census bill with the Teller resolution as the unfinished business. The day, after two o'clock, was in executive session.

HOUSE—Speaker Reed, from the rostrum of the house, and Mr. Bailey, leader of the democrats, from his place on the floor, glared at each other at the close of the Cuban debate Thursday and joined an issue of veracity. This sensational episode completely overshadowed the interest in the Cuban debate, which has occupied uninterrupted attention in the house for three days during the consideration of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. The debate Thursday was not as interesting as on either of the two preceding days. The features were a characteristic speech by Champ Clark, (Mo.) a strong appeal for conservatism from Mr. Johnson (rep. Ind.) a presentation of the results of his observations in Cuba during his recent trip to the islands from Mr. King (dem. Utah), and an hour's speech by Mr. Dingley (Me.) in explanation of the causes of the reduction of the wages in the New England cotton industry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—SENATE—An agreement was reached by the senate Friday that a final vote on the Teller resolution providing that the bonds of the United States be paid in silver dollars and all pending amendments thereto should be taken Thursday. Mr. Allison, of Iowa, made the significant statement that an amendment to the resolution that would cause some debate would be offered late in the discussion but gave no intimation of the nature, scope or amount of the amendment. During the greater part of the afternoon the senate was in executive session, and at 4:15 adjourned.

HOUSE—There was a preliminary struggle in the house Friday over the bill for the relief of the book publishing company of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which was before the house last Friday. By shrewd maneuvering its opponents succeeded in preventing action Friday. Previous to the consideration of this bill the house passed the bill to extend the public land laws of the United States to the territory of Alaska, and to grant a general railroad right of way through the territory. The urgent deficiency bill was sent to conference after the silver forces, with some outside aid, had succeeded, in concurring in the senate amendment striking from the bill the provision requiring the depositors of bullion at seventeen mints and assay offices to pay the cost of transportation to the mint.

Opposed to Restricting Immigration.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—At a meeting of the Irish Emigrants' society in this city, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "Resolved, that it is the sense of the Irish Emigrant society that the immigration bill now pending in congress further restricting immigration, is a measure which should not be enacted, and that the president and executive committee be and hereby are requested to take such action as they may deem proper to oppose its passage."

Dropped Dead at His Work.

KOKOMO, Ind., Jan. 24.—Hugh Johnson, a Harrison township farmer, was found dead at his woodpile, where he had been cutting wood, the ax still being in his hands. He evidently fell dead from heart disease. He was 70 years old.

BEYOND BELIEF.

Heart Was Stuck on His New Brown Suit.

The lady in the railway car would have claimed undisputed recognition as the most overdressed person in any of the counties through which the train passed had it not been for her son. He was one of the weary-faced, scrupulously clad little people who afford support to the theory that poverty may be a comparative blessing to the very young. He did not look as if a genuine good time would fit him. The ambition to drill him into unflagging self-consciousness had met with obvious and pathetic success. He sat with his neck stretched out to keep from wrinkling his lace collar. The novel which his mother read was one of the most recent and ponderous. The title, in large gilt letters, was turned toward the aisle as she held it before her, turning the pages with suspicious infrequency. A mist had gathered on the pane, so that the boy could not look out of the window. Instinct was more powerful than culture, and before he thought he had taken his gloved finger and rubbed a round spot through which he could look with one eye. His mother fairly gasped with indignation.

"Henri!" she exclaimed.

"Yes, ma'am."

"You bad child! How can you do such things?"

He made no reply, but penitently turned his back upon the mental luxury with which he had hoped to provide himself. But his mother evidently prided herself upon her achievements as a domestic disciplinarian. In a loud voice she continued:

"Now you sit there perfectly quiet, and remember what I tell you. If you do anything like that again—"

As she paused to consider her threat the child gazed into her face with tense apprehension.

"I'll open that window and toss you out and let the car run over you, so that all the wheels will cut you up in little bits of pieces!"

His eyes grew big with dread, and in tones of mingled incredulity and dismay he exclaimed:

"Mamma! In my new brown suit?"—Washington Star.

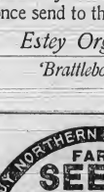
ADVICE TO MINISTERS.

Given by a Minister.

Preachers who practise it will preach better.

No class of people is so liable to throat trouble as the great class who make up the Gospel ministry. The strain put upon the vocal organs by constant exercise; the sudden change from a heated building to the cool air when the vocal organs are in a state of complete relaxation; the fact that a minister feels impelled to use his voice when actors and lecturers would take the needed rest; these are among the reasons why "Clergymen's sore throat" is known as a special disease. The Rev. J. M. Brawley, D. D., District Secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society, writes from Petersburg, Va., the account of an experience of his own which is profitable reading to those afflicted with bronchial or other throat troubles. The substance of the letter is as follows:



PETERSBURG, VA.

J. C. AYER CO.,

DEAR SIRS: Three months ago I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms. To ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"Prevention is better than cure." A bottle of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral kept in the house, will effectually prevent the roots of a cold and its consequent development into some dangerous malady. This remedy has no equal in Bronchial troubles. The most stubborn cases have yielded to its use. It is equally effective for Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and every disease that attacks the throat or lungs. For years Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been put up only in large size bottles, at a price of $1.00. To meet an increasing demand for a smaller sized package the remedy can now be obtained in half-size bottles, at half price—50 cents. Send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook (free) and you will get a clearer idea of the great value of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Address J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Honey Often Turned to Gall—Dr. Talmage Gives Warning of Temptations Which Beset the Pathway of All People—Card Playing and Stock Gambling.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was: I Samuel xiv., 43: "I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand, and, lo, I must die."

The honey bee is a most ingenious architect, a Christopher Wren among insects, geometer drawing hexagons and pentagons, a freebooter robbing the fields of pollen and aroma, wondrous creature of God whose biography, written by Huber and Swammerdam, is an enchantment for any lover of nature. Virgil celebrated the bee in his fable of Aristaeus; and Moses and Samuel and David, and Solomon, and Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, and St. John used the delicacies of bee manufacture as a Bible symbol. A miracle of formation is the bee; five eyes, two tongues, the outer having a sheath of protection, hairs on all sides of its tiny body to brush up the particles of flowers, its flight so straight that all the world knows of the bee line. The honey-comb is a palace such as none but God could plan and the honey-bee construct; its cells, sometimes a dormitory and sometimes a storehouse, and sometimes a cemetery. These winged toilers first make eight strips of wax, and by their antennae, which are to them hammer and chisel, and square and plumb line, fashion them for use. Two and two these workers shape the wall. If an accident happens they put up buttresses or extra beams to remedy the damage. When about the year 1770 an insect before unknown in the night time attacked the beehives all over Europe and the men who owned them were in vain trying to plan something to keep out the invader that was the terror of the bee-hives of the continent, it was found that everywhere the bees had arranged for their own protection and built before their honey-combs an especial wall of wax through which the bees might go to and fro, but not large enough to admit the winged combatants, called the Sphinx Atropos.

Do you know that the swarming of the bees is divinely directed? The mother bee starts for a new home, and because of this the other bees of the hive get into an exeltement which raises the heat of the hive some four degrees, and they must die unless they leave their heated apartment, and they follow the mother bee and alight on the branch of a tree and cling to each other and hold on until a committee of three bees have explored the region and found the hollow of a tree or rock not far off from a stream of water, and they here set up a new colony and ply their aromatic industries and give themselves to the manufacture of the saccharine edible. But who can tell the chemistry of that mixture of sweetness, part of it the very life of the bee and part of it the life of the fields?

Plenty of evidence that Jonathan was hanging in the woods of Bethaven during the time of Saul and Jonathan. Their army in pursuit of the Philistine enemy that by God's command must be exterminated. The soldiery were positively forbidden to stop to eat anything until the work was done.

If they disobeyed they were accursed. Coming through the woods they found a place where the bees had been busy—a great honey manufactory. Honey gathered in the hollow of the trees until it had overflowed upon the ground in great profusion and sweetness. All the army obeyed orders and touched it not save Jonathan, and he, not knowing the military order about abstinence, dipped the end of a stick he had in his hand into the candied liquid, and as yellow and tempting it glowed on the end of the stick he put it to his mouth and ate the honey. Judgment fell upon him, and but for special intervention he would have been slain. In my text Jonathan announces his awful mistake: "I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand, and lo! I must die." Alas! what multitudes of people in all ages have been damaged by forbidden honey, by which I mean temptation, delicious and attractive, but damaging and destructive!

Corrupt literature, fascinating but deathful, comes in this category. Where one good, honest, healthful book is read now, there is a hundred made up of rhetorical trash consumed with avidity. When the boys on the cars come through with a pile of publications, look over the titles and notice that nine out of ten books are injurious. All the way from here to Chicago or New Orleans notice that objectionable books dominate. Taste for pure literature is poisoned by this scum of the publishing house. Every book in which sin triumphs over virtue, or in which a glamour is thrown over dissipation, or which leaves you at its last line with less respect for the marriage institution and less abhorrence for the paramour, is a depression of your own moral character. The book bindery may be attractive, and the plot dramatic and startling, and the style of writing sweet as the honey that Jonathan took up with his rod, but your best interests forbid it, your moral safety forbids it, your God forbids it, and one tase may lead to such bad results that you may have to say at the close of the experiment, or at the close of a misimproved lifetime: "I did but taste a little honey with the rod that was in my hand, and, lo, I must die."

Corrupt literature is doing more to-day for the disruption of domestic life than any other cause. Elopements, marital intrigues, sly correspondence, fictitious names given at post office windows, clandestine meetings at parks, and at ferry gates, and in hotel parlors, and conjugal perjuries are among the ruinous results. When a woman, young or old, gets her head thoroughly stuffed with the modern novel she is in appalling peril. But some one will say: "The heroes are so adroitly knavish, and the heroines so bewitchingly untrue, and the turn of the story so exquisite, and all the characters so enrapturing, I can not quit them." My brother, my sister, you can find styles of literature just as charming that will elevate, and purify, and enoble, and Christianize while they please. The devil don't own all the honey. There is a wealth of good books coming forth from our publishing houses that leave no excuse for the choice of that which is debauching to body, mind and soul.

Go to some intelligent man or woman and ask for a list of books that will be strengthening to your mental and moral condition. Life is so short and your time for improvement so abbreviated that you can not afford to fill up with husks and cinders and debris. In the interstices of business that young man is reading that which will prepare him to be a merchant prince, and that young woman is filling her mind with an intelligence that will yet either make her the chief attraction of a good man's home, or give her an independence of character that will qualify her to build her own home and maintain it in a happiness that requires no augmentation from any of our rougher sex. That young man or young woman can, by the right literary and moral improvement of the spare ten minutes here or there every day, rise head and shoulders in prosperity and character and influence above the loungers who read nothing or read that which bedwarfs. See all the forests of good American literature dripping with honey. Why pick up the honey-combs that have in them the fiery bees which will sting you with an eternal polson while you taste it? One book for you or me may decide everything for this world and the next. It was a turning point with me when, in a bookstore in Syracuse, one day, I picked up a book called "The Beauties of Ruskin." It was only a book of extracts, but it was all pure honey, and I was not satisfied until I had purchased all his works, at that time expensive beyond an easy capacity to own them, and with what delight I went through reading his "Seven Lamps of Architecture" and his "Stones of Venice" it is impossible for me to describe, except by saying that it gave me a rapture for good books that will last while my life lasts. All around the church and the world to-day there are busy hives of intelligence occupied by authors and authoresses from whose pens drip a distillation which is the very nectar of Heaven, and why will you thrust your rod of inquisitiveness into the deathful saccharine of perdition?

Stimulating liquids, also come into the category of temptations delicious but deathful. You say, "I can not bear the taste of fermenting liquor, and how any man can like it is to me an amazement." Well, then, it is no credit to you that you do not take it. Do not brag about your total abstinence, because it is not from any principle that you reject alcoholism, but for the reason that you reject certain styles of food—you simply don't like the taste of them. But multitudes of people have a natural fondness for all kinds of intoxicants. They like it so much that it makes them smack their lips to look at it. They are dyspeptic and they go to an old physician, and he is annoyed by insomnia, and they take it to produce sleep; or they are troubled, and they take it to make them oblivious; or they feel happy, and they must celebrate their hilarity.

They begin with mint julip sucked through two straws on the Long Branch piazza and end in the ditch, taking from a jug a liquid half kerosene and half whisky. They not only like it, but it is an all-consuming passion of body, mind and soul, and after a while have it they will, though one wine glass of it should cost the temporal and eternal destruction of themselves, and all their families, and the whole human race. They would say: "I am sorry it is going to cost me and my family and all the world's population so much, but there it goes to my lips, and now let it roll over my parched tongue and down my heated throat, the sweetest, the most inspiring, the most delicious draught that ever thrilled a human frame." To cure the habit before it comes to its last stages various plans were tried in olden times. This plan was recommended in the books. When a man wanted to reform he put shot or bullets into the cup of strong drink—one additional shot or bullet each day, that displaced so much liquor. Bullet after bullet, added day by day, of course the liquor became less and less until the bullets would entirely fill up the glass, and there was no room for the liquid, and by that time it was said the inebriate would be cured. Whether any one ever was cured in that way I know not, but by long experiment it is found that the only way is to stop short off, and when a man does that he needs God to help him. And there have been more cases than you can count when God has so helped the man that he left off the drink forever; and I could count a score of them some of them pillars in the house of God.

One would suppose that men would take warning from some of the ominous names given to the intoxicants and stand off from the devastating influence. Do have noticed, for instance, that some of the restaurants are called "The Shades," typical of the fact that it puts a man's reputation in the shade, and his morals in the shade, and his prosperity in the shade, and his wife and children in the shade, and his immortal destiny in the shade. Now, find on some of the liquor signs in all our cities the words "Old Crow," mightily suggestive of the areass and the filthy raven that swoop upon it. "Old Crow!" Men and women without numbers slain of rum, but unburied, and while evil is pecking their gloated eyes, and pecking at their bloated cheek, and pecking at their destroyed manhood and womanhood, thrusting beak and claw into the mortal remains of what was once gloriously alive, but now morally dead. "Old Crow!" But alas! how many take no warning. They make me think of Cesar on his way to assassination fearing nothing; though his statue in the hall crashed into fragments at his feet, and a scroll containing the names of the conspirators was thrust into his hands, yet walking right on to meet the dagger that was to take his life. This infatuation of strong drink is so mighty in many a man that, though his fortunes are crashing, and his health is crashing, and his dometic interests are crashing, and we hand him a long scroll containing the names of perils that wait him, he goes straight on to physical, and mental, and moral assassination. In proportion as any style of alcoholism is pleasant to your taste and stimulating to your nerves, and for a time delightful to all your physical and mental constitution, is the awful. Remember Jonathan and forbidden honey in the woods of Ephraim.

Furthermore, the gamester's indulgence must be put in the list of temptations delicious but destructive. You who have crossed the ocean many times have noticed that always one of the best rooms has, from morning till late at night, been given up to gambling practices. I heard of men who went on board with enough for a European excursion who landed without money to get their baggage up to the hotel or railroad station.

To many there is a complete fascination in games of hazard or the risking of money on possibilities. It seems as natural for them to bet as to eat. Indeed the hunger for food is often overpowered by the hunger for wagers. It is absurd for those of us who have never felt the fascination of the wager to speak slightingly of the temptation. It has slain a multitude of intellectual and moral giants, men and women stronger than you or I. Down under its power went glorious Oliver Goldsmith and Sheridan, the famous historian, and Charles Fox, the renowned statesman, and in olden times senators of the United States, who used to be as regularly at the gambling house all night as they were in the halls of legislation by day. Oh, the tragedies of the faro table! I know persons who began with a slight stake in a ladies' parlor and ended with the suicide's pistol at Monte Carlo. They played with the square pieces of bone with black marks on them, not knowing that time was playing a tune on their bones at the same time, and was sure to sweep all the stakes off on his side of the table. State legislatures have again and again sanctioned the mighty evil by passing laws in defense of race tracks, and many young men have lost all their wages at such so-called "meetings." Every man who voted for such infamous bills has on his hands and forehead the blood of these souls.

But in this connection some young converts say to me: "Is it right to play cards?" Is there any harm in a game of whist or euchre?" Well, I know good men who play whist and euchre and other styles of games without any waters. I had a friend who played cards with his wife and children and then at the close said: "Come now, let us have prayers." I will not judge other men's consciences, but I tell you that cards are in my mind so associated with the temporal and spiritual ruin of splendid young men, that I would as soon say to my family: "Come, let us have a game of cards," as I would go into a menagerie and say: "Come, let us have a game of rattlesnakes," or into a cemetery, and sitting down by a marble slab, say to the grave diggers: "Come, let us have a game at skulls." Conscientious young ladies are silently saying: "Do you think card playing will do us any harm?" Perhaps not, but how will you feel if in the great day of eternity, when we are asked to give an account of our influence, some man should say: "I was introduced to games of chance in the year 1898, at your house, and I went on from that sport to something more exciting, and I went on down until I lost my business, and lost my morals, and lost my soul, and these chains that you see on my wrists and feet are the chains of a gamester's doom and I am on my way to a gambler's hell." Honey at the start, eternal catastrophy at the last.

The poet Heslod tells of an ambrosia and a nectar, the drinking of which would make men live forever, and one sip of the honey from the eternal rock will give you eternal life with God. Come off this low level of sin to joyful life. Come and live on the uplands of grace, where the vineyards sun themselves. "Oh, taste and see that the Lord is gracious!" Be happy now and happy forever. For those who take a different course the honey will turn to gall. For many things I have admired Percy Shelley, the great English poet, but I deplore the fact that it seemed a great sweetness to him to dishonor God. The poem "Queen Mab" has in it the maligning of the Deity. Shelley was impious enough to ask for Rowland Hill's surrey Chapel that he might denounce the Christian religion. He was in great glee against God and the truth. But he visited Italy, and one day on the Mediterranean with two friends in a boat which was 24 feet long he was coming toward the shore when an hour's squall struck the water. A gentleman standing on shore through a glass saw many boats tossed in this squall, but all outrode the storm except one, in which Shelley and his two friends were sailing. The gentleman saw the boat, the bodies of two of the occupants were washed up on the beach, one of them the poet. A funeral pyre was built on the seashore by some classic friends and the two bodies were consumed. Poor Shelley! He would have no God while he lived, and I fear had no God when he died. "The Lord knoweth the way of the righteous, but the way of the ungodly shall perish." Beware of the forbidden honey!"

The health of the king of Italy which has improved during the last three years, is again causing uneasiness. His fainting fits, which at one time had almost disappeared, have again begun to afflict him, especially after long and fatiguing ceremonies.

CRISIS REACHED.

The Witnesses in the Alleged Bribery Case Refuse to Testify.

Their Attorneys Claim That the Senate Has No Jurisdiction in the Investigation of Alleged Bribery, and Witnesses Refuse to Testify in the Matter.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19.—The senate committee Tuesday night began its inquisition into the charges of bribery, made by Representative Otis during the recent senatorial contest. The members of the house committee, appointed to investigate the same charges, were invited to be present, but they did not participate officially and there will be two separate investigations. J. J. Sullivan, H. M. Daugherty and Cyrus Huling were present to represent Senator Hanna, Maj. Dick and others, but the committee voted four to one against allowing any counsel to participate.

The committee in executive session decided not to allow any attorneys and adopted other rules of procedure. It was decided to hold executive sessions for business and to take testimony in public. The committee went from the committee room to the senate chamber when it was ready to call witnesses and a crowd assisted them. The committee consists of Senators Robertson, Fix and Long, democrats, and Senators Burke and Garfield, republicans. Senator Burke was one of the leaders of the opposition to Senator Hanna. Senator Garfield is the only member of the committee who voted for Hanna, and the votes taken were four to one.

Senator Burke presided and Judge Robertson examined the witnesses. In the executive session Judge Robertson was appointed prosecutor. All members of the committee asked questions except Senator Garfield. There were four witnesses examined Tuesday night as follows: Samuel Pentland, proprietor of the Neil house, where Senator Hanna had his headquarters; Shepherd M. Dunlap, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co.; W. L. Truesdale, manager of the Postal Telegraph Co.; Frank P. Ross, manager of the Telephone Co. Nothing new was developed during the session of four hours. The witnesses refused to answer some questions and to produce their books and copies of messages.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20.—The investigation into the charges of bribery at the recent election of United States senator reached a crisis Wednesday night. No matter what may be the final result of the investigation, there will likely be several witnesses arrested for contempt. The committee had seven witnesses subpoenaed for Wednesday night, but they were not all examined because none of them would testify.

The senate committee Tuesday night examined Samuel Pentland, Frank P. Ross, W. E. Truesdale and Shepherd M. Dunlap, who then asked to confer with their attorneys and were excused till Wednesday night for that purpose. When they appeared Wednesday night they said their attorneys held that the senate had no jurisdiction in the investigation of the alleged bribery of a member of the house and had advised them not to answer any further questions before the committee. They all followed the advice of their attorney, as did Mr. Hollenbeck, who was not on the stand Tuesday night. When the committee found that the advice of attorneys was being followed uniformly by all witnesses called, the open session was closed and the committee went into executive session on plans for further procedure.

Chairman Burke, Senators Lang and Finck did their best to draw out the witnesses but to no avail. After the four others took their turns, Senator Garfield would close each examination by asking: "Do you decline to answer questions because your attorneys says this committee has no jurisdiction in this case and has so advised you?"

The reply was in the affirmative and the witnesses were excused. Each witness was told that he was held under service by the committee and should report Thursday night at 7:30 or sooner if called for. Among the cases city is that of Daniel Dalton, who was subpoenaed in 1886 to bring forward tallysheets before a legislative committee. Dalton refused and was brought before the house for contempt. Dalton was subpoenaed to produce public records in his custody, and the witnesses Wednesday night claim they are asked to produce private property. As the committee will make a partial report to the senate Thursday a lively time is expected. The committee will ask the senate to punish the witnesses for contempt and to give the investigators full authority.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 21.—The senate committee on bribery held a session Thursday morning, and decided, in view of the fact that Witness S. D. Hollenbeck had been allowed to go home, to postpone further action on the matter to compel witnesses to testify until Hollenbeck could again be brought to Columbus.

Burke, chairman of the committee, notified Senator Sullivan to produce S. D. Hollenbeck before the committee at once. Sullivan Wednesday night agreed to produce Hollenbeck at any time if the committee let him go home.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 22.—The legislative committee, investigating the Otis charges of bribery in the recent election of United States senator at Columbus, held a session here Friday night and will continue its sittings here Saturday. All members of the committee were present, together with quite a delegation from Columbus and others from different parts of the state.

The committee came from Columbus Friday afternoon to the home of Representative Otis in order to examine witnesses residing in this city. The examination was held in the assembly room of the Gibson house in the presence of quite a large crowd.

It is charged in the resolutions adopted by both branches of the Ohio legislature that H. H. Boyce, of New York, came to the Gibson house in this city a few days before the balloting for United States senator began at Columbus and made a proposition of bribery to Representative Otis. Boyce stopped at the Gibson house. The members of the committee and others spent more time early in the evening examining the telephone used by Boyce and other scenes including the apartments occupied by Boyce when he was here after Otis and others. It is charged by members of the committee that Boyce fled from this city on Monday January 10, and that he can not now be located although the committee has exhausted its resources in trying to secure his attendance as a witness. The committee was given quite a telephone exhibition before it assembled. "The Great Southern hotel, at Columbus, (which was the headquarters of the anti-Hanna men during the recent contest), was called up, and while the committee was talking in the private parlor of the Gibson house with parties in Columbus, Jerry Bliss and his stenographer were at the telephone downstairs in the hotel office taking off all that was said. This was done to show how all of the conversations of Boyce with certain parties in Columbus were taken down while Boyce was here and the senatorial contest was going on at the state capitol. It is alleged that the conversations were all taken down and, as a matter of record without any tapping of wires as the different telephones in the Gibson house are all on the same circuit.

Horace B. Dunbar, president and manager of the Gibson house, was the only witness examined [illegible]. The clerks and others about the hotel will be examined Saturday. Mr. Dunbar was on the witness stand during the meeting and produced his hotel register showing that Henry H. Boyce, of New York, occupied room 200 from January 7 to January 10. Mr. Dunbar testified to having his suspicions aroused and to the clerks watching Boyce.

Allen O. Myers, jr., one of the day clerks, arranged for a stenographing report of the conversations Boyce had over the telephone during the day. Russell Pryor, the night clerk, took down the conversations at night. Boyce was given the key to the private telephone booth on the second floor whenever he wanted it, and the arrangements down stairs were always complete for reports of whatever went on over the telephone wires when Boyce was using the private office. The stenographer who has a desk in the office was called into requisition whenever Boyce called any one up.

Mr. Dunbar recited many of these conversations over the long distance telephone. In one of them the major was called up at Columbus and said: "Shaw, and the president would arrange things on Saturday." Boyce replied: "Have seen one of the party. Wants money. How can I handle him."

The reply from Columbus was: "Suppose O. betrays you, what then?" Mr. Dunbar said that Boyce replied: "No danger, I would kill him. Dead men tell no tales."

Mr. Dunbar testified that Allen O. Myers, jr., who was in Columbus as one of the managers against Hanna, was called up on Friday night, January 7, by Jerry Bliss and told of the situation here and what Boyce was doing. Myers advised Bliss that a man named Hollenbeck would leave Columbus for Cincinnati that night with money and to have him watched. The next morning the Miller detective agency was employed to watch Boyce and keep track of Hollenbeck on his arrival. On January 8 H. H. Hollenbeck, of Chardon, O., registered at the Gibson for breakfast. He had no room assigned to him, but was seen to communicate with Boyce. The next name on the register to that of Hollenbeck was E. H. Archer, Columbus, O., deputy railroad commissioner. Mr. Dunbar showed the registers to the committee with all these names and stated that Mr. T. J. Mulvihill, one of the leading democratic managers of this city, pointed out Hollenbeck to him and to the detectives. They watched all the movements of Hollenbeck and traced him to the Union Trust and Savings bank of which J. B. Schmidlapp is president.

While Hollenbeck did not remain in Cincinnati, Boyce was here on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. On Sunday night Boyce told Dunbar he had been here representing the president and complained about detectives being put onto him and about others watching him and especially about the parties in room 215. After paying his bill on Monday and before departing, Boyce told Dunbar if he wanted to win some money, to bet on Hanna. After Senator Long had examined Dunbar at length, a short cross examination was conducted by Senator Garfield. Mr. Dunbar said he was a democrat, that he was intimately acquainted with Allen O. Meyers, Charles L. Kurtz, Jerad P. Bliss and others who were recently engaged in the opposition at Columbus to Senator Hanna. He testified that he had been with them at the Great Southern hotel before the legislature balloted for United States senator.

Hedge brothers are keeping 15 city horses this winter, which is about one-half the usual number, owing to the mild winter.

Dr. James Adams is the most popular man in Union every Monday if we judge by the number of people waiting to see him. The Doctor is "pulling" himself into favor rapidly.

Atty. J. M. Lassing was in our town Friday, and said his mouth watered to read about the two fat coons Mr. Romulus caught. They do say John loves a barbecued coon and no mistake.

The storm kings were abroad in this section, Saturday night, and as a result fences, stables and smoke-stacks took a tumble. Mr. Bob Taggart awakened just in time to get his horse and cow out of the barn as it came down with a rush. Rouse & Co.'s mill came out minus a smoke-stack and—so on.

Miss Nannie Burket returned, recently, from a pleasant visit in Covington and Cincinnati, with relatives and friends. Mrs. T. A. Huey, of Covington, entertained elegantly in her honor "at tea," and other honors were offered in theater parties, &c., so we may conclude Miss Nannie will remember the holidays of '98 for some time.

Wednesday night it rained incessantly and "Fowler's Fork" became a raging torrent, dangerous alike to life and property. Mr. Jno Taggart and family, who live in the Brown house, were in that state of uncertainty, whether to move or not to move, was the question, as everything not chained at both ends was rolling down stream past their home. We believed that no person would be out on the creek such a night unless they were washed out, but have it from reliable sources that a certain lady living on Main St., conceived the romantic idea of seeing "Fowler's Fork" on a tear, and after putting on her husbands gum boots, mackintosh and storm hat, called on him to go, but being of unromantic disposition and believing overly strong in the doctrine of immersion, said nit. So the good wife called her brother to go, and after the brother had gotten on his best tan shoes and other winter goods, they sallied out and the husband changed his mind and followed suit. So kind readers, if you will throw wide open the doors of your imagination, take a paint brush with a seven foot handle to it, also a palette with colors of the right kind and sufficient quantity to paint in harmony with a night dark as a "stack of black cats," stand firmly in front of a canvass whose backgrouud is floating fodder shocks, fence post, dead cats and the like, then perhaps you can paint a picture of these three people as they meandered up and down the creek from High St., to the "Elm hole," but here's a time when the U. C. has to pass.

Goods roads, good churches and good schools are the keys that will unlock the happiness and prosperity of the present and future generations.

We never knew that we had a Klondike of our own until we saw an account of it in two or three editions of last week's Post. Already letters of inquiry concerning the valuable (?) discovery, have been received, and we are looking daily for the arrival of hundreds of miners with picks, shovels and pack mules. Quite a mad dog scare was in this part of the county, last week, or at least part of the neighborhood. It was reported that the dog had bitten numerous hogs, cows, and last but not least, a turkey gobbler. The parties who were so badly scared, at last mustered up courage enough to go out and kill the rabid creature. Next day A. B. Whitlock rode past looking for a lost hound pup. The people said they had not seen a hound pup, but had killed a mad dog. It turned out to be Mr. Whitlock's pup that he had turned loose that day. All is now minus a valuable dog and he feels very sorry that the dog was killed.

UTZINGERVILLE.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

In several issues of the RECORDER Dr. Crouch has given us long letters to prove that which everybody will acknowledge, namely: That good roads are beneficial to any community. Why did not the wiley Doctor go into details in regard to good roads? We have no doubt, he meant much more in the word "macadamized" than he at present wishes to disclose. While there is nothing very bad in Boone counties system of working the public roads, there is much that is wrong in putting this system in execution.

Nearly every section has a "Johnny Set-Around" whose daily occupatiou is to sit around the village store and talk of the great injustice of the crime of '73, or the great benefit of the gold standard or some other topic, about which he is just as wise. Then there is "Billie No-good," another valuable adjunct to the citizenship of every community. Suffice it to say, it does not take these worthies long to see that to be a road overseer, one will have about $2000 in his possession and that he can get a living out of this and not interfere in the least with his profession. The result is, they proceed to start around with their little petitions, which all their neighbors sign, but hoping and praying that neither will be appointed. A true interpretation of a petition reads thus: "To all whom this concerns: Know ye all men that this petition says in effect, if not in words, that the bearer of this wants a soft job in which he can make a living out of the public and the public get nothing in return." It finally devolves upon the County Judge to decide a very weighty question, one which he considers to be of the greatest importance to the welifare of the public, viz: which appointment would be the greatest vote-getter. It is a deplorable fact that a Judge too often thinks more of bettering his political nest than he does of benefiting the public. All these would be overseers know about working the public roads is "How not to do it." They do not wait till a Judge is elected but begin on him while he is a candidate. He is often informed by the kind and loving father that "his eldest hopeful is just 21, and would like to to be road overseer." Some times a mutual friend comes to a candidate and "puts a bug in his ear" by telling him that his "friend over the way would like to have a job of keeping the public roads in bad repair," and further more "give him a pointer" that his friend is some on election day and makes himself felt." The candidate forthwith hunts up this influential person and promises him the job of keeping some high way in green-apple-pie order.

Some or our friends of Bellevue want a bridge and bridges are wanted in one hundred other places in the county, in fact some of the dirt roads have reached so near perfection that they need bridges over their entire routes. Appoint no man who has a petition pinned to his coat-tail to boost him along, for a petition is a sure sign of incompetency. Appoint no youngster whose proper place is still in the nursery, because he knows no more about working the public roads than Dr. Crouch knows of the streets and passways of New Jerusalem. Appoint no one who wants the overseership for what there is in it, if you do, he will just as sure get it as one who makes poor appointments will get a free ticket up Salt River given him by an avengiug cout stituency. Appoint none but those really interested in the roads. Be careful whom you appoint to make the mud roads muddier and the creek roads rockier and you may "read your title clear."

The Highest Price of the Season.

Johnnie Hogau bought of O. P. Conner, last week, his crop of tobacco of 4,000 pounds, for which he paid 11 cents. This is the highest price paid in this county for a '97 crop, so far as we are informed. Mr. Conner is one of the best farmers in the county, and when it comes to raising tobacco he takes his hat off to no man.

I have a great deal of uncollected taxes, and have a considerable amount to collect before the road money becomes due. I hereby give you notice one time more through the Boone County Recorder, that unless they are paid at once, I will certainly have to advertise your property to satisfy same. It is not my desire to put you to that extra expense, but I am compelled to collect. This is my last notice in this manner. C. C. ROBERTS, ex-S. B C.

Last Saturday night the wind blew the houses swayed and cracked, and the occupants, many of them, grew uneasy and left their couches, and prepared to take a sail through space. The wind that night was the strongest that has visited this part of the county for a long time.

This is the season of the year when the turnpike question is sprung, annually, in many neighborhoods in the county. In many instances meetings have been called in the past and such steps taken as seemingly to insure the construction of the contemplated road, bnt about the time the subscription had reached an amount to justify the beginuing of the work, some unsurmountable obstacle would appear and down went McGinty.

The heavy rains this month have been destructive to roads, those in the creeks and branches having been washed out in some places and stones piled high in others, while those that course along the sides of the hills have slipped in numerous points, rendering them real dangerous. This month has been especially hard on the roads, and in some neighborhoods they were pronounced, last week, worse than they were ever known to be at this time of the year.

Business was brisk about the jail Monday afternoon. About 4 o'clock constable W. B. Dawson, of Mason county and Detective Gafney, of Covington, brought in Mike Teeters, who stole a cow belonging to Mrs. Alice Brown, of the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood. Judge Roberts fixed his bond at $300, in default of which Teeters was sent to jail. He confessed to the stealing. About 6 o'clock Sheriff Beall arrived from Covington with Hamlin, who shot Smith at the mouth of Gunpowder, and lodged him in jail.

HON. REUBEN CONNER,
Boone County's Representative in the present General Assembly.

Adjudged of Unsound Mind.

Mrs. Lucy Oder, of Florence, was tried before Judge Roberts and a jury, last Thursday, on a writ delunstico inquirendo. She was adjudged a lunatic and Jeff Stephens and Marion Oder were appointed a committee to convey her to the Lakeland asylum. Mrs. Oder is 63 years old, and her mind has been unbalanced several times during the last three or four years. Her mental condition was such that she could not be brought before the court.

A Good School.

J. H. Calhahan, one of the trustees of the Verona public school, was in town Friday, to meet Supt. Vosheil, and secure a list of the property in the Verona school district that is subject to taxation. Verona takes great pride in her public school, which enjoys the distinctiou of being the best equipped public school in the county, as to house, furniture and teachers. The teachers are J. H. Craven, principal and Misses Rouse and Wolfe, assistants, under whom the pupils are making rapid progress.

The B. P. Rice Gate.

B. P. Rice is preparing to push the sale of his patent gate this spring. The gate has made a good impression upon those to whom it has been exhibited and its working explained. It is a substantial gate, and easily operated, and is as perfect a barrier to stock as an old fashioned latch gate. Another point in this gate's favor is its construction, which is so simple that any farmer can repair it without trouble should it need it, which can not be said of many other patent gates.

An Important Arrest.

On Monday a writ was sworn out by Ed. Furgeson against John Shinkie charging him with the offense of seduction on promise of marriage with his sister, Lucy Furgeson. The writ was directed to Grant and other counties.—Williamstown Courier.

One of the writs for Shinkie's arrest reached the hands of Deputy Sheriff Allphin, and last Friday morning he arrested him at the residence of Bolivar Shinkie down on Gunpowder. He was brought to town and that afteruoon Sheriff Beall and his deputy, Mr. Allphin, took the young man to Williamstown and delivered him to the Grant county authorities. He gave bond in a short time after reaching Williamstown

Poor Tricks Is No More.

Chas. Westbay is in mourning, because of the fate that overtook his fast friend Tricks, a Water Spaniel, belonging to County Attorney Lassing. Charlie and Tricks were devoted friends, and when Charlie went with his wagou and team Tricks was sure to accompany him, spendiug much of his time perched upon the seat by Charley's side, but he made one too many trips when he went to Bellevue last Friday, where one of his hind legs was caught and crushed by a wagon when he was wont to escape from a dog that threateued to assult him. Charlie wrapped his disabled friend in a horse blauket and hauled him home, where an examinationshowed that the limb was horribly mashed, and Tricks was shot to put him out of his misery. Charlie will uot be consoled.

A Delightful Party.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B Berkshire and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Clutterbuck entertained at cards, last Friday evening, and their handsome double parlor was the scene of as gay an assemblage of young and middle aged people as ever assembled on such an occasion. There were seven card tables, each of which was surrounded by a group of four, who, for the time being, had banished dull care from their minds, and devoted their entire attention to the pleasures of the evening. The game, progressive euchre with the prize feature interdicted, was not permitted to grow dull and uninteresting at any time duriug the several hours it was indulged in. A delightful lunch of turkey and other delicacies was served after the amusement had been in progress for some times, and it was enjoyed by all. The guests were Misses Ella Duncan, Annie and Lottie Garrison, Katie Smith, Mary and Catharine Furlong, Fannie Finch, Olga Kirkpatrick, Mrs. J. M. Lassing, Mrs. H. W. Ryle; Messrs. E. S. McKim, Kirb Tanner, Geo. W. Sandford, Chas. Finch, Clem Kendall, Otto Crisler, Roy and Homer Clutterbuck, and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Cason, Mr. and Mrs W. L. Riddell. It was a late hour when the most pleasant occasion was brought to a conclusion, and the several guests, expressing their appreciation of the royal entertainment they had received, withdrew. Mrs. J. H. Ryle, of Erlanger, was present, and was an able assistant of her daughters in entertaining.

Just as we go to press we hear that Mr. and Mrs. Jas. E. Gaines' little boy is dead.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan'y. 24, 1898.

The Legislature has reached the record making period and many momentous questions will be settled in the two Houses before the end of this week. The committees are getting their work done; the scheduled bills are being reported or amended or substitutes prepared; the defects in the imperfect ones are being remedied. This fourth week of the term will doubtless be notable for the importance of the bills acted upon and the pertinence of the debates on these acts. Senator McChord's measure for empowering the railroad commissioners to fix freight rates on all the lines in the State, will be first debated today, and the discussion is expected to cover a wide range. The anti-school trust bill is to come up in the House tomorrow, and it is a furraising quantity itself. Then the bills to abolish the executive boards in the city of Louisville; to establish milk inspectors; to prevent Sunday baseball playing; to work the convicts on the public roads; to provide fines for canning impure food, fish, fruit or vegetables to consolidate the offices of sheriff and jailer, and the offices of assessor and magistrate; to reduce the salaries of State officers; to abolish the office of Commonwealth's Attorney; to establish a nonpartisan penitentiary commision, and numerous others, will be given their third reading, if not amended or killed during this week or within a few days thereafter. So that all considered the week seems pregnant with important legislative events and matters of import and moment.

When asked what he expected to do in the matter of reporting his penitentiary commission bill, Senator Bronston said: "I shall report it to the Senate this week without fail." "Will the bill pass?" was asked. "No, not in its present form," he said, "but I reserve the right to amend it and will do so to the end that it will be satisfactory and become a law. I shall make the commissioners elective by the Legislature and as follows: one for two years; one for four years and the other for six. In this way there will be a new commissioner elected at each session of the Legislature." There are applicants galore for these prospective offices already, and before the bill has become effective almost every section and county in the State will be represented in the scramble. It is expected that the law will become operative about the time the present session adjourns, and that there will be a wholesale turning out of Republicans at the penitentiary by the new board.

Nothing daunted by his numerous ineffectual efforts to bring up from its burial place in the committee, that resolution calling upon Senator Lindsay to resign or do something quite as arbitrary, representative Saunders, of Union, continues to let his voice be heard in motions for the reconsideration of the resolution which seems to be his cherished dream of Solon-like duty. It now seems probable that the gentleman from Union will not see his hope realized, for the conservative element in the House has sidetracked the rather radical demand, seemingly for all time.

I looked everywhere to learn the source of a rumor to the effect that a Grant, and a Boone, county man had decided to contest for one of the prison board places. I can learn no basis for the rumor. The positions are good ones, however, and the applicants can afford to come out in the open and make a noon-day scramble for the goal.

Representative Conner has been a busy man the past week, and has worked even harded than he did the first week he came here. His committee work has consumed much of his time, and he is also getting ready to offer more new bills to which he has been giving much care and attention.

Mr. Conuer's bill to reduce the per capita of the asyiums from $1 55 to $1 25 is in the hands of the committee on charitable institutions, and, I understand, will be favorably reported this week.

The little junket, last Friday, to Lexingtou, where real old bluegrass hospitality was enjoyed, is the one oasis the members can look back upon in the capital city desert. Then they have the trip to witness the launching of the battleship Kentucky, at Newport News, February 15th, to look forward to and anticipate with a feeling of pleasant satisfaction.

I heard a man who had never been in either House say yesterday, "well, we've got soft snaps; work an hour a day and adjourn." He didn't know that the hour or two in the House sessions was the least of a member's work. Almost all their time is devoted to committee work, framing new bills, arranging matters for constituents and answering correspondence.

The friends of Senator Goebel are said to be arranging to spring his Gubernatorial boom at a banquet, which, I understand, is to be given here within the next few weeks. I learn that this plan has been agreed upon as the best to give a sharp impetus to the boom in its incipiency.

I have heard that Col. Dick Ernst's friends are going to insist on him announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor. One man from Covington said yesterday: "I believe Ernst is one of the few young men in our party, who can be nominated and elected." A View of a Mother in Heaven.

O, could I but climb up Zion's hill,
Where we all shall meet one another.
There I see that sweet angel face,
That was once on earth as a mother.

She is clothed in a robe of white,
With a crown of glory and honor.
She is as a shining light—
Which Jesus has bestowed upon her.

O, how sweet it will be,
When we meet to part, no never.
That sweet face once more I'll see.
It will be forever and ever.

A WINTER SCENE.

Hurrah! hurrah! the children cry—
The echoes linger long;
The fire of youth in every eye,
Upon each lip a song.

The frost lies glistening on the snow,
And ice in every stream;
On each dear face a ruddy glow,
Bright as an artist's dream.

No thought of winter's bitter cold,
Winds whistling in the trees,
Could daunt a spirit half as bold,
Or check such hearts as these.

Some speed away on skates of steel,
The glassy banks descend;
With forward stride and graceful wheel,
I hear their laughter blend.

And others, coasting down the hill,
A bounding sled astride,
Do quaff their cup of joy and fill
Their merry hearts with pride.

Let those who sigh for warmer days,
And say that winter's drear,
Their voices join with ours in praise
And welcome winter here.

He Didn't Know the Game.

THE DRUMMER'S LESSONS IN PACIFIC COAST POKER.

"BEFORE sitting into a game of poker anywhere near tidewater out on the Pacific coast you'll always find it a pretty good scheme to make a few preliminary inquiries of your fellow players as to the kind of poker you're expected to mix up with," said a traveling man who had recently returned to the east after a tour on the slope. "Because I neglected to do this myself on several occasions, I got into all sorts of embarrassing situations, and all colors of poker trouble all the way from Portland, Ore., to San Diego, Cal., and the fellows with whom I did little stunts at draw—all good people, business men I met with through letters—put me down as the worst jay in a game of cards that ever crossed the Rocky mountains. The folks out there think we're all jays back here, anyhow, if for no other reason than that we haven't brains enough to migrate in a body to the Pacific slope, but they complacently told me that I was the worst of the species they had ever seen, simply because I couldn't seem to get the hang of the queer old game they call poker out in that country.

"The game they dub poker out there isn't poker at all, in my opinion. It's a hybrid sort of affair, full of fancy moves that must have been chucked into the original game by early California vaqueros with such a taste for embellishment that they had to tack gilt fringe on to their pants and encircle their hats with silver cable. Whatever they call it, it's not American draw poker by a darned sight. The kind of poker that I was raised on—the real thing, the article of draw that we play on this side of the Alleghenies—doesn't take any more account of the joker, for instance, than it does of the card case; but out in California they think a man's plumb blind crazy if he registers a kick over having the joker in the deck. I'd as lief play old maid or grab for cornsilk cigarettes as to play draw poker with the joker mixed up in it; but out there I had to take the game as it was served up, and, as between poker with a joker and no poker at all, I, of course, accepted the lesser of the two evils, and played. But I got dumped on the game for about 2,000 miles of coast line, and that, too, by people who didn't have to count themselves because they were so many at a game. The trouble was that I played the game of draw that I was brought up on, and they played their cross-bred game, and the result was about as queer as it would be to see a baseball pitcher chucking up a Rugby football to a cricket batsman with a fence picket in his hands.

"I'll not forget my first run-in with this poker-joker idea. This was my first visit to the slope, you know, and, although I'd often heard vaguely that young 'uns, playing draw for beans or tin tags, once in awhile shoved the joker into the pack for the fun of the thing, I, of course, never dreamed that rational adult human beings in any quarter of the earth could have the nerve to inflict such a dismal outrage upon the noble game of draw as to slap the joker into a poker deck. But I found out different the very first game of draw that I sat into out in San Francisco.

"It was a four-handed game, and I was the only easterner in the bunch. The other three fellows were business men who belong to the Native Sons' organization, which accounts for the weird brand of poker they played. They played what was taught 'em in their youth out there; didn't know any better, and thought, and no doubt still think, that their game is right.

"I was banker, and dished up the first hand. It was 25 cents ante and five dollars limit. I gave myself two rattling good pairs, kings up on tens. All of the other fellows stayed, and the man on my right made it a couple of dollars more to draw cards. This let two of them out of it, but I thought my two pairs were good enough for a two-dollar raise, and so I played with the raiser, drew one card, and so, of course, did he. He made a wise bet, and he came at me on the side with the limit. I'd caught a king, and had as neat-looking a hand as a man needs to have in any game.

"'I'll see you,' said I, and we shoved our stacks back and forth until there was a small fortune in the pot. Said fortune was the stake that you beat, my friend, if you know the game is straight, by holding fours or better, especially on the side and, even if you have a pair of queens—which you probably haven't, for the percentage is plumb against you—you certainly haven't got aces on top.' Now, that was good poker reasoning, the kind of reasoning that has kept me necktie and peanut money ahead of the game anyway for 20 years or so, and I gave him the raise-back just as often as he threw it at me.

"Finally said he: 'We are getting out of our depth, and beyond the breaker line, ain't we? I've got you manhandled, but you junipers from the east never can feel the hunch when you're licked, and so I'll skate in my little five and call you.'

"We each had about $80 in the pot then.

"I spread out my three royal gentlemen topping the pair of tens, and was about to make some good-natured crack about getting a hoe to scoop in my winnings on the first hand when he spread out his hand and raked in the pot with a smile. His hand consisted of a pair of aces up on a pair of sixes and the joker.

"'What the dickens are you doing there?' I asked him when he raked in the pot. 'Can't you see it's a misdeal? I forgot to take the joker out of the deck.'

"'Misdeal nothing,' he replied, visiting friends on the I. joker'em to get around smiling. 'You had a right, but aces beat kings anywhere, from Tuolumne to Point Loma, and I've got 'em. Sunday.

"'Yes,' said I, 'aces up, but I've got aces up, and I've got the entertained a number up, and it's a misdeal.' Wednesday.

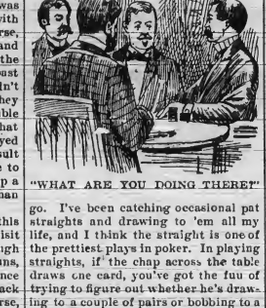
"Well, they all looked at O. W. Gaines thought I ought to be in a lunatic asylum. This is improvlum.

"'Misdeal?' said my friend, who had swiped in the pot. 'What the deuce are you giving us, anyhow? I caught the joker on the draw, and it just filled my hand—three aces and a pair of sixes. Don't an ace-full beat a king-full in that desolate Atlantic coast region you hail from?'

"'You mean to call the joker an ace?' said I, the thing beginning to dawn upon me.

"The three fellows gazed at me as if they were trying to find out if I was drunk or not.

"'Why, do you mean to say,' said the man I had played with, 'that you don't know that in poker the joker is any old thing you choose to make it—that, when you get it either on the deal or on the draw, you can call it anything you want to call it to eke out a pair, flush, full house or anything else? Tell you what, old man, you need sleep. You've been working too hard. Turn in and have a long night of it.'



"I couldn't help but laugh.

"'Well,' said I, 'you people may call this joker-jigging poker, but somehow or another it suggests tag and I-spy and little girls singing "London bridge is falling down" to me. Why don't you play poker with a pinochle deck and be done with it? Come on, and we'll build card houses, or what's the matter with playing casino for chalk or pinwheels?'

"'Why don't you benighted people back east use the joker?'

"'Yes,' said I, 'we do. We always give the joker in a new deck to babies in arms to cut their teeth on.'

"Another queer kink in the slope game of draw is that straights don't go. I've been catching occasional pat straights and drawing to 'em all my life, and I think the straight is one of the prettiest plays in poker. In playing straights, if the chap across the table draws one card, you've got the fun of trying to figure out whether he's drawing to a couple of pairs or bobbing to a straight or a flush, and it's interesting work. If he stands pat, it's up to you to determine by the mind-reading process whether he's simply bluffing or actually has a pat straight or full hand or flush in his paws.

"Well, out on the coast they've heard occasional rumors of such things as straights being played somewhere or another in the game of draw, but you won't meet one coast man in a hundred that knows precisely what the straight consists of and what the chances are of a man's getting a pat straight or of filling a one-ended or double-ended straight. As for playing straights, they've never even dreamed of such an absurdity. I found that out in the second game of draw I got into out there.

"It was in Portland, and another four-handed game, the other three fellows being business men also. We played along for awhile without my running into any snags sticking out of the coast game, and then I got on the deal four cards that had in them the makings of a corking good straight, capable of being filled at either end, from a nine up to queen, so that either an eight or a king on the draw would have fixed me all right. I decided to draw to it just for luck, although all three of the fellows were in and had stood a raise before the draw. When I caught my king I was glad I had decided to draw to my straight. A king-high straight is a pretty good mess of cards in any man's game of draw as we know it back in these parts.

"There was a heap of betting on that round, and, of course, with that clipper-built straight of mine, I wasn't going to let any of 'em put it on me. I met every raise and stuck so persistently and confidently that the whole three of them began to regard me as the main guy so far as that deal was concerned, and to look a bit afraid of me. The last time I raised it they kind o' exchanged looks, and the man at my left called me. The two other men followed suit, and there was a general laying down of hands. The man at my left had three eights, the fellow next to him had aces up on treys, and the man at my right three sixes. I projected my right arm to sweep in the good-sized pot after spreading out my king-high straight.

"'Hold up there!' they all yelled at me at once. 'What's all this? What are you trying to do—hypnotize us?' And the man who had laid down his three eights made a reach for the pot.

"It was now my turn to think the whole lot of 'em looney.

"'Is there so much smoke in here,' said I, 'that you three people can't perceive that I've got a king-high straight?'

"'Straight?' said the man with the three eights. 'Straights be blamed! You've got one king up on nothing. How old are you, anyhow—seven? Eight? Listen to him!' HE LEVIED ON THE DINNER.

How a Tennessee Officer Collected a Debt.

"The most interesting levy I ever heard of," said Squire Bell to a reporter, "was one that I made some time in 1868 or 1869, when I was a marshal of the Memphis municipal court. I don't remember the plaintiff in the case, but old Col. Cockerill, who used to run a hotel where the Peabody is now, was the defendant. The case was tried and judgment given for the plaintiff. An execution was issued, and in those days the court had quarterly terms and all papers had to be served during the quarter or a report made why they were not served. Well, I would go out and see the colonel and begin to urge him to do something toward paying the judgment, but he would always invite me into his room to take a mint julep. Then he would become so plausible and make so many promises that I kept putting off the levy till the quarterly term was nearly up. About this time the attorney for the plaintiff came to me and said he was tired of fooling along like that and wanted to know how many mint juleps I had been drinking with the colonel. This scared me some, so I determined I would do something at once.

"I went to see the colonel again, and after refusing the usual invitation to take the mint julep, I told him that he would have to do something. He said that if I would just wait till Tuesday, which was the last day of the term, he would settle up.

"'Suppose you make it Monday, Colonel,' I said, for I knew that if I failed to make the levy on Tuesday my execution was dead, and I wanted a day of grace. Well, the colonel agreed to settle up on Monday.

"When Monday came the colonel was awfully sick, and his three boys, who were in the office, would let nobody see him. There were in those days, just as there are now, a lot of men lying round and waiting to get on the jury. I had counted the doors of the hotel dining-room, and I picked out a man for each door and gave them $1.50 apiece and told them down to the hotel. When the gong sounded for dinner I had a man stand at each door and not let anyone go in. There was a great deal of travel in those days, and the hotel was crowded. Pretty soon the people began to fill up the halls and wonder what was the matter. The doors of the dining-room were glass, and the people could see the tables set and the waiters standing 'round, but they couldn't get in.

"This didn't last very long before the old colonel sent for me. 'I call this a low trick, Mr. Ball,' he said.

"'No low trick at all, colonel,' said I. 'I have done a thing never done before in the world. I have leveled on a hot dinner, and I am going to hold it till that money's paid.'

"The colonel waxed wroth and swore he would beat the attorney in the case just as soon as he got well. But finding that his getting hot didn't keep the dinner from getting cold, he finally sent for the bookkeeper, who brought up about $300, which lacked just $150 of satisfying the judgment. The colonel wanted to get off with this, but I demanded security. He was lying in bed, and reached under his pillow and produced me a watch and chain worth twice as much as was still due."—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

TOSSED BY THE HURRICANE.

The Sharp "Colonel" and the Wrecked "Captain" Dine Together.

Two men who had been chums in a western town before a financial hurricane hit it met for the first time in 11 years in a Sixth avenue eating house the other day. In the days of their prosperity one of them was a political lever and was called colonel. He had been on the governor's staff. The other in some way had acquired the title of captain. Both had front seats in every event of the town in which they had lived. The governor's ornament is now a plain bookkeeper in Broad street. The other man is a dry goods clerk.

After greetings, explanations, and a few mournful references to perished delights, they had a combination meal, and if you don't know what that is you have never had any trouble, and anyone who casts a shadow is worse than a heathen. When the meal was over the two old friends walked out and stood for a few minutes under the splutter of an arc light. As they were parting the man who used to ride the big bay horse in the governor's parade, and who had commanded the populace of his town to stand back, said in a low, mourner-like tone:

"If you come to see me don't call me colonel. Nobody knows me as colonel now. I am just an employe on a salary."

The arc light spluttered again as the little man replied, in a squeaky, hall-bedroom voice:

"And if you come to see me just call me 'Say, you!' That's what everybody calls me in the store."

"Well, good-by, captain."

"So long, colonel."

It was the first time they had heard the titles in years, and each walked away with a lighter step and lighter heart.—N. Y. Sun.

The Saut-De-Lit.

The saut-de-lit or jump-out-of-bed, is nicest built of soft French flannel or of double-faced cashmere, and should hung in a double box plait behind, with straight seams under the arms and a very ample front that will fold widely about one with one gesture, the collar a wide shawl affair that rolls back down the whole front. For instance, in white double-faced cashmere a wrap is lined with pink cashmere, which rolls over to face the broad collar and shawl fronts, wide Japanese sleeves being long enough to turn widely up to show the pink lining. The edges are all piped with a cord of pink silk, and a thick, pink silk rope may be knotted about the wrist, run through little white ribbon loops, either under or over the plaits of the back.—Boston Herald.

HOLD TO THE RATIO.

Sixteen to One is the Standard of Liberality.

In the United States the battle for bimetallism must be lost or won on the ratio of sixteen to one. No other ratio is practicably possible on which the battle can be fought. The attempt, in the northeast corner of the democratic camp, to raise again the question of ratio, is by men who are secretly hostile to the use of silver as true money. Could they have their way, they would cast aside entirely the issue of bimetallism. At present their antagonism goes no further than an attack on the ratio, for the reason that they believe they can attack the ratio without having their claim to being democrats questioned.

All considerations require that the ratio should not be wider than sixteen to one. If it were to be changed at all, it should be narrowed, to correspond to the ratio of the Latin union, fifteen and one-half to one, which would make it easier for France, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland, Greece, Spain and Russia to follow the lead of the United States in opening the mints to the free coinage of silver. After the battle is won in this country, the nations named will still be retarded by an uncertainty as to the effect on their currency of the one-half point difference between their ratio and ours. America, to secure their cooperation, may ultimately find it to her advantage to remint her silver at the ratio named. But as we are not assured of the support of those countries, there is no reason why we should, at this time, go out of our way to oblige them, especially as they leave us to fight the battle alone.

In all arguments by our adversaries, silver is priced in gold. Very well; as words go, we can as well use that manner of speech as any other. Remember, then, silver is priced in terms of gold. With this for a basis on which to work, let us compare the recent centuries and see about what the ratio should be, in the light of silver and gold productions of this century.

From the discovery of America to the year 1600 the world produced 30 ounces of silver to one of gold, and yet the ratio was about fourteen to one. During the next century the world's output was 40 ounces of silver to one of gold, yet the ratio was scarcely more than fifteen to one. In the next century, 1701 to 1800, the production was again 30 ounces of silver to one of gold, with no appreciable change of the ratio; yet there had been a variation in the ratio of production of over 25 per cent. As both metals had free coinage, this difference in ratio of production was not able to make itself felt in the commercial ratio.

During the first ten years of this century, 50 ounces of silver were produced to every ounce of gold, yet the ratio was not thrown out of joint. In the second ten years the world's production was 49 ounces of silver to one of gold. According to the theories of gold monometallists, the ratios of all the nations in the world should have gone all to pieces at this sudden widening of the ratio of production. But the currencies of the world were not unsettled, and the wisdom of bimetallism was demonstrated beyond reasonable argument. As the century wore on, new gold mines were found, and the production of gold increased enormously. Thus, from 1850 to 1870 there were 5½ ounces of silver produced to one of gold. If the theory of some that the ratio of production regulates the ratio of commerce were true, then the ratio of value between silver and gold would have been not sixteen to one, but less than six to one. But no such change in values took place, and the truth of the bimetallic theory was again demonstrated. From 1871 to 1895 the world yielded 17 ounces of silver to one of gold. During the entire period from 1850 to 1895 the relative production was only 13 2-3 ounces of silver to one of gold.

Thus, the sixteenth century gave 30 ounces of silver to one of gold; the seventeenth century 40 ounces of silver to one of gold; the eighteenth century 30 of silver to one of gold; the first 95 years of the nineteenth century gives 13 2-3 ounces of silver to one of gold. We have the lowest productive ratio of four centuries, and the highest coinage ratio; and yet, in the face of all this, the speculators in the yellow metal have the splendid effrontery to stand up and with long faces tell the nation that we need a yet wider ratio.

The ratio of sixteen to one is exceedingly liberal. The wide commercial ratio is due entirely to legislation hostile to silver and favorable to gold. The tremendous power of such legislation is seen in the effect that it has had on the price of silver in a century of low silver production as compared to gold. We must stand by the ratio. There can be no compromise. Nothing can now stop the onward sweep of the army of liberation. If traitors get in the way they will be crushed.

H. P. THURSTON.

Blasphemous Hanna.

Hanna's blasphemous message was a coarse plagiarism of President Garfield's famous speech, which was called forth by a terrible panic. When Mr. Garfield stepped into the New York stock exchange even the veterans were almost hysterical. All eyes were turned upon Mr. Garfield, who stood for a moment in impressive silence, and then, in this calm, deep, thrilling voice, began: "God reigns, and the government at Washington endures." At a word the panic was ended and the business men regained their courage. There was nothing sacrilegious in the inspired assertion of a relation between our glorious government and our God. It was left to a vulgar boss, exulting over a narrow escape from defeat, to suggest a connection between God's reign and the survival of a corrupt political party.—Kansas City Times.

—Hanna has demonstrated that it's easy to pry open the doors of the United States senate if one only gets sufficient purchase.—Chicago Dispatch.

DISCARD FALSE FRIENDS.

The Apostacy of a Former Advocate of Free Silver.

As might have been expected, the gold-advocating press is rejoicing over the flop to the gold standard made by the New York Journal. But the gold men admit the fact well known to democrats that the Journal never was sincere friend of bimetallism, and that it practically abandoned the cause after the election of McKinley. In this connection the leading republican morning newspaper of Chicago says: "That the New York Journal has seceded from the Democratic cause has been known since the final adjudication of the sixteen to one falling at the polls; but that Journal never pretended to has made an open stand against the Republican peripatetic statesman from Nebraska." False friends are more dangerous than open enemies, and the defection of the Journal is a gain rather than a loss to democracy. The cause of the people cannot be injured by the apostacy of one nor of a dozen newspapers; the only injury that can be done the cause must come from the people themselves. There may be leaders in democratic ranks who are merely masquerading as friends of bimetallism. The time has come for them to declare themselves. There is but one question of vital importance to this nation, and that is the question of the currency. The fact is recognized by the people, and 6,500,000 democratic voters recorded their demand for the restoration of the money of the constitution at the polls in November, 1896. Let all those who secretly believe in the creed of gold abandon their ambush. The people demand true service, and insist on knowing who are friends and who are foes.

BOODLE TRIUMPHANT.

Scandal and Corruption of Hanna's Election.

Mark Hanna has again proved himself a good "business man." After a hard and personally conducted fight he has secured the "delivery of the goods" he had bought. He was elected senator from Ohio for seven years.

This result is the most shameless and scandalous triumph of corruption ever known in our political history. Seven republican members of the legislature united in charging bribery upon Hanna and his agents and in demanding an investigation of the charges. Five of these pledged themselves to vote for Hanna, in spite of their determined opposition to his election, if the charges of bribery were shown to be untrue. Yet by a single vote in joint session the demand was ignored and the great boodler was elected.

It was a fitting climax to this brazen performance that the republican members, who had to be kept under guard to insure their "staying bought," joined in singing "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow," when the infamy was consummated! Smug hypocrisy and Pharisaic plutocracy, as represented in the Ohio republicanism of which McKinley and Hanna are perfect types, touched the lowest depths in thus celebrating with blasphemy the triumph of boodle.—N. Y. World.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

—Among the famous books of the year may be mentioned the one which rested fitfully in the inside pocket of Marcus Alonzo Hanna.—Omaha World-Herald.

—All the advices from Columbus confirm the theory that Mr. Hanna's election was a triumph for sound money—judiciously distributed. — Chicago Chronicle.

—It is possible that there might have been another outcome of the Ohio election as bad as the choice of Hanna. It is not possible that there could have been another much worse.—N. Y. Times.

—The question as to whether Dingley and McKinley have brought prosperity is the leading topic in New England manufacturing circles. It is proposed to settle it by a strike.— N. Y. World.

—Hanna won by the joint forces of money and intimidation, which composed his stock in trade in the presidential campaign. President McKinley is still to have the old man of the mountain on his shoulders.—Pittsburgh Post.

—Hanna's victory was achieved by a fearful sacrifice of principle. His credentials will bear the taint of coercion and corruption, and his election leaves the republican party in Ohio demoralized and disgraced.—Rochester Herald.

—By refusing to adopt the resolution calling for an investigation of direct and explicit charges of attempted bribery Hanna's supporters at Columbus have admitted the truth of the accusations. Their only answer is that of Boss Tweed: "What are you going to do about it?"—St. Louis Republic.

—Hanna's election may be a vindication of McKinley's administration, but it is a very expensive vindication. Hanna will be a heavier load to the administration hereafter than he has been heretofore, and he will weaken the republican party not only in Ohio but throughout the country. — Louisville Dispatch.

—Hanna, defeated or elected, is a splendid campaign argument for the democrats—a living and moving argument. He embodies in his career everything that is repulsive and objectionable in our politics, and the higher he goes the more reason there is for voting the republican party out of existence.—Atlanta Constitution.

—The use of unscrupulous methods of coercion, cajolery and corruption has availed to land Hanna the winner, but it is nonsense to talk of it as a popular victory. The people of Ohio may have done some rash things, but they do not yet deserve the aspersion of suspicion that they admire Hanna and the methods and practical principles for which he stands. Hanna has won—but at the cost of an organized protest which has rent asunder the president's party in the president's own state, and is likely, if the Ohio democrats are wise, to make that state democratic for years to come.—Albany Argus.

USING CONVICT LABOR.

How to Solve a Vexed Problem to Everybody's Advantage.

Between that sickly sentimentality which makes him an object of such tender solicitude as to restrain him from proper physical exercise, and that brutality which drives him to despair, the present-day convict has a [illegible] of it. Much as we may de[illegible] latter, it is a fair question if pain [illegible] be not the more demoralizing [illegible] ultimate consequences.

These reflections are suggested by an interesting letter on "Convict La[illegible] and Good Roads," from the pen of Sp[illegible] Edwards, of Hillsboro, Ill. His sug[illegible]tion that convict labor may be employed in the preparation of road metal will surely meet with the approval of every citizen who understands the meaning of true philanthropy. We say this because we desire for the moment to remove from the discussion the economic features of the case, and consider the convict not as a subject of our condemnation and punishment, but as one diseased morally and needful of treatment and cure.

What does such a patient most need? Not a physician but will answer that first of all he must have healthful exercise and plenty of it. When we come to apply the remedy what do we find? That public sentiment is opposed, and rightfully, to the competition of convict labor with free labor. How, then, shall the convict be employed for the public benefit without entering into competition with free labor? In just such manner as Mr. Edwards suggests, only we should extend his field of usefulness just as far as the nature of the individual convict permitted, and make him a worker upon the roadbed, giving to "trusties" such a degree of freedom as would aid to make them better men and fit them to return to honest ways when their term of imprisonment had expired.

We have heard much of good roads of late years; but most of the discussion has ended with talk, and but little, comparatively speaking, has been accomplished. We believe this is largely due to lack of concerted movement. We are convinced that if the states through which an air line road from, say, Buffalo, N. Y., to the Pacific coast were to unite in the construction of such a highway, and would employ no other than convict labor, each state's prisoners to work upon the roadway of that state, the result would be such an era of good-road making as would soon lift the agricultural sections of the United States out of the mire, transform travel and life in the country as much as the paved streets in the cities have added to the comfort and pleasure of those who dwell in them, and remove the heaviest tax now resting upon agricultural production. This may be said to be a sentimental way of going about it. But we do many things from sentiment, and more interest or [illegible] aroused in some such interstate roadway than by all the states in the union working single-handed and without purpose.

Such a road would bring to its support the wheelmen of the nation, and they have shown a commendable spirit of helpfulness and a willingness to bear their share of the burdens attending good roads. It would lend to the construction of the states through which this interstate highway passed of a series of laterals which would bring all sections into connection with the main avenue. It would make possible a summer outing for thousands of people who now are withheld from its enjoyment by the expense attending, and would transform the country into a scene of life and pleasure, such as now is witnessed only in the country districts of certain European lands.

Our prisons are to-day a burden upon the people. They should be made self-supporting, and in doing this the highest good of convicts may be conserved. To use this labor in transforming the bogs and mudholes, which compose a large portion of our country roads, into dry, smooth highways, would be to give to it a purpose in itself stimulating to the moral growth of the men engaged in it. Of its advantages to the people, especially to agriculturists, there is no room for discussion.—Farmers' Voice.

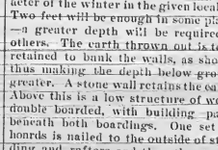
The Beet Sugar Industry.

Claus Spreckels is said to have over $2,000,000 invested in beet sugar refineries. In one factory alone 3,000 tons of beets are consumed each day. Annually, in this country, 2,000,000 tons of sugar are used. Owing to the insufficiency of the home supply much of the sugar required by the great fruit and condensed milk factories is imported. In order to give us the necessary amount of sugar each year 1,333,333 acres of beet-producing land, yielding 3,000 pounds of sugar to an acre, should be cultivated. It is believed that farmers may realize three times as much money from raising sugar beets as from crops of wheat.

Dark stables are promoters of disease and impure milk.

GROWING CELERY.

A Method That Has Been Practiced with Great Success.



The following is my plan for growing celery: Instead of sowing the seed in a hot bed or cold frame, as practiced in Europe, it is sown in the open ground, as soon as it is fit to work, in April, and kept carefully clear of weeds until the time of planting, in June and July. In our warmer climate, if raised in hot beds, as in England, a majority of the plants would run to seed. The tops are shorn off once or twice before planting, so as to insure "stocky" plants, which suffer less on being transplanted. After the ground has been nicely prepared, lines are struck out on the level surface three feet apart, and the plants set six inches apart in rows. If the weather is dry at the time of planting great care should be taken that the roots are properly "firmed." Our custom is to turn back on the row and press by the side of each plant gently with the foot. This compacts the soil and partially excludes the air from the roots until new rootlets are formed, which will usually be in 48 hours, after which all danger is over. This practice of pressing the soil closely around the roots is essential in planting of all kinds, and millions of plants are annually destroyed by its omission. After the planting of the celery is completed nothing further is to be done for six or seven weeks, except running between the rows with the cultivator or hoe, and freeing the plants of weeds until they get strong enough to crowd them down. This will bring us to about the middle of August, by which time we have usually that moist and cold atmosphere essential to the growth of celery. Then we begin the "earthing up" necessary for the blanching and whitening of that which is wanted for use during the months of September, October and November. The first operation is that of handling, as we term it; that is, after all the soil has been drawn up against the plant with the hoe it is further drawn close around each plant by the hand firm enough to keep the leaves in an upright position and prevent them from spreading. This being done more soil is drawn against the row (either by the plow or hoe, as circumstances require), so as to keep the plant in this upright position. The blanching process must, however, be finished by the spade, which is done by digging the soil from between the rows and banking it up clear to the top on each side of the row of celery. Three feet is ample distance between the dwarf varieties, but when larger sorts are used the width of the rows should be four or five feet.—J. E. Dillon, in Agricultural Epitomist.

FOR THE FRUIT FARm.

How to Build a Practical Fruit and Vegetable House.

A fruit and vegetable house is a necessity where any considerable quantity of these products is to be housed. The requirements are accessibility and the possibility of maintaining a low—but not freezing—temperature during the months of winter. A cross section of a house meeting these requirements is shown herewith. A sandy or gravelly knoll, if conveniently located, is suitable and a few feet of excavation is made, the depth depending on the character of the winter in the given locality. Two feet will be enough in some places—a greater depth will be required in others. The earth thrown out is to be retained to bank the walls, as shown, thus making the depth below ground greater. A stone wall retains the earth. Above this is a low structure of wood, double boarded, with building paper beneath both boardings. One set of boards is nailed to the outside of studding and rafters and the other to the inside of the same, as shown.

The ends of the building are banked up like the sides, and a door is placed in one end above the earth in the position of the dotted lines. Double doors, with glass in the upper part of each, should be used. A curtain can be placed over the glass of the inner door to keep the interior dark, if desired, to be drawn when one enters the building for any purpose. Such a building can be cheaply constructed and should prove very serviceable. A small ventilator can be carried up from near the bottom and out through the roof, if needed.—N. Y. Tribune.

Sand will make a very good absorbent in the stable, the only objection being that it will get into the hair.

It is always well to milk a stream or two on the ground to carry away any dirt that may be at the orafice.

Cold milk absorbs odors very readily, but cold or warm it should never be brought in contact with odors.—Western Plowman.

She Wanted All the Days.

There is always a bountiful crop of stories concerning the doings of congressional women, new congressional women, at this season of the year. Most of the tales are apochryphal, but this one is perfectly true, for the stationer himself told me about it. The woman is the wife of a member from somewhere in the west, and she had never been in Washington till a fortnight ago. She went to a stationer's to order visiting cards.

"What day do you wish engraved on them?" asked the clerk.

"Oh," answered Mrs. Congressman, "I've got to have several days. I can't make all my callsin one day. Engrave me some cards for Monday calls, and some for Tuesday, and—well, it's going to be expensive, but I guess I've got to do it. Make me some for every day in the week except Sunday."—Washington Post.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. A Total Disability Claim of $1,650 Paid to a Man who was Afterward Cured.

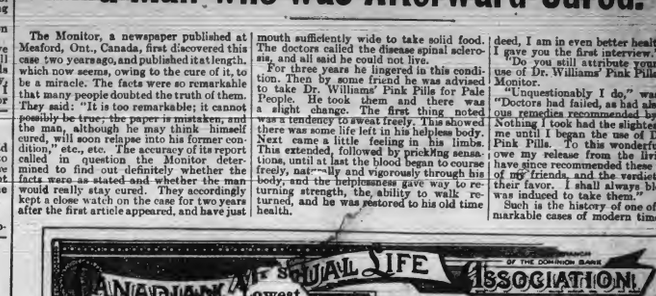
The Monitor, a newspaper published at Meaford, Ont., Canada, first discovered this case two years ago, and published it at length, which now seems, owing to the cure of it, to be a miracle. The facts were so remarkable that many people doubted the truth of them. They said: "It is too remarkable; it cannot possibly be true; the paper is mistaken, and the man, although he may think himself cured, will soon relapse into his former condition," etc., etc. The accuracy of its report called in question the Monitor determined to find out definitely whether the facts were as stated and whether the man would really stay cured. They accordingly kept a close watch on the case for two years after the first article appeared, and have just published another article about it in which the original reports are completely verified, the cure is permanent, and they publish a fac simile of the check given by the Canadian Mutual Life Association for $1,650.00 amount of total disability claim paid by them to Mr. Petch.

The first account stated that the patient (see address below) had been a paralytic for five years, and there was such a total lack of feeling in his limbs and body that a pin run full length could not be felt; that he could not walk or help himself at all: for two years he was not dressed; furthermore, that he was bloated, was for that reason almost unrecognizable, could not get his clothes on. The paralysis was so complete as to affect the face and prevent him from opening his mouth sufficiently wide to take solid food. The doctors called the disease spinal sclerosis, and all said he could not live.

For three years he lingered in this condition. Then by some friend he was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He took them and there was a slight change. The first thing noted was a tendency to sweat freely. This showed there was some life left in his helpless body. Next came a little feeling in his limbs. This extended, followed by prickling sensations, until at last the blood began to course freely, naturally and vigorously through his body, and the helplessness gave way to returning strength, the ability to walk returned, and he was restored to his old time health.

The above is the substance of the first article published by the Monitor. Now follow some clippings, taken from the same paper two years afterward, and there is not the slightest shadow of a doubt, in view of this testimony, that Mr. Petch's cure is permanent. Here follows the account:

On being again questioned, Mr. Petch said: "You can see those hands—the skin is now natural and elastic. Once they were hard and without sensation. You could pierce them with a pin and I would not feel it, and what is true of my hands is true of the rest of my body. Perhaps you have observed that I have now even ceased to use a cane, and can get about my business perfectly well. You may say there is absolutely no doubt as to my cure being permanent. Indeed, I am in even better health than when I gave you the first interview."



"Do you still attribute your cure to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?" asked the Monitor.

"Unquestionably I do," was the reply. "Doctors had failed, as had also the numerous remedies recommended by my friends. Nothing I took had the slightest effect upon me until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To this wonderful medicine I owe my release from the living death. I have since recommended these pills to many of my friends, and the verdict is always in their favor. I shall always bless the day I was induced to take them."

Such is the history of one of the most remarkable cases of modern times. Can any one say, in the face of such testimony, that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not entitled to the careful consideration of any suffering man, woman or child? Is not the case in truth a miracle of modern medicine?

To make the evidence complete we publish above a fac simile cut of the check received by Mr. Petch from the Canadian Mutual Life Association, being the amount due him for total disability. It is unnecessary to add that this life insurance association did not pay this large amount of money to Mr. Petch, except after the most careful examination of his condition by their medical experts. They must have regarded him as forever incurable.

Mr. Petch's address is as follows: Reuben Petch, Griersville, Ont., Canada.

"My dear young friend," said the employer who believes that a fatherly interest is better than a big salary, "do you think the salary you are drawing justifies your playing poker?"

IDEAL GRANDMOTHERS.

Women Who Know the Laws of Nature and Obey Them May Live to Green Old Age.

Mrs. Pinkham Says When We Violate Nature's Laws Our Punishment Is Pain—If We Continue to Neglect the Warning We Die.

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth.

When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspirations easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation, and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once! To build up woman's nervous system and restore woman's health, we know of no better or more inspiring medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Your ailment taken in time can be thrown off, if neglected it will run on into great suffering and pain.

Here is an illustration. Mrs. Lucy Goodwin, Holly, W. Va., says:

"I suffered with nervous prostration, faintness, all-gone feeling and palpitation of the heart. I could not stand but a few moments at a time without having that terrible bearing-down sensation.

"When I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I only weighed 108 pounds, and could not sit up half a day; before, however, I had used a whole bottle, I was able to be about. I took in all about three bottles of the Compound, and am entirely cured; now I weigh 131 pounds and feel like a new woman, stronger and better than ever in my life."

So it transpires that because of the virtues of Mrs. Pinkham's wonderful Compound, even a very sick woman can be cured and live to a green old age.

Will Hardesty, aged about thirty years, a prominent farmer of Marion county, was drowned in Rolling Fork river. He attempted to cross the river in a canoe to feed some cattle, the water being very swift and high, and when he was some distance from the shore the boat was capsized.

A Kentuckian who had moved from place to place and at last landed in Western Texas, was asked if he liked the place. He answered: "There was a man who moved from Kentucky to Nebraska, from there to Arizona, from there to Texas, and then he died and went to hell, but the change was so gradual he never noticed it.

In a letter to Judge Geo. Denny Senator Lindsay says he will not vote against the Deboe bill providing for two Federal Districts in Kentucky, and further, that he never said he was opposed to it. From the tenor of his letter, however, it is evident that his support is conditional, and that he wants Frankfort to have the Court.

As the result of a suit in the Henderson County Court, Dr. J. R. Sigler, a well known physician, was absolutely divorced from his wife, Jennie Sigler. The petition alleges that Mrs. Sigler abandoned her husband in January, 1895. What caused the separation was that Mrs. Sigler embraced the faith of santification and abandoned her home. They have two children, a boy and a girl.

One day last week a negro woman, very much frustrated over the idea of a negro man stealing a ten-cent beefsteak from a skillet on a red-hot stove, called at the office of the County Judge to have a warrant sworn out for the arrest of the thief. She was very much vexed. Judge Yates asked her what the steak was worth; she said 10 cents, and he pulled the money out and gave it to her. Had he made out the writ and tried the case, the negro would have had to be sent to jail for not less than 30 days, which would have cost the county $18, and was settled for 10 cents. That's a good compromise if Judge Yates' ten cents will just hold out.—Georgetown News.

CROP AND STOCK.

Feeding cattle are scarce and in demand in Harrison county.

A Bath county farmer killed a 9 months old hog that weighed 300 pounds.

Hardin county farmers now have enough stock water for the first time in a year.

In Clark county, Clairborne Lisle sold to C. J. Gilbert some extra butcher cattle at 4 cents.

The farmers of Illinois have almost abandoned the horse as a beast of labor and substituted in his stead the mule, as that animal has been found to be a better worker, and much cheaper to keep.

There is a good demand for good horses, which are scarcer than for many years. The export demand is unprecedented. Only good horses should be sent to market at present; in the spring they may be more home use for the medium poor quality.

The Lexington Gazette says: About all the fat cattle in this section have been sold at from 4 to 4.15 cents. Feeding cattle and yearlings, in good demand at 4 cents. Five lots of shoats and two lots of hogs at 3 cents, and shipped them to the river.

Concerning dehorned cattle Swift & Co., of Chicago, say: "We do not consider hornless cattle worth more than those of the same quality and fattened with horns, except in rare cases where shippers would pay 3 to 10 cents more per hundred pounds for hornless cattle.

The present winter has so far been very beneficial to the wheat crop and it is now looking as green as in the spring. Owing to the drought it was very late and small when winter set in. The warm rains have kept the soil packed around the roots, and it has grown right along.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson thinks that he has discovered a sure remedy for hog cholera and in order to make practical use of his discovery he will ask Congress for an appropriation of $250,000. Secretary Wilson estimates the annual loss from hog cholera in the United States from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Joe Below, of Dry Ridge, delivered his tobacco to G. W. Collinsworth early in the week. He raised seven acres of tobacco on the farm of R. L. Conrad and from it delivered 14.600 pounds. He sold his entire crop for 11 cents round, the crop bringing him $1,606. R. L. Conrad on the same farm raised 10,165 pounds of tobacco on 4½ acres of land and sold his crop to R. A. Shaw for 11 cents round. Tobacco buyers who have seen these crops of tobacco are agreed that they are two of the very best handled crops that have been grown in Grant county the past year. Mr. Below has rented land from W. W. Conrad and will shortly move to his farm and again try his hand at the cultivation of tobacco.—Williamstown Courier.

POLITICAL.

Hardin, Goebel and Johnston are the early entries in the Gubernatorial race.

Congressman Berry pleaded the cause of Cuba before the House, one day last week.

Gov. McCreary has announced himself a candidate for Congress in the eighth district.

Judge Mitchell, of Winchester, will be a Democratic candidate for Congress in the Eighth District.

The resolution introduced in the Legislature, calling on Senator Lindsay to resign was knocked out in the first round.

The General Assembly has invited Hon. Wm. Jennings Bryan to Frankfort and address it at a time to be named by him.

Collector Franks has made but one appointment from Christian county, and writes the white Republicans that he is obliged to provide places for local negro politicians, which makes the outlook chilly for whites.

Major Crumbaugh, after a long and patient wait, has been appointed Supervising Inspector of steam vessels, with headquarters at Cincinnati. He was an applicant for about twenty different positions before he succeeded in landing one.

The American people delight in calling popular idols by some homely but forceable title, Jackson was called "Old Hickory," Dan Vorhees, "The Tall Sycamore of the Wabash," and now some admirer of one of our Kentucky Senators, lovingly dubs him "The Slippery Elm of Kentucky."

Mr. Jones, the Republican Senator from Barren county, has introduced a bill to reduce the salaries of nearly all public officials from Governor down. Perhaps the Hon. Mr. Jones was seized with this fit of economy through a conviction that the Republicans will never again be in power in Kentucky.—Georgetown News.

What's the matter with the correspondents? One week they announce Hon. P. P. Johnston a candidate for Governor, provided Senator Goebel announces. The next week they take it back. The next week they own up it is all a mistake. Although Senator Goebel has not announced himself a candidate, he is looked upon here as the only racer in that big derby. A great many go so far as to say they are willing to wager he will have no opposition.—Argus.

Comments On The Legislature.

Why should the Legislature abolish the office of Jailer in Louisville or anywhere else?—Columbia News.

It is said that a bill will be introduced in the Legislature in the next few days to regulate the speed of passenger trains through this State. What next?—Maysville Bulletin.

The election law ought to be amended and if this Legislature fails to do this service to the people of all parties who favor the rule of intelligence and honor, it will deserve and receive the most unfavorable criticism by the people of the State.—Hartford Herald.

The bill to repeal the separate coach law has been killed by the House. The law is one of the best ever put on our statute books, so far as the comfort of the traveling public is concerned, and we are utterly unable to see wherein it works any hardships on anybody.—Shelby-Sentinel.

L. J. Owen, of Grayson county, has introduced in the Legislature a bill to prevent double taxation, which should become a law. This principle of compelling people to pay taxes on their indebtedness is unjust, and should no longer be tolerated by the people of Kentucky.—Glasgow Republican.

When the Legislature tries to make the State Democratic by legislation looking directly to that end, a mistake will be made. Transact the business of the State in a more competent manner than the Republicans did two years ago, and you will make Democratic votes. You can not legislate any party into power.—Lawrenceburg News.

Senator Farris, of Lincoln county, has introduced a bill at Frankfort to take Jackson out of the (Eighth) congressional district and transfer it to the Eleventh. We are to be given Casey in lieu of Jackson. This move, if consummated, will redound to the benefit of the Democratic party to the extent of about 600 votes.—Harrodsburg Sayings.

If men were as considerate of the good name of other women as they are of their own sisters and mothers they would talk about the weather more than they do.

The older a batchelor grows the more ridiculous are his attempts to be gallant.

After a single man passes thirty-five he will either grow morose, wild or silly.

When a lady and gentleman are in conversation it is generally the latter who is embarrassed.

If all the women who say "no" would only stick to it what a world of anguish would be spared.

Men wonder why girls kiss a poodle instead of them. If half of the men could get one sniff of their own breath they would never wonder again.

If the average young man would spend more money on operas, lectures, books and magazines, and less on cigars, beer, variety shows and horse races, he would know more and his girl would like him better.

Only about one man in 500 knows how to kiss gracefully. Yet every man is conceited enough to believe he is that one.—Dansville Breeze.

COL. FORRESTER can not refrain from comparing the present Legislature with the one his party preceded it with. This is his last:

"It is a good body of men. There must be some crank, some idiot, possibly a Bill Lyons, concealed among these apparently intelligent legislators, but I have not found him up to this writing. There are more bright speakers, more representative men in this Legislature than any I have seen. It has been told us by such truthful men as Mark Hanna that all free silver men are anarchists. Well, if these are anarchists and that late and lamentable aggregation of boodlers and bribetakers that Gumshoes Hunter corralled to vote him into the United States Senate at so much per—if these Hunter representatives stand for "law and order," I think I will run up the red flag. But the truth of the matter is, Mark Hanna and "Marked" Hunter had lied. The piehunters and trimmers eliminated, Kentucky is made of the noblest race of men on earth. The Kentucky Democrats and the Kentucky Republicans of the better class are honorable, courageous gentlemen. This is a good typical Kentucky Legislature. Both Democrats and Republicans are good people in this body, because the people selected them."

GUNPOWDER, KY., Jan'y 10.

To the Hog Breeders of the State:

I, as my good friend and brother swine-breeder, M. L. Rouse, find there is a vast difference of opinion as to the best breed of hogs till experience is the lesson. Feeding a bunch of hogs of one breed and putting them on the market without knowing how much was fed to them does not test the matter at all but is simply the advance I always get from a Poland breed. I give you the experience of an honest Poland breeder, N. P. Wilson, of Illinois, who had bred and raised the old Boone county Thinrind for three years along with his Polands, all of same treatment and of same age, and he writes me when taken to market, in weighing a corresponding number of each breed, the Polands can't near raise the beam where the old standard Thinrinds gently raised it till it struck above, and he is not alone when he says he can make more pounds with the Thinrind with less feed. Now, this is pulling at both ends, and it is a square pull. I could give you another Poland breeder's experience; but as it as good I will hold it in reserve for a stronger fight, but will give a thorough test of my own experience: I tried them three years when first introduced to our State—was glad to quit. In recent years I have noticed a great deal of writing as to what was and can be done with the Polands, so I concluded to try them again, as perhaps there had been a powerful improvement made on them since I condemned them, so I purchased five of four different great breeders, and the best individuals I could get, and they are nice ones. I put a March Poland China pig and a May Thinrind (both sows) in a pen together, and I thought the Poland China would kill the Thinrind, and of course the little pig did not stand a test, so I put her out and she laid at the pen all the while, so I put her in the pen again and still she was beaten off all the while, so I put both of them out, and while the Thinrind was much the smallest [illegible] is now the heaviest under [illegible] atment at the beginning. [illegible]n, one of the Polands was a [illegible] of September farrow, and as I [illegible] a Thinrind boar of same farI would put them under test, [illegible] the beginning they were about the same size. In feeding I noticed the Poland was never satisfied with the same quantity of food I gave the Thinrind, so I advanced the Poland one ear of corn the most at each feed, and when they were one year old the Thinrind weighed 40 pounds the most. This has been my unprejudiced and just experience all along the line, and while I have up-to-date pedigreed Polands, I would like to sell out root and branch at reduced prices, and will give my Brother Poland China breeders my word I will never purchase another Poland China hog for a breeder for my own use, so help me God. Yours with Respect,

JOHN H. AYLOR.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1898. NO. 15.

As a purely neighborly act Spain may send a battleship to some of the American ports.

"UNCLE REUBEN" hit the bull's eye center when he voted against the Lindsay resignation resolution.

THE Congressional timber in this district is being looked over with a view to entries in the campaign in the fall.

THE Kentuckian-Citizen is publishing affidavits to prove that a negress who died at Cynthiana, a few weeks since, was 140 years old.

THE farmer who has good tobacco land to rent will have no trouble to find a tenant this spring, as that particular class of soil will be in demand.

SPEAKER REED and Congressman Bailey, of Texas, had a little tilt, one day last week, on the question of veracity. No blood was shed nor black eyes resulted.

CONGRESS might adopt a resolution requesting the Kentucky Legislature to "resign," and by so doing render itself no more ridiculous than a recent adoption of a resolution rendered that body.

THE Legislature was being praised throughout the State as a conservative body of men who were attending strictly to business, but its action, last week, renders its conservatism somewhat questionable.

THE school book legislation which is being discussed in the Legislature is causing considerable uneasiness to the book concerns that have had a fat thing furnishing books for the Kentucky schools for a long time.

A CIVIL SERVICE Inspector is to be sent to Kentucky to investigate complaints of violation of the civil service law. Each Revenue District will be visited by the Inspector, and the action of the Collectors as regards future appointments will depend largely on his report.

THE whole deficit during the four years of the Cleveland Administration, from July 1, 1893, to July 1, 1897, which includes four months of the McKinley Administration, was, in round numbers, $155,000,000. Nearly half of this, or $70,000,000, was under the McKinley Bill.

THE Cincinnati authorities are puzzling their brains trying to devise some scheme for ridding the city of English sparrows. If they will secure the service of a dozen or two industrious Screech Owls, the pestiferous sparrows will vacate, in short order, the territory frequented by the owls.

SOME of the lawmakers at Frankfort have discovered that Sunday base ball is a good thing for cities of the first and second classes, but a bad thing for the balance of the county. It is difficult to discover how Sunday base ball is demoralizing to the "hill Billies" and not to the "town Jakes." The country does not like to be discriminated against so unjustly on such important matters.

WHEN Mr. Hanna commanded certain witnesses who were summoned before the investigating committee not to answer questions, he then and there convicted himself of the charges as laid. Had the work of his agents been legitimate he never would have objected to its being brought to light. An accused makes no effort to suppress testimony that is not damaging.

JANUARY 1, 1673, was the first regular mail from New York to Boston inaugurated. The rider changed horses first at Hartford and went over the route once a month. The mail was collected in a lock box in the office of the Colonial Secretary, in New York, and the incoming mail was spread on a table of a coffee house, from which it was distributed after it had lain a sufficient time to satisfy the eyes of the curious.

No Spanish interests are in danger in this country, and why should a Spanish warship be sent to an American port? It is because the Spaniards have learned enough about the President to know that as regards Cuba he has no policy and is drifting about, as liable to declare in favor of one thing as another, and in case he should take a stand antagonistic to them they will be in a position to have something like an even start with this country.

THE overwhelming Democratic majority in the Kentucky General Assembly is a stinging rebuke to Senator Lindsay for the manner in which he is misrepresenting the Kentucky democracy on the financial question, but when that majority adopted a resolution asking the Senator to resign, it stepped beyond the bounds of propriety and rendered less effective the rebuke given the Senator by the people at the polls last November. If after the Democratic party spoke last fall Senator Lindsay chose to continue misrepresenting that party in the United States Senate, what could a mere handfull of politicians expect to accomplish by adopting a resolution ill-timed, uncalled for and the offspring of a mind more or less cranky. When the time comes the Democrats of Kentucky will consign Senator Lindsay to political oblivion, but until that time comes legislators should give their time and talents to legitimate business. It is hoped that the Representives who voted for the resolution will refrain from any further buncombe legislation. Will you be good, now?

When the above was put in type it was not known to the RECORDER how Boone's representative had voted on the resolution, but he voted right, as usual.

THE following is from the Republican Campaign Hand Book of '92:

"Nine-tenths of the people are bimetallists. They want both money metals used, because they believe both are needed to sustain the world's commerce. The Republican party intelligently and honestly answers their wishes. President Harrison is a bimetallist, as his official papers and speeches plainly show. The Republican platform declares for bimetallism, and in that respect faithfully represents the course of the party. * * * The Republican policy seeks a broader monetary basis. The world's commerce expands so rapidly—the volume of paper currency and various credit substitutes for money, which must be supported by the specie basis, has become so vast—that scarcely any can be found to deny that commerce and industry would be safer if the entire stock of $3,711,845,000 gold and $3,929,571,000 silver in the world (see estimate by Director Leech of the mint, table A) could be freely employed as a foundation, instead of only a part of that amount. As matters stand, in the great commercial nations of the world, the credit system and commercial exchanges now rest upon the stock of gold as the only basis. A bimetallic system would render the commerce and industry of those nations safer and more healthy. Serious losses and great risks are incurred through gold-using and silver-using countries. Even in Great Britain, where gold monometallism is worshipped as it is nowhere else, the greatest statesmen and the most powerful boards of trade are at their wits' end to discover some way of escaping the frightful losses in commerce with the East, which have this very year involved great banks and firms in ruin."

THEY have been having "a hot old time in Congress."

THE Legislature killed a large number of bills Monday. Several Representatives saw their favorite measures consigned to what they considered untimely graves.

THE Petersburg, Taylorsport and Richwood communications reached this office yesterday (Tuesday) at noon, making them too late for this issue.

Monday's Kentucky Post stated that at Verona, on Sunday, Stephen Short shot and dangerously wounded his brother-in-law, James Donovan. Our Verona correspondent who wrote Monday, said nothing about it.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, January 28st, 1898.

The gold standard crowd is on the run. The stampede began before the adoption of the Teller resolution by the Senate, but the knowledge that the resolution would be adopted, as well as the advice of the republican Senators Representatives from the middle west, convinced Mr. McKinley that the gold standard business would not go down, and that his party's only hope was to make a play to keep the bimetallists fram deserting the republican party in a body. The game was started when Mr. Preston, Director of the U. S. Mint, who had made himself particularly obnoxious to the silver men by his obtrusive advocacy of the gold standard, both under the Cleveland and the present administration, and whose work in the direction was referred to by Senator Wolcott in his recent speech, was bounced and the position given to a republican bimetallist from Iowa. But the highest trump was played when Secretary Gage, the high priest of the goldocracy, was made to publicly say that Mr. McKinley was a bimetallist and was supported in that policy by every member of his Cabinet. Ye gods! think of that for a somersault.

The opinion is growing in Congress that the sending of that warship to Havana was the result of an understanding between the administration and Spain, and that its principal object there is to stave off Congressional action.

So long as President Dole, of Hawaii, who is now being entertained in Washington as the guest of the U. S., contents himself with the social attentions that are being given him and his wife he will find everything lovely and the goose hanging high, but if he attempts to meddle with the annexation fight, he will find things very different.

During the discussion which preceded the adoption of the Teller resolution, declaring U. S. bonds payable in silver at the option of the government, Senator Teller forced Senator Allison, who voted for this same resolution in 1878 and now against it, to admit that it would be legal and proper for the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the obligations of the government in either gold or silver. Mr. Allison tried to qualify that admission with a lot of stuff about the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to maintain the parity of the two metals, etc, but the admission was all that Teller wanted; he is willing to leave the explanation of Mr. Allison's vote against the resolution after that admission to be made by that gentleman to the voters of Iowa.

Although Senator Gorman pointed out that the Pension appropriation bill, as it came from the House, carried about $10,000,000 less than would be spent by the Pension Bureau during the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, and Senator Allen offered an amendment adding $7,000,000 the total carried by the bill, no action was taken by the Senate to increase the appropriation and the bill was passed substantially as it came from the Senate.

Representatives Richardson, of Tennesse, stirred up the Republican menagerie in the House by repeating the minstrel end man's joke about the only two things he ever saw that were exactly alike—the Cleveland panic and the McKinley boom; and when the Republicans started into talk "prosperity" they were asked why that "prosperity" had brought on a strike of 125,000 cotton mills operatives in New England, and made quite a mess of their attempts to explain that unusual accompaniment of "prosperity." Grosvenor, of Ohio, got himself so tied up that he sought to escape by a bit of personal blackguardism—calling Green, of Nebraska, a back-woodsman. He and his party will find lots of backwoodsmen of the same sort next November, and every one of them will cast an anti-Republican vote

This is what Senator Teller said of this era of prosperity: "I do not know, perhaps, but I have tried to learn. I have given this question hours of study that few men have, and I believe that this is the great question that the money question threatens not only this people, but the enslavement of mankind throughout the world. I said in '93, to my countrymen: 'You are entering upon an era of industrial slavery such as the world has never seen.' Mr. President, it is here now. With all your boasted prosperity you are closing the mills of New England, and deducting from the wages of the laboring man 10, 15 and 20 per cent. and making it impossible for him to perform the duties of citizenship, and then you tell us that all these things are done in the interest of honor, and labor must stand it. But the bond holder gets the bounty."

While the Dingley tariff was held up as an abbreviated highway to national wealth, the cotton workers of his own town are complaining of short cuts in wages.—Philadelphia Times.

Hon. Chevenor Grosvenor did not have any figures on Mr. Hanna's election. If he had been permitted to glance at Mr. Hanna's check book he would have seen plenty of them though.—Evansville Ind. Tribune.

In one respect however, the result in Maryland is less discreditable than was the election of Hanna. Judge McComas is at least a man of intellectual training and of experience in public life.—N. Y. World.

Senator Allison, of Iowa, can probably hang further down on either side of a fence, without dropping, than any other man in Congress. Just now his plumes are sweeping the side that is paved with gold.—Enquirer.

Mr. McKinley has displayed considerable courage in appointing a man from New York to succeed General Butterworth as Commissioner of Patents, thus taking the position that offices in Ohio are not hereditary.—Kansas City Star.

About the only contribution that Mr. McKinley is able to make to remedies for the present industrial situation in New England is the fact that he is sorry. Into such small dimensions has the "protective theory" evaporated.—Boston Globe.

THE Swedish telephone industry is a government monopoly and a most successful one at that. The network includes at present 27,000 instruments, distributed over about 600 stations. The population is about 5,000,000, and, as nearly every town, village and hamlet has a connection, the service is practically perfect and complete.

ACCORDING to recent statistics railroad travel is nearly as safe a pursuit or occupation as French dueling. In the past year the railroads of the United States carried 511,772,735 passengers. Of these but 181 were fatally injured, which is about one to every 3,000,000. The figures are a great tribute to the safety of American railways.

THE English war department is experimenting with compressed flour. The flour is placed in a compress and reduced by pressure to one-third the size of bulk flour. The reduction of size is said to be the least of many good qualities compressed flour has over the bulk, for it is claimed that the compression excludes insects and prevents mold.

A STATISTICIAN figures that New York city has nearly 1,000 hotels of different grades, of which about 100 are of the first-class, about 250 are second-class, while the remaining 600 are minor establishments. The money invested in these hotels is more than $160,000,000, and the sudden arrival of 100,000 visitors in the city would not overtax the accommodations.

QUEEN LOUISE, of Denmark, is the oldest occupant of a throne, with the single exception of the grand duke of Luxemburg, who is her senior by some six weeks. These are the only two octogenarian sovereigns. Next in age, after Queen Louise, comes her husband, who is seven months younger, and then the grand duke of Saxe-Weimar and Queen Victoria.

IT is a secret which has been carefully kept by government officials, and especially by the heads of the war department, that New York, Boston and San Francisco are to-day fortified to a degree sufficient to keep off almost any foreign fleet. This statement was made positively by an official who knows the facts and said that the danger to those three ports in case of war had finally been adequately provided for.

THE new Oceanic, now being built in England by Messrs. Harland & Wolff for the White Star line, will no doubt embrace some new ideas. But if for nothing else she will be remarkable for her exceptional size. This vessel will be by several thousand tons larger than any other steamer either built or building. She will be 704 feet in extreme length (13 feet longer than the Great Eastern) and her tonnage will exceed 17,000 tons.

MR. RIDER HAGGARD is devoted to farming. He spends the early part of every day in wandering around his farm at Ditchingham, and does not settle down to writing until 11:30 o'clock. He dictates his novels to a woman secretary, who types from his dictation, taking them down on the typewriter at lightning speed, instead of merely in shorthand first. The scene of Mr. Haggard's new story is Holland, many centuries ago.

GEORGE GOULD lives in the pines of New Jersey with his $30,000,000, while Howard, Miss Helen and Frank live in Tarrytown with their $40,000,000. Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard and her millions are palatially quartered at Scarborough. H. Walter Webb with his $5,000,000 is also there. Amzi Lively Barber and his $35,000,000 are at Dobbs Ferry, not far from J. Jennings McComb and his $30,000,000 at Ardsley. William Rockefeller and his $90,000,000 are not out of hearing of brother John and his $200,000,000 at Tarrytown.

MRS. COWDEN-CLARKE, now in her 89th year, is still hale and hearty, living a beautiful old age in peace and tranquility. With a mind unclouded and a body wonderfully active for her years, she finds much pleasure in recalling to a few select friends reminiscences of her early days—days when she was the constant associate of Mary Lamb, and mingled frequently in the brilliant company of Shelley, Coleridge, Charles Lamb, Keats, Leigh Hunt, Hazlitt, Douglas Jerold and the glorious Charles Dickens.

"IT IS a remarkable fact," said a distinguished ex-confederate, "that Gen. Lee never wore a sword during the war, or any weapon, and he never buckled on a sword until the day of his surrender, and then as an act of courtesy to Gen. Grant, and as proper for the occasion. Gen. Lee did not expect to surrender his sword, because, by the terms of surrender all officers were to retain their side arms; but he did expect that Grant would go through the form of touching the hilt of his sword according to the custom of war, but Grant did not even do that."

SPANISH SHIPS.

Visiting United States Ports, Will Be Made Welcome—Presidents McKinley and Dole Make Calls Upon Each Other.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Secretary Long said Wednesday that he had received no notice from the Spanish minister or from any other source that Spanish men-of-war have been ordered to visit United States ports. They were perfectly welcome to come and go as they please, he said, and as far as he was concerned he would be delighted to have them come.

Spanish warships have frequently visited the United States since the insurrectionary movement broke out in Cuba three years ago without having excited the least unfriendly comment and there was no reason why any significance should be attached to their coming again whenever they felt disposed to do so.

SENATOR MASON.

The President and Mrs. McKinley entertained the diplomatic corps Wednesday night at the first state dinner of the season. Contrary to the usual custom Secretary of State and Mrs. Sherman assisted in receiving the guests in the east room. The decorations of the state dining room consisted largely of roses and orchids. Alternate plaques of these flowers were laid the length of the table. The mantels were banked with cut flowers, roses hyacinths and carnations, while a profusion of smilax was draped above the doors and cobweb-like from the ceiling and chandeliers. The window spaces were filled with palms and rubber plants.

President Dole of Hawaii, arrived here at 2:20 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and in behalf of the government was welcomed to the national capitol by Secretary Sherman and Assistant Secretary Adee. The presidential party was belated by storms along the way and it was three hours after the scheduled time that the train swung into the Baltimore & Ohio depot. A crowd of several hundred had assembled on north Capitol street and three platoons of mounted policemen were on hand who acted as an escort.

Mr. Sherman offered his arm to Mrs. Dole and escorted her to President McKinley's carriage. The platoons of officers wheeled about, the spirited bays of the white house carriage stepped off at a lively gait, and the party proceeded to the Arlington, where the Hawaiian executive will be the nation's guest. In the second carriage were Minister Hatch, of Hawaii, Assistant Secretary Cridler, and Mr. Dole's private secretary.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President McKinley's call on President Dole Wednesday afternoon was entirely formal and did not last longer than 15 minutes. He was accompanied by Mr. Porter and Col. Bingham, and was met by Assistant Secretary Cridler and Mr. Hatch, the Hawaiian minister, who introduced them to President Dole, Mrs. Dole and the other members of the party. After a mutual exchange of courtesies President McKinley returned to the white house.

At 4:15 Dole returned the visit of President McKinley. He drove over to the white house in a magnificently appointed carriage in company with Minister Hatch and Assistant Secretary Cridler. His private secretary, Maj. Iaukea, with Maj. Heistand and Lieutenant Commander Phelps and Dr. Day, followed in another carriage. At the entrance to the white house the visitor was met by Col. Bingham, and the party was led at once by him to the elevator, whence they were soon transferred to the library on the second floor. There President McKinley was in waiting and gave his guest a greeting. After a few words of general conversation, the two presidents retired to a couch in one corner of the room and spent about five minutes in consultation. It was said that this talk was purely unofficial and personal. Then the party was escorted down stairs and returned to the hotel.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The senate committee on post officers and post roads Wednesday had under consideration the advisability of establishing the system of postal savings banks in the United States. The discussion was general and the only conclusion reached was that Senators Mason and Butler should prepare a bill which could be used as a basis for future deliberations. This was done because of the fact that there were a large number of measures before the committee, all looking to the same end. It is intended that he bill to be prepared by Messrs. Mason and Butler shall supplant all these and they were requested to have it in shape to be taken up at the next meeting to be held a week hence.

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—Wednesday afternoon Consul General Lee visited the Maine, returning the official visit paid him Tuesday by Capt. Sigsbee. He was accorded the usual salute. MONETARY CONVENTION

Adopts a Set of Resolutions After a Two Hours' Discussion.

They Recognize the Convention's Obligations to the Executive Committee and Approve the Plan of Currency Reform as Recently Submitted.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 26.—The monetary conference, which opened in this city Tuesday, is the result of a movement started by the Indianapolis board of trade a little more than one year ago. This commercial body took upon itself the inauguration of a movement whose primary purpose was monetary reform. Without any assurance that the object of its endeavors would be realized in a national sense, the board of trade issued invitations to commercial organizations of the central west, which brought together the nucleus on which to-day's national convention rests.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 27.—The monetary convention convened at 10 o'clock Wednesday.

Pending the report of the committee on resolutions, the secretary read a number of telegrams from the various commercial bodies of the country, endorsing the plan of the commission.

E. J. Parker, of Illinois, presented a resolution approving the efforts of the National Business league to forward the movement for the establishment of a national department of commerce and industries, the head of which shall be a member of the cabinet.

At the conclusion of Mr. Fairchild's address a motion was made and carried that when the convention adjourn it be subject to the call of the executive committee. Permanent Chairman Shaw declared that "this convention never adjourns," and E. O. Stannard, of Missouri, took the gavel to preside.

The next speaker was Congressman Jesse Overstreet, of the Indianapolis district, who introduced the monetary bill into congress. Mr. Overstreet commended the commission's work. "This is not the time for stopping this movement," said he.

Mr. Overstreet thought the bill would receive the thorough attention of congress and said that Speaker Reed would in no way retard its careful consideration. "If we are defeated," said he "we shall not be conquered."

Mr. Wheelock, of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on resolutions asked John C. Bullitt, of Philadelphia, to read the resolutions. The resolutions recognize the convention's obligations to the executive committee and cordially approve the plan of currency reform submitted by the commission which is set out as follows:

"1. To remove, at once and forever, all doubt as to what the standard of value in the United States is, and is to be.

"2. To establish the credit of the United States at the highest point among the nations of the world.

"3. To eliminate from our currency system those features which reason and experience show to be elements of weakness and danger.

"4. To provide a paper currency convertible into gold and equal to it in value at all times and places, in which, with a volume adequate to the general and usual needs of business, there shall be combined a quality of growth and elasticity through which it will adjust itself automatically and promptly to all variations of demand, whether sudden or gradual, and which shall distribute itself throughout the country as the wants of different sections may require.

"5. To so utilize the existing silver dollars as to maintain their parity with gold without imposing undue burdens upon the treasury.

"6. To avoid any injurious contraction of the currency.

"7. To avoid the issue of interest-bearing bonds, except in case of unlooked-for emergency; but to confer the power to issue bonds when necessary for the preservation of the credit of the government.

"8. To accomplish these ends by a plan which would lead from our present confused and uncertain situation by gradual and progressive steps, without shock or violent change, to a monetary system which will be thoroughly safe and good and capable of growth to any extent that the country may require.

"Approving of the expressed purposes of the commission, and of its plans, we do most earnestly and cordially commend it to our fellow-citizens as worthy of their approval and adoption, and we urge upon the congress of the United States that the principles embodied by the commission in their report should be enacted into law with the belief and expectation that the effect would be to secure a solid, substantial and stable financial system that would redound to the credit of the country and insure a state of prosperity that can not be achieved unless there is a system of finance, the integrity and adaptability of which can not be questioned or gainsaid. The time has now come when the prospects for the establishment of the gold standard upon a firm and enduring basis are brightening and encouraging. The people want a note currency which shall be as good as gold. This movement proposes to bring about that result."

The people want a "volume of currency adequate to the general and usual needs of business, with a quality of growth and elasticity through which it will adjust itself automatically and promptly to all variations of demand, whether sudden or gradual."

The people of the western and southern states wish the issues so distributed as that the scarcity of currency will no longer hamper and distress them in their business operations. A method is proposed whereby their wants can be supplied and their demands can be complied with.

We appeal to them—we appeal to all patriotic citizens to unite with us in an earnest and determined effort to secure from congress such legislation as will wisely but surely eventuate in bringing about sound financial methods, and in building up and establishing confidence, security and safety in business transactions and in the ownership and value of property.

That the executive committee be continued with power and authority to add to their number and to fill any vacancies which may occur, and also with power and authority adopt such measures for procuring the needed legislation from congress as they, in their judgement, may deem advisable and expedient.

At 2 o'clock, after two hours of favorable debate, the resolutions were unanimously adopted. The convention adjourned subject to the call of the executive committee.

A Claim Against the Spaniards.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 27.—A. A. Heard, western passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley railroad and one of the joint owners of a sugar plantation located near Havana, has filed with the state department at Washington a claim of $91,000 against the Spanish government for property destroyed on the plantation and for loss of revenue for three years.

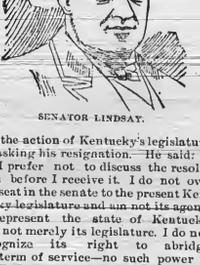
MADRID, Jan. 27.—The Spanish battleship Vizayo, of 7,000 tons displacement has been ordered to visit American ports.

EITHER METAL.

The Teller Concurrent Resolution Passes in the Senate—Bonds of the United States to Be Paid in Either Gold or Silver.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The senate Friday evening by the decisive vote of 47 to 32, passed the Teller concurrent resolution providing that all bonds of the United States issued or authorized to be issued are payable, principal and interest, at the option of the government in silver dollars of the coinage of the United States containing four hundred and twelve and one-half grains each of standard silver. Several amendments were voted down.



WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The free homestead bill giving over 20,000,000 acres of public lands as free homes for settlers was ordered favorably reported to the house Friday by the public land committee. The vote was 16 to 7. The item extending the provisions of the bill to military reservations which have been opened to settlement was stricken out, while the item including lands which the government sells for the Indians and collects the purchase price and pays the money over to the Indians, was retained. Chairman Lacey, of the committee, opposed both of those important items and will make a minority report based on the Indian trust land feature and commenting on the other.

The committee made favorable reports to the house on the bills for the compulsory attendance of witnesses in contests before receivers and registers of the local land offices and for the grant of 25,000 acres each to the Tuskegee Negro industrial school in Alabama and to the white girls' industrial school in Northern Alabama.

The failure of congress to act promptly on the recommendation of Postmaster General Gary for an appropriation of $163,000 to meet the threatened deficiency in the appropriation for letter carrier service for the remainder of the fiscal year is causing considerable embarrassment to postal officials. It was the original intention of the department to make the reductions in the number of deliveries in the large cities in the east on the first of February, but the apparently unanimity of congressmen in favor of immediate action on Mr. Gary's accommendation made it hesitate about taking such action, as it was thought likely that a special appropriation would be secured for the service, that now it has not been granted officials are undecided what course to pursue.

The monthly statement of the bureau of statistics shows that the exports of wheat during the calender year 1897 aggregated 109,909,228 bushels, a gain of more than 26,000,000 bushels over 1896 and of over 45,000,000 bushels as compared with 1895. Wheat flour, however, fell off over 2,000,000 barrels as compared with 1896. The exports of corn in 1897 were unprecedented, amounting to 198,172,570 bushels, an increase of 57,000,000 over 1896, which itself was a very heavy export year.

Senator Lindsay was asked Friday for a statement of his position regarding the action of Kentucky's legislature in asking his resignation. He said:

"I prefer not to discuss the resolution before I receive it. I do not owe my seat in the senate to the present Kentucky legislature and am not its agent. I represent the state of Kentucky and not merely its legislature. I do not recognize its right to abridge my term of service—no such power is conferred upon it by the constitution either of the United States or the state of Kentucky.

"I shall not announce my intention in advance of an official notification of the action of the members of the two houses who voted for the resolution. In the meantime I have no comment to make, and nothing to give out for publication."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senor De Lome, the Spanish minister, has received several telegrams from Havana concerning the death of the insurgent leader, Arranguren. They are from Secretary General Congosto, the early ones stating briefly the fact of the killing and the latest one adding the following details:

"I have seen the corpse of Nestor Arranguren; also, I have examined his documents and have seen his seal in his pocketbook. Among other things he had two buttons from the uniform of Col. Ruiz. He had a bullet in the forehead. With him were killed four more and five taken prisoners. There is hope of finding where Ruiz is buried."

Want a Duty Placed on Bicycles.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 29.—The bicycle manufacturers of Canada have asked the government for a specific duty of $20 on each bicycle imported from the United States. The present tariff imposes a duty of 30 per cent. on bicycles. The members of the government have not expressed any opinion.

Church Ruined by Fire.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—Fire was discovered in the chapel adjoining the magnificent parish church of St. John Baptiste in the northern portion of the city at 1 o'clock Saturday morning. A general alarm was turned in, but before the firemen arrived in force the flames had gained access to the church. It was intensely cold, the thermometer being many degrees below zero, and the handling of hose was exceedingly difficult. The church was a stone building, the interior being embellished with valuable works of art and expensive decorations. The chapel and church were practically ruined.

BLOODY BATTLE.

Lieut. Col. Houghton and Lieuts. Bowdall, Swaing, Hughes and Walker

Are Among the Slain—Maj. Earle, Lieut. Hall and 31 Men Were Wounded—Twelve Men Are Missing—The Loss of the Enemy Was Very Heavy.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 31.—Lieut. Col. Houghton, Lieuts. Swaing, Bowdall, Hughes and Walker, together with 15 men of the Yorkshire light infantry and three Sikhs were killed; Maj. Earle, Lieut. Hall, 31 men of the Yorkshires and two Sikhs wounded, Earle severely, and 12 Yorkshires are missing, including one who was wounded and captured by the enemy in a little Saturday.

It appears that a combined movement was planned to cut off the retreat of a number of Afridis who had been driving their cattle to graze on the Kajural plain, west of Barn fort.

Two colums marched from Ali Musjid. To block the way north a third column from Barn marched westward over the plain toward the hills; while a fourth, consisting of the Yorkshire regiments and a regiment of Sikhs, advanced from Mamami with a view of getting to the rear of the Afridis and preventing their escape toward Bara valley.

The first three columns performed their allotted movements without loss, meeting with very few of the enemy. The fourth, under Col T. J. Seppings, left Mamami early Saturday morning. The leading troops reached Shinkum-Kotala at half-past ten, finding no opposition. Col. Houghton, with the Sikhs, proceeded about a mile to search the caves.

On the arrival of the main body at the Kotal it was discovered that a company of Sikhs had somehow been withdrawn from the high ridge on the west, the key of the position, which the enemy forthwith occupied. To retake this involved heavy losses. Lieut. Bowdall was killed while charging at the head of his men at the north of the pass. The enemies' losses were severe, as they charged within 30 yards of the troops.

About midday the troops began to return to the camp, the enemy harrassing the rear guard and causing many casualties. The rear column cleared the pass about 5 o'clock with the assistance of Gen. Westmacott, who came up with two guns and 400 rifles on receiving Col. Sepping's message that the force had become entangled.

The retirement was conducted admirably, the officers speaking in the highest terms of the gallantry of the troops.

Col. Houghton's body has been recovered and search parties have started for the others. The column has been reinforced by 725 men from Bara.

SITUATION IN FRANCE

Considered a Grave Menace to Peace—Germany Foresees the Possibility of War.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—While the situation in the far east continues to progress peacefully and there is every indication of an amicable understanding between the powers, the situation in France, in the opinion of well-informed persons, is a graver menace to peace, and in the present excitable state of the nation and shaky condition of the ministry, something is likely to occur to disrupt European peace. A note of warning has even been sounded by some of the French newspapers, which urge a cessation of the present agitation in France, pointing out that the country should not play into the hands of Germany. The Petit Journal says the government may soon be unable to prevent some one in authority from making a statement which is liable to occasion a conflict. We have certain proofs that Germany foresees the possibility of war and is making arrangements accordingly. She means to be in the right and accuse us of creating trouble.

The relations between France and Great Britain are also drifting toward a crisis. The Niger negotiations in Paris have not reached an agreement, and there are no signs of them doing so. In the meantime everything is tending to take the questions out of the hands of the diplomats and leave it to be settled by the hands of soldiers.

The well informed Manchester Guardian remarks: "If Lord Salisbury can not come to an agreement with France, he can not, without the loss of something more substantial than prestige, much longer defer the occupation of the disputed territory. Already British troops occupy parts of the Borgu country and, while the international commission is marking time in Paris, rival claimants in Africa are drawing perilously near each other. This constitutes the real danger of the situation."

Seven Prisoners Escape.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 31.—Seven prisoners confined in the Buchanan county jail escaped Saturday night by climbing over the cells in the women's ward and crawling through a trap door in the roof of the jail. A garden hose which had been left in the jail was used by the prisoners in cleaning the roof. Two of the men are under indictment for highway robbery.

Editor Marsh Gets Damages.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Jan. 31.—A verdict for $800 in favor of J. N. Marsh, publisher of the Columbus Times, was returned against the Pullman Car company. The jury was out 30 minutes. Marsh had been ejected from one of the company's cars at Nashville, Tenn., last July. With his wife and son he was returning from the Nashville exhibition. The Pullman car conductor would not honor a section ticket offered by Marsh and instead of putting or offering to put the son out of the car, he put Marsh out by force. In the suit $1,000 damages were demanded. The case will be appealed.

Quite a Kid.

Joseph Jefferson a few weeks ago was walking in Boston with a friend. Mr. Jefferson met Judge Charles Levi Woodbury, and was then and there introduced to Judge Woodbury by the friend.

"I am glad to meet you, Mr. Jefferson," said Judge Woodbury. "You are not so tall a man as your father was." Whereupon Mr. Jefferson expressed his pleasure at meeting a friend and contemporary of his father.

"And you are not so large a man as your grandfather, whose acquaintance I also enjoyed," continued Judge Woodbury.

"Well, well," said Mr. Jefferson, "I'm something of a kid after all."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

DANGER SIGNALS.

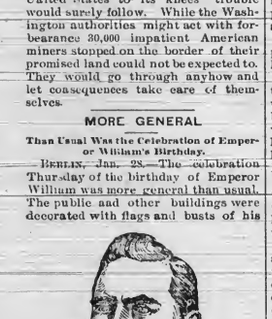
A Serious Customs Dispute With the British Authorities in Klondike.

Demand Made on the Dominion Government to Close the Skaguway or Dyea Trail—An Effort to Be Made to Bring the United States to Terms.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Danger signals are up in Klondike. It is not starvation this time, but a customs dispute with the British authorities, which may take on a serious phase.

The bellicose resolutions passed by the British Columbian board of trade and forwarded to the Dominion government and to the Toronto board of trade are read here with mixed incredulity and alarm. They recite that the United States customs regulations require a duty on British goods intended for Klondike when they are unloaded at Skaguway or Dyea, or else the merchants are compelled to pay for a United States treasury agent to escort the goods in bond to the Canadian frontier.

These regulations are denounced as obnoxious, and a demand is made upon the Dominion government to close the Skaguway trail, White Pass, Chilkoot Pass and other passes until the United States can be "brought to terms."



The Canadian merchants will get no relief. United States officials will not permit Canadian goods to pass over American territory unless duty is paid, or they are under guard until Canadian soil is reached again.

It is beginning to be realized that there are danger points in this Klondike situation. Should the dominion government attempt to close the Skaguway Pass in an effort "to bring the United States to its knees" trouble would surely follow. While the Washington authorities might act with forbearance 30,000 impatient American miners stopped on the border of their promised land could not be expected to. They would go through anyhow and let consequences take care of themselves.

MORE GENERAL

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—The celebration Thursday of the birthday of Emperor William was more general than usual. The public and other buildings were decorated with flags and busts of his majesty were everywhere displayed. The emperor received the congratulations of his mother, the ex-Empress Frederick, and the German princes, including the kings of Saxony and Wurtemberg.

The newspapers, excepting the socialist organs, published congratulatory articles. The socialist papers deplore the monarchic feeling, and the conservative and agrarian press urge the emperor to show courage and abolish the general franchise and workmea's rights of coalition.

THE INFANTA,

Instead of the Vizcaya, Will Visit American Ports.

MADRID, Jan. 28.—United States Minister Woodford's note announcing the cruise of the Maine and the reply of the foreign minister, Senor Gullon, intimating that a Spanish war vessel will visit America, are both couched in markedly polite and friendly terms.

It has been decided to send the first-class cruiser Infanta Maria Teresa to America instead of the Vizcaya, because the latter's commanding officer, Capt. Concas, in the course of a lecture before the Madrid Geographical society in 1896, censured the United States in a manner that provoked the then American minister, Hanais Taylor, to demand an explanation.

The Infanta Maria Teresa, which was in New York harbor at the Grant mausoleum ceremony, is an armed cruiser (barbette) of 7,000 tons displacement. She was built in 1890 at a cost of £000,000 ($3,000,000). She has a complement of 500 men and her normal coal supply is 1,200 tons. She is 340 feet long and 65 feet in the beam. She carries two 11 inch guns, ten 5.5 inch (all hontoria) guns, eight 2.2 inch quick firing guns, eight 1.4 inch guns, two Maxims and six torpedo tubes.

Another Ballot Taken.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 28.—The legislative joint convention met Thursday and took another ballot for United States senator. The republican members cast their votes for E. J. Sanford, of Knoxville. The democratic vote was scattered as at the previous sessions. There being no election the convention adjourned until Friday.

Corea Asks for Protection.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A dispatch to the Herald from Seoul says: It is stated on the most unquestionable authority that the king of Corea has asked the United States minister here for protection against possible revolutions. Capt. Wildes, of the cruiser Boston, refuses to land a naval force though strongly urged to do so by the king.

DRUGGIST OTIS

Gives His Testimony Before the Bribery Investigating Committee.

Attorney Campbell Had the Handling of Money—The Senator Had Little to Do With the Affair—Boyce Said He Represented J. Pierpont Morgan.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—The Senate Bribery investigating committee met in the senate judiciary room at 11 o'clock Friday morning. Representative John C. Otis, of Cincinnati, was called to the stand.

Otis said he owned a drug store at the corner of Sixth and Vine streets, Cincinnati. On January 8, 1898, he was in Cincinnati. He was not acquainted with H. H. Hollenbeck, member of the State Republican Central committee. He met Henry Harrison Boyce in Cincinnati January 7. At 11 o'clock Friday, January 7, witness was called up at his drug store by 'Phone 286, by a man who said he was Gen. Henry Harrison Boyce, of New York, and was at the Great Southern hotel, Columbus; he had come here to see Otis, but arrived in Columbus after the witness had left for Cincinnati.

Boyce made an appointment to meet Otis at the Gibson house, Cincinnati, that evening. The witness met Boyce there at 6:30 p. m. Boyce said he had come to see Otis on very important business.

Boyce said he represented J. Pierpont Morgan, of New York, who had Ohio interests to be looked after this winter; he also said that he was a friend of C. G. Shane, of New York, an intimate friend of President McKinley. Boyce said Shane would on the following night have an interview with the president on the Ohio senatorial situation.

After a chat along that line, they parted, to meet again at the Gibson house at 3 p. m. the day following.

After he left Boyce, Otis went to Attorney T. C. Campbell and told him what had transpired, and told Campbell it was very evident what Boyce was after, and that he (Otis) would not keep the appointment. Otis was urged, however, to do so, in order to trap Boyce.

Saturday morning Jerry Bliss, of Columbus, an anti-Hannaite, called on Otis at his Cincinnati home to urge him to go on with the negotiations with Boyce.

Otis met Boyce at 3 p.m. Saturday, as per agreement. Boyce said he was very anxious on account of the president for Hanna's election, and talked of the emoluments the president could give Otis if he would vote for Hanna.

Otis again met Boyce later Saturday, and introduced T. C. Campbell to him, saying Campbell was his attorney and he would look after his interests.

Otis withdrew from the room, leaving Boyce and Campbell alone. Campbell later told Otis that Boyce had offered $10,000 if Otis would vote for Hanna. Boyce and Campbell had another meeting Sunday afternoon.

After that conference Campbell showed Otis $1,000 which he said Boyce had given him.

Boyce and Campbell again met at the Hotel Emery, at 9 p. m. Sunday, after which Campbell showed Otis $750 more. Otis refused to take the money, and Campbell returned it.

That night Campbell told Otis that Boyce wrote out a receipt for $1,750 to be signed by Campbell, but it was not signed, as Campbell arranged with Boyce to meet him in Columbus the next day to close the deal. That was the last time Otis saw Boyce. He supposed Boyce had been apprised of his dangerous position and had left the state.

Campbell told Otis that Boyce had written a telegram to McKinley to be signed by Otis, telling the president that he (Otis) had concluded to vote for Hanna. This was to get Otis on record. The telegram written by Boyce was counterfeited by Bliss, who signed Otis' name, and later Campbell gave a spurious telegram to Boyce and kept the one in Boyce's handwriting.

By way of introduction, Boyce showed Otis a letter from Col. Fred Grant, of New York, complimenting him on an article in the Commercial Review.

Campbell told Otis that Boyce was to pay $1,750 more in Columbus on Monday before the senatorial election, and the balance of the $10,000 after his vote had been cast for Hanna. The witness was not present when the alleged deal was made.

Attorney Thomas C. Campbell next testified. There was nothing in his testimony to even indicate that Senator Hanna, Maj. Dick or Maj. Rathbone had any connection with Gen. Boyce, through whom it is claimed the alleged negotiations were conducted. In fact, Attorney Campbell, who came all the way from New York to testify, took occasion to say he did not believe Senator Hanna was interested in or knew Boyce. Moreover, Boyce himself had declared to Campbell that he did not know Mr. Hanna and that if his personal wishes were consulted he would prefer to see him defeated. Campbell produced a roll of bills in denominations of $100 and $50, aggregating $1,750, which he claimed Boyce had paid him during the negotiations. Campbell said if Boyce returned to Hamilton county he would be glad to return the money, otherwise he would use part of it in pushing a suit for damages against a Columbus paper.

IN THE CONGRESS.

The Hawaiian Annexation Question Will Be Considered in the Senate.

Army and Legislative Appropriation Bills Are on the Calendar—The Teller Resolution and Appropriation Bills Will Be the Features in the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The senate proceedings for the week will open with a speech by Senator Pettigrew dealing with the Hawaiian question, which will be delivered Monday. Beyond this speech it is very difficult to forecast the outlook for the week. The diversion occasioned by taking up the silver bond resolution has left the senate in a somewhat disorganized and unsettled condition and with no prearranged programme. Senator Pettigrew's speech will be made during the morning hour, and the probabilities are now that at its conclusion or at least at 2 o'clock one of the general appropriation bills will be called up.

The army and the legislative appropriation bills are already on the calendar and the consideration of the agricultural bill has been completed by the committee, so that it will be reported on Monday.

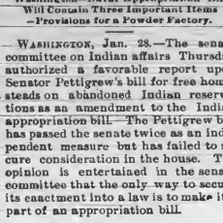
The probabilities are that the army bill will be the first of these measures to receive consideration, though there is some disposition to displace it with the legislative bill. Senator Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, said Sunday that it was his propose to have the appropriation bills considered in advance of other measures, and if he adheres to this determination the week may be largely taken up with them. So far as can now be seen there are few features in the bills already reported calculated to arouse discussion. There is a feeling in certain quarters that the army bill should be amended by a provision for the increase of the army, and if such a change should be attempted it would give rise to a very spirited debate.

The census bill also will be pressed for consideration during the week, and Senator Cartee, chairman of the census committee, said Sunday that he was very hopeful of securing its passage in the near future. The debate upon the civil service will be resumed when this bill is taken up, and the bill will be so amended as to give the control of the census bureau to the secretary of the interior. The bimetallist republican senators are discussing the advisability of renewing the financial agitation in the senate by the introduction of some measure of their own, though they do not seem quite so intent upon this course as they appeared to be immediately succeeding the vote upon the Teller resolution. If they present a resolution it probably will be a declaration to the effect that the United States is not committed to the gold standard.

It is the intention of the house leaders to offset as far as possible the action of the senate in passing the Teller resolution by killing that declaration of the sense of congress regarding the payment of the government's coin boads in silver on an aye and ao vote in the house this week. This will be the feature of the proceedings. While the full republican strength in the house can not be commanded against the resolution no doubt is expressed by those who have made it their business to canvas the situation that the majority against it will be decisive. As soon as the resolution is counted back from the ways and means committee, which may be Monday, the rules committee will bring in a special order for its consideration. The time allowed for debate is likely to be brief, as the leaders do not believe there is any necessity for protracted debate, and, moreover, a long discussion would measurely decrease the very purpose they have in view—namely, a prompt and decisive negative reply to the senate's declaration. The remainder of the week will be devoted to appropriation bills. The District of Columbia is still under discussion and the fortifications bill is on the calendar. The house leaders intend to give appropriation bills the right of way in order to make an early adjournment possible. The moment the appropriation bills are out of the way the new rules will be brought in, and after that the contested elections cases and the bankruptcy bill will be brought forward.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has authorized the issue in pamphlet form of a preliminary report upon the soils of the principal tobacco districts of the United States prepared by Milton Whitney, chief of the division of soils. A study of these soils was begun when the tobacco exhibit was being prepared for the Columbian exposition at Chicago, and since that time quite a number of typical tobacco soils have been examined in the laboratory connected with the agricultural department. The present publication which is copiously illustrated is a preliminary report of the work that has been going on. The main points of inquiry which now reach the department are in regard to the kind of tobacco which should be grown in certain specified localities and the method of curing the product. Replying to these questions the report says climate and soil conditions should determine the kind of tobacco raised.

Mrs. Lane in a Serious Condition.



WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Lucille Blackburn Lane, daughter of ex-Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, and wife of Mr. Thomas Lane, who accidentally shot herself with a small revolver two weeks ago, is again in a serious condition, after a period of improvement, and her relatives and physicians are apprehensive lest the wound, with new complications, which have set in, may result fatally. An abscess, indirectly traceable to the wound, has formed near where she was shot, and Sunday and Sunday night it caused her intense suffering.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Report on the Bill For Free Homesteads on Abandoned Reservations.

President Dole Leading a Quiet Life in Washington—Naval Appropriation Bill Will Contain Three Important Items—Provisions for a Powder Factory.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The senate committee on Indian affairs Thursday authorized a favorable report upon Senator Pettigrew's bill for free homesteads on abandoned Indian reservations as an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill. The Pettigrew bill has passed the senate twice as an independent measure but has failed to secure consideration in the house. The opinion is entertained in the senate committee that the only way to secure its enactment into a law is to make it a part of an appropriation bill.

FIRST-CLASS BATTLESHIP IOWA.

The democratic simplicity of President Dole's entry into Washington has continued in his quiet life at his hotel, and in the simple but hearty good will in which invitations of various sorts have been tendered him and have been accepted. (After spending all day in his room attending to correspondence, he went out for the first time to visit the theater Thursday night. The entire party occupied boxes at the La Fayette Square to witness "Stranger in New York." Friday Col. Sumner, commandant at Ft. Myer, has arranged a special cossack drill in the riding hall. For Saturday evening he had accepted an invitation to the annual dinner of the Grid-iron club. The two most important visitors of the day at the president's apartments were Representative Hitt and Senator Cushman K. Davis, chairman respectively of the house and senate foreign relations committee. At their request President Dole talked freely of the material and political conditions in the islands.

It is regarded as settled that the naval appropriation bill now being frame by a house sub-committee will contain three important items, namely $1,000,000 for smokeless powder, $500,000 for reserve ammunition and $93,000 for the establishment of a government powder factory. The matter of having an ample supply of powder, in order to meet the requirements of our naval vessels in any emergency, has received careful attention from members of the committee. As long as the old style black powder was in use the many private companies making this article gave assurance that a supply could be secured on short notice. Now however, with the general adoption of smokeless powder, the opportunities for speedy supply are said to be much reduced. For that reason it is proposed to allow $1,000,000 for the purchase of this article, and at the same time provide a government factory which will thereafter produce an ample supply. The item of $500,000 for reserve ammunition will cover all classes of naval material, large and small, to meet requirements of vessels nearing completion and of such emergencies as may arise.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Commissioner Evans, of the pension office, has issued an order stating that hereafter the requests of attorneys for consideration of title to fees will not be entertained unless the same are filed in the bureau within three years from the date of issue of pension upon which such fees are claimed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The startling information is given out that every foot of Havana harbor, where the Maine is stationed, is mined, drawn off into squares, and each square connected with a numbered keyboard on hand, so that, with the pressing of a particular button, the Maine could be blown out of existence.

The Spanish land guns are larger than those on the Maine, and are said to be well handled.

It is doubtful whether the Maine could make any considerable resistance where she is now anchored, the bay being too narrow for firing.

The Main has 21 officers and 342 men aboard. The cost of keeping the ship in fighting condition is $1,000 a day.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The president accompanied by Mr. Porter, his secretary, left Washington at 10 a.m., over the Pennsylvania railroad for New York where he will attend the banquet to be given at the Waldorf-Astoria Thursday night by the National Association of Manufacturers.

After transacting some minor business the Teller resolution was laid before the senate and after considerable discussion it was agreed that the vote should be taken Friday at 5 o'clock; the senate to meet at 10 o'clock and the last four hours of debate to be under the 15 minute rule.

The senate committee on interstate commerce agreed Thursday to vote on the anti-scalping bill at its meeting next Thursday.

Forty-Four Degrees Below.

POCATELLO, Ida., Jan. 28.—The past two days have been the coldest in this section for many years. The thermometer registered 10 below. At Bancroft it was 44 below and at Market Lake it was 34 below. It has been intensely cold for seven weeks and the snow all over southeastern Idaho is from six to fifteen inches deep. All stockmen have been compelled to feed for several weeks past, and are becoming alarmed at the threatened shortage of hay. The sheepmen have had to drive their flocks from the great farms of Idaho and begin to feed.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan 28.—SENATE—Proposed annexation of Hawaii was somewhat extensively reviewed by Mr. Morgan (Ala.) Monday, while speaking to a question of personal privilege. The Alabama senator had been represented as saying in executive session substantially that ex-President Cleveland was in favor of Hawaiian annexation. This statement called out a denial from Mr. Cleveland, and in support of his original statement Mr. Morgan addressed the senate at great length. One of the features of the session was an elaborate speech by Mr. Turpie, of Indiana, in support of the Teller resolution. The pension appropriation bill was called up and debated for nearly three hours, but was not passed.

HOUSE—The house spent a couple of hours Monday transacting business relating to the District of Columbia and the remainder of the day on the Indian appropriation bill. During the consideration of the latter bill a lively political debate was precipitated by an allusion made by Mr. Simpson (pop., Kan.) relative to an alleged interview with the president on the subject of immigration. Mr. Grosvenor took occasion to express the opinion that the president had never used some of the language imputed to him and the debate drifted into a general discussion of our Indian affairs and conditions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—SENATE—Tuesday's session of the senate was characterized by a heated, almost acrimonious discussion of the financial question. For nearly four hours the Teller resolution was under consideration, the principal speeches being made by Mr. Allison (Iowa) Mr. Berry (Ark.) and Mr. Hoar (Mass.). The discussion was at times indulged in between the advocates and the opponents of the resolution, the debate often approaching bitterness. The feature of the discussion was a speech delivered by Mr. Teller.

HOUSE—Under the parliamentary fiction of discussing the Indian appropriation bill the house devoted almost the entire day to a political debate in which the main question was whether prosperity had come to the country as a result of the advent of the present administration. As the speeches were limited to five minutes each many members participated and partisan spirit kept the interest keyed up to a high pitch. The acrimony which usually characterizes such debates was almost entirely absent, but although good natured, some hard knocks were given and received. Mr. Smith, the delegate from Arizona, made an attack on the system of educating the Indians and Mr. Walker moved to strike out the appropriation for the Carlisle school. No vote was taken on the motion Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—SENATE—For more than six hours Wednesday the senate had under discussion the Tellers resolution providing that the government may pay the principal and interest of the bonds of the United States in silver. By agreement the resolution and pending amendments are to be voted upon before adjournment Thursday. The debate Wednesday was devoid of the sensational incidents and acrimonious colloquies which characterized that of Tuesday, but it was replete with argument and oratory. The time was consumed by Mr. Teller (silver, Col.), the author of the resolution, and Mr. Daniel (dem., V.-), who supported the resolution, and by Mr. Hoar (rep., Mass.) and Mr. Platt (rep., Ct.) in opposition. No set speeches, except Mr. Hoar's, whose speech was in reply to some points advanced by Mr. Teller Tuesday. No other business was transacted.

HOUSE—The house devoted another day to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill, most of the time being consumed as on the two previous days in discussing extraneous subjects. By far the most interesting feature of the day was the debate on the question of restoring the mail carrier service in the large cities owing to the failure of the senate to attach the estimated deficiency of $160,000 to the urgent deficiency bill. This subject has been agitating the metropolitan cities ever since the order was issued for cutting down the force on February 1. A dozen representatives from as many different places interested against the proposed reduction and urged an immediate appropriation. The motion to strike out the appropriation for the Carlisle Indian school was defeated after considerable debate, 29 to 96. Ten pages of the bill were disposed of Wednesday. The conference report on the [illegible] was adopted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—SENATE—Friday at 2 p.m. the senate will vote upon the Teller resolution and the pending amendments thereto. When the senate Thursday took up the resolution the agreement made last week that the final vote upon it should be taken before adjournment Thursday was changed in order that all senators might have an opportunity to speak. The speeches will be confined to 15 minutes each. Thursday's session continued for more than six hours, the resolution being under discussion throughout practically the entire session. The speeches in support of the resolution were delivered by Mr. Daniel (Va.), Mr. Lindsay (Ky.), Mr. Smith (N. J.) and Mr. Cockrell (Mo.), Mr. Daniel concluding the speech he began Wednesday evening. Mr. Lodge (Mass.) and Mr. Caffery (dem., La.) opposed the resolution. While the speeches for the most part were studied efforts, the session was replete with lively incidents and spicy colloquies.

HOUSE—The house Thursday finally succeeded in passing the Indian appropriation bill and political debate which has been raging since Monday was transferred to the District of Columbia bill, which followed it. The only two important changes made in the Indian bill, as passed, were the elimination of the provisions for the leasing of the Gilsonite mineral lands of the Kiowa, Comanche, Apache and Wichita reservations, one of which went out on points of order. The features of the debate Thursday were the speeches of Mr. Hartman (silver rep.), Montana, in denunciation of the financial policy of the administration and of Mr. Curtis (rep., Ia.) in reply to the general attacks of the opposition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—SENATE—After a debate, mingled at all times and occasionally acrimonious, which occupied the greater part of this week, the senate Friday evening by the decisive vote of 47 to 32 passed the Teller concurrent resolution. The resolution is a practical reaffirmation of that of Stanley Matthews in 1878 and is as follows: "That all the bonds of the United States issued, or authorized to be issued, under the said acts of congress herein-before recited are payable, principal and interest, at the option of the government of the United States, in silver dollars of the coinage of the United States containing 412½ grains each of twelve and one-half grains each of standard silver; and that to restore to its coinage such silver coins as a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, and interest, is not in violation of the public faith nor in derogation of the rights of the public creditor." All efforts to amend the resolution were voted down by majorities ranging from five to 29. Mr. Lodge's gold standard substitute being defeated by the latter majority. The vote on the Lodge amendment was, yeas 24, nays 53. Adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—The bill to pay the book publishing company of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, $300,000 for damages sustained by that corporation during the war, after encountering an obstinate filibuster which staved off a vote on two previous private bill days, was piloted to its passage in the house Friday by Mr. Cooper, of Texas, who was in charge of the measure. The friends of the measure proved themselves in an overwhelming majority, and the opposition Friday finally it could hold out no longer, reluctantly bowed. The vote on the bill was 188-45.

Bills reported by committees: Act regulating the admission of applicants to practice law, to pay Judge Bennett's widow balance of his salary; act for benefit of J. E. Robbins. No exception of opinion; act to limit fiscal courts in making appropriations to officers. Reported with a substitute; act providing that the court of appeals should elect a male state librarian in 1900.

HOUSE—The committee on elections reported favorably the Chinn school book bill, providing for the contract system of supplying schools books if they can not be secured cheaper by state publication; it further provides for a "school book commission" of seven members, the governor to be chairman and the superintendent of public instruction to be secretary, the contracts for books at a certain price, to run for a period of five years before a new contract is made. The bill also fixes a maximum price of certain school books. Bills reported by committees: To adopt the Barbour and Carroll edition of Kentucky statutes. Approved. To amend the "champerty and maintenance" statute. Adverse report and the bill killed; bill defining the term 'adverse possession." Adverse report and killed; bill extending the time six weeks in which a road may be killed. Adverse report and killed. A number of prominent democratic leaders are here working quietly to have a very important change made in the election law. The proposed bill, which has not yet been perfected, will provide for a state board of election commissioners, who shall appoint three commissioners in each county, whose duty it will be to appoint the election officers in every election.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 28.—SENATE—Bills introduced Tuesday: To prevent any discrimination against the currency of our bonds. To aid and to protect the debtor class of our citizens. It provides that where a particular kind of money is specified in a contract it shall be construed to mean any lawful money of the United States; to regulate the practice of pharmacy and to establish a board of pharmacy. Reenacts the present law. Senate bill No. 4 came up as a special order It provides that road overseers can not use their own teams and not be interested in teams of others in working county roads. The bill had been adversely reported by the committee, and on motion of Senator Stege it was recommitted to the committee on agriculture and manufactures. Bills reported by committees: To authorize the use of short-term convicts in construction of courthouses, jails, public roads, bridges, etc., and to authorize the working of convicts out of the penal laws thereon in payments of fines; to create a board of penitentiary commissioners and regulate the penal institutions of this commonwealth.

HOUSE—Fifty-three new bills were introduced Tuesday, among them the following: To require all passenger trains to stop at county seats; making it a felony to sign the name of another to a petition for removal of a remonstrance without permission; to reduce the toll rate on toll roads for various animals and vehicles; to levy a tax to erect a state house at Frankfort and create a board of state house commissioners. Provides for raising $800,000; to amend Section 4, Article 5, of revenue law so that whisky shall be assessed for county and city taxes like other merchandise; to amend Section 4,306 of Kentucky statutes, so that county roads may be maintained either by taxation or bonds allotted, or both; to abolish the office of adjutant general and abolishing the offices of sergeant-at-arms, tipstaff, etc., of court of appeals, and creating office of special law clerk to said court; prohibiting any discrimination against any coin or money in contracts or the payment of money; to prohibit the granting of licenses to merchants and druggists to retail intoxicating drinks.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 27.—SENATE—The senate committee on charitable institutions Wednesday afternoon, by a viva voce vote, decided to report favorably the nomination of Dr. E. M. Wiley, gold democrat of Harrodsburg, as superintendent of the Lexington asylum. A yea and nay vote would have shown a majority of the committee to be for Superintendent Wiley, but the anti-Wileyites did not care to antagonize their friends on the committee, the favorable report which, in this instance, means nothing, was allowed to be adopted.

HOUSE—The commonwealth's attorneys won their fight in the house Wednesday, defeating Mr. Humphreys' bill, which proposed to abolish this office and consolidate it with that of county attorney. Mr. Humphreys made a strong pea for the bill, claiming that its passage would reduce the expenses of criminal prosecutions over $100,000 a year. Mr. Chinn, of Mercer, and Mr. Bradburn, of Warren, both members of the judiciary committee led the fight against the bill. Mr. Tracey, of Covington, also led the fight in the house in behalf of his bill providing for a more rigid examination of applicants for license to practice law. The judiciary committee had reported it adversely, and finally succeeded in having its report sustained.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 28.—SENATE—Senator Bronston introduced a bill in the senate Thursday which will bring more grief to the railroads, at whom half of the most important bills heretofore introduced have been aimed. It provides that in addition to furnishing special cars for Negroes, the railroads shall also have first and second-class coaches, and that fare on second-class coaches shall be only half as much as on first-class coaches.

HOUSE—The house Thursday passed the resolution so often consigned to its grave heretofore, calling on Senator Lindsay to resign, as a rebuke to his course on the money question. A democratic majority, by a strict party vote, unseated Representative Power, of the Clinton and Wayne district, and seated Alvin Bertram, the silverite democratic nominee. Representative, of Campbell county, will introduce a bill in the house Friday providing for the creation and government of suburban districts.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 28.—SENATE—The senate by a vote of 18 to 16 passed the McChord railroad bill. It gives the railroad commissioners power to regulate freight rates.

HOUSE—Bills introduced in the house. Among those introduced were the following: Amending the law as to roads and passways, giving the right to parties unable to pay a road tax to work out the same on roads; to authorize the penitentiary authorities to advertise for beef, and to let the lowest and best bidder furnish the same; making others as well as homestead exemptions; to amend Statutes; amending the law with regard to county canvassing boards; amending libel laws to permit more evidence in a suit for damages, as to the character of the person; requiring transfer of shares that a director in a building and loan association shall own.

High Water Scatters Deadly Germs.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 28.—The Lexington asylum is suffering on account of high water. The sewerage is inadequate. The whole grounds are overflowed, and water stands six feet deep under the colored wards. The entire gas plant is flooded, and the rooms now have to be lighted by tallow candles. The overflow carries the germs of disease from the poisonous sewage all over the grounds and under many of the wards. This is almost sure to result in an epidemic of fever in the spring.

Lexington Gets the Home.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 29.—The action of council in appropriating $6,000 for the erection of the State Odd Fellows' Widows' and Orphans' home makes it now almost certain that Lexington will secure the location. The fiscal court recently appropriated $4,000 for the same purpose.

The Senate Passes the Lindsay Resolution.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 29.—The senate passed the house resolution asking Senator Lindsay to resign. Only one of the silver democrats voted against the resolution, which was adopted by a vote of 23 to 16.

R. R. Houston has been out of sorts since Circuit Court. Now what the trouble is your correspondent can not find out, without some of his expectations failed to materialize. But one thing is certain, if you do not want to run or fight don't say anything to him about toll.

Levi Tanner sold and delivered his crop of tobacco to Mr. Stevenson, of Erlanger, at an average of $8.70, bringing him a neat sum at least, judging by the way he is pitching into the briars and grubs for another crop. He was in our burg, last Friday, looking like a Kansas cyclone had struck him in the face.

Jim Rouse has recovered his horse that was taken from his stable on the night of the 3d of January. He received a postal card stating that Mr. Kite, who lives on J. W. Couner's farm, had the horse. When Jim went, sure enough there was the horse, but the darkey who was seen using the horse could not be found. According to reports there should be something done, as it is thought by most persons in this neighborhood that if this case is dropped, some one else will lose horses in the future, when certain gentleman of color wants to go quicker than he can walk.

Mr. Editor, we are all in favor of good roads in this neighborhood, and if as Dr. Crouch says, it is a trifling matter to macadamize our dirt roads, we would suggest that the Doctor commence work at the end of the Union pike and build toward Beaver, (be sure to build toward Beaver), and before he finishes this one oue mile, we thiuk he will go back on the trifling matter part of his letter.

One day last week, while Mr. Whitlock was in Coal City, his pocket was relieved of $55 in money, a check, a 10 trip ticket to Cincinnati and several other things. He has no clew as to who the thief might be.

Last Saturday night Mr Egelston attempted to cross the river, and as the wind was very high his boat was capsized and he was carried by the current as far as the coke works before he was rescued. When they found his boat he tried to cross again, but again his boat was overturned and he caught in some drift wood and drifted as far as North Bend before he was caught again. He concluded he had better wait until morning before he tried it again.

A thousand pardons to the Utzinger correspondent. I would have told who Mr. Perry Kirtley married when I wrote about his being in this neighborhood, but he visited his old home first and I thought the Utzinger correspondent would think I was trespassing if I told any more about him, but I now take great pleasure in informing him that Mr. Perry married Miss Norma Harper, a most charming young lady of Liberty, Mo. And speaking of names, you forgot to tell us who the persons are who are to be married on the 22d, and whom Mr. Walton thinks Hubert is going to marry.

Bullittsville.

Our little village has been very lively for several days from a business standpoint. Riley & Hogan have been receiving a quantity of tobacco from all parts of the county, giving employment to a great many hands. We are having a good deal of sickness at present among our neighbors. Mrs. H. C. Duncan has about recovered from a very severe attack lasting some four months. She was out riding yesterday for the first time. Miss O. W. Gaines has been very ill for several days but is recovering slowly. Mrs. T. G. Willis has been quite sick for about a week, but at last accounts was improving gradually. Mr. G. C. Riley, who accidentally shot himself about ten days ago, inflicting a slight flesh wound, has entirely recovered.

The Grange at this place has been unfortunate in its meetings for several weeks. Something has occurred on each appointment to keep the members from the Grange. They have not been able to secure a working quorum since the first of December. Hence they have not been able to hold the annual election of officers for the ensuing year. They propose at their regular meeting the first Saturday in February, at 2 p. m., to elect and install a full set of officers. The older members have determined to fill the offices with young material this year. They want every member of the Grange, old and young, to come out and assist in selecting suitable officers. It is strange to relate that the community is so indifferent to this praise-worthy organization. It is one of the finest schools for educating farmers' sons and daughters that has ever been conceived by human mind.

We take the bravest, most faithful and conscientious public servant in the county. Last Monday, constable Jas. T. Grant, received by mail three citations summoning three of our citizens, living near Bellevue, this county, to appear before a magistrate in Kenton county, Tuesday was the last day they could be legally served. Notwithstanding the parties lived outside of his district and the morning dawned with weather most unpropitious for the performance of his duty, he donned his great coat, mounted his roan gelding and went forth, braving the down pour of rain and sleet in the faithful discharge of the first call upon him in an official capacity. When he reached Woolper creek he found it impossible to stem the tide of its raging waters and pass in safety to the opposite shore. With the dauntless spirit that rules his actions, he left his favorite steed, defied fate and crossed the iron bridge, which is a death-trap for man or beast. When he reached the west end of the bridge he found the approach on that side had been washed away to a depth of six feet below the level of the bridge. Determined in the discharge of his duty, he swam from the bridge, landing safely on terra firma, and wended his way on foot through mud and rain to the residence of his nephew, about a mile and a half distant, where he borrowed a horse and proceeded in the faithful discharge of his duty. When he arrived at the bridge on his return, he found it impossible to mount to its floor until he had made a miniature ladder by driving pieces of wood in the cracks of the pier. Happy in the success of his first official duties to his State and nation he mounted his horse and started homeward, singing the sweet melodies that fill his unselfish being. He had not traveled far till he found it necessary to leave the road and go through a field that would bring him into the road about a mile ahead. He had to dismount to pass through the gate. When he turned to close it the horse seeing that he was free, galloped homeward, leaving his kind hearted master to wade through mud knee deep and swim across swolen creeks that cut him off from his home. Good naturedly our constable followed his horse afar off and when he came in sight of him he was waltzing around with his hind foot in the bridle rein—just before reaching him the horse fell, rolled over an embankment and landed in a ditch with his heels in the air. The constable, with great difficulty, assisted him from his uncomfortable position and after caressing him and telling him how glad he was that he was not hurt, he mounted and returned to his home.

Hebron.

Jan. 29.—As we have seen no mention of the Hebron happeuings for a long time, we have begun to realize "that he that toteth not his own home, verily the same goeth untoted." Hebron is the name of the town where King David lived. Hebron is the center of the world—the sky and earth meet equally distant all around it. Hebron is one of the "gan-est" towns you may find—we boast of our champion cheequer players and skillful crokonole players.

In sending the following items the writer does not claim to have broken the ice again (for we have no ice at Hebron to break), but we wish to say that we hope the space allotted us may prove better than our room.

Mrs I. Davis is suffering with a severe cold.

Mr. Mike Dye has been threatened with the lagrippe, but is better now.

Mr. and Mrs. Mace Riggs were the guests of Mrs. Mike Dye, last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs Whitlock entertained a few friends on last Monday evening, at crockonole.

Mr. and Mrs Chas. Goodridge spent Saturday night and Sunday with their mother, Mrs. Davis.

Rev. G. W. Watkins left Saturday, for Orangeburg, Ky. He will remain over the first Sunday in February.

Mrs. Bettie Clore and Miss Echlinger, of Bullittsville, were the guests of Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Watkins, last Monday.

Rev. G. W. Watkins will preach at the Florence Christian church, Monday night, February 7th. There will be services for several nights.

A "town prayer meeting" will be organized here next Tuesday night. Until warm weather it will be held at the different homes. It will not be denominational but will be organized for the spiritual good of the community. It is earnestly hoped that all will lend a helping hand.

The writer of these items is a beginner in "itemizing" as well as a comparative stranger to the neighborhood, so if anything that anyone may have desired to have mentioned, has been omitted, please do not let it happen again. Send your notices to my office in time and they shall surely appear.

Union.

Jan. 31 —Geo. H. Stephenson has a bouncing baby girl at his house.

Ex-Auditor L. C. Norman, was in Union, last week.

The public school closed last Friday with a spelling match.

Dr. Crouch has succeeded in making the people talk and no mistake.

Mrs. J. W. Conner and Mr. John Gibson were initiated as Grangers, Saturday.

After a lingering illness of several months, a daughter of Tobe Baker died January 22d.

Mr. Willis, of Williamstown, has been the guest of relatives in Union and vicinity for two weeks.

Mr Lampkin says his motto for 1898 is "work hard, be jolly and make lots of money." Here's hoping he may do it.

Otis Rouse, while driving on the Union and Beaver pike, recently, had his team break through and for the assistance of 8 or 10 men with ropes, who pulled the term out, he has reasons to be grateful.

McDouald & Reverets, who have carried on the dairy and market garden business, near this place, for a number of years, will move back to Kenton. These gentlemen are hustlers and will prove good and useful citizens wherever they may locate.

Glad to know Bro. Utzinger has recovered the use of his good right arm, and is able to sling ink again, even if he does seej proper to sling a few at the poor old U. C. Say, Bro. Tolin, don't you know the doctrine of "universal redemption" is taught in Burlington; theu, what's the matter with being redeemed even should we stay there six weeks longer.

J. W. Kennedy has been receiving some choice crops of tobacco, the last few days. Among them were the crops of Neal brothers and Thomas Carlisle. Your correspoudent was shown a sample of Owen county tobacco by Mr. Kennedy, out of a purchase of 100,000 pouuds made at New Columbus, and it certainly does look very flue—long, nice color and good body.

Messrs. Peter Adams, Tom Burkett, Robt. Dickerson, Jas. Bristow and other lovers of the chase with a strlug of 25 dogs were in the field Thursday, and after a run of 2½ hours caught a sly old fox near Charley Baker's. The boys were in high glee over their success, and are now ready to challenge "any old man" from Verona to Constance for a race.

Arch Dickerson, Price Conner and some other boys were so elated over the "fox catch" that they have decided to enter a grey-hound of Arch's in the next race after "Sir Reynard," and at once put him in training. First thing they did was to put him through a "course of sprouts" they called "packing the mail." That was a wonderful lot of fun for the boys but mighty hard on the dog. First they smoothed his hair, patted his head and in other ways deceived the poor fellow into believing that they intended him no harm; then they tied a 15-inch Roman candle to his tail very carefully, at the same time pouting his head toward Florence Theu all was ready a red hot poker was applied to the candle and the fuse ignited. The dog decided that to stay was impossible; to turn around was a waste of time and to go forward was the part of wisdom, so he up and went. As he went down Main street it looked like daylight before the November election parade" had struck the town, fire flying from his back and from the rocks as he drove his toenails into them and flew. Next day we asked Arch how well the hound "packed the mail?" Well, if that dog had'er went straight to Florence without stopping to tell Uncle Lon good bye, he wouldn't brought that letter from Mr. Honus Oelsner to our house in just 14 minutes and 21 seconds.

I notice Hon. Reuben Conner has framed a bill presented to the Legislature for the reduction of salaries of the officials of the State, which exhibits judgment of a wise, thinking man, and which all wise men very readily sanction.

Again: L. J. Owen, of Grayson, has introduced in the same body a bill to prevent double taxation, which, doubtless, should become a law, and which would be a law on honest principles.

Compelling people to pay taxes on their indebtedness is not only unjust but a plain, bare-faced swiudle from the outset, and the good people of Kentucky should not tolerate the idea of such a law, and rise enmass against it, if not repealed. What say you, my brethreu?

This appears like an effort in the right direction is being made at last. May it so continue.

Should the good people of our State elect all such men as these two gentlemeu, we could soou expect such days as we have passed through, and such as we are again anxious for and deserve. Kindly Yours, J. H. AYLOR.

The Boone County Recorder has been coming for some weeks in a dress of new type and much improved in other directions. We are glad to note this evidence of progress and prosperity in the Recorder and we trust it will have ample patrouage. Like the Banner it is the only paper of its class in the county and it can well claim patronage not simply for its own sake, but on the highest ground of being a public benefactor.—Boone County Banner.

Not a new dress by a long shot, brother Banner. The dress that the RECORDER is now wearing is the same it has gone before its readers in every week for thirteen years.

F. K. Crosgrove, an agent of the Perkins Windmill Company, came into this county and sold a windmill outfit to three different parties, one of whom was Mr. F. M. Howlett, of Big Bone. I wrote this agent in regard to the matter as below, and why wont he reply? If his wheel is what he claims, he has nothing to loose in thus putting his wheel on its merits; but on the other hand, he has much to gain in humiliating the Aermotor.

THE LETTER.
January 13th, 1898.

Mr. F. K. Crossgrove,
Fort Wayne, Ind.,

Dear Sir:—Have just heard from Mr. Willis that you had sold him, Mr. Howlett and Mr. Corbin, each, a Perkins Wind Mill outfit. They say you represented your wheel so much better, &c., than the Aermotor. Now, I know the Aermotor is the best wheel made and here challenge you to prove the superiority of your wheel. You have sold Mr. Howlett a 12 ft outfit. We will each of us put up a 12 ft. wheel on his barn and allow him to accept the one that is best, and the other two sales to depend on the test. I don't propose to be robbed of these sales without a protest, by your misrepresentations of my wheels. Truly,

T. J. HUGHES.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

(Special to the Recorder.)
Frankfort, Ky., Jan'y. 31, 1898.

Representative Conner made one of the best speeches heard during the session, in opposition to the resolution calling on Senator Lindsay to indorse the Chicago platform or retire from his seat in the American House of Lords. Mr. Conner made a conservative, sensible and timely address to his colleagues, which bore much weight except with the extremely radical element in the House. He said, that while he did not agree with Senator Lindsay, in fact was opposed to the Kentucky Senator, he was not in favor of taking up the time of the people in further discussion of the matter, which had been all too long drawn out then. He said the House had already shown Mr. Lindsay how he was esteemed by them in their disposition to adopt the resolution asking his resignation, and he thought that a sufficient mark of disapproval.

Mr. Conner is making a good impression as a thoroughly wide awake and intelligent representative. He has made no fuss about what he has done, but he has made his presence felt in the last few days by his timely arguments on meritorious public matters. A Licking river citizen, who was here last week, said: "I do not know that I ever saw a man I would rather trust with any matter that I was interested in, than Reuben Conner. He would no more violate a confidence than I would try to fly with the arms at my side. It would be a purifying element if we could get more men like him in our public bodies and fewer of the politicians, many of whom are always working with an eye single to No. 1."

The adoption of the resolution calling on Senator Lindsay to indorse in full the Chicago platform, or resign and come home, was the most notable event in Legislative circles last week. This may have been a wise step, but the more conservative thinkers, in and out of the General Assembly, believe it to have been an unfortunate mistake which can do the Democratic party no earthly good. Though Senator Lindsay's position may be ever so untenable, and his eyes ever so purblind to the good which may result from the free use of silver, no man can say that the corpulent Kentuckian does not make a capable representative. Then the Senator has no small element of friends in the State, and they are now antagonized by the action of the Legislature. These loyal followers may become a breakwater between the two regular organizations ready to bring disaster to the one which may have the middle faction's weight. The old ruptures in the Democratic party were just healing, and to open anew the wounds can do nobody any good. How much better a reunited party would be, and even the Republicans would be glad to see this condition "every few years," as one of them said, "just to lend interest to the political battles." The concensus of opinions among the visiting Democrats is that, while Lindsay ought to favor silver to be in line with his party, he ought not to be proscribed out or his party for thinking just as he thought when elected.

If the Legislature does not swamp itself in a mighty tide of new bills this session will do itself proud in the matter of its work. The committees have done excellent work in clearing the calendars of unnecessary acts, and both Houses have recommitted or killed every proposed measure which seemed irrelevant or "trumped up." Thus far over 250 bills have been introduced in the Senate and about 175 in the House, and scores of bills are in course of preparation for presenting in the branches this week. Much time has been wasted in the discussion of the Lindsay resolution and talk about sendinga "nosing" committee to Louisville to investigate municipal affairs, but barring these two time-killing subjects, few others have come up.

Senator McChord, of Washington, managed the fight in favor of the bill empowering the railroad commission to fix freight rates in the State, and to him is due the credit for the passage of the bill in the Senate. It will not be longer than tomorrow before a bill in exact conformity will be passed in the House. The bill is one of the most important measures yet considered in the Legislature. Senator McChord said: "I have no doubt of the passage of the bill in the House from the talks I have had with a number of members. It will certainly become a law before the end of the session."

The committee appointed for investigating the State Asylums will start on its rounds today. This committee will leave nothing undone in finding out the alleged mattes which have been alluded to as resulting in these institutions. When there were wholesale changes at Lexington recently some thing must have come up to make this necessary. At least the Democratic members thought so, hence the House members named the committee to go and find out all that is to be found about these properties which are under the watchcare of Kentucky.

I find a sentiment against the prison commission bill is growing and very much to my surprise. It seemed a week ago that Senator Bronston would have no trouble in getting through his pet measure, but the Democrats seem to be doubting the wisdom of passing the act. The Republicans are fighting it with desperation, because they think they will be subjected to [illegible] becomes effective. The Morgan Chinn anti-school book trust bill is progressing very nicely, and seems a cinch as to success. It will come up in the orders of the day probably tomorrow. It will pass in both Houses, despite the efforts of the lobbyists.

Of the numerous game bills none has been passed. That is just what all the parties want. The newspapers over the State have been jibing the members about devoting so much time to game bills, and many game acts have been killed.

The election amendment bill will come up this week, changing in a radical way the election law.

Representative Saunders has been warmly congratulated by his friends on the success of his Lindsay resolution.

Monday was a good winter day. It had all the trimmings.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Oceanville, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

FLOWER-POT CHRISTIAN.

He Should Quit Dreaming and Get Down to Business

Saving Souls for Christ—The Hesitancy of the Beautiful Queen Esther Used as the Theme for a Very Interesting Sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage.

The text of Dr. Talmage Sunday was Esther iv., 14: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

Esther the beautiful was the wife of Ahasuerus the abominable. The time had come for her to present a petition to her infamous husband in behalf of the Jewish nation, to which she had once belonged. She was afraid to undertake the work lest she should lose her own life; but her consin, Mordecai, who had brought her up, encouraged her with the suggestion that probably she had been raised up of God for that peculiar mission. "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

Esther had her God-appointed work. You and I have ours. It is my business to tell you what style of men and women you ought to be in order that you meet the demand of the age in which God has cast your lot. So this discourse will not deal with technicalities, but only with the practicabilities. When two armies have rushed into battle the officers of either army do not want a philosophical discussion about the chemical properties of the human blood or the nature of gunpowder, they want some one to man the batteries and take out the guns. And now, when all the forces of light and darkness, of Heaven and hell, have plunged into the fight, it is no time to give ourselves to the definitions and formulas and technicalities and conventionalities of religion. What we want is practical, earnest, concentrated, enthusiastic and triumphant help.

In the first place, in order to meet the special demand of this age, you need to be an unmistakable, aggressive Christian. Of half-and-half Christians we do not want any more. The Church of Jesus Christ will be better without them. They are the chief obstacle to the church's advancement I am speaking of another kind of Christian. All the appliances for your becoming an earnest Christian are at hand, and there is a straight path for you into the broad daylight of God's forgiveness. You may this moment be the bondmen of the world, and the next moment you may be princes of the Lord God Almighty. You remember what excitement there was in this country, years ago, when the prince of Wales came here—how the people rushed out by hundreds of thousands to see him. Why? Because they expected that some day he would sit upon the throne of England. But what was all that honor compared with the honor to which God calls you—to be sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty; yea, to be queens and kings unto God. "They shall reign with Him forever and forever."

But you need to be aggressive Christians, and not like those persons who spend their lives in hugging their Christian graces and wondering why they do not make progress. How much robustness of health would a man have if he hid himself in a dark closet? A great deal of the piety of to-day is too exclusive. It hides itself. It needs more fresh air, more outdoor exercise. There are many Christians who are giving their entire life to self-examination. They are feeling their pulses to see what is the condition of their spiritual health. How long would a man have robust physical health if he kept all the day feeling his pulse instead of going out into active, earnest everyday work?

I was once amid the wonderful, bewitching cactus growth of North Carolina. I never was more bewildered with the beauty of flowers, and yet when I would take up one of these cactuses and pull the leaves apart the beauty was all gone. You could hardly tell that it had ever been a flower. And there are a great many Christian people in this day just pulling apart their Christian experiences to see what there is in them, and there is nothing left in them.

This style of self-examination is a damage instead of an advantage to their Christian character. I remember when I was a boy I used to have a small piece in the garden that I called my own, and I planted corn there, and every few days I would pull it up to see how fast it was growing. Now there are a great many Christian people in this day whose self-examination merely amounts to the pulling up of that which they only yesterday or the day before planted. Oh my friends, if you want to have a stalwart Christian character, plant it right out of doors in the great field of Christian usefulness, and though storms may come upon it, and though the hot sun of trial may try to consume it, it will thrive until it becomes a great tree, in which the fowls of heaven may have their habitation. I have no patience with these flower-pot Christians. They keep themselves under shelter, and all their Christian experience, in a small, exclusive circle, when they ought to plant it in the great garden of the Lord, so that the whole atmosphere could be aromatic with their Christian usefulness. What we want in the church of God is more strength of piety. The century plant is wonderfully suggestive and wonderfully beautiful, but I never look at it without thinking of its [illegible] money. It lets whole generations [illegible] before it puts forth one blossom, [illegible] really more admiration when [illegible] the dewy tears in the blue eyes of [illegible], for they come every spring. [illegible] Christian friends, time is going by [illegible] that we can not afford to be [illegible]

[illegible] statistician says that human life has an average of only [illegible] these 38 years you [illegible] all the time you take [illegible] the making of God and [illegible] Christ will leave you about [illegible] Years is you must [illegible] you are necessarily engaged in the earning of a livelihood; that will leave you about eight years. From these eight years you must take all the days and weeks and months—all the length of time that is passed in sickness—leaving you about one year in which to work for God. Oh, my soul! wake up! How dared thou sleep in harvest time, and with so few hours in which to reap? So that I state it as a simple fact that all the time that the vast majority of you will have for the exclusive service of God will be less than one year.

"But," says some man, "I liberally support the Gospel, and the church is open and the Gospel is preached. All the spiritual advantages are spread before me; they want to be saved lot them be saved; I have [illegible] sponsibility." Ah! [illegible]t? Is there not [illegible] at commands [illegible] for ways and [illegible] pkins Maple to [illegible] leans in at yon [illegible] visit relatives [illegible] mer at this place [illegible]age to Miss Hattie Bl[illegible] amstown, Jan. 25th. [illegible] Lancaster was tried for using [illegible] Christian[illegible]ve language to Mrs. Perry Websterlis when a week. He was fined $50 and [illegible] seem to be hil[illegible] steam printing press has returned home [illegible] infidel tracts, when [illegible]ark. He has been [illegible] carrying messengers [illegible]. Miller race stafast clippers are la[illegible]gone for the past [illegible] and strong drink, when op[illegible] of our cities is polluted [illegible]he laughter that breaks [illegible] 10,000 saloons of dissipation [illegible]andonment, when the fires of [illegible] second death already are kindled in the cheeks of some who, only a little while ago, were incorrupt. Oh, never since the curse fell upon the earth has there been a time when it was such an unwise, such a cruel, such an awful thing for the church to sleep. The great audiences are not gathered in Christian churches; the great audiences are gathered in temples of sin—tears of unutterable woe their baptism, the blood of crushed hearts the awful wine of their sacrament, blasphemies their litany, and the groans of the lost world the organ dirge of their worship.

Again, if you want to be qualified to meet the duties which this age demands of you, you must, on the one hand, avoid reckless iconoclasm, and, on the other hand, not stick too much to things because they are old. The air is full of new plans, new projects, new theories of government, new theologies, and I am amazed to see how so many Christians want only novelty in order to recommend a thing to their confidence; and so they vacillate and reading to and fro, and they are restless and they are unhappy. New plans—secular, ethical, philosophical, religious, cis-Atlantic, trans-Atlantic—long enough to make a line reaching from the German universities to Great Salt Lake City.

Ah, my brother, do not take hold of a thing merely because it is new! Try it by the realities of the judgment day. But, on the other hand, do not adhere to anything merely because it is old. There is not a single enterprise of the church or of the world but has at some time been scoffed at. There was a time when men derided even the Bible societies, and when a few young men met in Massachusetts and organized the first missionary society ever organized in this country there went up laughter and ridicule all around the Christian church. They said the undertaking was preposterous. And so also the work of Jesus Christ was assailed. People cried out: "Who ever heard of such theories of ethics and government? Who ever noticed such a style of preaching as Jesus has?" Ezekiel had talked of mysterious wings and wheels. Here came a man from Capernaum and Gennesaret, and He drew his illustrations from the lakes, from the sand, from the mountain, from the lilies, from the corn-stalks. How the Pharisees scoffed! How Herod derided! And this Jesus they plucked by the beard and they spat in His face, and they called Him "this fellow!" All the great enterprises in and out of the church have at times been scoffed at. And there have been a great multitude who have thought that the chariot of God's truth would fall to pieces if one got out of the old rut. And so there are those who have no patience with anything like improvement in church architecture, or with anything like good, hearty, earnest, church singing, and they deride any form of religious discussion which goes down walking among everyday men, rather than that which makes an excursion on rhetorical stilts. Oh, that the Church of God would wake up to an adaptability of work! We must admit the simple fact that the churches of Jesus Christ in this day do not reach the great masses. There are 50,000 people in Edinburgh who never hear the Gospel. There are 1,000,000 people in London who never hear the Gospel. The great majority of the inhabitants of this capital come not under the immediate ministrations of Christ's truth, and the Church of God this day, instead of being a place full of living epistles, known and read of all men, is more like a dead-letter post office.

"But," say the people, "the world is going to be converted; you must be patient; the kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of Christ." Never unless the church of Jesus Christ puts on more speed and energy. Instead of the church converting the world, the world is converting the church. Here is a great fortress. How shall it be taken? An army comes and sits around about it, cuts off the supplies, and says: "Now we will just wait until from exhaustion and starvation they will have to give up." Weeks and months and perhaps a year pass along, and finally the fortress surrenders through that starvation and exhaustion. But, my friends, the fortresses of sin are never to be taken in that way. If they are taken for God it will be by storm; you will have to bring up the great siege guns of the Gospel to the very wall and wheel the flying artillery into line, and when the armed infantry of Heaven shall confront the battlements you will have to give the quick command: "Forward! Charge!"

Ah, my, friends, there is work for you to do and for me to do in order to this grand accomplishment. I have a pulpit, I preach in it. Your pulpit is the bank. Your pulpit is the store. Your pulpit is the editorial chair. Your pulpit is the anvil. Your pulpit is the mechanics' shop. I may stand in my place and, through cowardice or through self-seeking, may keep back the word I ought to utter; while you, with sleeve rolled up and brow beaweated with toil, may utter the word that will jar the foundations of Heaven with the shout of a great victory. Oh, that we might all feel that the Lord Almighty is putting upon us the hands of ordination! I tell you, every one, go forth and preach this Gospel. You have as much right to preach as I have or any [illegible] living.

And who will say on earth or in Heaven that Havelock had not the right to preach? In the minister's house where I prepared for college there worked a man by the name of Peter Croy. He could neither read nor write, but he was a man of deep piety. Other theologians would stop in the house—grave theologian—and at family prayer Peter Croy would be called upon to lead; and all those wise men sat around wonderstruck at his religious efficiency. When he prayed he reached up and seemed to take hold of the very throne of God until the very heavens were bowed down into the sitting-room. Oh, if I were dying I would rather have plain Peter Croy kneel at my bedside and commend my immortal spirit to God than the greatest ecclesiastic surgred in costly canonicals. Go preach this gospel. You say you are not licensed. In the name of the Lord Almighty, I license you. Go preach this Gospel, preach it in the Sabbath-schools, in the prayer meetings, in the highways, in the hedges. Woe be unto you if you preach it not!

I remark again that in order to be qualified to meet your duty in this particular age you want unbounded faith in the triumph of the truth and the overthrow of wickedness. How dare the Christian Church ever get discouraged? Have we not the Lord Almighty on our side? How long did it take God to slay the hosts of Sennacherib or burn Sodom or shake down Jericho? How long will it take God, when he once arises in his strength, to overthrow all the forces of iniquity? Between this time and that there may be long seasons of darkness, and the chariot wheels of God's Gospel may seem to drag heavily; but here is the promise and yonder is the throne, and when omniscience has lost its eyesight and omnipotence falls back impotent and Jehovah is driven from his throne, then the church of Jesus Christ can afford to be despondent, but never until then.

Despots may plan and armies may march, and the congresses of the nations may seem to think they are adjusting all the affairs of the world, but the mighty men of the earth are only the dust of the chariot wheels of God's providence. And I think before the sun of the next century shall set the last tyranny will fall, and with a splendor of demonstration that shall be the astonishment of the universe God will set forth the brightness and pomp and glory and perpetuity of his eternal government. Out of the starry flags and the emblazoned insignia of this world God will make a path for His own triumph, and, returning from universal conquest, He will sit down, the grandest, the strongest, highest throne of earth his footstool.

THE multiplication of modern war appliances is suggestive of the animal world in which one destructive insect feeds upon another, only to be attacked in turn by a more destructive one. Every invention of a new war engine seems to call out a counteracting one. Torpedoes sunk in harbors and rivers have heretofore been regarded as a very effective defense against attack, but now comes a Baltimore inventor with a submarine boat which, he says, can render useless the torpedoes in any harbor in the world. The boat has demonstrated its ability to travel under water or traverse the bottom of a river or harbor.

WHAT is the life of a trolley car wheel? The United Traction Co., of Pittsburgh, reports the average life of its wheels to be about 35,000 miles, and estimates that about one-third of this life is secured by prompt grinding when the wheels become flat. This company, as well as some others, buys its wheels with the guarantee of a 80,000-mile life, and if they should require renewing before that time the wheels are replaced at the expense of the manufacturing company, while if the life should prove to be longer the company receives a corresponding credit.

IT WAS UNPALATABLE.

Secret of the Guests' Refusal to Drink the Host's Wine.

"Howdy. How are you?" said the stout passenger on the trolley car as he dropped into the nearest seat and deposited several bundles behind his feet. "Have much Christmas over your way?" he continued, by way of opening a conversation after his greeting had been returned.

"Oh, had a very nice time. Awfnl nasty weather, though. I just stayed in the house all day and drank eggnog," returned the other.

"Speaking about drinking," the first man continued, "you know that wine of mine—the kind I sent you over. Well, my mother-in-law makes it herself. She knows how to go about it, and it is simply the finest thing I ever drank. Well, I had been bragging about it some to several of the boys, and told them to just drop around any time and we would crack a bottle."

"Did they come?" asked the other.

"You bet they did. That's what I'm telling you about. Christmas eve they came around and brought their instruments with them. It was about 11 o'clock, and they played awhile on the front porch before I woke up. After dressing hurriedly I went down and let them in. I knew they had come after that wine, so I took them right into the dining room and got out the fruit cake and set it on the table.

"Then I went after the wine glasses and the wine. I decare it was beautiful. It had the finest, richest color to it that I ever saw on wine, and all the time I was opening the bottle I was telling the boys all about it and praising it for all it was worth. Finally I had it all poured out and each man had a slice of cake.

"I did not want any myself, and so stood by the fire with my hands behind me. Each man took a sip, made a wry face and set down his glass. After a time one man drank his, and when I insisted on again filling up his glass he looked like he did not want it. He took it, though, and drank it, too.

"When I saw that only one of them was drinking I began to get nervous, and finally remarked on the fact, and then Tom Wheeler spoke up.

"'Jack,' he said, 'you may call this fine wine, but I'm dog-goned if it ain't the worst I ever tasted.'

"'That's right, Jack,' chimed in the others, and when they saw I did not like it they soon left. That was the first time that anyone had said they did not like my wine, and I was hurt.

"The next morning when I came down to breakfast my wife said: 'Jack, Emma' (she's our cook) 'is getting worse and worse every day. Only a few days ago I missed my thimble, and last night before I went to bed I filled up an empty wine bottle with some liver regulator, and this morning every drop of it is gone. I'm not going to stand it any more.'

"Well, you may imagine how I felt. I established Emma's innocence of the theft of the liver regulator, and this morning I wrote each of the boys a note, telling them of the mistake I had made, and inclosing a bottle of the wine. Funny, wasn't it?"

"Well, I should say so," said the man who had been listening to this tale, "but I expect the man that drank two glasses of the stuff for politeness' sake felt very funny."

"Well, here's where I get off. Come around some time and bring your wife."

"All right," rejoined the other. "but be sure you give us nothing but wine."—Atlantic Constitution.

OLD ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Among the Most Historic of Churches in the Country.

Historically, and in the relics of the past which it contains, few if any churches in America are more interesting than old St. John's, at Portsmouth, N. H. The founding of the parish dates from 1638, but the present edifice is modern. It was built in 1806, and the good man who preached the dedication sermon described it as a work of stupendous magnitude. It is not, however, the building which attracts us, but its belongings. Here we see the old prayer book, with the prayer for the president pasted over that for the king; the "Vinegar" Bible, of which only 40 copies were printed, and but five of which are in the United States. The bell which calls the parish to prayers is a capture from Louisburg, and, although twice recast, once by Paul Revere, since its voice was heard in its foreign home, it is yet the same old bell. An armchair which stands behind the altar rail was a gift from Queen Caroline, but is now known as the Washington chair, having been occupied by the first president of the United States when he attended service in the old church.

Admiral Farragut was buried from St. John's, and the reading table is made of wood from his flagship. A strange bit of treasure trove is the heavy porphyry font taken from an old church in Portsmouth and captured by the English from the French off the coast of Africa. Every Sunday 12 loaves of bread are placed upon this font and distributed to 12 old women, in accordance with the terms of one Theodore Eccleston's last will and testament, and because of a gift by will the church is still heated by wood fires.—Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph.

Irregular Winters Kill Insects.

According to experiments made in a cold storage establishment in Washington, by Dr. A. M. Read, an alternation of a low temperature, say 18 degrees Fahrenheit, with a comparatively high one, say 40 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit, invariably kills the larvæ of certain injurious insects, although they are not injured by a continuous exposure to the lower temperature. This confirms an old belief, long held by farmers, that a steadily cold winter is followed by an abundance of insect pests, but that during an irregular winter, when the temperature is alternately high and low, insects are killed off.—Youth's Companion.

A BLASPHEMOUS PARTY.

The Stock in Trade of Ranting Republicans.

The republican party has always assumed to be in partnership with the Almighty and in the minds of earnest republicans the party is the senior member of the firm. The idea has been exemplified times innumerable. "The party of God and morality," "the party of moral ideas"—these and similar designations, though they are now applied derisively to republicanism, were originally assumed by that party as appropriate titles for an organization which claimed a monopoly of all the virtues, patriotism and piety in the country.

Benjamin Harrison, when he presidentially claimed that "the Lord did it"—the performance being the carrying of an election by theft, bribery and corruption—voiced this idea that republicanism and Omnipoteance had formed an offensive and defensive alliance, the emoluments of which were to accrue to the republican party, while the glory, if there were any, was to be allotted to the Almighty. The utterance was typically republican and to republican ears it carried no hint of blasphemy. It was merely the conventional declaration of an accepted fact.

And so it is to-day. When M. A. Hanna, reeking with moral and political putrescence, soaked to the skin with the slime of unclean iniquities, secures an election to the senate of the United States by methods notorious to all the world, it is perfectly natural—from a republican point of view—that he should indite this message to the president of the United States:

"Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—To Hon. William McKinley, President, Washington, D. C.: God reigns and the republican party still lives. M. A. HANNA."

"God reigns and the republican party still lives!" The Almighty made an accessory before the fact to a saturnalia of all the crimes in the political calendar; Omnipotence constituted the sponsor for a political caliban so hideous that even some of his own brethren revolted against him! God interesting Himself in the affairs of Hannn!

Yet there is nothing unseemly in all this to the republican mind. The blasphemy arouses no indignation. On the contrary, the blasphemer is showered with congratulations from one end of the country to the other, and when, in the exuberance of his triumph, he declares that he will annihilate those who opposed him he looks to his auditors as one transfigured and bearing the sword of Gideon.

That is republicanism as it exists today—as it always has existed. Hypocrisy, blasphemy, profanation its stock in trade; corruption and lawlessness its creed.

REED RIGHT IN LINE.

The Republican Czar Is a Genuine Republican.

Mr. Bailey has proved his case against Speaker Reed. The Maine man has been convicted of a form of duplicity and petty deception not usual in the speakership. His violation of an agreement on a matter of vital national concern, under the puerile and contemptible technical excuse that the agreement was not made when the house was regularly in session, shows that the vaunted Reed is of that small caliber which sacrifices honor at the behest of expediency.

The whole proceeding, however, smells of sinister influences back of the public attitude of the republicans in the Cuban matter. It is in line with the policy of deception that has characterized the administration ever since its accession to power. That policy has been the violation of a solemn pledge to the American people that their overwhelming sentiment for the independence of Cuba should have vigorous expression.

Until the Bailey incident was developed it had been generally believed among all sorts and conditions of people in the country that the speaker of the house was free from taint of contact with the influences that control the president. But it appears that this belief was erroneous. Reed now is in the category with McKinley.

In fact, he is even in worse light than the president. It is possible for McKinley to shield himself behind the acts of the state department when the real truth is revealed. But Reed will have no such convenient cover. His humiliation is as complete as it is pitiable.—St. Louis Republic.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——Perhaps Speaker Reed relgns in order that the republican party may live.—Chicago Dispatch.

——Attorney-General McKenna was a good fellow when the president's backers were after the Union Pacific, and now he's a supreme judge.—Kansas City Times.

——An attempt is being made to gerrymander the Ohio congressional districts. Mr. Hanna contemplates an extensive real estate deal, and will have some excellent plots ready for 1900.—N. Y. Journal.

——Popular faith in Mr. Hanna's professions of love for the laboring man will again be shaken by the news that 500 of the employes of his Cleveland iron works are out on a strike.—Chicago Chronicle.

——Can any honest man in Ohio believe that either Allen G. Thurman, Benjamin F. Wade, George H. Pendleton or Thomas Ewing would have taken his seat in the United States senate while an investigation was under way to test his title?—Columbus (O.) Press.

——Little less assumption, a little more modesty, a little less folly and a little more wisdom, a little less proclamation of coercive measures and a little more declaration of conciliatory purposes would, all things considered, better become Mr. Hanna. There is an old but instructive fable which has to do with a frog that aspired to be an ox which might be profitably considered by the chairman of the national committee.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PROSPERITY MADE TO ORDER.

It Brings Reduced Wages to Mill Hands in the East.

It seems that the wonderful brand of maxim-made prosperity introdneed into the country by Mr. McKinley and the republican party is becoming contagious in the east. It has spread from the cotton mill operatives to various other trades. The last to get a slice of it are not counting those who are already [illegible] with it—are the shoemakers.

The employes in a great shoe manufactory in North Brookfield, Mass., caught the contagion as a sort of New Year's gift. They were informed that after the 1st their wages would be cut down. This will, of course, lead to cuts in all competing establishments of the east and north, so that speaking after the manner of the writer of Ecclesiastes, who was also a maxim-maker, the end is not yet.

The reason given by the manufacturers is that they are losing money, and will have to go out of business if they do not reduce the amount they are compelled to pay their workmen. The men have no other option than to submit. They enter the second year of republican prosperity with reduced wages.

Here is where the Dingley tariff comes beautifully into play. That law imposed a duty on hides—the raw material out of which shoes are made. It was expected, according to the protection theory, that the manufacturers would recoup themselves for the increased price of hides by demanding a larger price for their shoes. But there is another link in the chain that Mr. Dingley failed to take into consideration, to-wit, the ability of the people to pay higher prices.

The result is precisely what the Constitution said it would be when the Dingley bill was up for discussion. We cannot have the gold standard and high protection at the same time. One destroys the prosperity of the people, and protection collapses when the people are not prosperous. There is a duty on hides, and the manufacturers, instead of recouping themselves by charging higher prices for their products, are compelled to "get even" by reducing the wages of their employes.

Thus it will be seen that our brand of maxim-made prosperity involves lower wages for workingmen.—Atlanta Constitution.

DINGLEYISM OPERATING.

New England Workingmen Suffering from Protection.

The industrial condition in New England is far from favorable. Great discontent is prevalent in that section at this time, when a general reduction of wages in the cotton mills is going into effect. In some instances the strike is resorted to, although, in a general way, this step is regarded as more desperate than acceptance of proposed reductions. The workingmen are not in a position now to afford the luxury of a strike, and it is likely that the most will be made of a bad situation through a keeping nt work at the lower wages offered.

It is fair to say, we suppose, that the condition of things industrial in New England constitutes itself a very bad showing for the principle of protection for American workingmen. In the early days of the operation of the Dingley law, the promised advantages of that statute, in so far as labor is reaping them, are not materializing. It is widely if not generally believed that the power to benefit the labor elements attributed to robber tariffs does not belong to them and that the declaration that they have such power is mere pretense, humbug, sham. At any rate, this theory, if it be no more, is borne out in the state of affairs that exists in New England, where Dingley protection for labor has been weighed and found wanting. In fact, there is no reason to suppose that Dingleyism is making a more favorable impression to-day than McKinleyism created seven years ago.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

DINGLEY THE WHOLE THING.

The Republican Deity Who Works Wonders.

Prosperity and the Dingley tariff are linked together.

First came the Dingley bill, and then followed dollar wheat. When the great and all-powerful tariff act became a law the farmers of Europe announced that they had no wheat to sell; indeed, they had none for home consumption. Prices for the cereal went up, and the republicans sang a paean of praise and said: "Thanks to Dingley."

Sugar stock jumped 40 per cent. and Standard oil stocks climbed 50 per cent., while Metropolitan railroad stock in New York sells for 130 per cent.—thanks to Dingley.

Trusts were never so numerous and never so profitable as they are now. Never were so many new combinations of capital formed; never were the rich favored as they are at present—thanks to Dingley.

Senator Hanna missed a point when he telegraphed McKinley to the effect that "God rules and the republican party still lives." He should have simply said, with truth and brevity: "Thanks to Dingley."

Seldom has there been a more genial and kindly winter. The mercury has gone up with a cheerful persistency, and enthusiastic republicans can but recognize in this another proof of the upward trend of all things since the g. o. p. went into power. Surely they are justified in saying: "Thanks to Dingley."—Chicago Dispatch.

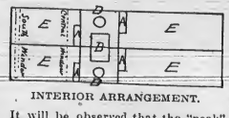
——If there has been any lingering doubt in any honest mind that Mark Hanna's election to the senate was secured by corruption and bribery Mr. Hanna, his friends and attorneys have completely removed that doubt. In the investigation ordered at Columbus their policy has been one of obstinate concealment. Each of Hanna's lieutenants and agents when put upon the witness stand answers every question —important or unimportant—with the set phrase: "I decline to answer."—N. Y. World.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

SANITARY PIGGERY.

Arranged to Provide Plenty of Sunshine for the Inside.

It is a noticeable fact that disease of all kinds, and cholera in particular, is most prevalent where the greatest number of hogs are kept. The massing of those animals together and crowding them with so carbonaceous a food as corn is an invitation to disease to come and reap a rich harvest; and unless the best preparations are taken to thwart it, it will be a harvest which is very liable to be gathered, and that successfully, too.



This is especially true where the piggery and its surroundings have become unsanitary. In such a case disease germs multiply fast, for disease loves dark and dampness, which soon tend to enfeeble the atrongest and healthiest hog and pave the way to the most dire results.

Now, as suallght is one of the best germicides known, thia, together with dry quarters, is absolutely necessary to the continued health of any hog. Indeed, all animals should have the sunshine to bask in, and most emphatically does this hold true as regards young animals. Accordingly, when it comes to the housing of the hogs for winter It Is imperative that the piggery be so arranged as to provide the requisite amount of sunshine inside. When building a large piggery, however, the problem is how to get the sun's rays to the north side of the building. It is simple enough to get the sunlight to stream in at the south side, but although it reaches the floor near the south side, it will not reach far back. What then, is to be done? Why, use a little headwork and build in accordance with the following designs, the first of which is the perspective view. You will thus have the north side of the piggery made as warm and sunny, and often far more so, than the south side. For, to obtain the desired results, the house should extend east and west, no matter what its size is, which should depend upon the magnitude of the herd that it is to accommodate, and nothing else.

INTERIOR ARRANGEMENT.

It will be observed that the "peak" of the roof is south of the center of the building, both sides of the roof being of the same pitch. This causes the roof of the north side to run higher than that of the south side in the place where the roofs meet, and so enables one to put in glass below the one roof and above the other, through which the sun will stream to the north side of the house and, killing disease germs by the million, tone up the system of the pigs and shotes and so make them thrifty and healthful, like those in the south part of the building.

Where the door opens, an alley should run through the center of the building, as shown in the second plan. Thus constructed, the central window is just over the south side of the alley, in consequence of which the sun will shine over the alley and into the pens north of it, the opposite pens being lighted sufficiently by the south window. From the alley between the feed troughs, doors, each two feet wide, should open from the pens into the alley. These have been omitted by our engraver. Gates working with a lever should also be suspended above the troughs, to shut the hogs away while putting in the feed. E, E, E, E, are the pens for the pigs, with a trough (A) in each. B is a bin for dry feed, in the middle of the alley, with a slop barrel (not lettered) on each side. D D are doors opening from either end of the alley.

If all these details are looked to and the location of the piggery is high and dry, the pens being made reasonably warm, so that close huddling of the swine is not necessary in order for them to be comfortable, albeit there is good ventilation, one will find such a building of great value, not only as a winter house, but also as a place in which to raise early pigs in spring.

Such are some of the benefits, indirectly speaking, that are to be derived from the sun, the actinic rays of which are one of nature's most powerful aids to good health. In what way, do you ask? Why, simply for the reason that they kill disease germs, promote circulation and digestion and, best of all, have a buoyant effect upon the spirits of both man and beast. We can therefore do nothing better when constructing a habitable building of any kind than to arrange it so that there can enter an abundance of sunlight. This is applicable to dwelling-houses, as well as to farm buildings.—Frederick O. Sjbley, in N. Y. Tribune.

HELPFUL FARM NOTES.

Do not put all out doors into wheat because of the promise of the wheat market.

The future farmer must be educated. If our boys cannot attend the agricultural college, a systematic course of agricultural reading is possible during the winter evenings, and the time could not be better employed.

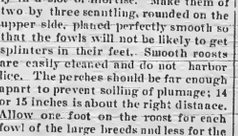
When grasses are grown and then pastured or fed to stock during the winter, and the manure carefully saved and returned to the soil, the loss in fertility is practically nothiag and this is the ideal manner of keeping up the farm.

PURCHASING BEES.

Some Really Valuable Hints for Novices in Agriculture.

This is one of the puzzles to the beginner, when to buy. All things considered, I think the spring the best time. In the hands of the master it might pay to buy in the fall, as they can be bought much cheaper then. But a novice would not know whether they were in proper condition to winter successfully or not, or what to do in case they were not, for how to prepare them in case they needed special attention preparatory to going into winter quarters. But by purchasing in the spring, even though they cost a dollar per colony more, there is little risk to run, for with a reasonable season they will pay for themselves and there will be something left.

I would advise buying as near home as possible, to save express charges, as it is very difficult to ship small lots of bees by local freight. If you feel timid about handling them I should advise buying pure Italians, as they are more quiet than the blacks or hybrids, but if you are not, I would not pay larger prices for any particular strain you may see advertised in the bee journals. The honey gathered by the blacks and hybrids is just as sweet, and quantity just as great as that gathered by the high-toned or high-priced races, and no bee on earth builds such delicate combs, or caps its honey with such virgin whiteness as the poor, despised black bee.



I would advise, if possible, to buy full, strong colonies, and wherever you may live I should advise having them moved or shipped about the time apple trees blossom. Make your purchase as early as possible, but don't be in a hurry to have them moved; they are much better where they are until settled warm weather has come to stay, and the blossoms are producing nectar. Perhaps some of you don't feel able to buy strong colonies; if not you can buy two, three or four frame nuclei for less money and at less cost of transportation. These you can build up during the season, and make good colonies of them by fall, but you could not reasonably expect much increase in number, or much surplus honey, while on the other hand, with strong colonies you can double your spring count, and with a good season and good management get enough surplus honey to pay for the colonies you buy in the spring.

I advise beginners to make haste slowly, and make the bees pay their way every season; then should you meet with winter losses you will be nothing out but your time, and will have your experience, hives and combs left to begin with another spring, all of which you will find valuable.—Rural World.

ROOSTING QUARTERS.

Construct Them so That They Can Be Cleaned Easily.

There are many ways of constructing and placing roosts. The aim should be to make them comfortable for the fowls and convenient for the attendant in handling and cleaning. Place all roosts back from the windows out of the way of drafts. They should be low and of a uniform height. Bruising of feet is frequently caused by fowls jumping down from a high perch. If arranged one above another, the fowls will jump from the lowest perch to the next, and the stronges fowls will crowd down the weaker ones. The highest perch will be uncomfortably crowded, while a portion of the lower ones is unoccupied. The fear of danger will prompt fowls to seek the highest roosting place. If the roosts are level, no injury from getting down and off will occur, and the fowls will not crowd one another. The arrangement shown herewith is a convenient one. Make a tight platform 1½ feet from the floor to catch droppings. Around the edge nail a strip one by three to keep droppings from scattering and going on and off. A platform arranged in this way is conducive to cleanliness, as the fowls will not step in the manure and track it over the floor. Place the roosts a foot above the platform and rest them firmly in a slot or mortise. Make them of two by three scantling, rounded on the upper side, planed perfectly smooth so that the fowls will not be likely to get splinters in their feet. Smooth roosts are easily cleaned and do not harbor lice. The perches should be far enough apart to prevent soiling of plumage; 14 or 15 inches is about the right distance. Allow one foot on the roost for each fowl of the large breeds and less for the small breeds.—Farm and Home.

PROPERLY ARRANGED ROOSTS.

The Size of a Colony.

A few hundred bees and a queen may be called a small colony, but I believe an average colony contains perhaps 30,000 or 35,000 bees, and during the honey season when they are at their greatest strength, they may have double the above number, and when at their lowest number, which is in late winter, they may run down to 10,000, or much less. To get at any correct estimate of this is rather difficult, and many give the average of a fair working colony at 20,000 or 25,000, while some think it possible for a colony to reach 75,000.—American Epitomist.

Value of Grass and Hay.

From recent experiments it appears that a meadow will yield about four times as much feed in bulk if made into hay as it will if pastured. But, as it is well known that the young, tender grass of the often cropped pasture is more nutritious than the older and tougher hay, it was found by a careful test that the advantage in nutrients, digestibility and freedom from cost of harvesting, housing and feeding of pastured fields, will nearly balance the greater yield of hay fields, except on very high priced.

CANADIAN CREAMERIES.

How They Are Operated and Made to Pay the Farmer.

A correspondent of the Brown City, Michigan, paper writes as follows:

"An industry which is proving very advantageous to the settlers of North Alberta, Canada, and is truly a boon to the farmers, is the establishment of creameries by the Government at regular distances apart. The Government furnishes the entire plant, puts it in and operates it without direct cost to the farmer. From the sale of the butter the Government retains 5 cents per pound, the balance going to the farmer. This is continued for three years when the Government turns over the plant and business to the farmers, giving them a clear title of it. Thus these creameries are put in at a minimum cost to the farmer and paid for in a way that he least feels it. When we were there butter was selling at 21 and 22 cents per pound. Cheese factories were being established, too, along the railroad and much of the freight loaded on the cars on our return trip consisted of butter and cheese, as it was in the best season for milk. The produce found a ready market in the mining and lumbering towns and districts beyond the Rockies, through the British Columbia country, where it was, we were told, difficult to supply the demand."

"The Klondike is another field now open to the Western Canadian farmer for all produce of the farm, and the officials in the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, are kept busy sending out literature describing this great agricultural country. The agents of the Government throughout the United States are also supplied with literature, which they distribute free.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

is the name to remember when buying Sarsaparilla. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been curing people right along for nearly 50 years. That's why it is acknowledged to be the sovereign Sarsaparilla. It is the original and the standard. The record of the remedy is without a rival,—a record that is written in the blood of thousands, purified by its healing power.

"I nursed a lady who was suffering from blood poisoning and must have contracted the disease from her; for I had four large sores, or ulcers, break out on my person. I doctored for a long time, both by external application and with various blood medicines; but in spite of all that I could do, the sores would not heal. At last I purchased six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, thinking I would give it a thorough trial. Before the six bottles had been taken, the ulcers were healed, the skin sound and natural, and my health better than it had been for years. I have been well ever since. I had rather have one bottle of ... C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind."—Mrs. A. F. Tay..., Englevale, N. Dak.

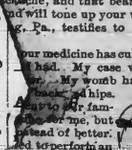
A Woman's Knowledge Saves Mrs. Ebbert From an Operation.



A woman understands women as a man never can hope to. For this reason Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., now known all over the English-speaking world, set to work to help her sex.

After long and patient investigation, Mrs. Pinkham confirmed her own conclusions, namely: that seven-eighths of the sufferings of women are due to disorders of the uterine system. B. S. Coyle, of South Elkhorn, was offered 15 cents for one barn of tobacco by Liggett & Myers, but sold his entire crop to them at 14 cents.

Woodford county has raised the best Burley of any county of the State this year. The farmers have all realized fancy prices for their tobacco.

The average farmer should sell his hogs before they cost too much and not try to get them to an extreme weight. It is folly to feed a spring pig longer, for the little gain he will make.

Commissioner of Agriculture Moore and Prof. M. A. Scovell, of Lexington, will send to each county in the State best seed to be planted and the product to be tested as to quality. If satisfactory a large beet sugar plant will be erected in Lexington by capitalists of that city.

The hog has an appetite beyond its powers of digestion. The practical feeder, going about with his eyes open, need not be told that if hogs have corn by them all the time they will soon become "stalled" and will not eat nearly as much a day as if fed just what they want twice a day. Moreover, what they do eat will not be so well digested.

R. L. Huey, of near Hamilton, Boone county, was here last week, the guest of his brother, Rev. O. M. Huey. He made arrangements while here to farm the fine stallion Gex, the property of R. L. Bond, and took the horse home with him. We take a delight in telling the horsemen of Boone county that he is one of the finest saddle horses in the State. His breeding can't be beat, and as an individual he is a perfect model.—Carrollton News.

Comments On The Legislature.

The Kentucky Legislature has issued instructions to the Congressmen from this State how to vote on the anti-scalping bill now before the national House. Our Legislature may be eccentric, but it has a very exalted opinion of its own importance.—Paducah Sun (Rep.)

Governor Bradley should not put temptation in the way of the legislators in the shape of a junket during the last days of the session. Let him persuade the battleship builders to postpone the launching of the Kentucky until after the sine die adjournment at Frankfort.—Owensboro Messenger.

Out of all the school book bills introduced into the House the bill of Representative Morgan Chinn was accepted as the most practical for use in Kentucky. There was an amendment tied on to it fixing a maxium rate beyond which no book shall be contracted for. The bill requires the Governor to appoint a commission of seven scholarly citizens one from each Appelsate District. Their term of office shall be four years. The Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction are made ex-officio members of the board. The commissioners are required to meet in Frankfort twenty-five days after the act takes effect, and qualify by taking the oath to perform the duties required. They are authorized to advertise for the lowest and best bids from publishing houses in the United States at which they will furnish any one of their standard school text books for use in this State for a period of five years and until otherwise provided by law. Sample copies must accompany each bid, and a deposit of $500 to cover cost and damages arising from failure or refusal to enter into contract. The commissioners are authorized to purchase from authors of school text books who have manuscripts of books not published together with copyrights, provided they can purchase, publish and deliver them cheaper, or at less cost, than bids submitted by the reliable publishing houses. The commission is required to select the cheapest and best course of text books offered and the bidders must guarantee three prices; first, the contract price; second, the retail price which shall not be more than fifteen per cent. above the wholesale price; third, the exchange price, and the terms upon which the companies will exchange the text books on hand for those adopted under the act. The books adopted are to be properly labeled, showing prices contracted for. From and after September 1, 1898, no other text books than those adopted by this commission shall be used in the public schools of the State, and penalty is provided for its violation.

The contract shall not be made at higher prices than the following: For a spelling book, 10 cents; for a first reader, 10 cents; for a second reader, 15 cents; for a third reader, 25 cents; for a fourth reader, 45 cts.; for an arithmetic, intermediate, 35 cents; for an arithmetic, complete, 45 cents; for a geography, elementary, 35 cents; a geography, complete, 85 cents; an English grammar, elementary, 25 cents; an English grammar, complete, 45 cents; for a United States History, 65 cents; for English composition, 50 cents, for a civil government, 35 cents; for the History of Kentucky, 40 cents.

A Ky. Tobacco Raiser in Oregon.

Tobacco has been grown in a small way in Oregon for a long time. It has never yet been grown on a commercial scale in this state, but it is probable that this can be done with profit. Mr. Milton Hager of Russellville, Oregon, an experienced tobacco grower from Kentucky, this year procured seed of the Spanish Seed Leaf variety and from it grew tobacco which has been pronounced by all the cigar manufacturers who have seen it a first class wrapper tobacco. The leaves have the fine silky texture required for wrappers. Mr. Hager is so well satisfied with the quality of this year's product that he will experiment on a more extensive scale next season. Tobacco such as that grown by him this year should be sold at from 40 to 60 cents a pound. The quality of tobacco depends very much on the soil upon which it is grown. The land about Russellville is a well drained sandy loam and naturally adapted to produce tobacco suitable for wrappers. On heavier soil the tobacco grows coarser and coarse, and brings a much lower price. Tobacco seed should be planted in hot-beds about the first of February, and the plants are ready for setting in the open ground in May. Mr. Hager finds that the principal obstacle to success at the present time in growing tobacco for sale is that there is not enough grown to establish a market for it. This obstacle will of course disappear as soon as tobacco is grown to any considerable extent.—Oregon Agriculturalist.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

The wind on Saturday night blew the end out of the K. P. hall at Corinth.

Grant county is getting up somewhat of a reputation, not for convicting her criminals, but for allowing them to run away. There are somewhere in this broad land of ours a dozen or more Grant county citizens who left her borders between two days to avoid being caught in the meshes of the law. Among the number who are at present missing are, Thos. Isaacs, who broke jail 14 years ago and disappeared after conviction. He killed a man by the name of Porter. Samuel Anderson is also a fugitive from justice, having gotton away after a sentence of seven years in the penitentiary had been given him by a jury of his peers. No reward has ever been offered for his apprehension. W. T. Stephenson killed a man by the name of Holdbrook, some five years ago and has never been apprehended. The Governor offered a reward of $150, but nobody seemed to want it. John Wade recently shot and killed Addison Peobbler and immediatly jumped the county. There is a reward for his arrest and delivery of $150. Jack Sturgeon and Robert Bolden are now fugitives from justice and a reward will be offered for their return to Grant county.

E. K. McClure purchased Dan Point's crop of tobacco at 11 cents round. Also Wm. Bishop's crop at 10½ c. round. Mr. Shaw bought Tom Lucas's crop at 10c. Several good crops left in this section yet.

The streets of Williamstown on last Sunday morning, after the terrific wind of the night before, resembled an old deadening of 29 years ago.

Williamstown lawyers are busy taking depositions this week. Only ten days more until Circuit Court convenes.

The matrimonial market in Grant county is on the boom.

Farmers are preparing to burn plant beds.

Hon. Emmett Orr's tobacco bill is pleasing the farmers immensely.

Monterey voted whisky by 60 to 15, and New Liberty did the same thing by 40 to 10.

During a severe wind last Saturday night several verandas, trees, hay stacks and fencing were laid to the ground.

The Fiscal Court has been in session this week considering turnpikes and other matters. The Marion and New Liberty pike was bought for the county, the price being $1,000.

The Baptist Church at New Liberty will be altered and made comparatively new, in most all the modern improvements. Chairs will be had instead of benches. The work is to begin this week.

Town Marshal Steger and his deputies made a raid on a gambling house Monday night and pulled fifteen white and colored. Judge Slaughter fined them $20 each the next morning. That's the way to break up the business.

A writer in the Scientific American says he has cleared his premises of vermin by making whitewash yellow with copperas and covering the stones and rafters with it. In every crevice in which a rat might go, he put the copperas and scattered it in the corners of the floor. The result was, complete disappearance of rats and mice. Since that time not a rat or a mouse has been seen near his house.

For the present we must content ourselves in Kentucky with low tuition, economic board, and reduced cost of living. These are indeed blessings, and they will be supplemented hereafter with larger endowments and greater opportunities.—Lexington Herald.

Fitzhugh Lee, ex-Confederate soldier and sterling Democrat, is relied on by this Republican administration in these troublous times in Cuba, and his patriotic action shows this reliance is well placed, as has always been the case when a Virginia Lee has been called on to do his duty.—Louisville Post.

There will be no war over Cuba by this country for the present at least. The mission of the Maine to Havana is not of a bellicose nature. This will doubtless be a great disappointment to the jingoes but to the hum drum common tax payer it is a consolation to think the country hasn't yet been committed to a war which would cost all the way from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 a day and out of which the most that could be expected would be ultimate victory without much to brag about but a big bill to pay.—Commonwealth.

THE adoption of the Teller resolution was a silver victory in the Senate, but it will come to grief in the House.

David B. Hill and Richard Croker are going to work in harmony, if one of them has to sit across the other's neck to do it.—St. Paul Globe.

Some Plain Facts.

Grave errors, injustice, wrongs of greater or less degree, arise from lack of knowledge of the truth, and more frequently from deception.

The most infamous case on record of deception and injustice is the attempt to demonetize silver as a money of final redemption in the United States.

There is no learned judge, skilled lawyer, or court of justice that is capable of reconciling the effort with the constitutional laws that govern the issue of money in this country.

The people have been deceived, officials in power, chosen to administer justice under the laws, have ignored their sworn duty, and given aid to the scheme that has paralyzed industry, reduced property values one-half, and beggared millions.

There is no authority of law, either specific or by inference, by which gold alone is made the only money with which to discharge debts, either public or private. The effort to make it so is unconstitutional and a national calamity.

Plain and ample information, facts, and truth, concerning this almost successful scheme to corner the wealth of the people, is now being printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a newspaper which the combined power of money has failed to muzzle or buy.

The Weekly Enquirer is only 75c. a year. The address is

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1898. NO. 16.

JUDGE TARVIN has proven himself a bit sensational.

THE riper bill intended for Louisville, was killed by the Legislature.

THE Grant County Circuit Court convened Monday. It will be a very busy term.

IN this issue Dr. Crouch divulges his plan for constructing and maintaining free turnpikes.

FRANKFORT people are on the uneasy seat again. The Capital removal question is sprnng again.

THE Congressional aspirants have their feelers out. There will be a good crop of candidates to start on.

IT is evident that the currency reformers will never agree on a plan that will prove the great blessings they have promised the country.

IT is evident that the President is very much at sea on the Cuba question. His party is censuring his hesitating and halting policy.

THE Chinn school book bill is not popular in the cities, and several delegations of lobbyists have been sent to Frankfort to work against it.

THE mayor of Covington says Judge Tarvin's demand that the city council provide suitable offices and furniture for the Court is only requiring a compliance with the law.

THE defeat of the Teller resolution by Speaker Reed was exactly what everybody knew would happen, and the Democrats are very well satisfied with the showing they made.

W. L. COBB, editor of the Aurora Independent, lost his house and its contents by fire, one night last week. His loss is about $4,000. He has the sympathy of the editorial fraternity.

THE N. Y. Legislature is as mad as a wet hen because SenatorMurphy voted for the Teller resolution, and a resolution asking the Senator to resign, was fired at him, but at last accounts he was still drawing his salary.

WITH Speaker Reed the whole thing in the House, and Senator Hanna the boss of both the Senate and the White House, nobody else is needed in the lawmaking, and the Executive Departments at Washington.

BOYCE, who figured so conspicuously in the Hanna Senatorial fight has made some of his creditors very uneasy by being mysteriously missing since his presence before the investigating committee was liable to be demanded at any time.

BIG preparations are being made for the christening of the new battle ship Kentucky. She will slide into the water immediately after Miss Christine Bradley smashes a bottle of Kentucky spirits frumenti over her (the Kentucky's) nose.

THE Masonic Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Indiana, has gone to the wall, causing a great loss on the part of those who were carrying policies. Mutual insurance companies conducted by fraternities are dangerous companies in which to invest.

IT is not certain that the Orr tobacco bill will prove a benefit to the growers. The warehousemen claim that under it they will have no protection against the dishonest country growers and dealers who place their tobacco on the market in the hogshead.

WHAT is the use of making so much fuss about the breaking of one bottle of Kentucky whisky over the nose of the battle ship Kentucky? There will be plenty left. and the distilleries are all running. It does look as though one bottle could be spared for that important occasion.

IF the effort to induce ex-Governor John Young Brown to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, is successful it will complicate matters considerably. Brown would make a strong candidate, and the man who goes under the wire ahead of him will land a winner.

SENATOR LINDSAY says [illegible] 8 mon[illegible] present Kentucky Legislature is not responsible for his being a United States Senator. Right the Senator is on that proposition, and there are a great many people in the State who believe that he will never be able to find a legislature in the future that will assume that responsibility.

Two suits, aggregating $2,000 have been filed against a railroad at Hopkinsville, by Bettie Wheeler, colored. She alleges that recently on one of the defendants' trains the was forced to ride in a car with white passengers, instead of in the car set aside for colored passengers, and that the car was filled with drunken white men, who abused and mistreated her.

THE latest ukase of the Czar of the House is that there shall be no River and Harbor appropriation bill at this session of Congress. This has caused a lot of profanity, as it had been understood by members of the River and Harbor committee and others that a bill carrying not to exceed $12,000,000 would be allowed to pass, and the committee had practically completed such a bill.

THE Saturday Bulletin, of last week contained a picture of a fine looking man, whom it introduces as William C. Wulber, treasurer of Dearborn county, and announces him as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for treasurer of Indiana. The Bulletin says a great many nice things about Mr. Wulbur, all of which the RECORDER accepts as true, and falls into line, shouting for Wulber.

GOV. BRADLEY is spending a very much pleasanter winter with a Democratic Legislature on his hands than he did with the Republican General Assembly. The Democratic members are mild-mannered and peaceable, while the Republican aggregation that was harrassing the Governor not many months since, was made up of political accidents and misfits who proved to be a menace to the Executive.

THE Republicans in Congress are preparing for the elections to be held this fall. And with that especially in view the Speaker has shut off any further special pension legislation at this session, and says the appropriations for the improvement of rivers and harbors must be passed until the next session. By this means it is hoped to prevent the deficit under the Dingley bill being so very large as to cause the Republicans to lose out entirely in the next Congress.

THE General Assembly has passed the halt-way point, and the path it has traveled is strewn with the carcasses of its victims—bills it has slaughtered. This General Assembly bids fair to be praised more for what it refuses to do than for what it does. It has not had much time to devote to the passage of meritorious bills because of the very large number of worthless measures it has had to kill, some of which were not consigned to their last resting place without a stubborn resistance.

GOV. MOUNT, of Indiana, proposes turning the recent Switzerland county lynching over to the United States court for investigation, and it is claimed that United States detectives have been at work on the case, and have the names of over fifty of the mob. It will not be long until the United States courts will be called on in cases of petty larceny, when the constable in whose bailiwick the offense is committed does not desire to apprehend the offender, and fails to bring him in.

IF Secretary Gage insists on the issue and sale of interest bearing bonds for the retirement of the non-interest bearing green backs he will find himself indorsed by a very small minority of his party. The Chicago Tribune, the leading Republianc paper of the West says; "The people never will consent to the funding of the greenbacks which will bear interest. Nor will they consent to an expansive bank note currency secured by assets which belong to depositors."

THE Senate confirmed Dr. Wiley to be Superintendent of Eastern Asylum for the Insane, at Lexington, by a vote of 18 to 13. Wiley is a gold-bug Democrat, and some of the Democratic Senators made a hard fight against his confirmation. It must be remembered that the Superintendent who Gov. Bradley bounced was a Republican of his own selection, and his administration was so unsatisfactory to the Governor that he became disgusted with the Republican effort, and called a Democrat to the position.

THE farmers are growing anxious to dive into their spring work, and put into execution the plans they have matured as they sat about good, warm fires during the winter. The first period of nice weather after the holidays, make the tillers of the soil restless, and if they have not accomplished something toward their crop by ground hog day, they begin to grow shaky and a little apprehensive of being late getting the crop planted. The truly industrious farmer always gets there in this part of the country in spite of late springs and dry summers. His crops are not so abundant sometimes, but the wolf never hankers about his door. This is a better location than the Klondyke.

THE present year will not be lacking in political interest. In twenty-five States of the Union elections for Governor will be held, and these elections will serve to throw much light upon national issues.

Governors and State officers are to be elected in Alabama, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Nevada, North Dakota, South Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

In the above list of States every section of the country is represented. Rhode Island's State election will occur in April, Alabamas' in August, Arkansas's in September, and Georgia's in October. The remaining ones will all occur in November. With this outlook ahead, there is not apt to be much idleness among the politicians.

IN the course of one of the strongest speeches, yet made against the annexation of Hawaii, Senator White of Cal., the new chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, took occasion to say, that he did not believe a word of the stories about the sugar trust being opposed to annexation, and to call attention to the fact that some Senators who have generally been credited with sustaining friendly relations with the sugar trust were strongly in favor of annexation. The significant occurence connected with the resumption of the consideration of the annexation treaty by the Senate was the voting down of the motion of Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, to postpone its further consideration until March 1. The motion was made by Mr. Thurston because he did not wish the treaty considered while Mr. Dole, the President of Hawaii, remained in Washington. No record vote was taken, the motion being defeated by a rising vote. Although this incident indicates that Mr. Thurston will vote against the treaty, sixty votes are claimed for it by Senator Davis. The vote is some weeks off, however, if present plans are carried out.

Pith of the Press.

So far as the United States Senate is concerned the Cleveland cuckoo is about extinct.—Washington Post.

Mr. Foraker will perhaps remember that he has not been invited to board at the White House.—Atlanta Constitution.

Tom Reed seems determined to do nothing except to keep the other members of the House from doing anything.—Chicago News.

Gage says the Administration is for bimetallism. McKinley thinks bimetallism means two kinds of metal coins payable in gold.—Wichita (Kas.) Beacon.

Governor Bushnell's protracted absence from Ohio indicates that the unpleasantness out there is somewhat backward in blowing over.—Washington Post.

Senator Lindsay, of Kentucky, defied the Free Silver Legislature with his mouth, but he succumbed to it with his vote on the Teller resolution.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Whatever others may do in singing the praises of the Dingley bill the spindles in New England's mills are not going around making any noise over it.—Philadelphia Times.

Mr. Allen, of Mississippi, was so unfair as to quote from an anti-gold speech delivered by McKinley in 1890. McKinley had not hired out to Mr. Hanna in 1890.—Anaconda Mont. Standard.

One of the humorous features of the passage of the Teller resolution by the Senate is the recognition by the Republican gold men of the existence of Silver Republicans.—Omaha World-Herald.

In the next Presidential election, if Mr. McKinley is a candidate, he will hear something drop. It will be the Republican vote in the manufacturing towns of New England. Memphis Commercial Appeal.

It is to be hoped that such an earnest advocate of gold as Mr. Hanna has proved himself to be did not stop to pay those Ohio legislators in cheap silver and paper money.—Omaha World Herald.

President McKinley and a man named Dole, from Hawaii, have pooled their issues and are doing what they can to unite Dole's lepers and half-breeds to McKinley's faithful subjects.—Evening Post.

The Dingley law does not raise money enough to even pay the pensions. The receipts from customs from the 1st of July to date were $73,934,448. The pension payments for the same time were $87,821,319.—St. Paul Globe.

General Grosvenor is amusing in his inaccuracy. In an address in the House of Representatives yesterday he maintained that the Republican party had always stood for "honest money," and he might have added, also, for "soap."—St. Paul Globe.

The testimony so far as taken in the Hanna bribery case casts an awful shadow of doubt on God's share in promoting the recent election of a Senator in Ohio. Mark's telegram to the President was expressive of a feverish anxiety to place the responsibility upon others.

This means more than simple opposition to the free coinage of silver. It means that the Republican party, under the leadership of Hanna, Gage and Reed, has planted itself so firmly upon the single gold standard that it proposes to reduce the silver dollars already in circulation to the rank of a mere token coinage. —N. Y. Journal.

GERMANY has decreed that she will import no more American fruit, which cuts off a very large foreign demand for that class of American produce. It is claimed by the German authorities that the exclusion is based on sanitary reasons, and an investigation will be made under orders from Washington.

AN odd-looking sleigh was the center of attraction on the streets of Leominister, Mass., a few day ago. It was a molasses hogshead set upon a pair of runners, the front being scooped out like the arms of an old-fashioned rocking chair, the back being left full length. It was painted bright yellow and looked comfortable and cozy.

THE scheme for the foundation of a gigantic cotton trust, to include cotton planters as well as speculators in that important commodity, is likely to be successful. It was foretold two months ago, while the convention was in session at Atlanta, Ga. A plan was then forming to reduce the acreage and production so as to increase the price of cotton in the United States.

THE wheat king of the world resides in Argentina. He is an Italian emigrant named Guazone, and his broad acres are situated in the south of the province of Buenos Ayres. His crop occupies an area of 66,270 acres. He numbers his workmen by the thousand and each one receives a certain share of the profits. When his season's crop is harvested he fills over 3,000 railway trucks with the grain.

IT is estimated by competent foreign authority that only 900 persons out of 1,000,000 die from old age, while 1,200 succumb to gout, 18,400 to measles, 2,700, to apoplexy, 7,000 to erysipelas, 7,500 to consumption, 48,000 to scarlet fever, 25,000 to whooping cough, 30,000 to typhoid and typhus, and 7,000 to rheumatism. The averages vary according to locality, but these are considered accurate as regards the population of the globe as a whole.

EDWARD W. BOK takes up the domestic service question for editorial discussion in the February Ladies' Home Journal, and contends that the best place for girls who are obliged to earn their living is in the home, as domestics. Girls thus employed, he asserts, have more real independence, as a rule have better homes, are better cared for, and are always sure of more remunerative employment than girls who work in factories, in stores or in business offices.

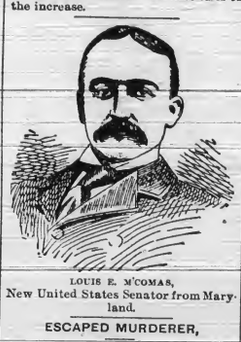
A NOVEL way of building a railroad has been undertaken by the citizens of Texas, Southern Kansas, Northeastern Oklahoma and the Indian territory. They want a shorter line to St. Louis, and some time ago the farmers in the country districts and the merchants in the towns began to work on the roadbed. They have laid 12 miles of track from Henrietta, Tex. without a dollar of capital being subscribed. The farmers acted as railroad laborers, and the merchants hired substitutes.

A FAD of New York women consists of having belts made to order from the skins of snakes, whose shimmering brilliancy has been admired while seen in glass cases. A man in New York is amassing quite a fortune, and conducts his business in the fourth story of a gloomy old building. He has secured a great number of snakes from bogs and swamps. These are displayed in glass cases, and the fairest dames of Gotham's swell set make many pilgrimages to select the skins, even before they are shed.

NEW JERSEY has taken the lead among the states in road building. Seventy miles of macadamized highway were added last year to the roads already improved, and extensions in the way of connecting links are planned this year that will make complete thoroughfares from the lower end of the state through the principal cities and towns to the upper end. The work is done by the state, the 70 miles costing an outlay on the part of the state of $100,000, and on the part of individuals and counties of $250,000.

A WEALTHY and prominent ranch owner of Oklahoma, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, has made a purchase of 8,000 acres of land situated about ten miles south of Shreveport on the Kansas City, Shreveport & Gulf road. The property will be immediately converted into a cattle ranch. Beef cattle and fine stock of all descriptions will be raised on this ranch. He stated that there are thousands of acres of swamp and lake lands in that section of the state which, if properly drained and looked after, would make good cattle farms.

THE United States now ranks fifth among the naval powers of the earth, and is a tie with Germany. England is first, France second, Russia third and Italy fourth. The German navy is better supplied with torpedo boats than that of the United States, but we are a little ahead on battleships and cruisers. Taking one consideration with another, however, there is very little difference. When the Kentucky, Kearsarge, Illinois and the other vessels now building are afloat we shall surpass Germany, but the Germans, however, have a magnificent scheme for the development of their navy.



ANTI-AMERICAN.

Orators Applauded in a Conservative Meeting in Havana—Spanish Soldiers Aching for a Brush With American Blue Coats.

HAVANA, Feb. 5.—The conservatives are organizing their party throughout the island. Weyler has been named honorary president and Romero Robledo as vice president. On Sunday, as Gen. Lee was entertaining the officers of the Maine at La Playa, the conservatives held a large meeting at Mariano, two miles away.

Romero Rubio, one of the speakers, said that the great enemies of Spain were enjoying themselves not far off; that he hoped the day was not distant when Spain would show them what Spanish soldiers could do, and that the Americans were very much mistaken in believing Spain to be a weak nation because she had not been able to subdue 30,000 Cubans; but that was due to the fact that the Cubans were the sons of Spaniards, having the same blood and the same valor. But, had they been 300,000 Americans they would have been annihilated long ago. The orator received deafening applause and hurrahs.

The anti-American sentiment is on the increase.

LOUIS E. M'COMAS,
New United States Senator from Maryland.

ESCAPED MURDERER,

Under Sentence of Death, Voluntarily Surrenders to the Authorities.

FORT SCOTT, Kas., Feb. 5.—A murderer under sentence to be hanged, who had escaped to a point 100 miles from his nearest pursuer, voluntarily surrendered to the authorities here Friday after notifying them of his intention by long distance telephone. The convict was George W. Finch, of Kansas City, who followed young Frank Swofford here from Paola, Kas., and murdered him for a few dollars, hiding the body in the bushes.

Friday Finch called up Sheriff Wheeler by telephone from Lamont, Mo., and said he would be here on the evening train to help mend the jail bars that he had broken.

Finch escaped from the combined federal and state prison here on Tuesday last in company with seven other prisoners.

Locomotives for Finland.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The British steamer Majestic has been chartered to carry 23 locomotives and a general cargo from this port to the Finland government. The locomotives are being shipped by the Baldwin works. The consignment consists of 10 passenger and 12 freight engines. At the Baldwin works locomotives are being built for Norway, Japan, Africa and other countries which formerly got them from other places.

Half a Dozen Injured in a Wreck.

LAWRENCE, Mich., Feb. 5.—Train No. 3 on the South Haven and Eastern Narrow Gauge railroad, was wrecked here Friday and at least half a dozen people were injured. It was the first train through since Wednesday noon and left here at 8:40 a. m. A quarter of a mile from the station the snow plow jumped the track and was piled into by the two locomotives which drew the train and the two coaches.

Head Crushed to a Pulp.

St. Louis, Feb. 5.—Daniel McClelland, aged 48, employed in the paint works of George S. Mephan & Klein, committed sulcide Friday by putting his head between the ponderous wheels of a machine known as a putty chaser. When found the man's head was stuck between the wheels and a side post crushed to a pulp. Death must have been instantaneous. No motive was known for the deed.

Customs Collections in Dawson City.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 5.—Gold Commissioner Fawcett has notified the dominion government of the forwarding by him from Dawson City of the sum of $80,000 duty collected in that dis trict by the Canadian customs officials. This makes $195,000 received by the government from that place since the rush to the gold fields began.

American Horses Next.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Baron Von Hammersteln-Loxten, the minister of agriculture, at Friday's session of the Prussian dlct, declared that American horses developed influenza after importation. He adds: "If the importations increase we shall certainly be forced to adopt a suitable quarantine in order to protect ourselves."

Not a Dollar in the Treasury.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The Inquirer says Saturday that the Interstate Canal and Irrigation Canal and Land Co., one of the enterprises of Francis C. Grable, has announced to its creditors that it has not a doller in its treasury with which to pay notes.

State Bank Closes Its Doors.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 5.—A special to the Bee from Crawford, Neb., says: The State Bank of Crawford did not open its doors Friday morning. C. J. Grable, the cashier, is in the east. A. E. Hobson, assistant cashier, will say nothing of the bank further than that owing to the absence of Francis C. Grable, its president, coupled with the fact that the currency which was expected Friday morning did not arrive from the east, he thought it better not to attempt to run through the day. Hobson says the bank will pay out depositors and all liabilities in full

SOME ATTENTION

Will Be Given to the Annexation Question in the Senate This Week.

A Contested Election Case Will Be Up in the House—The Fortifications Bill Will Be Disposed of First—President Dole Leaves Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The attention of the senate this week will in all probability be divided between the Hawaiian annexation treaty, appropriation bills and the right of Hon. H. W. Corbett to a seat in the senate from Oregon. The treaty will probably occupy the great share of attention Monday, but after that time the committee on appropriations will claim the time of the senate for the Indian appropriation, which, it is expected, will be reported early in the week. This bill will provoke considerable debate, and by the time it is disposed of the committee on appropriations hope to have the fortifications bill before the senate. Senator Hoar will at the same time press the Corbett matter upon the attention of the senate as a matter of the highest privilege, and several speeches will be made upon it. It does not appear probable, however, that a vote will be reached during the week on the Corbett resolution.

It is probable that the programme of the house, which has been confined almost exclusively this session, to the consideration of appropriation bills will be varied this week with the consideration of a contested election case. It is the purpose of the house leaders to keep the appropriation bills to the front in order to obtain an early final adjournment, or, as the alternative, throw the responsibility for delays on the senate.

But after the fortifications bill is disposed of only one other appropriation bill is on the calendar at present—the military acadcuy—and it should not consume more than a few hours. It is the intention of the leaders therefore, to fill the hiatus this week with the consideration of the Aldrich-Plowman contested election case from the Fourth Alabama district. The elections committee have divided on this case on party lines and the indications are therefore that the house will do the same thing and Mr. Bowman will be unseated. The members on both sides of the house have been using the latitude allowed in debate on appropriation bills to make campaign speeches to be used more or less extensively in the impending congressional campaign this fall and these are likely to continue indefinitely. All the members are keenly alive to opportunities to make political capital for themselves or their party and this fact may at any time upset prearranged programmes by plunging the house into rancorous and acrimonious political discussion. The democrats and populists seem to be directing their assaults principally against the republicans, claim that prosperity has returned to the country so that all evidence on this point, pro or con, is likely to find its way sooner or later into the congressional record for distribution this fall.

President Dole and his party ceased to be the guests of the nation Sunday night at 7:20 o'clock when he started for Buffalo and thus began his return journey for the Hawaiian islands.

The president arrived at the Pennsylvania station but a few minutes before his train was ready to start and was not kept waiting, but immediately went to the private Pullman car Coronet, which he occupied on his trip to Buffalo. The party was escorted to to the station by Assistant Secretary of State Thos. W. Cridler, Maj. Hiesland, of the army; Commander Phelps, of the navy, and several friends of the president. Minister Hatch and Mrs. Hatch also were present.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The consideration of the labor arbitration bill by the house committee on labor will be resumed next Thursday. The bill gives every case of labor disagreement or strike an official status and the significance of public opinion. The proceeding, so far have developed a wide difference of views between labor leaders. Mr. Hynes, representing federal railroad employes' organizations, has taken issue with President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, as to the respective obligations of employer and employed, and every railway brotherhood apparently favors the pending measure while some of the officers of the Federation of Labor want the bill to go further and claim that no arbitration system can be safely established that does more than give the arbitrators' opinions and then drops the case.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—At the opening of the session of the house Saturday, Mr. Royce (rep., Ind.), chairman of the committee of elections No. 2, presented a resolution declaring that in the contest between Samuel Hudson and Wm. McAleer, of Pennsylvania, for a seat in the house, Mr. McAleer is entitled to the seat. Without division the resolution and report of the committee were adopted.

Mrs. Lane Much Worse.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Mrs. Lane, the daughter of ex-Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, who about three weeks ago was accidentally shot, is much worse Saturday. Friday afternoon she suffered a setback from which she barely rallied. She takes practically no nourishment, and it is feared never will recover.

Miners' Independent Movement.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 7.—The movement among the coal miners of West Virginia to separate themselves from the United Mine Workers association and form an independent organization is gaining ground rapidly. More than 3,000 miners and 80 operators have joined the independent movement up to date and these are bringing every influence to bear upon the miners and operators who are still in the older organization to have them come in the new. The Kanawha and new River fields have taken the lead in the fight against the United Mine Workers.

HEARING GIVEN

On the Bill Creating a Commerce and Industry Department—President McKinley Will Attend Memorial Day Services a Gettysburg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce gave an extended hearing Friday on the Hepburn bill to create a department of commerce and industries. Ferdinand Peek, of Chicago, president of the National Business Men's league, Theodore C. Search, of Philadelphia, president of the Manufacturers' Association of the United States, and John W. Ela, of Chicago, made arguments urging the proposed legislation. They submitted a memorial prepared by Mr. Ela expressing the views of the business interests of the country which included 87 national, state and municipal organizations in 27 different states, and from 113 prominent business firms in 30 different states, all favoring a new department. They claimed the new department would be a great boon to labor. Mr. Search said that under existing circumstances proper information was not being received by the government—wages, cost of production, particularly as to the wage cost of products; the kinds of goods wanted, the best manner of producing and furnishing them. The establishment of warehouses and depots throughout Europe and South and Central America, was urged as a potent factor in extending the trade. Mr. Ela said the dominant reason for the creation of the new cabinet office was the necessity of concentrating the instrumentalities for obtaining, classifying and effectively using the statistics, both at home and abroad, necessary for the systematic extension of United States commerce and industries. He also said that several of the departments of the government are greatly overcrowded by work which does not apparently come within their respective spheres. It was claimed that the information as now obtained is almost worthless to business interests compared to what would follow the operation of the proposed department. It would enable, it was said, the disposition of surplus products and so avoid the discharges, reduction of wages and the closing of mills usually following overcrowding.

President McKinley and probably some of the members of his cabinet will attend the Memorial day services at Gettysburg on the 30th of May if public business does not intervene to prevent them. The president so informed a delegation who called on him to extend the invitation. The delegation consisted of Messrs. Lewis D. Wine, Dr. Swope, Chief Clerk Bailey, of the pension office; F. M. Dawson, Hon. Clay Evans, commissioner of pensions, and A. C. Tonner. They were introduced to the president by Judge Day, the assistant secretary of state. Hon. Webster Davis, the assistant secretary of the interlor, has already accepted an invitation to deliver an oration on the occasion.

The battleship Maine will be relieved from her station in Havana in the course of a few days. It was not the purpose of the navy department to keep the ship there for any length of time when she was ordered across the strait, and it is felt that the ship's crew must feel uncomfortable lying close aboard ship in the harbor of Havana. The Marblehead or Detroit, which are better adapted to comfortable existence in such a climate as that of Havana than the Maine, probably will be sent to relieve the latter.

Secretary and Mrs. Bliss Friday evening entertained the president and Mrs. McKinley and the members of the cabinet at a dinner which in point of service and decoration was one of the most elaborate ever given in Washington. The apartments at the Arlington were transformed into a veritable tropical forest, the mass of palms and giant ferns about the room shutting out all view of the walls, and the luxuriant branches of the flowering and foliage plants overspreading the guests as they were seated at the table.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—In the house Friday a bill was passed to amend the act of January 31, 1895, granting rights of way through the public domain for tramways, canals and reservoirs so as to grant those rights for cities and private corporations. At present the rights of way are given only for mining and irrigation purposes.

Mr. Fleming (dem., Ga.) asked unanimous consent to set aside next Monday for the consideration of the bill reported by the Pacific railroad committee to grant additional powers to the president in the matter of the sale of the Kansas Pacific road. The sale was to take place February 17, he said, and it was important if anything was to be done that it should be done at once.

Secretary Wilson has taken steps for the collection of all information obtainable in the department of agriculture bearing on the shipment of fresh fruit to the German empire. This is preliminary to any action which may be found necessary after full official information as to the scope of the decree of prohibition is obtained. In the absence of such information the secretary manifests a disinclination to talk about the matter for publication. When full data is at hand he will probably direct an investigation into the question of the shipment of fruit and the danger of any, which exists of its being infected with pests that will do harm after they are fully developed.

Will Not Visit the United States.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 5.—There is no foundation for the report of a contemplated early visit by President Diaz to the United States. This denial was made by his authority. He has a very warm feeling toward the United States and a constant interest in its affairs, but no present intention of going there.

A FIRE EPIDEMIC.

Hay Warehouse and Brick Dwelling at Savannah, Ga., Burned.

The Magnificent Cathedral of St. John the Baptist, the Finest Church Building in the South, Destroyed, Entailing a Loss of About $225,000.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 7.—Savannah's epidemic of fire continues. Sunday night damage to the extent of $125,000 was caused by a conflagration which started in a hay warehouse on the wharf at the foot of Jefferson street. The fire started in the hay in the warehouse and had burst into a large bright conflagration by the time the alarm was turned in. The fire communicated itself to several brick buildings on Bay street and most of them were entirely gutted. The firemen fought the flames bravely but the fire was difficult to fight and the destruction was consequently greater. The heaviest loss was that sustained by Charles A. Conklin & Co., of Atlanta, who carried a $100,000 stock of hardware. The firm carried about $75,000 insurance. There seems to be no question but that the fire was of lucendiary origin. There have been a dozen fires here within the last two weeks and there is talk of fire bugs.

Before the fire which broke out in the hay warehouse had been brought under control flames burst out in the magnificent cathedral of St. John the Baptist, the head seat of the Catholic church in the state of Georgia, and it was soon a mass of ruins.

All of the fire engines in the city were engaged at the other fire. The consequence was that it was nearly an hour before an engine arrived to turn a stream on the valuable property that was fast going to waste and on other property around that needed protection. The enormous shower of sparks that was carried up in the heat for an hour or more, falling in the square and on other buildings, made a grand spectacle. The fire started in the organ loft and spread rapidly through the church. Everything was removed from the residences in the vicinity and it was only after a strong fight that they were saved. At midnight the destruction of the Cathedral was complete. The Cathedral cost about $225,000, and was insured for $60,000. It was one of the finest ecclesiastical structures in the south. The edifice contained many works of art, all of which were saved.

JOSEPH P. SMITH,

Of the Bureau of American Republics, Dies at Miami, Fla.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Mr. Joseph P. Smith, director of the bureau of American republics, died at Miami, Fla., at 4:40 o'clock Saturday morning of heart failure. He had been well known in Ohio politics for many years before coming to Washington on the inauguration of McKinley as president. For many years he published republican newspapers in several Ohio towns and espoused Mr. McKinley and a protective tariff. After Mr. McKinley's defeat as a member of congress from the Canton, O., district, by reason of a gerrymander, he immediately put the president's name at the heads of the columns of his paper for the republican nomination for governor. When Mr. McKinley was elected Mr. Smith was chosen state librarian. He and the president were intimate friends politically and personally, and when Mr. McKinley was inaugurated he tendered Mr. Smith the office he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Smith went to Miami early in the season in order to recuperate his failing health on the shore of Bay Biscayne. For a time his condition was so much improved as to give his friends no cause for anxiety, but later he suffered a severe relapse and his friend, Dr. Musgrove, of Ohio, went down to attend him, and until a few hours ago it was reasonably hoped that he would recover. The body will be taken to Urbana, O., Sunday morning.

Mr. Smith leaves a wife and seven children, having been married in Galveston, Tex., in 1884, to Miss Hutches.

WEST BEND, Wis., Feb. 7.—An impressive scene attended the obsequies of Carl Lindbach, who was killed in a glove encounter on Wednesday. After the sermon over the dead was completed, Mr. Lindbach, father of the dead boy, thanked his many friends for the last respects shown and concluded by forgiving Young Glantz, who was present at the funeral, and wept bitterly over his son's remains.

HOW SHE MANAGED HIM.

Let Her Husband Be Cross for the Presents He Gave Her.

They were two women discussing their husbands over shopping lunch. One asked the other if her husband was ever cross.

"He is never anything else," was the cool reply.

"How do you manage him?" asked the first speaker.

"I don't try to manage him. I just let him alone."

"But how do you make up?"

"We don't make up. You see, he is always as cross as two sticks at breakfast, and says a whole lot of sarcastic things about women attending to their households, and club women, and any other old thing he can think of, and then he goes away mad and slams the front door."

"You poor thing. And people say you are so congenial and so well suited to each other."

"So we are. When Harold comes home at night he hands me a little package and says he hopes it will please me, and I tell him he is too good, and I wish all women had as good a husband as mine. Then I see what he's giving me, and sometimes it's a lovely belt or a new chatelaine, or a fancy scarf, and I give him a kiss and ask him to forgive me for being cross in the morning."

The other woman looked dazed and went on sipping her chocolate in profound silence as long as she could stand it. Then she flushed out:

"And yet you deliberately told me you did not manage him."—Chicago Times-Herald.

ELDER SISTER'S POWER

To Influence the Younger Brother's Way Through This Life.

But for Miriam There Would Have Been No Moses—Her Devotion Saved Him to the World—Beautiful Sermon by Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D.

Talmage's text last Sunday was Exodus ii., 4: "And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him."

Princess Thermutis, daughter of Pharaoh, looking out through the lattice of her bathing house on the banks of the Nile, saw a curious boat on the river. It had neither oar nor helm, and they would have been useless, anyhow. There was only one passenger, and that a baby boy. But the Mayflower, that brought the Pilgrim Fathers to America, carried not so precious a load. The boat was made of the broad leaves of papyrus, tightened together by bitumen. Boats were sometimes made of that material, as we learn from Pliny and Herodotus and Theophrastus. "Kill all the Hebrew children born," had been Pharaoh's order. To save her boy, Jochebed, the mother of little Moses, had put him in that queer boat and launched him. His sister Miriam stood on the bank watching that precious craft. She was far enough off not to draw attention to the boat, but near enough to offer protection. There she stands on the bank—Miriam, the princess; Miriam, the quick-witted; Miriam, the faithful, though very human, for in after time she demonstrated it.

Miriam was a splendid sister, but had her faults, like all the rest of us. How carefully she watched the boat containing her brother! A strong wind might upset it. The buffaloes often found there might in a sudden plunge of thirst sink it. Some ravenous water fowl might swoop and pick his eyes out with iron beak. Some crocodile or hippopotamus, crawling through the bushes, might crunch the babe. Miriam watched and watched until Princess Thermutis, a maiden on each side of her holding palm leaves over her head to shelter her from the sun, came down and entered her bathing house. When from the lattice she saw that boat she ordered it brought, and when the leaves were pulled back from the face of the child and the boy looked up he cried aloud, for he was hungry and frightened, and would not even let the princess take him. The infant would rather stay hungry than acknowledge any one of the court as mother.

Now Miriam, the sister, incognito, no one suspecting her relation to the child, leaps from the bank and rushes down and offers to get a nurse to pacify the child. Consent is given, and she brings Jochebed, the baby's mother, incognito, none of the court knowing that she was the mother; and when Jochebed arrived, the child stopped crying, for its fright was calmed and its hunger appeased. You may admire Jochebed the mother, and all the ages may admire Moses, but I clap my hands in applause at the behavior of Miriam, the faithful, brilliant and strategic sister.

"Go home," some one might have said to Miriam; "why risk yourself out there alone on the banks of the Nile, breathing the miasma, and in danger of being attacked of wild beast or ruffian? Go home!" No; Miriam, the sister, more lovingly watched and bravely defended Moses, the brother. Is he worthy her care and courage? Oh, yes; the 60 centuries of the world's history have never had so much involved in the arrival in any ship at any port as in the landing of that papyrus boat caulked with bitumen! Its one passenger was to be a nonesuch in history—lawyer, statesman, politician, legislator, organizer, conqueror, deliverer. He had such remarkable beauty in childhood that Josephus says, when he was carried along the road, people stopped to gaze at him, and workmen would leave their work to admire him. When the king playfully put his crown upon this boy, he threw it off indignantly and put his foot on it. The king, fearing that this might be a sign that the child might yet take down his crown, applied another test. According to the Jewish legend the king ordered two bowls to be put before the child, one containing rubies and the other burning coals; and if he took the coals, he was to live, and if he took the rubies he was to die. For some reason the child took one of the coals, and put it in his mouth, so that his life was spared, although it burned the tongue till he was a Indian of utterance ever after. Having come to manhood, he spread open the palms of his hands in prayer, and the Red sea parted to let 2,500,000 people escape. And he put the palms of his hands together in prayer, and the Red sea closed on a strangulated host.

His life so utterly grand, his burial must be on the same scale. God would let neither man nor saint nor archangel have anything to do with weaving for him a shroud or digging for him a grave. The omnipotent God left his throne in Heaven one day, and if the question was asked, "Whither is the King of the Universe Going?" the answer was, "I am going down to bury Moses." And the Lord took this mightiest of men to the top of a hill, and the day was clear, and Moses ran his eye over the magnificent range of country. Here, the valley of Esdraelon, where the final battle of all nations is to be fought, and yonder, the mountains Hermon and Lebanon, and Gerizim, and the hills of Judea; and the village of Bethlehem here, and the city of Jericho yonder, the vast stretch of landscape that almost took the old lawgiver's breath away as he looked at it. And then with a pang—as I learn from the statement that the eye of Moses was undimmed and his natural force unabated—God touched the great lawgiver's eyes, and they closed; and his lungs, and they ceased; and his heart, and it stopped; and communed, saying: "To the skies, thou immortal spirit!" And then one Divine hand was put against the back of Moses and the other hand against the pulseless breast, and God laid him softly down on Mt. Nebo, and then the law-giver, lifted in the Almighty's arms, was carried to the opening of a cave and placed in a crypt, and one stroke of the Divine hand smoothed the features into an everlasting calm, and a rock was rolled to the door, and the only obsequies, at which God did all the offices of priest, and undertaker, and grave digger, and mourner, were ended."

Oh, was not Miriam, the sister of Moses, doing a good thing, an important thing, a glorious thing when she watched the boat woven of rives plants and made water-tight with asphaltum, carry its one passenger? Did she not put all the ages of time and of a coming eternity under obligation when she defended her helpless brother from the perils aquatic, reptilian and ravenous? She who was that brought that wonderful babe and his mother together, so that he was reared to be the deliverer of his nation, when otherwise, if saved at all from the rushes of the Nile, he would have been only one more of the God-defying Pharaons; for Princess Thermutis of the bathing-house would have inherited the crown of Egypt; and as she had no child of her own this adopted child would have come to coronation. Had there been no Miriam there would have been no Moses. What a garland of faithful sisterhood! For how many a lawgiver, and how many a hero, and how many a deliverer and how many a saint are the world and the church indebted to a watchful, loving, faithful, godly sister? Come up out of the farmhouses, come up out of the inconspicuous homes, come up from the banks of the Hudson, and Penobscot, and the Savannah, and the Mobile, and the Mississippi, and all the other Niles of America, and let us see you, the Miriams who watched and protected the leaders in law, and medicine, and merchandise, and art, and agriculture, and mechanics, and religion! If I should ask all physicians and attorneys and merchants and ministers of religion, and successful men of all professions and trades, who are indebted to an elder sister for good influences, and perhaps for the inception or a prosperous start, to let it be known, hundreds would testify. God knows how many of our Greek lexicons and how much of our schooling was paid for by money that would otherwise have gone for the replenishing of a sister's wardrobe. While the brother sailed off for a resounding spree the sister waded from the banks of self-denial.

Miriam was the eldest of the family, Moses and Aaron, her brothers, were younger. Oh, the power of the elder sister to help decide the brother's character for usefulness and for Heaven! She can keep off from her brother more evils than Miriam could have driven back water fowl or crocodile from the ark of bulrushes. The older sister decides the direction in which the cradle boat shall sail. By gentleness, by good sense, by Christian principle she can turn it toward the palace, not of wicked Pharaoh, but of holy God, and a brighter princess than Thermutis should lift him out of peril, even Religion, whose ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace.

The older sister, how much the world owes her! Born while yet the family was in limited circumstances, she had to hold and take care of her younger brothers. And if there is anything that excites my sympathy, it is a little girl lugging around a great fat child and getting her ears boxed because she can not keep him quiet! By the time she gets to young womanhood she is quite old in worry, and her attractiveness has been sacrificed on the altar of sisterly fidelity, and she is consigned to celibacy, and society calls her by an unfair name; but in Heaven they call her Miriam. In most families the two most undesirable places in the record of births are the first and last; the first because she is worn out with the cares of a home that can not afford to hire help, and the last because she is spoiled as a pet among the grandest set up company that sweep through the streets of Heaven will be those occupied by sisters who sacrificed themselves for brothers. They will have the finest of the Apocalyptic white horses, and many who on earth looked down upon them will have to turn out to let them pass, the charioteer crying: "Clear the way! A Queen is coming!"

Let sisters not begrudge the time and care bestowed on a brother. It is hard to believe that any boy that you know so well as your brother can ever turn out anything very useful. Well he may not be a Moses. There is only one of that kind needed for 6,000 years. But I tell you what your brother will be—either a blessing or a curse to society, and a candidate for happiness or wretchedness. He will like Moses, have the choice between rubies and living coals, and your influence will have much to do with his decision. He may not, like Moses, be the deliverer of a nation, but he may, after your father and mother are gone, be the deliverer of a household. What thousands of homes to-day are piloted by brothers! There are properties now well vested and yielding income for the support of sisters and younger brothers because the older brother rose to the leadership from the day the father lay down to die. Whatever you do for your brothers will come back to you again. If you set him an ill-natured, censorious, unaccommodating example, it will recoil upon you from his own irritated and despoiled natures. If you, by patience with his infirmities and by nobility of character, dwell with him, in the few years of your companionship, you will have your counsels reflected back upon you some day by his splendor of behavior in some crisis where he would have failed but for you.

Don't snub him. Don't depreciate his ability. Don't talk discouragingly about his future. Don't let Miriam get down off the bank of the Nile and wade out and upset the ark of bulrushes. Don't tease him. Brothers and sisters do not consider it any harm to tease. That spirit abroad in the family is one of the meanest and most devilish. There is a teasing that is pleasurable, and is only another form of innocent raillery; but that which provokes and irritates and makes the eye flash with anger is to be reprehended. It would be less blameworthy to take a bunch of thorns and draw them across your sister's cheek, or to take a knife and draw its sharp edge across your brother's hand till the blood spurts, for the wound or damage to only the body, but teasing is the thorn and the knife scratching and lacerating the disposition of the soul. It is the curse of innumerable households that the brothers tease the sisters and the sisters the brothers. Sometimes it is the color of the hair, or the shape of the features, of an affair of the heart. Sometimes it is by revealing a secret or by a suggestive look, or a guffaw, or an "Ahem!" Tease! Tease! Tease! For Christ's sake, quit it. Christ says: "He that hateth his brother is a murderer." Now, when you, by teasing, make your brother or sister hate, you turn him or her into a murderer or murderess.

Don't let jealousy ever touch a sister's soul, as it so often does, because her brother gets more honor or more means. Even Miriam, the heroine of the text, was struck by that evil passion of jealousy. She had possessed unlimited influence over Moses, and now he marries and not only so, but marries a black woman from Ethiopia, and Miriam is so disgusted and outraged at Moses, first because he had married at all, and next because he had practiced miscegenation, that she is drawn into a frenzy, and then begins to turn white, and gets white as a corpse, and then whiter than a corpse. Her complexion is like chalk; the fact is, she has the Egyptian leprosy. And now the brother whom she has defended on the Nile comes to her rescue in a prayer that brings her restoration. Let there be no room in your house for jealousy either to sit or stand. It is a leprous abomination. Your brother's success, oh sisters, is your success. His victories will be your victories. Hear, while he sings, the brotherly and the vocal music after the crossing of the Red sea, Miriam, the sister, with two sheets of shining brass uplifted and glittering in the sun, led the instrumental music, clapping the cymbals till the last frightened neigh of pursuing cavalry horse was smothered in the wave and the last Egyptian helmet went under.

How strong it makes a family when all the sisters and brothers stand together, and what an awful wreck when they all integrate, quarreling about a father's will and making the surrogate's office horrible with their wrangles. Better, when you were little children in the nursery, that with your playhouse mallets you had accidentally killed each other fighting across your cradle than that, having come to the age of maturity, and having in your veins and arteries the blood of the same father and mother, you fight each other across the paternal graves in the cemetery.

You can only knew it, your interests are identical. Of all the families of the earth that ever stood together, perhaps the most conspicuous is the family of the Rothschilds. As Mayer Anselm Rothschild was about to die in 1812, he gathered his children about him—Anselm, Solomon, Nahhan, Charles and James—and made them promise that they would always be united on change. Obeying that injunction they have been the mightiest commercial power on earth, and at the raising or lowering of their scepter nations have risen or fallen. That illustrates how much, on a large scale and for selfish purposes, a united family may achieve. But suppose that, instead of a magnitude of dollars as the object, it is doing good and making salutary impression and raising this sunken world, how much more ennobling! Sister, you do your part, and brother will do his part. If Miriam will lovingly watch the boat on the Nile, Moses will help her when leprous disagrees sit.

When father and mother are gone—and they soon will be, if they have not already made exit—the sisterly and fraternal bond will be the only ligament that will hold the family together. How many reasons for your deep and unfaltering affection for each other! Rocked in the same cradle; bent over by the same motherly tenderness; toiled for by the same father's weary arm and aching brow; with common inheritance of all the family secrets, and with counsels given you by parents who started you with the highest hopes for your happiness and prosperity, I charge you, be loving and kind forgiving.

If the sister see that the brother never wants a sympathizer, the brother will see that the sister never wants an escort. Oh, if the sisters of a household knew through what terrific and damning temptations their brother goes in city life, they would hardly sleep nights, in anxiety for his salvation! And if you would make a holy conspiracy of kind words and gentle attentions and earnest prayers, that would save his soul from death and hide a multitude of sins. But let the sister dash off in one direction in disciplehship in the world, and the brother flees off in another direction in dissipation, and it will not be long before they will meet again at the iron gate of Despair, their blistered feet in the hot ashes of a consumed Sodom. And so that brothers and sisters, though living together for years, very often do not know each other, and that they see only the imperfections and none of the virtues.

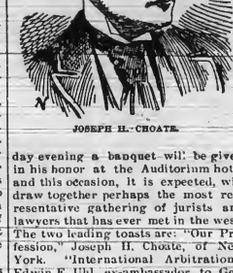
ARKANSAS FARMER



Kills Three and Wounds Four, Two of Whom May Die.

The Murderer Then Set Fire to His Clothing, But Was Overpowered By Neighbors, After a Struggle—Is Thought the Man Became Suddenly Insane.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 4.—One of the most horrible crimes ever perpetrated in this state took place in Franklin county Wednesday night. Sol F. Autrey, a farmer, accompanied by his family, went early Wednesday morning to visit his aged father and mother living near Mulberry. Shortly after his arrival Autrey became engaged in a religious argument with the old folks. Suddenly he grasped an iron bar, killed his aged father, mother and ten-year-old son and seriously wounded his wife and three remaining children, two of whom are not expected to live. His wife and eldest daughter, although badly hurt, managed to notify the neighbors. When they reached the house they found Autrey a raving maniac with his clothing on fire. He was overpowered after a hard struggle. The sight that met the neighbors' eyes was appalling. The three dead victims of the crazy man lay on the floor, beaten, burned and mangled almost beyond recognition. He has been chained all day, talking incoherently, swearing that witches were the cause of the act. Some doubt his insanity.

W. T. GILES,

An Old and Well Known Newspaper Man Dies of Pneumonia.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—W. T. Giles, of Freeport, Ill., is dead at the residence of his son, W. S. Giles, in this city, after a brief illness from pneumonia. Mr. Giles was an old and well known newspaper man and has the distinction of establishing more papers than any man in the country.

Mr. Giles was in his 75th year. His newspaper experience began when he was 15 years old in the composing room of the Ohio Patriot at New Lisbon, O., where he was born. In 1846 he established the Democratic Pioneer at Upper Sandusky. He went with the gold seekers to California in 1849 and in 1851 started the California Express at Marysville, and a year later the Mountain Echo at Downieville. Returning to Ohio in 1853 he established the Wyandotte County Pioneer. In 1856 he went to Freeport and purchased the Bulletin, of which he was editor for over twenty years. He founded a paper in Montana, the Bugle at Council Bluffs, Ia; the Dakota Herald, at Yankton, S. D.; the Lee County Democrat at Dixon, Ill.; the Monroe (Wis.) Gazette; the Illinois Monitor, of Freeport, and in 1883 the Freeport Democrat. He retired a year ago.

Mr. Giles was a personal friend of Stephen A. Douglas and Wilber F. Storey.

NEW YORK, Feb 4.—Potter Palmer, the wealthy hotel man of Chicago, is about to build at Newport a mansion which, it is said, will be even more palatial and luxurious than any of the other beautiful summer homes now in existence there, including even the celebrated marble house built by Wm. K. Vanderbilt and now owned by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. Mr. Palmer, it is understood, expects to spend between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 on his new home.

WILMOT FLAT, N. H., Feb. 4.—The thermometer registered 42 degrees below zero Thursday morning.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—SENATE—Monday's session of the senate lasted six hours, two of the general appropriation bills, that for the army carrying $23,143,492, and that for the legislative, judicial and executive departments carrying $1,650,580, were passed, the latter consisting of 121 pages, occupying the attention of the senate during the greater part of the session. After a brief executive session the senate adjourned.

HOUSE—The house Monday buried the Teller resolution declaring the bonds of the United States payable in silver under an adverse majority of 50 votes. The republicans were solidly arrayed in opposition with two exceptions, Mr. Linney, of North Carolina, who voted with the democrats and populists, and Mr. White, of North Carolina, the only colored member of the house, who answered "Present" when his name was called. The desertions from the democratic side were Mr. McAleer, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Elliott, of South Carolina, both voted with the republicans against the proposition. Speaker Reed, although not customary to vote, had his name called, and said the decency of his followers went on record in opposition to the resolution. The vote was reached after five hours of debate, under a special order adopted at the opening of the session Monday. The debate was at times fast and heated but there were no sensational incidents beyond the hissing of Mr. Rhea, of Kentucky, when he said that as the author of the "crime of '73" he felt a personal interest, would be reserved for the present secretary of the state. The vote on the resolution was ayes 182, nays 182.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—SENATE—No business of importance was transacted by the senate in open session Tuesday. The feature of the short session was a statement made by Mr. Clark (rep., Wyo.) as a matter of personal privilege, concerning his vote in favor of the Teller resolution. He maintained that his vote was in no way inconsistent with his republicanism as declared that he would not permit anybody to read him out of the party as he was satisfied the masses of the party would not convict him of political heresy.

HOUSE—The house devoted most of the session Tuesday to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, but had not completed it at the time of adjournment. Some politics were injected into the debate just at the close, the feature of which was a bitter denunciation of Mr. W. A. Stone (Pa.) by Mr. Mahany (rep., N. Y.) for the former's position in favor of the immigration bill. Mr. Stone did not see fit to reply. Before the district bill was taken up several bills and resolutions of minor importance were passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—SENATE—Beyond the reading of the agricultural appropriation bill and agreeing to the amendments proposed by the committee, the senate transacted no business of importance during the open session Wednesday. The greater part of the afternoon was passed in executive session, the discussion being upon the Hawaiian annexation treaty.

HOUSE—The house, after three days session on the District of Columbia appropriation, mostly in political discussion, passed the measure Wednesday and then took up the bill to provide for fortifications and coast defenses of the country. Several of the democrats, notable Mr. McClellan (N. Y.), criticised the measure because it cut down appropriations for these works below what has been appropriated in recent years.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—SENATE—One of the features of Thursday's session was a speech by Mr. Carey (rep., Wyo.) in support of the resolution reported by the committee on privileges and elections declaring that Henry W. Corbett is not entitled to a seat in the senate from Oregon. Mr. Corbett's term having expired, he was appointed as senator by the governor of Oregon after the failure of the legislature to elect a senator to succeed Senator Mitchell. Mr. Carey maintained that the governor of a state had no authority to appoint to fill an original vacancy—a vacancy beginning with a new term—after the legislature had had opportunity to elect and failed to do so. The agricultural appropriation bill was under consideration during the greater part of the afternoon and was finally passed.

HOUSE—The house spent the day ostensibly considering the fortifications appropriation bill. In reality the major portion of the time was consumed in the discussion of political topics. The existence or non-existence of prosperity in this country was again the main question of dispute. The feature of the day was the discovery by Mr. Simpson, the Kansas populist, and the explosion of the alleged fact that Mr. Dingley, chairman of the ways and means committee, wore a London made pot hat. Mr. Dingley explained that the hat was made in New York. The London trade mark was simply placed there to please the anglo-maniacs who always preferred things because they were British. An attempt to increase the appropriations in the fortifications appropriation bill or to amend it in any respect were voted down.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—SENATE—Speaking to a question of personal privilege in the senate Friday Mr. Lindsay (Ky.) commented sharply upon the motives of the author and promoters of the resolution recently passed by the legislature of Kentucky demanding his resignation as senator. Mr. Lindsay, after defining his position upon the financial question, made it clear that he was the representative of the whole people of Kentucky and not to any sense the agent of the Kentucky legislature. Above all he was, he said, a senator for the whole American people, and as such would perform his duties and cast his vote in accordance with his convictions and with the dictates of his conscience. No business of importance was transacted in the brief open session. After the executive session of three hours the senate adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE—Friday was private bill day in the house, but the systematic filibustering the private calender containing the bills reported by the committee on claims was not reached, the whole day being consumed in passing of the $1 private pension bills favorably acted upon by the house at the session last Friday night. During the consideration of one of the bills an interesting discussion of the approximate value of the Kansas Pacific road, set for February 17, was precipitated by Mr. Fleming (dem., Ga.), who with his democratic colleagues desired to have the bill require the president to ask the full amount of the debt, principal and interest. Mr. Powers, chairman of the Pacific railroad commission, contended that the real purpose of the opposition was to compel the government to take the road and operate it. He said he thought the administration, which had secured every dollar owing from the Union Pacific, would be safer if it were to protect the government's interest at the sale of the Kansas Pacific.

Found With His Throat Cut.

PADUCAH, Ky., Feb. 5.—William Bell, a well to do farmer, who resided near Bayou Mills, Livingston county, 15 miles from this city, was found dead in his barn. He was lying between two bales of hay, face downward with his throat cut, and in his hand was a razor. His wife found the body. He had been in good health and his domestic life was happy. There is a theory that he committed suicide, as indicated by the circumstances, and there is another that he was murdered. Officers are investigating the case.

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 1.—SENATE—The Smith bill providing that all manufacturers and dealers in mixed flour in this state, shall brand all packages, barrels or bags of flour in such a way that the purchasers will know it is a mixed flour, was passed unanimously by the senate Monday. Bills introduced: Providing a $500 fine for selling or printing campaign lies, amend the game law by extending time for killing quail to February 1 each year; to suppress bookmaking and pool selling in this commonwealth; to change the name of the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Kentucky to State University of Kentucky.

The committee reported adversely on the popular bill to secure to the people the right to propose legislation to the legislature and vote on proposed laws, known as the referendum bill, but the house overruled the committee and ordered the bill advanced. The same report was made on Representative Mount's bill proposing to amend the constitution so that a man can not vote unless his poll tax is paid, but the house ignored it, and ordered it advanced over the committee's head.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 2.—SENATE—Two of the anticipated partisan measures were introduced in the senate Tuesday morning. Senator Goebel fathered one. It provides for election by the legislature of an election commission, to appoint the election boards in each county. Senator Bronston followed up one providing for a state board of charities, the object of which is to rob the present administration of the management and control of asylums. The "penitentiary grab" bill came up in the senate as a special order, and Senator Bronston and others spoke for it.

HOUSE—Mr. Tracy of Covington introduced his charter—creating bill in the house Tuesday. This is the bill extending Covington's boundary line to the Ohio state line. Mr. Traver, of Newport, introduced a bill repealing the act under which the fiscal courts of Kenton and Campbell counties supplement the regular salaries of circuit judges in those districts; also an act to prevent the spread of contagious diseases; also an act to provide the manner of locating county roads. Representative Morris introduced a bill in the house prohibiting the reproduction of prize fights by photograph or otherwise. The house committee on public morals, through its chairman, Mr. Petty, of Grant, reported favorably Mr. Houseman's anti-Sunday baseball bill. The bill excepts cities of the first and second-classes. The anti-cigarette bill was also reported by way of substitute, which imposes a fine against the manufacture, sale or use of cigarettes.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 3.—SENATE—New bills introduced Wednesday: To repeal section 53 of Article 13, of "an act relating to fees," approved June 15, 1882; to authorize the collectors to select the assignee in all cases of voluntary assignments for the benefit of creditors, and to extend the duties of the sheriffs and county clerks in relation thereto, and repealing the act of March 16, 1894, relating to assignments; creating two additional circuit judges for Louisville and regulating the terms of the several divisions of the Louisville circuit court; providing for the election of judges provided for in bill No. 148; authorizing cities and towns to establish and maintain free libraries and reading rooms, and providing for the appointment of a board of commissioners by the governor, to promote the same.

HOUSE—The bill to regulate the practice of dentistry in this state by requiring all dentists to secure a certificate from the state board, which was defeated last week, was reconsidered Wednesday and passed by a vote of 54 to 34. The bill to compel the Associated Press to sell its news to any newspaper that offers to pay for it at the regular price charged newspapers now receiving said news, passed by a vote of 61 to 24. Petitions from other localities urged that railroads be allowed to charge a two-cent per mile fare for passengers.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 4.—SENATE—Quite a little fight came up in the senate Thursday over the reference to a committee of two bills proposing to repeal the special local option acts, applying to Jefferson, Fayette, Boyle, Owsley and Laurel. Referred to the judiciary committee. Bills passed: Providing for working all convicts whose terms are two years or less on the public or county roads; requiring sheriffs to settle with the county each year before they can secure a quietus and proceed with the collection of the succeeding year's taxes; to incorporate the police pension association for the city of Louisville. Bills introduced: To regulate prices of licenses for circuses by the size of the circus; to prevent any person from practicing medicine or treating any sick person by any method whatsoever without complying first with the act of April 10, 1892, to protect citizens from empiricism.

HOUSE—Bills reported favorably: To appropriate $4,200 a year to establish and maintain a bureau of immigration and labor; authorizing county judges to post notices of local option elections; to further prohibit the sale of intoxicating beverages in local option districts; making it a felony to forge or sign the name of another to a petition; providing that no property shall be exempt from execution for a debt contracted for labor performed; making it unlawful to sell less than 76 pounds of coal as a bushel. Bills killed: Making it unlawful to permit live stock to run at large on public highways; permitting the taking of depositions in shorthand; granting a $5 cent bounty for killing blue-winged chicken hawks; making it unlawful to fire a deadly weapon on the public road or within 50 yards thereof; providing that persons who are not householders may serve as election officers; providing that the state shall receive bids for the public printing only from union offices.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 5.—SENATE—The Goebel fellow-servants' liability bill came up in the order of the day and a vote was reached without much discussion. Senator Goebel making a short statement stating the legal effect of the bill. Senator Bryan offered an amendment providing that the bill should apply to all corporations, but it was voted down. The bill passed by a vote of 16 to 14. Bills favorably reported: To prohibit the sale of food when adulterated to be so branded with the name of all of the ingredients; to prevent road overseers from employing their own teams or wagons or their own property; to exclude witnesses from court room during trial of cases; provide for selection of foreman of grand jury by the judge; to prevent a diploma from State Colored Normal school from giving a right to teach in common schools.

The remains were taken to Warsaw, her former home, for interment.

A small blaze occured at the residence of Mrs. Louisa Bruce, deceased a few days ago. The kitchen roof was discovered to be on fire. The fire engine was called out and the fire department soon had the fire under control. Saturday afternoon the fire alarm was again given and the fire department was soon on their way to the residence of Wm. Holder where the fire was reported to be. When they arrived the fire had been extinguished. Mrs. Holder was cleaning some clothing with gasoline. The fire in the grate caused the gas in the room to explode, horribly burning Mrs. Holder. Her clothing was about all burned off. The skin dropped from the flesh. Her husband and Mr. George Youell had hard work to extinguish the flames. Several pieces of bed clothes were burned in the attempt. Both men had their hands severely burned. Serious doubts are entertained as to her recovery.

The first prayer meeting met at Mrs. Whitlock's home on last Tuesday night. There were six present. We did not feel at all discouraged and earnestly hope that every one will at least attend. It is strange how much we can talk about our neighbors and the news from the papers, but when it comes to talking of the Bible or anything that pertains to religion, those same lips are silent. It ought not so to be.

The editor of the Boone County Banner has been kind enough to send us several sample copies, and will accept our kludest thanks for same. We make no pretense to judge of its contents as they relate to matters religious, but concerning the item which says that Uncle Frank Smith & Co., were acting suspiciously; we take pleasure in saying they are above suspicion, and if it were needful for them to use a whole drug store in killing hogs it would be "zackly right."

Miss Opha Riley came very near losing her life, one cold day last week. She was in front of the grate and the first intimation she had of danger was to see the fire and find the back of her dress in flames. Fortunately she had presence of mind not to run into the open air (and to this alone she undoubtedly owes her escape from being roasted alive), but instead yelled fire and jumped into the bed and smothered the flames. A general rush was made to her rescue, and excepting a burned hand, we are pleased to say she is all right.

The RECORDER made us say that Rob Norman caught a hen by moonlight, when in fact it was Robt. Newman. If Rob Norman had been catching this particular hen he would have caught her by the legs instead of by the light-of-the-moon, but as Rob Newman did the job he made a running schute on the ice and around the garden fence like a streak of "greased lightning" sometimes on his feet—most of the time on his head and balance of the time "most any old way," finally landing on a rail fence minus his hat, one over shoe and the hen.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb'y. 5, 1898

With over 500 bills on the calendar, and resolutions, amendments, and various forms of amendments and various supplementary legislation too numerous to mention, it can not be said that with truth that the present State Assembly has not been an energetic body. The past week has marked the passage of several important bills in both Houses, but it has also been the slaughter and recommittal of more would-be measures than anyother week of the term. This is well, for one of the oldest law-makers in the lot said the other day that he had always worked on the idea that "no law is better than a poor law."

Of the bills favorably acted upon during the past seven day, since my last letter, the most important was the Goebel Fellow Servant act. This makes railroad and steamboat, or navigation companies, responsible for the deeds or misdeeds of all their legal employee. It is a measure for which there has been a general demand among the masses in recent years. And Senator Goebel has put it through the Senate with ease. It is in the House and will be passed this week. It is a special order for today, and will go to the Governor before Saturday.

Representative Conner has been busy getting his odds and ends of legislation ready for consideration. He never loses any time, and has made as good a record as any member of the present General Assembly. He is as honest as he is careful and unostentatious, and that is what has made him so many friends. He is unassuming but fearless and earnest in his espousal of everthing he concelves to be the best thing for his constituents and the people at large. He is in favor only of expedient measures and of such other legislation as is remedial and essential.

I understand from a friend of mine, who lives in the Licking river country, that the banquet which was given to Judge Chas. Helm, at Newport, last week, was, in reality, the first launching of the Judge's Congressional boom. This friend says the Helm boom was not the work of the Judge; in fact he knew nothing of the movement, but he believes, nevertheless, that it will prove a mighty political leven. If this rumor should prove true, it would seem to indicate that the candidates are as thick as hail in the Licking river country.

It begins to look like Senator Goebel is going to have more more formidable opposition in his race for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination than he imagined or calculated on. The friends of ex-Gov. Brown are using a powerful lever in trying to prize him into the race again, and it is said he will certainly be a candidate once more. I also learn that Dr. Clardy, ex Congressman Ellis, Maj. Johnson, Wat Hardin, and at least two other prominent Democrats will shortly enter the scramble for the highest office in the State.

As I have predicted in these letters from the State capital before, the quantity of legislatiou may not be enormous, but I think the character of it will be wholesome for the good of the State. The next in importance to the Goebel bill was the Brouston anti-pool selling act, which sounds the death knell of betting on horse races in the old Blue-grass State. It prohibits the sale of pools on races in any room or place for that purpose, and provides that betting pools can only be sold 30 days each year on the race track by reputable gentlemen. It passed the Senate and is now safely on the ways for the Executive Mansion.

Retrenchment and reform seem to be the watchwords of the Solons, who appear to waut to do nothing so much as they want to do what the people sent them here to accomplish. In the two branches no less than seven bills are now pending, which have for their purpose the siecing of States officers' salaries. The most feasible one of these is probably the one introduced by Mr. Weatherford, which makes a total reduction in salaries of over $24,000 annually and reduces the cheif executive's income to $5,000 per twelvemouth. It has been favorably reported and will pass the House by Thursday.

The bills for combining the office of Register of Land with that of Auditor, the one for abolishing the office of commonwealth's attorney and for combining the Bureau of Agriculture with some other department of state, all bid fair to pass in one form or another. But while this cheese paring mania is striking a number of the representatives, the office-creating fad seems to have come into vogue with others, making a top-heavy economy of the kind of the over-saving farmer who stopped up the bung hole and opened the faucet that he might prevent waste of sorghum. In proof of this latter statement one has but to mention that three bills creating as many new offices are now being considered.

The Bronston bill providing and establishing a state prison commission for the control of these institutions, passed the Senate, will pass the House this week and then for the Governor's first veto. This will be promptly counteracted by the determined bodies in the Assembly Halls, however, for they will immediately pass the bill over Gov. Bradley's head.

Senator Goebel's bill providing for three county election commissioners to select county election officers for each city, county, state or Nat contest, will pass the Senate. The pure food bill has pas ing to and will pass the Senper cent The bill regulating the y England tors in certain cases houses. The act allo every day convicts to do road ob —Kansas act for requiring railr to the legal fence a tending time of sheri of delinquent taxes b sement of the House. l recent

I take issue wi g of the Ci in its passage at the bi gests the po ge of consent and lower punishment in such might fit as finally fixes the p apitals any person over 16 who too. Mr. M rnal knowledge of a fe yet logic 4, at ..m 1 to 5 years in l. s from punishment in the way of imprisonment can be much too se and in my opinion deserve to have th No as to make it an ev the bestial scoundrels, who are ready to despoil and debauch characters.

The anti-school book trust bill stills hangs fire in the House, but will probably pass over the the shoals this week. The bill abolishing the Appellate Court Janitor and arsenal keeper, will also be acted on favorably. The bills for establishing a medical college in connection with state college; for establishing a state labor bureau and the prison commissien bill from the Senate, will reach the final reading before I wrtle again.

The fight of the two Louisville Democratic factions over the bills abolishing the executive boards in that city, will end in a cloud of dust tomorrow, when the amendments come up.

There is much disappointment among the friends of the great white metal champion over his announcement that he cannot come to speak before the Legislature this term. Mr. Bryan is busy writing a book and is said to have his times spoken for to the last of May.

The attempt of Representaeive Meyers to have the response of Senator Lindsay read before the House brought a storm of adverse comments down on his unsuspecting head. After being flattened out by a sitting upon, he realized that he was really in anti-Lindsay gathering.

The illness of five of the members who have been forced to go home on leaves of absence, is generally regretted by their colleagues. Mr. Nelsou, of Murray, is probably the most dangerously ill one of the members.

SAY, stranger, I could tell ye er pooty good story 'bont thet haouse up ther'." I was taking a trip through the country on my bicycle. I had just passed through the pretty village of D——, and here on the outskirts I found a great, beautiful house, with a wide driveway leading between big stone posts and up to the pillared portico. It was such a beautiful place, up there in the sunlight, that I wanted to look longer at it, so I dismounted, and, leaning on the stone wall, I was admiring its fine proportions when I heard the rattle of a farm wagon and in a moment the rattle stopped just behind me, and then a voice which announced a story in connection with the mansion.

A good-natured looking old gentleman was sitting in a long farm wagon, such as is used to bring the potatoes from the field or the apples from the orchard. The horse was a dappled gray, so fat he could hardly move, and certainly if I had been in any hurry I should have kept to my wheel, but then time with me was of no consequence, and I did like stories, and there would be an unusual charm about this, for the old man had the peculiar pronunciation and queer nasal twang of that part of the country. So I loaded the wheel in behind and climbed in myself with the driver.

"Goin' fur, be ye?"

"Well, friend, I don't just know how far. I'm out for fun, taking my vacation on my wheel, partly because I want to be out of doors and partly because I haven't the money to lay out in car fare."

"Shoo, neow. Wal, ye ken ride weth me fur's I go, an' thet'll save yer wheel some."

"I'm sure you are very kind to help—" and right there I had such a spell of coughing that the sentence never was finished. It seemed so funny that he never thought of the wear and tear on his equipage, but in his generous heart only sought to save me and my wheel.

"Consumptive, be ye?" and he looked at me anxiously.

I hastened to say that it was the dust or the heat that made me cough so.

"Wal, I'm 'tarnal glad ter hear't. I've heard'd said consumption, the kind the' hev neow, wuz ketchin'. I bet I wouldn't hev lived out half my days of I hedn't er ben keerful ter steer clear er them diseases't I knew wuz ketchin'. I ain't but 80, but I bet ef scarlet fev'r er diptheree should git holt er me I'd never'd git over't. Youth don't count fer nothin' weth them things."

I looked at him to see if he was joking, but not a smile on his face as he spoke of his youth and the uncertainty of his recovery from either of those diseases. Did he really think himself a young man? I could not tell.

"Haven't you had any of the diseases common to children?"

"Wal, I should say't I hed. When Jane's baby hed ther chick pox I went down't Mollie's ter live in the village, an' I'll be pisened ef them blamed pox didn't ketch me ther'. I tell ye the blisters wuz suthin' ter see, an' I ain't never got over't yit an' I never shell. It ketches me somewheres every little while. Jane says it's rhumatis, but I 'low young folks don't hev rhumatifs; my grandther was over er hund'ed an' he never hed it an' I say it's the remains er them pox."

I thought it time to bring his mind to the story he was to tell, so I casually asked if he was personally acquainted with the famates of the great house.

"Wal, I should say't I wuz. I went ter school weth the old man, but I ain't seen 'im for years. He shet himself in an' don't go nowhere. I bet he ain't been ter see smart's I be, an' he ain't see old [illegible] year; no sir, he ain't."

"But you was—"

"Yes, Flint, an' 'twas er good [illegible]

"He must have a good deal of money to run such a large place."

"I bet he's got more prop'ty 'n you can shake er stick at, an' ther story wus 'bout the prop'ty, that is in er sartain way."

"Wal, I guess yer right, stranger. Wal, Jo Flint he had er nephy, er smart young man as you'd moat ever see, an' course Jo he'd likely giv' him all the things aged on Cloney, an' he wuz pop'lar now I tell ye.

A Valentine from Her.

See yonder lad a-footing free,
How jocundly he hies!
The morning's tingling ecstacy
Is dancing in his eyes.
A flowery way becomes his path,
The skies a golden blur,
The earth a paradise—he hath
A valentine from her!

A sudden song escapes his lips,
A joy-reverbrant thing;
Through love's divine companionship
He feels himself a king.
He dreams of no sad aftermath,
This buoyant worshiper,
And all, forsooth, because he hath
A valentine from her!

ARE YOU TO LIVE IN ALASKA?

Some Requirements That Will Be Found Indispensable.

The universal article of diet in that country, depended upon and indispensable, is bread or biscuit. And to make the bread and biscuit, either in the camp or upon the trail, yeast cannot be used—it must be baking powder; and the powder manufactured by the processes of the Royal Baking Powder Company, miners and prospectors have learned, is the only one which will stand in that peculiar climate of cold and dampness and raise the bread and biscuit satisfactorily.

These facts are very important for every one proposing to go to Alaska and the Yukon country to know, for should one be persuaded by some outfitter to take one of the cheap brands of baking powder, it will cost just as much to transport it, and then when he opens it for use, after all his labor in packing it over the long and difficult route, he will find a solid caked mass or a lot of spoiled powder, with no strength and useless. Such a mistake might lead to the most serious results. Alaska is no place in which to experiment in food, or try to economize with your stomach. For use in such a climate, and under the trying and fatiguing conditions of life and labor in that country, everything must be the best and most useful, and above all it is imperative that all food supplies shall have perfect keeping qualities. It is absurd to convey over such difficult and expensive routes an article that will deteriorate in transit, or that will be found when required for use to have lost a great part of its value.

There is no better guide to follow in these matters than the advice of those who have gone through similar experience. Mr. McQuesten, who is called "the father of Alaska," after an experience of years upon the trail, in the camp, and in the use of every kind of supply, says: "We find in Alaska that the importance of a proper kind of baking powder cannot be overestimated. A miner with a can of bad baking powder is almost helpless in Alaska. We have tried all sorts, and have been obliged to settle down to use nothing but Royal. It is stronger, and carries further, but above all things, it is the only powder that will endure the severe climatic changes of the Arctic region."

It is for the same reasons that the U. S. Government in its relief expeditions, and Peary, the famous Arctic traveler, have carried the Royal Baking Powder exclusively.

The Royal Baking Powder will not cake nor lose its strength either on board ship or in damp climates, and is the most highly concentrated and efficient of leavening agents. Hence it is indispensable to every Alaskan outfit. It can be had of any of the trading companies in Alaska, but should the miner procure his supplies before leaving, he should resist every attempt of the outfitter to palm off upon him any of the other brands of baking powder, for they will spoil and prove the cause of great disappointment and trouble.

BIRDS EAT 400 SHEEP.

The Feast Took Place 100 Miles From Dawson and Cost $20,000.

Jack Collins, who started for Dawson City with a band of sheep last summer, has been heard from. He sold part of his flock for $20,000. The other and biggest half of the flock fed the birds of the arctic zone. This is how it happened:

He drove the sheep in over the Dalton trail. Some time before Dawson was reached cold weather came on, and Collins decided to kill his sheep. He killed and sold 300, and received nearly $20,000 for them.

Then he concluded to hold the remainder for a better market. He killed the remaining 400 in a sort of secluded place off the line of travel and suspended the carcasses on poles far enough above the ground to be out of the reach of bears, wolves or other wild animals. He left two young men to watch the mutton, and proceeded to look for a mining section. Having found one, he located a claim and proceeded to test it. After he had dug out a few thousand dollars' worth of gold he thought he would, as the French say, "return to his muttons."

His stay had been so prolonged that the young men had become weary of holding a wake over the sheep, and, imagining Dawson to be only a few miles away, had started for that city to enjoy some of the pleasures a metropolitan city can afford. It proved to be about 100 miles to Dawson, so their absence was more extended than they had intended, and when Collins reached the place where he had left the carcasses of 400 sheep he found only 400 bleaching skeletons.

The eagles, ravens, crows, kites, hawks and other birds of prey which inhabit that region had been feasting on mutton. "Where the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered," is a proverb which applies to other birds of prey. Collins had left so many carcasses that invitations had been sent out and a general round-up of all the vultures and things in that region, from Behring sea to the Mackenzie river, had taken place. Whether the claim Collins secured will make good the loss of the mutton or not remains to be seen, but when he drives in his next band of sheep the birds of prey will not get so large a percentage of them.—Portland Oregonian.

A Town Rides in This Elevator.

Probably the only elevator in the world that is used to connect two parts of a town is the one in Heligoland, the little island just off the coast of and belonging to Germany. One portion of the town is on a cliff over 200 feet high. The other is at the base of the cliff on a flat stretch of land. There are no paths up the cliff, and all communications between the two portions of this unique little place must be held by means of the elevator—an elevator that lifts an entire community to and from the scene of its daily labors.—N. Y. Journal.

THE OMAHA EXPOSITION.

It Promises to Be an Artistic and Financial Success.

In the Grouping and Designs of the Main Buildings It Will Differ from All Former Achievements.

[Special Omaha C[illegible]ICT[illegible]ter.

Your correspondent [illegible]ed Omaha for the second time to [illegible]. His first visit was in 1867, [illegible]n the western terminus of the [illegible]ck Island road lauded passenger[illegible]ttle west of Des Moines, Ia., and the old Concord stage was the only means of passage on to Omaha. To be sure, the old Hannibal & St. Joe road, in connection with the river boats between St. Joseph and Omaha, afforded an easier means of reaching the Nebraska metropolis. There was then no railroad bridge at Omaha, and the incoming passengers had to be ferried across the river. The great transcontinental line, the Union Pacific, was then under construction. Its material and rolling stock had to be transported on barges up the river.

When President Lincoln designated Omaha as the eastern terminus of the Union Pacific line, he fixed the destiny of this city. And I remember that the people here were exultant and confident that this act of Old Abe, consummated after a personal inspection of the topography of competing sites along the river, would put Omaha on the high road to fortune and make it ultimately the favored city between Chicago and San Francisco. This prediction has been realized. Three bridges now span the river at this point and 14 railways enter the gates of Omaha. When I first saw Omaha the population was estimated at 15,000. To-day ten times that number is claimed, while the population of Nebraska has grown to a million and a quarter.

At that time Omaha was an outpost of the frontier. To-day there are 15,000,000 people west of the river. Nebraska had been admitted to statehood a few months prior to my visit and, with the exception of Kansas, Texas, California and Oregon, all the territory west of Omaha was unorganized as regards statehood, while to-day every division is represented in congress save the territories of New Mexico and Arizona, and so rapid has been the development of the west that the term "frontier" has become a misnomer and the arts and industries of civilization have pushed out to the Rockies and beyond.

There has been no fit illustration of the marvelous progress made by the states west of the Mississippi river during the past 25 years. True the Columbian fair gave evidence in slight measure of western development, but many of the states and territories were represented there only by buildings for the entertainment of visitors from the several states, and an inadequate representation of the wealth, products, resources and civilization of the vast region west of the Mississippi has yet to be made.

I had been told that the Trans-Mississippi International exposition, which is billed to open its gates at Omaha next June promises to be second only to the World's fair, but I must confess I was somewhat skeptical on this point. I took a trolley car to the grounds, which are about 1½ miles north of the center of the city, but within the corporate limits. I found some of the large buildings nearing completion. They are ranged east and west along either side of a basin nearly half a mile long and about 150 feet wide. At the west end this basin spreads out into a three-lobed lake, facing which is the United States government building, which the contractor is rearing with all possible dispatch, the winter weather being favorable. This building, by the way, is to be 500 feet long and the height to pinnacle will be 178 feet. Its cost is estimated at $350,000. At the east end of the basin there is an immense hemicycle stairway leading to a viaduct across Sherman avenue, which divides the main tract of the exposition from a beautiful plat of about 60 acres, wherein are being erected the various state buildings, the horticulture, apiary and other buildings of lesser degree.

This tract overlooks the river and, being high and sightly, affords a magnificent view of the river and the lowa bluffs beyond. At the northern extremity begins the section devoted to amusements of concessionaires and over to the west, being north of the rectangle where stand the large buildings, is the main section devoted to concessionaires. Beyond this will be the railroad terminal station and the Transportation building, the vast array of farm implements, the irrigation and sugar beet farms, the horticultural section and the up-to-date farm, together with athletic fields, a racing course, fine stock stables, etc. There are 200 acres under fence.

At this time, however, the most interesting point on the exposition grounds is the main tract upon which the great buildings are under construction. One point to be noticed is the success of the designers in keeping free from the influence of other expositions. The plan of grounds, the grouping and design of buildings, and the scheme of color, I am told, are all wholly different from any former achievement. The buildings are to be given the tint of old ivory, the staff work being colored to produce that effect. Imposing columns of long colonnades, beautiful porticos facing the main court, bas-relief sculpture adorning the pediments of great buildings, all wrought in staff, will contribute to the splendor of the completed architecture. Visitors going by boat the length of the basin, from the United States Government building on the west to Sherman avenue on the east, will pass all the main buildings, to-wit: On the south line, the Fine Arts, Liberal Arts, Arch of States, Manufactures and Auditorium buildings, and on the north side the Agriculture, Administration building, Mines and Mining building, and the Machinery and Electricity building. The canal is to be spanned by four graceful bridges, one of which is to remain after the exposition closes.

As I stood on the great viaduct connecting the two main tracts of the exposition, this query naturally forced itself upon my mind: What will this vast display of architecture cost, and how is it possible that funds sufficient to complete the work laid out can be raised in a section of country which but two years ago, I was told down east, had suffered immeasurably from drought and business depression no less disastrous to the west than to the east. I was not prepared to believe that an exposition planned on a scale so gigantic could be pushed to a successful issue under conditions which to my mind were far from favorable. Seeking information on this point, I was told by one of the chief officials that the total cost of construction may not reach a sum exceeding a million and a half, and that nearly $1,000,000 is in sight, to say nothing of the revenues from concessionaires, gate receipts and appropriations from the various states which will participate. The people of Omaha alone subscribed over half a million dollars to this enterprise, and I am told that a bankers' committee scanned the subscription list, and adjudged it 95 per cent good. At any rate, there has been no cessation of work for lack of money, and a meeting of the directors, held a few days ago to consider the financial question, reported yesterday that the last call for funds has been responded to most liberally. Omaha as a municipality will contribute about $100,000, the county of which Omaha is the seat voted $100,000 in bonds. Nebraska voted $100,000, the United States government $200,000 to cover exhibits and building; Illinois, $45,000. The Iowa legislature is now considering an appropriation of equal size, and Montana, Utah, New Mexico, South Dakota, California, Louisiana, Missouri, Minnesota and Wisconsin are all coming into line, while interest in other states is such that there can be no question of unanimity.

Last spring the state department, by direction of President McKinley, extended invitations to foreign governments to participate in the exposition. Not a few favorable responses have been received. China, Mexico, Canada, Venezuela, Costa Rica and Bolivia are among the foreign nations that will send exhibits. Articles imported from foreign countries for the sole purpose of exhibition, upon which there shall be a tariff or customs duty, will be admitted free of payment of duty, customs fees or charges. Regulations governing entries of foreign goods intended for exhibit at the Trans-Mississippi and International exposition have been issued by the secretary of the treasury and transmitted to the United States consuls throughout the world. The government mint will issue the medals of award and the postmaster-general has ordered a series of postage stamps, eight denominations, commemorative of the holding of this exposition.

How about the attendance? This is a vital point. When I was told that the estimated figure is 2,500,000 of admissions, I could not see it. Edward Rosewater, manager of the department of publicity and promotion, told me that as a matter of course the bulk of the attendance is expected from the territory within a radius of 300 to 500 miles, and that the census population of Nebraska and states touching its borders is something like 9,000,000. From the railroad people I learn that all signs point to an enormous attendance. Agents of the exposition in every part of the country send reports of this nature. The people out here think that if business conditions continue to improve the question of a large attendance throughout the five months of the exposition will never vex the management.

The Defendant's Pleading.

In a rural district in the west of England there lived an eccentric old farmer, who was continually appearing before the magistrates for allowing his cattle to stray on the highway. During the hearing of his case for a similar offense upon the last occasion he elicited much laughter from the presiding "gentlemen on the bench" and others. The chairman, addressing the defendant, asked: "Do you plead guilty or not guilty?" "Well, yer 'onor, I expects as I be guilty, but don't be too hard on a reg'lar customer."—Spare Moments.

CANADA.

Interesting Items Relating to Affairs in the Dominion.

Messrs. Mann & Mackenzie, well-konwn railroad contractors, have secured the right from the Canadian government to build a line of railway from Telegraph Creek or Glenora, on the Stikine river, to Lake Teslin, a distance of 150 miles. The contractors agree to have the road completed by the 1st of September, 1898. It will connect by means of lighters with boats at Wrangali.

The dominion government officials are taking steps to secure options on vacant lands in the provinces lying west of Lake Superior, so as to facilitate their settlement. Many new districts are now being opened out by lines of railway under construction.

The Self-Help Emigration society, whose offices are at the Memorial hall, Farringdon street, London, has received a free government grant of 11,500 acres of land in the province of Ontario. The minster of the interior has made a further grant to the society of a section of land near Winnipeg to be used as a home center. During the last 12 years the society has aided nearly 6,000 persons to emigrate.

The impression has gone abroad that the United States government will send a detachment of United States troops with the relief expedition to the Klondike. Such is not the case, Minister Sifton, of Ottawa, Can., says the mounted police alone will act as escort.

Three parties of Klondikers occupied a tourist sleeper that passed through Winnipeg recently for the west. They intended to get into the gold fields as soon as possible, and will outfit on the const.

Mr. A. McEwen, representative of the Western Electric company of Chicago, who recently spent some days in Winnipeg, was very much delighted with Manitoba weather, as compared with that of Chicago. He had expected it to be much colder.

Wheat is selling in western Canada at 80 cents per bushel. Other commodities bring good prices on account of the Klondike rush.

Hon. David Mills, minister of justice for the Dominion of Canada, has ordered the new trial in the Sternaman case to take place at the May assizes before Mr. Justice Robertson. The question of a change of venue is left to the judge. Mrs. Sternaman is charged with having poisoned her husband in Buffalo, but he died after being brought to Canada. At her first trial she was found guilty, but an appeal being made a new trial was granted a couple of days before the sentence to hang would have been carried out.

EDIBLE COFFINS.

Queer Forms of Pastry in the Middle Ages.

At a very early period the orientals were familiar with a kind of pastry, a mixture of flour, oil and honey, and for centuries pastry-making went no further, even among the nations in the south of Europe. But in the beginning of the middle ages a change began to take place in the method of mixing the ingredients, and some other substances were brought into use. Butter, eggs and salt found their way into pastry making, and the result was a manifest improvement. Paste next came to be used as an inclosure for meat, seasoned with spices, etc. Afterward it went a step further, the next use being for the inclosure of creams, fruit, preserves, etc., and later still it began to take the many fanciful shapes in which it has since been commonly found. In the early stages of English cookery the pastry cases were called coffins or "coffynes," and were made in various sizes from "gret coffynes with lowe lidde" for the "tartes of flesche," to the "smalle coffynes" for "tartolettes" of "fische or flesche," mixed with "stuf of boylled figges ground and good powdire and spices."

Petruchio, in "The Taming of the Shrew," it may here be noted, calls a little cap "a custard coffin." These coffins correspond with the "rol-au-vent" of to-day. The art of making very light pastry, such as puff paste, is probably a modern one, but pastry of several kinds was anciently used. For meat pastry butter was dissolved in boiling water, and worked into a soft mass with fine flour. As it cooled it would set in any form desired. Another paste of a flaky kind was made very much as at present, while still another kind, called pam puff, was made of fine flour and the yolk of egg, no water at all being used. This was for the finer kinds of confectionery.—Gentleman's Magazine.

New York City a Century Ago.

The first inaugural ball was an imposing affair held in New York city in May, 1789, and attended by a most distinguished company of beaux and belles. The glimpse of society of a century ago is indeed an imposing one, while the description of the picturesque costumes of those days is most fascinating. It is recorded that Washington danced three times during the evening, and also that he was exceptionally fond of dancing, a liking which did not desert him until after he had retired from public life.—Mrs. Burton Harrison, in Ladies' Home Journal.

CARE FOR YOUR SHOES.

Never blacken patent leather. It should be treated with vaseline, sweet oil or one of the patent creams sold by shoe dealers for this purpose. Mud and dust may first be removed by a damp sponge. Then apply the oil and rub dry.

Oranges are good for polishing shoes—and for scouring bad floors, though too epensive for the latter purpose. Take a slice of orange and rub it over patent leather and let it dry. Then take a soft brush, polish and the shoe will shine like a mirror.

Tuesday Evening Club Organized in New York City.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor and Mrs. Ogden Mills are said to be at the head of the most exclusive organization in New York yet thought of in these days of exclusiveness. This will be a literary and artistic organization to be known as the Tuesday Evening club. Each Tuesday evening one of the members will play hostess to the gathering, when some topic of intellectual import will be discussed. Lorgnenet spenkers provided for the occasion.

The Thursday Evening club has long held sway in the 400 set, but, while this insures amusement, it also admits of a wide range of diversion during the season. It was felt that society was drifting into dancing and vandeville amusements in its leisure moments. The tide must be stemmed, but how?

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, as was natural, took the initiative, and a meeting at her home during the week resulted in the evolution of the most exclusive club of the year. The plans, though still somewhat indefinite, call for four sponsors. Of these Mrs. Astor and Mrs. Mills will be two. Others named among its adherents are Mrs. Henry Sloane and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. Each of the four "godmothers" shall have the privilege of inviting five guests.

The Thursday Evening club, it is understood, may unbend from its intellectual attitude sufficiently to close with a supper and perhaps a dance. And society is on tiptoe of expectation to discover just where these exclusives may decide to draw the limit.

BOY PROVES A GOOD LAWYER.

Eddie Krajic, Eleven Years Old, Surprises Justice Sabath.

Eddie Krnjic, 11 years old, has worked in law offices about six months, and has learned enough of the legal business to make it dangerous for anybody, he says, to try to impose upon him. The other day the little fellow walked into the court of Justice Sabath, at Chicago, and said he wanted to swear out a writ of attachment.

"You make that request just like a fullfledged attorney," said the justice, "but what do you know about attachment writs?"

"O, I know everything about such writs," was the reply. "I'm somewhat of a lawyer myself, and some day I hope to be a great one. I have been reading law considerably."

The boy told the justice that he had been employed as an office boy by Attorney A. H. Webster, 100 West Madison street, at the rate of $2.50 a week. The boy said the lawyer was indebted to him six dollars. Two dollars and a half of this was paid in installments, and then, the plaintiff says, he was discharged, and the boy wanted an attachment writ for the lawyer's furniture.

"But the law does not allow me to grant you a writ. You are too young," said Justice Sabath.

"O, I am well aware of that fact," came the reply, "and I wish to bring the suit through my next friend, J. K. Tennant, as prescribed by law, and he is here," was the reply, and the justice issued the writ of attachment, and constables were sent to seize the lawyer's furniture and books.

BABY PROVES A GOOD SAILOR.

Makes an Ocean Voyage Alone and Does Not Become Seasick.

A bright-eyed and cheerful little voyager who was run down on the passenger list of the Hamburg liner Auguste Victoria, which arrived at New York the other day from Genoa, shared with the commander, Capt. Knempff, the right to run the ship. His name is Victor McKenzie and he is 16 months old. He is a motherless babe and this circumstance prompted the 17 married women and the six unmarried women in the cabin to do all they could to be mothers to him on the trip. Victor's grandmother, Mrs. Charles H. Ashbridge, of Philadelphia, was at the pier to meet her grandson, whom she had never seen. His father, a captain in the Peruvinn army, took him and his mother on a diplomatic mission to Rome. The mother died there and the son was shipped to the grandmother here. Capt. McKenzie is a nephew of James McKenzie, of Kentucky, ex-minister to Peru. The infant voynger was one of the few on board who were not seasick.

Chronic Rheumatism.

From the Industrial News, Jackson, Mich.

The subject of this sketch is fifty-six years of age, and actively engaged in farming. When seventeen years old he hurt his shoulder and a few years after commenced to have rheumatic pains in it. On taking a slight cold or the least strain, sometimes without any apparent cause whatever, the trouble would start and he would suffer the most excruciating pains.

He suffered for over thirty years, and the last decade has suffered so much that he was unable to do any work. To this the frequent occurrence of dizzy spells were added, making him almost a helpless invalid.

IN ALL SORTS OF WEATHER.

He tried the best physicians but without being benefited and has used several specific rheumatic cures, but was not helped. About one year and six months ago he read in this paper of a case somewhat similar to his which was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and concluded to try this remedy.

After taking the first box he felt some what better, and after using three boxes, the pains entirely disappeared, the dizziness left him, and he has now for over a year been entirely free from all his former trouble and enjoys better health than he has had since his boyhood.

He is loud in his praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and will gindly corroborate the above statements. His post office address is Lorenzo Neeley, Horton, Jackson County, Michigan.

All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained, in a condensed form, in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. All druggists sell them.

Knew His Business.

"My dear, why are you applauding that piece?" asked Mrs. Snuggs, in a tone of remonstrance. "Don't you see no one else is applauding? It is beyond the performer's ability and not worthy of applause."

"I know that," replied Mr. Snuggs, "but we must applaud pieces like that in order to get something worth listening to in the encore."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Here are the latest directions: Use one teaspoonful of Grain-O to two cups of cold water. Mix the Grain-O with half an egg and add the water. (Be sure to measure.) After the water gets to the boiling point let it stand fifteen to twenty minutes. Use cream and sugar to suit the taste. If you have not cream use hot milk.

A lady said: "The first time I drank Grain-O I did not like it, but after using it ten days and forming the habit, nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." This is the experience of all. If you will follow directions, measure it every time and make it the same, and try it for ten days, you will not go back to coffee.

The Government's Domain.

The commissioner of the general land office has submitted his report to the Secretary of the Interior. Compared with last year, it shows a decrease of 3,298 homestead entries, aggregating 378,025 acres. Quite proportionate to this is the falling off in general health when no effort is made to reform irregularity of the bowels. This can easily be accomplished with the aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, also a remedy for malaria, dyspepsia, rheumatism and liver trouble.

SHE TOOK THE HINT.

And Then Proceeded to Display Her Immense Ingenuity.

At home stations the private soldiers' washing is usually done by the married soldiers' wives, who are expected to sew on missing buttons and do repairs, for which a small sum is deducted from the private's pay.

Pat McGinnis had a good deal of trouble with his laundress. Sunday after Sunday had his shirt come back with the neck button off, or else hanging by a shread. He had spoken to her on the subject and she had promised to see to it, but still the button was not on properly.

He got out of patience one Sunday when the missing button had made him late for parade, and exclaimed:

"Bother the woman! I'll see if I can't give her a hint this time, anyhow."

He then took the lid of a tin blacking box, about three inches in diameter, drilled two holes in it with a fork and sewed it on to the neck of the shirt that was next to be washed. When his washing came back he found that she had taken the hint; she had made a button hole to fit it.—Detroit Free Press.

An Old War-Horse of Journalism Discovers the Virtue of a New Medicinal Variety.

There are only a few of them left.

Since Chas. A. Dana's death, Joseph Medill, the war-horse of the Chicago Tribune, is the chief surviving representative of the old school of virile, aggressive editorial giants.

To have mud thrown at them was part of the profession at all times, but to find health in mud is rather a modern innovation. That is what Joseph Medill has been doing of late.

Mr. Medill is an investigator of the stories of the miraculous M[illegible] ing to Indiana Mineral Springs be per cent over the country, the great interested and eventually dav England mysteries of substance on hi[illegible] every day panied by his private phos[illegible]. Kansas Armenian scientist of hi[illegible]. The great editor was mud[illegible] for several weeks and gai[illegible] weight, strength and vitality[illegible]sement of an unqualified success. This mud-treatment is too[illegible]. Mr. Medill found so much virtue, in p[illegible] yet loged. After all, every form of lif[illegible] gs from the earth, which is the great de[illegible] and assim[illegible] ilator of dead and effete[illegible] At the Indiana Mineral Springs[illegible] eautiful bathe natural amphitheatre,[illegible] ures being grown with magnificent ol[illegible] at the foot of the converging hills, a fine Lithia spring gushes forth at the rate of 3,000 barrels a day and floods the soil, which consists of a rich, black porous loam, fed by the deciduous foliage of the oak trees. This peculiar soil saturated with mineral salts for ages, is as soluble as sugar, and being devoid of clay is not sticky in the least. It is not, therefore, in any sense related to the conventional mud of the road-way, of the Chicago street or to the variety which clings to your heels.

The mud is applied to the patient on a cot, the subject being entirely encased in the substance, steamed to a proper temperature. It then acts as a poultice, stimulates the skin, superficial blood supply and nerves, opens the pores and lithiates the blood, dissolving all uric acid deposits. Nothing can be simpler or more rational.

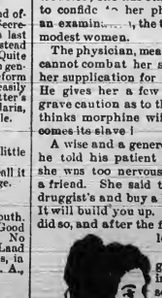
BEWARE OF MORPHINE.

Mrs. Pinkham Asks Women to Seek Permanent Cures and Not Mere Temporary Relief From Pain.



Special forms of suffering lead many a woman to acquire the morphine habit. One of these forms of suffering is a dull, persistent pain in the side, accompanied by heat and throbbing. There is disinclination to work, because work only increases the pain.

This is only one symptom of a chain of troubles; she has others she cannot bear to confide to her physician, for fear of an examination, the terror of all sensitive, modest women.

The physician, meantime, knows her condition, but cannot combat her shrinking terror. He yields to her supplication for something to relieve the pain. He gives her a few morphine tablets, with very grave caution as to their use. Foolish woman! She thinks morphine will help her right along; she becomes its slave!

A wise and a generous physician had such a case; he told his patient he could do nothing for her, as she was too nervous to undergo an examination. In despair, she went to visit a friend. She said to her, "Don't give yourself up; just go to the nearest druggist's and buy a bottle of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will build you up. You will begin to feel better with the first bottle." She did so, and after the fifth bottle her health was re-established. Here is her own letter about it:

"I was very miserable; was so weak that I could hardly get around the house, could not do any work without feeling tired out. My monthly periods had stopped and I was so tired and nervous all of the time. I was troubled very much with falling of the womb and bearing-down pains. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; I have taken five bottles, and think it is the best medicine I ever used. Now I can work, and feel like myself. I used to be troubled greatly with my head, but I have had no bad headaches or palpitation of the heart, womb trouble or bearing-down pains, since I commenced to take Mrs. Pinkham's medicine. I gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman. The use of one bottle will prove what it can do."—Mrs. LUCY PEASLEY, Derby Center, Vt.

THE MAN WHO LIVED.

He should have been dead.

But he wasn't, because—

"There's nothing succeeds like success." There is no withstanding the living argument of the man who should be dead, who isn't dead, but who would be dead, but for a preserving medicine. That's about the way it seemed to strike Editor Lawrence, of the Ohio Farmer, Cleveland, Ohio. He was afflicted with one of those colds that have, thousands of times over, culminated in consumption, when not promptly cured. In this condition he met a friend, a consumptive, whom he had not expected to see alive. The consumptive friend recommended Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the editor's cold, on the ground that he had "helped him wonderfully." It the editor just as wonderfully. "almost instant relief." But letter:

GOOD ROADS.

Admitting the absolute necessity of having and maintaining good macadamized roads, and unless we are totally blind to our best interest we can not do otherwise. The question how best to accomplish this purpose is an easy one if we will bear in mind certain business principles, and this is strictly a business matter—no politics. We must make an honest effort to get honest results, for honesty is the best policy in business as well as anywhere else, and economy is a synonomous term. Cash money for honest goods is true economy. This means no debt and no favors or privileges of any kind whatsoever to anyone. This would give us a clear, honest administration of the whole business and value received for every dollar we spend.

Of course it is the duty of the County Court to represent the people in this matter. It is, likewise, the duty of the people to tell those who represent them what they want them to do. This obligation is as binding on one as the other. If the people don't take enough interest in their own business to instruct their agents, honor and honesty alike demand that they be ever after silent about the matter. One ought to be ashamed to confess that he takes no interest in matters of public concern until they are decided. However these are the ones that stay at home and foolishly criticize.

Now, I have two plan to suggest to the people of Boone county. If they, after due and just consideration, find either worthy of approval, I shall feel amply repaid for my effort; if not, I will have the consciousness of which no one can rob me, that I have done the best I could for the advancement and improvement of my county, as well as contributed my mite toward the progress and prosperity of my native land.

In the first place we must have the means with which to do the work, for the first is to be a cash deal from start to finish.

To obtain the necessary means we should increase the present road tax to 25 cents on the $100. This tax can be collected as heretofore, by the Sheriff, and held by him subject to the orders of the County Court. Every dollar of this money must be used in constructing and maintaining good, macadamized roads. Each magisterial district should receive its prorata and build roads most traveled and needed first. These roads when built should be "free roads," and maintained in good condition through the oversight of each magistrate in his respective district and contract from the County Court.

In locating the roads, or part of road to be constructed, and seeing that the provisions of the contract [illegible] the court for same are honestly carried out, the County Court should appoint a committee of two good business men in each magisterial district—men who are most interested in these roads, to assist the magistrates in their work. All [illegible] so, however, must be according to instructions and subject to the approval of the Court.

It is not necessary nor is it desirable to macadamize every dirt road be macadamized. So before the county undertakes the construction of any particular road, it must be shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the amount of travel and situation of said road justifies the work.

This plan contemplates the cooperation of land owners along the route of any road being built by the county. By these free contributions the work may be much facilitated, and our object of having good roads everywhere sooner attained. Parties even who have not the money may contribute work, which amounts to the same.

While this money is being used [illegible]ed on Macadamizing the roads, the re[illegible]. He was h[illegible]ing mud roads should be kept [illegible] family [illegible] given the contract sary repair by the old plan [illegible] build two regula[illegible]s on the pike. We can then maintain them at small cost. When the proper time arrives we could have this plan crystalized so as to get the best possible results.

Think of these things, my friends and let us see to it that old Boone takes the place to which she is entitled as banner county for good roads as she is for intelligence, thrift and sound democracy.

Some Plain Facts.

Grave errors, injustice, wrongs of greater or less degree, arise from lack of knowledge of the truth, and more frequently from deception.

The most infamous case on record of deception and injustice is the attempt to demonetize silver as a money of final redemption in the United States.

There is no learned judge, skilled lawyer, or court of justice that is capable of reconciling the effort with the constitutional laws that govern the issue of money in this country.

The people have been deceived, officials in power, chosen to administer justice under the laws, have ignored their sworn duty, and given aid to the scheme that has paralyzed industry, reduced property values one-half, and beggared millions.

There is no authority of law, either specific or by inference, by which gold alone is made the only money with which to discharge debts, either public or private. The effort to make it so is unconstitutional and a national calamity.

Plain and ample information, facts, and truth, concerning this almost successful scheme to corner the wealth of the people, is now being printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a newspaper which the combined power of money has failed to muzzle or buy.

THE reports come from Frankfort that Goebel and Bronston are not on as good terms as they were during last winter. They are each political fighters, and there being not enough Republicans in the legislature, to entertain them, they have to amuse themselves with one another.

Great excitement prevails at London over a fight at Hubbardsville. George Hall and John Campbell began fighting with Anderson Baker and John Baker. About 20 shots were fired. Anderson and John Baker were seriously shot. After that several residences were fired, and the whole town is up in arms.

MINISTER DE LOME, of Spain, wrote a friend that President McKinley "is weak and catering to the rabble, and, besides, is a low politician, who desires to leave a door open to me and to stand well with the jingoes of his party." This letter came into possession of the President, and he soon proved strong enough to notify Spain he no longer had any use for her minister, and she must call him home.

Representative Dingley should give Senator Hale, of his State, a little coaching on "prosperity." When Mr. Hale was attempting, as usual, to defend Spain when it had been attacked by other Senators, he incidently mentioned that there were a million idle men in the U. S. Now, surely no sane man would call a county the size of the U. S. prosperous while a million men are idle.

MR. HANNA bought the President to time again last week, on a promise that has been standing for some time, and J. H. Deveaux, a colored politician, has his appointment as Collector of Customs at Savanah, Georgia. Deveauex was promised the office at the St. Louis convention in consideration of Georgia's vote for Mr. McKinley. He delivered the goods, and has drawn his pay over the protest of many prominent Republican politicians.

EDITOR CANALERAS, of Spain, is anxious for a few rounds with the United States. He says: "Our Cuban problem does not lie in the Cuban woods. It is toward the United States that we must look, toward the Whitehouse, McKinley's residence; toward the capitol, that nest of filibusters; toward New York, the headquarters of the famous Cuban-American syndicates; toward the Yankees, in short, that our eyes must be turned with no fear, but with courage and persistency. The enemy we declare is not to be found in the island, but on the continent. We should accustom ourselves to this idea, accordingly get ready for an emergency."

THE Court of Appeals is so far behind with its business that in some cases the administration of justice is actually defeated by the unavoidable delay of a hearing in that Court. When the number of Judges was increased from five to seven it was thought that the Court would be able to catch up with its docket, but the volume of business has been greatly increased since the adoption of the new constitution, and business continues to accumulate much more rapidly than it is possible for the seven judges to dispose of it. Lawyers and litigants are alike annoyed by the delay of appeals, and would be glad were something done to expedite business in the court of last resort. About the only way in which to relieve the court is to increase the amount to be appealed from in the lower courts. There are objections to that plan, but something has to be done.

Senator Elkins is more in demand at dinners in Washington than any other Congressman. He says that he has concluded not to give up more than three nights a week to large dinners hereafter.—Philadelphia Press.

In spite of McKinley, Dingley and all the rest of them, New England capitalists are losing sleep trying to devise some way to get 3 per cent for their money, and New England laborers are losing meals every day trying in vain to find jobs.—Kansas City Times.

Polecats got in the basement of the Cleveland city hall recently, and broke up a meeting of the City Council. And this suggests the possibility that polecats might be found useful in state capitals, and perhaps in Congress, too.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

A "con" man has been working some of the good people of Adair county. The Columbia News says: "A man was in this county recently who is evidently a swindler of the first water. Located in the eastern portion of the county, there are quite a number of Burtons, perhaps fifty voters, not counting the women and children. This slick duck went among them, claiming to be an attorney and stating that he was looking up lost estates, and that he had shortly examined papers, showing that the Burtons of this county were entitled to several millions of dollars in England. He was willing to secure it for them, but some expense money would have to be furnished, as it would require a long trip and some extra legal proceedings before the funds would be paid over. We understand that he gobbled up quite a sum, one man paying him as much as $12."

THINGS are shaping up for trouble with Spain over Cuba.

THE ripper bill prepared especially for Louisville, is having rough journey.

THE seven Covington Councilmen were in jail at Independence yet yesterday at noon.

SOME say it will take no great effort on the part of his friends to induce ex-Gov. Brown to become a candidate for Governor again.

IT is report that Gen. Clay is satisfied that he and his young wife can not live together any longer, and he is preparing to appeal to the court for a divorce. One of his grounds is insanity.

THE President appears to be willing to take advantage of the De Lome episode to swing into line with public opinion on the Cuban question. The condition of affairs in Cuba today are exactly what they were when Mr. McKinley became President, and if he is now justified in interfering in Cuba he was also justified on March 5, 1897.

Comments On The Legislature.

A bill is to be introduced in the Legislature placing a limit on the time of courtship? It will consider a couple married at the end of five years courtship, and if the couple don't receive a license within twenty-four hours after that time both will be branded on the right ear.

On Tuesday, February 22d, Hon. Wm. J. Bryan will visit Frankfort at the request of the Kentucky Legislature. It will be a great day, as all the leaders of the Democratic party will be on hand at that time.

Senator Lindsay has written a letter of thanks to Representative Myers, who endeavored to have the Senator's response to the recent resolutions spread on the records.

A FRENCH naturalist named Gallen has made the discovery at Nimes that if a sparrow is put in the same cage with finches it will soon learn to imitate their song like a mocking bird; also, the chirping of a cricket.

AN agent of an American firm has just been in England, and with but little difficulty obtained orders for 8,000 golf sticks. The American sticks are better made and finished than the English owing to improved machinery and advanced methods of manufacture.

THE prince of Naples is compiling an illustrated work on the coins of Italy, modern and mediaeval, and is anxious to have all persons who possess rare Italian coins communicate with him. He has a collection of 18,000, but there are 30,000 yet to be accounted for.

OFFICIAL reports have been received from Capt. Ray, who was sent to the Klondike country by the war department. Capt. Ray's report is one that will serve to keep people out of the country, as he says of all who have gone there in two years but 7 per cent. have earned a living, the others being destitute.

VANCOUVER is enjoying a boom that presages a bright future and a verification that that city is the future great metropolis of British Colmbia. Every vacant house has been rented, and to meet the demand others are in the course of construction. The 40 hotels in the place are filled with argonauts, and all the boarding-houses have as many guests as can be accommodated.

THAT New York and Philadelphia will eventually be connected by a trolley line seems to be assured. There are electric power lines now in several of the intervening cities and towns, and connections between them could be made in a comparatively short time. There is a line in operation between Jersey City and Newark, and this could be extended to connect with the Rahway and New Brunswick lines, which, in turn, could be carried on to Trenton, and then to Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY has it in his power to have a curious and unequaled record made a part of the United States navy history. Thos. E. Selfridge, a 14-year-old aspirant for naval honors, has made application for a cadetship at Annapolis. Should he be appointed three generations will be borne on the navy register and 80 years intervening between the first and the last entry. Thos. H. Selfridge, grandfather of the youthful applicant, is the sole survivor of all the officers who were in the navy in 1818.

WHEN the big department stores of Denver lately undertook to dictate advertising rates to the newspapers there and stopped advertising in order to enforce their demands the small stores took advantage of the boycott and began to advertise. They got immediate results, one house having to call for police to keep back the crowds, while the large places were practically empty. A little dry goods firm that had never been heard of before turned away a thousand people for want of room to receive them inside. The moral is obvious.

A NET of spiders' webs is being manufactured at the professional school at Antananarivo, and will be used as an experimental covering for a navigable balloon by M. Renard, the head of the French military balloon school at Chalais. The thread of several spiders is wound on winders, the quantity produced by each spider ranging from 15 to 40 yards. The covering of the web is removed by repeated washings, the web made into a thread of eight strands, which, when spun, is easily woven into a gauze very fine but exceedingly strong.

THERE are three canals on this continent of great commercial value. The Sault Ste. Marie canal and the Erie canal each carry more freight annually than the Suez, and the Chicago Drainage, when completed as a ship canal, will probably surpass either one of them. The Suez canal is 99 miles long and cost about $90,000,000. The Erie canal is 365 miles long, but it is uncertain what it actually cost for construction. The North Sea-Baltic canal is 61 miles long, and cost $40,000,000. The Chicago Drainage canal is 35 miles long and cost $30,000,000.

MR. JUSTICE BREWER tells some curious coincidents concerning the members of the United States supreme court. The judges are seated on the bench on either side of the chief justice, in the order of the date of their appointments, the senior at the right, the second at the left, and so on. Before the retirement of Justice Field, on the right of the chief justice were seated the three colors, Justices Gray, Brown and White. None of the associates who sat on the right of the chief justice had children. Every associate who sat upon the left had a large family.

NEW YORK FIRE.

Seven-Story Office Building Completely Destroyed—The Flames Also Consumed a Four-Story Building Adjoining.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Levi P. Morton's seven-story office building, with frontages on Nassau and Ann streets, and known as the Nassau Chambers building, was completely destroyed by fire Friday night. The firemen had a hard battle, and for three hours there was every prospect of a great conflagration. Every fire company in the city from Fifty-ninth street to the Battery was called out.

The Derby Desk Co. occupied the Nassau and Ann street stores, and the basement of the building where the fire originated was occupied by the Herald Cycle Co.

From the Nassau side the fire spread to the four-story building adjoining and the clothing store of Maduro Bros. on the ground floor was quickly in flames.

The loss here also will be practically complete.

Several firemen were badly cut by flying glass and debris but none seriously injured.

The Murray stationary store occupied a small frontage adjoining the Derby Desk company on Nassau street, and there is very little if anything left.

The upper part of the Nassau Chambers was occupied by lawyers and as offices of a number of manufacturing concerns. All of them suffered severely from the fire.

The Bennett building at the southwest corner of Nassau and Ann streets, caught fire several times but was extinguished.

The loss at present is estimated at half a million, the larger share of which will be borne by the Morton interests, although it was stated they are well insured.

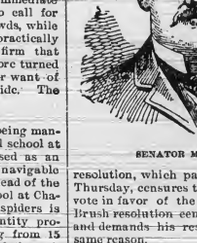
The Derby Desk Co. and the Maduro Bros. are mentioned as the next heavy losers.

The World Saturday morning states that the loss from all sources will probably reach $1,000,000.

SPANISH OFFICERS

Visited the French Admiral on Board the Cruiser Duboudieu at Havana.

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—Gen. Parrado, Rr. Adm. Landero and the captain of the port visited the French admiral Friday on board the cruiser Duboudieu, which sails for New Orleans. Rr. Adm. Landero visited Capt. Sigsbee on board the battleship Maine Friday afternoon.



Capt. Sigsbee, accompanied by Consul General Lee, paid an official visit to Capt. Gen. Blanco Friday and were most cordially received and entertained. At 10 o'clock Saturday morning Gen. Solano returned the visit of the American captain and consul general in the name of Capt. Gen. Blanco on board the Maine. It is understood that after the visit the captain general referred in very flattering terms to the plans of the American warship.

It is explained in Spanish circles that the captain general, as the first person in authority in Cuba, can not visit any war ship, but "as proof of the sympathy he feels for Capt. Sigsbee and the United States government" the captain general will call as a private person upon Capt. Sigsbee on board the Maine. The Spanish steamer Alfonso II. sailed Friday for Spain with 97 officers and 766 soldiers on board.

The torpedo boat Cushing, with stores for the Maine, has arrived at this port.

Frozen to Death in Chilcoot Pass.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 12.—According to news from Alaska by the City of Topeka, one of the small steamers plying between Juneau and Skaguay, brought word just as the Topeka sailed that five men had been frozen to death on the Chilkoot Pass and three others brought to Dyea, although names or places were not yet obtainable.

De Lome's Successor.

MADRID, Feb. 12.—It is learned that Senor De Lome's successor will be Senor Louis Polo Bernabe, son of Vice Adm. Polo, who formerly represented Spain in the United States. Senor Bernabe is now engaged in a special department of the foreign minister, dealing with commercial matters and consulates.

HONOLULU, Feb. 3, via San Francisco, Feb. 12.—The engagement is announced of a marriage that has been arranged between Prince David Kawanankoa and Princess Kaiulani. The formal betrothal merely awaits the signature to certain deeds of family settlement of Dowager Queen Kapiolani.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., Feb. 12.—Doc Chapman, white, and Ambrose Steven son, colored, were sent to the penitentiary for two years each Friday for murder.

KANSAS PACIFIC.

No Postponement of the Sale of the Railroad.

Representatives of the Reorganization Committee Offer to Increase

The Committee's Bid to an Amount Equal to the Principal of the Government's Indebtedness—Sale Will, Therefore, Take Place February 16, 17, 18.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 14.—There will be no postponement of the sale of the Kansas Pacific railway set for February 16, 17 and 18, and ex-Gov. George Hoadly, of New York, special counsel for the government in the Union Pacific cases, arrived in St. Louis Friday for the purpose of asking the United States district court to postpone the sale and allow the government the privilege of redeeming the claims of the first mortgage bondholders on the eastern and middle divisions. He was also to ask for the appointment of a receiver.

By this means it was expected that the government would be able to obtain a better price than the reorganization committee had offered.

Mr. Hoadley was met here by attorneys representing the reorganization committee and the stockholders. They all held a conference. The representatives of the reorganization committee offered to increase the committee's bid to an amount equal to the principal of the government's indebtedness. The offer was accepted. The gentlemen appeared before Judge Sanborn in chambers Saturday, and announced that they had reached an agreement. The sale will therefore be good.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Attorney General Griggs received a dispatch from Judge Hoadley, the government's legal representative in the matter of the sale of the Kansas Pacific railroad, stating that an arrangement had been effected by which the Union Pacific reorganization committee would pay the principal of the government's lien in full.

OPERA HOUSE

At Moline, Ill., With Contents, Totally Destroyed by Fire.

MOLINE, Ill., Feb. 14.—The Auditorium opera house, with its contents, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday evening. Adjoining store buildings also suffered from fire and water. The total loss is estimated at $80,000. The flames cut off egress from the Auditorium and there were several thrilling rescues by ropes and ladders. The building contained the large plant of the Porter Printing Co., Electric Laundry, Commercial Heating Plant, Postal Telegraph Co., etc. Arnold's "Funmakers" troupe lost their entire outfit. The loss is covered by insurance.

Half a dozen persons were in the dormitories of the building and narrowly escaped burning to death, all the stairways having been burned. Two men slid down a rope from the third floor and two women and two men were rescued by means of ladders. The building was a three-story brick and is a total loss.

Fire in an Orphan Asylum.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 14.—Fire Sunday evening broke out in the St. Aemillianus orphan asylum at St. Francis, a suburb of this city, where 300 children are quartered. Most of the children were playing outside at the time while the remainder were scattered in the different corridors of the building. Many of the children took fright and ran away and late Sunday night several were rounded up in police stations in different sections of the city. Those in the building were marshalled out in safety. The damage to the structure was small.

Liabilities Over a Million.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 14.—A statement of the liabilities of Henry Sherry, the lumberman who failed some time ago, and the six companies in which he was interested, gives the amount as $1,250,000, with nominal assets at $700,000. Mr. Sherry's personal liabilities are $628,000, and in addition to this he has endorsed the paper of his corporations for $580,000 more. The assets to meet this are now estimated to be worth $350,000.

Charged With Murder.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The mangled body of William Murray, of Waverly, was found on the Lehigh railroad tracks between Athens and Sayre, Pa., early Sunday morning. Several knife wounds, which surgeons say caused his death, were found on the body. William Wolf, who was seen with bloody hands near where the body was found, is held in jail to await the result of the inquest. He tells conflicting stories.

The Wheeling Ordered to Skaguay.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 14.—A letter received here from Sitka, Alaska, states that the gunboat Wheeling, which is stationed there, has been ordered to Skaguay.

United States Vessels at Lisbon.

LISBON, Feb. 14.—The United States cruiser San Francisco and the gunboat Bancroft have arrived here and have joined the United States gunboat Helena.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—SENATE—An amendment of more than ordinary importance and significance at this time was proposed in the senate Monday by Mr. Morgan (Ala.) to the resolution offered a few days ago by Mr. White (Cal.). Mr. White's resolution declared that it was the right of the people of Hawaii to maintain their own form of government and the United States ought in no wise to interfere with it. Mr. Morgan's amendment provides distinctly for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands declaring that the present government had a right to make such cession to this country.

HOUSE—The house passed the military academy appropriation bill Monday, with only one important amendment. The debate on the measure was desultory and touched a variety of political topics. As passed, the bill carried $463,840, being $26,032 less than the amount carried by the current law. The bill to limit the period for the refunding of the certificates of deposits of 1879 to December 31, 1899, was passed. Tuesday the house will take up the Aldrich-Plowman contested election case.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—SENATE—Three propositions were presented to the senate for the relief of the Cuban insurgents. Mr. Allen (Neb.) offered as an amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill a resolution recognizing the belligerency of the insurgents, and said that he hoped thus to afford the senate an opportunity to vote on that proposition. Mr. Cannon (Utah) offered a resolution urging the president to notify the kingdom of Spain that if it did not recognize the independence of the Cuban republic before March 4, 1898, the United States would recognize the belligerency of the Cubans and within 90 days thereafter would assert the independence of the Cuban republic. Mr. Mason (Ill.) followed with a resolution requesting the president to notify Spain that the Cuban war must come to an end and declare the intention of the United States to restore and maintain peace on the Island of Cuba. The right of Hon. Reed Smoot to a seat in the senate from Oregon occupied the senate's attention for two hours. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in executive session.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday entered upon the consideration of the Aldrich-Plowman contested election case from the Fourth Alabama district. The majority of the committee reported in favor of seating the republican contestant on the ground of the conspiracy, an allegation vigorously denied by the democratic minority. Mr. Plowman's plurality on the face of the returns was 2,967. The majority revised the figures so as to give Aldrich a plurality of 342. Two speeches were made Tuesday on each side; by Messrs. Taylor (O.) and Mann (Ill.), and by Messrs. Fox (Miss.) and Settle (Kan.), for the minority. It is expected that a vote will be reached Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—SENATE—For more than three hours Wednesday the senate chamber rang with eloquent appeals in behalf of the Cuban insurgents. Announced speeches were delivered by Mr. Cannon (Utah) and Mr. Mason (Ill.) in advocacy of the adoption of resolutions which they presented to the senate Tuesday. Following Mr. Cannon's speech, Mr. Hale (Me.) addressed the senate briefly, urging the senate to uphold the policy of the administration. He pointed out that much had already been accomplished by President McKinley not only for the cause of peace on the Island, but also for the protection of Americans and American interests, and for the relief of the reconcentrados and pacificos. He maintained that it would not be good policy by the adoption of any drastic declaration to place the administration in leading strings that might interfere with the carrying into effect of a defined policy. Mr. Mason followed Mr. Hale in a long and at times fiery speech in which he urged the president immediately to intervene in the Cuban war and end the struggle which on both sides had become so brutal as to shock the sensibilities of the civilized world. He did not believe war would result from intervention, but thought if it should it would be a war of glory and of honor.

HOUSE—The republican majority was increased Wednesday from 40 to 50, when the house by a vote of 143 to 112 unseated Mr. Plowman (dem., Ala.) and gave the seat to Mr. Aldrich (rep.). This was the first contested election case decided by the present house against the sitting member. Those who spoke on the case Wednesday were Messrs. Settle (dem., Ky.), Hamilton (rep., Mich.) Bartlett (dem., Ga.), and Taylor (rep., O.).

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—SENATE—During almost the entire session of the senate Thursday the Indian appropriation bill was under discussion. The reading of the bill was completed and all of the committee amendments were adopted. Subsequently several amendments of a minor character were attached to the measure. Mr. Allen (Neb.) enlivened the proceedings a few minutes before adjournment by making an attack upon Speaker Reed for preventing the enactment, as the Nebraska senator declared, of meritorious legislation, sent to the house of representatives by the senate. He denounced the speaker's action in this regard as "disgrace" to congress and to the American people. When a point of order was made against him for the use of improper language concerning the other branch of congress, Mr. Allen said he was stating only the truth and that he was responsible here or elsewhere at any time for his statement.

HOUSE—The house was in a very bad temper Thursday and the whole session was consumed in filibustering against two bills of minor importance, one to issue a duplicate check and the other to make Rockland, Me., a sub port of entry. Neither got further than the engrossment and third reading. The trouble arose over the enforcement of the rule against the discussion of irrelevant subjects when Mr. Handy (dem., Del.) attempted to reply to the floor during the consideration of those bills to a letter recently written by Thomas F. Bayard, secretary of state under the Cleveland administration, in denunciation of the free silver democracy. Roll call followed roll call all day long and partisan feeling reached a high pitch. Finally when it became evident that no progress could be made with the bills presented, an adjournment was taken until Monday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—SENATE—Consideration of the Indian appropriation bill was resumed by the senate Friday and after being amended to some extent the measure was passed. The most important amendment to the bill was that offered by Mr. Pettigrew (S. D.) which, if finally enacted, will restore the free homestead law so far as it relates to Indian lands ceded to the United States for which lands the settlers have been obliged to pay the purchase price paid to the Indians. The bill carries appropriations aggregating nearly $8,000,000.

HOUSE—Not in session.

Barrios' Cabinet Resigns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—The special to the Examiner from Guatemala Friday morning announces that President Barrios' cabinet has resigned. Everything quiet and peace prevails. Antonio Barrios, son of the late president and a graduate of West Point, has been appointed minister of public works; Francisco Angucreno, minister of government and foreign affairs; Domingel Morales, minister of public instruction and Rafael Salavar, minister of finance.

The Von Der Ahe Case.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 12.—At a special session of the United States court at 4:45 o'clock Friday afternoon, Judge Buffington decided that Chris Von der Ahe must remain in charge of Detective Bendel, who abducted him from St. Louis. Von der Ahe will take an appeal.

Shot Herself.

FRANKFORT, Ind., Feb. 12.—Mrs. John Gladden, of Clark's Hill, committed suicide by shooting herself in the heart early Friday morning. The deed was done in a moment of mental derangement.

CONTRADICTORY.

A Dispatch From Madrid Says That Spain Regrets

The Dupuy De Lome Letter Incident and Censures the Spanish Minister.

Another Dispatch Says That Spain Does Not Disavow Responsibility for the Utterances of De Lome and Does Not Consider a Disclaimer Necessary.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—A dispatch to the World from Madrid says:

A formal statement of regret and censure of Dupuy De Lome's conduct, coupled with an expression of sincere desire that the Canojas letter incident shall not impair the present friendly relations between the governments of Spain and the United States or interrupt the negotiations for a commercial treaty, will be made by Foreign Minister Gullon immediately following the gazetting of the royal decree accepting Senor De Lome's resignation and appointing his successor as Spain's representative at Washington.

On the other hand, the Washington correspondent of the World says that Spain has not disavowed responsibility for the utterances of Senor De Lome and does not consider that any disclaimer of that character is necessary. From Spain's point of view the incident is closed. Senor De Lome's reflections upon the president and the American people, but as to his declaration that autonomy is a mockery and reciprocity a fraud, both is the unsatisfactory information contained in the long expected statement from Mr. Woodford, received late Saturday night.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A third message has been sent to Minister Woodford directing him to make a peremptory demand upon the Spanish government for a disavowal of the personal and political points of De Lome's letter. Gen. Woodford is sharply rebuked for his seeming indifference, and the suggestion is conveyed through him to Premier Sagasta that unless the De Lome incident is closed by Tuesday next the United States will suspend diplomatic relations with Spain.

CUBAN EXPEDITION

Sails From a Point on Pease River With Arms and Ammunition.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 14.—A special to the Times Union and Citizen from Tampa, Fla., says:

Almost under the nose of Edward Gaylor, superintendent of Pinkerton's Spanish spies, a large Cuban expedition left Tampa Saturday night and Sunday night sailed from a point on Pease river.

The men, about 70 in number, walked through the streets of Tampa about 2 o'clock Sunday morning and boarded a special train, which quickly bore them to a point near where they were to embark, and there they remained in hiding until Sunday night, when a tug took them out to the steamer which bore them away to Cuba. Col. Emilio Nunez being in charge of the steamer. It is said Gen. Sanguilly is the real commander and color is given this rumor by the fact that when the men left here they were in charge of Col. Luchuga, who was first lieutenant of the personal staff selected by Sanguilly when he failed to get away from Jacksonville. Superintendent Gaylor, his son and another Pinkerton man have been here looking for Sanguilly, they believing he was somewhere near. It is alleged that the Cubans have sent Sanguilly away on this trip to get rid of him in the United States. The detectives are totally ignorant of the departure of this expedition.

It is understood 5,000 rifles, 4,000 pounds of dynamite, 200,000 rounds of cartridges and a large lot of supplies made up the cargo.

SEVEN VICTIMS

Of the Big Pittsburgh Fire Taken From the Ruins Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 14.—Seven bodies were taken from the ruins of Wednesday night's fire Saturday. Six were identified as follows:

William Finch, George Nouman, William Doran, Prof. Jas. Moxon, David B. Wickerty, D. A. Geary.

All the bodies were terribly bruised and mangled, and were found lying close together, and the body of Doran was found lying across that of Prof. Moxon.

The finding of the seven bodies makes the number of known victims 18, and there is no doubt that others will be found as the search for the dead progresses.

More Than a Mile a Minute.

BUFFALO, N. Y. Feb. 14.—New York to Buffalo, 425 miles in 420 minutes, actual running time, was the record made over the Erie railroad Sunday by a special newspaper train. The train left Jersey City at 8:18 o'clock and reached Buffalo at 10:48 Sunday morning. In stops 24 minutes was lost. The train was made up of engine and three baggage cars. The 95 miles between Hornellsville and Buffalo were covered in 85 minutes. Next Sunday an effort is to be made to improve on this fast run.

COMMON SENSE RELIGION.

It is a Requisite to the Happiness of the World's Population.

We Should Not Sigh for the Glory of Great Men—Where One is Noticed Thousands Remain in the Back Ground—Sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was Romans xvi., 14, 15: "Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, Philologus and Julia."

Matthew Henry, Albert Barnes, Adam Clark, Thomas Scott and all the commentators pass by these verses without any especial remark. The other 20 people mentioned in the chapter were distinguished for something, and were therefore discussed by the illustrious expositors; but nothing is said about Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, Philologus and Julia. Where were they born? No one one knows. When did they die? There is no record of their decease. For what were they distinguished? Absolutely nothing. or the trait of character would have been brought out by the apostle. If they had been very intrepid, or opulent, or hirsute, or musical of cadence, or crass of style, or in any wise anomalous, that feature would have been caught by the apostolic camera. But they were good people, because Paul sends to them his high Christian regards. They were ordinary people, moving in ordinary sphere, attending to ordinary duty, and meeting ordinary responsibilities.

What the world wants is a religion for ordinary people. If there be in the United States 70,000,000 people, there are certainly not more than 1,000,000 extraordinary; and then there are 69,000,000 ordinary, and we do well to turn our backs for a little while upon the distinguished and conspicuous people of the Bible and consider in our text the seven ordinary. We spend too much of our time in twisting garlands for remarkables, and building thrones for magnates, and sculpturing warriors, and apotheosizing philanthropists. The rank and file of the Lord's soldiery need especial help.

The vast majority of people will never lead an army, will never write a state constitution, will never electrify a senate, will never make an important invention, will never introduce a new philosophy, will never decide the fate of a nation. You do not expect to, you do not want to. You will not be a Moses to lead a nation out of bondage. You will not be a Joshua to prolong the daylight until you can shut five kings in a cavern. You will not be a St. John to unroll an Apocalypse. You will not be a Paul to preside over an apostolic college. You will not be a Mary to mother a Christ. You will more probably be Asyncritus, or Phlegon, or Hermas, or Patrobas, or Hermes, or Philologus, or Julia.

Many of you are women at the head of households. Every morning you plan for the day. The culinary department of the household is in your dominion. You decide all questions of diet. All the sanitary regulations of your house are under your supervision. To regulate the food, and the apparel, and the habits, and decide the thousand questions of home life is a tax upon brain and nerve and general health absolutely appalling, if there be no divine alleviation.

It does not help you much to be told that Elizabeth Fry did wonderful things amid the criminals at Newgate. It does not help you much to be told that Mrs. Judson was very brave among the Bornesian cannibals. It does not help you very much to be told that Florence Nightingale was very kind to the wounded in the Crimea. It would be better for me to tell you that the Divine friend of Mary and Martha is your friend, and that He sees all the annoyances and disappointments and abrasions and exasperations of an ordinary housekeeper from morning till night, and from the first day of the year until the last day of the year, and at your call He is ready with help and re-enforcement.

They who provide the food of the world decide the health of the world. You have only to go on some errand amid the taverns and the hotels of the United States and Great Britain to appreciate the fact that a vast multitude of the human race are slaughtered by incompetent cookery. Though a young woman may have taken lessons in music, and may have taken lessons in painting, and lessons in astronomy, she is not well educated unless she has taken lessons in dough! They who decide the apparel of the world, and the food of the world, decide the endurance of the world.

An unthinking man may consider it a matter of little importance—the cares of the household and the economies of domestic life—but I tell you the earth is strewn with the martyrs of kitchen and nursery. The health-shattered womanhood of America cries out for a God who can help ordinary women in the ordinary duties of housekeeping. The wearing, grinding, unappreciated work goes on, but the same Christ who stood on the bank of Galilee in the early morning and kindled the fire and had the fish already cleaned and broiling when the sportsmen stepped ashore, chilled and hungry, will help every woman to prepare breakfast, whether by her own hand, or the hand of her hired help. The God who made indestructible eulogy of Hannah, who made a coat for Samuel, her son, and carried it to the temple every year, will help every woman in preparing the family wardrobe. The God who opens the Bible with the story of Abraham's entertainment by the three angels on the plains of Mamre, will help every woman to provide hospitality, however rare and embarrassing. It is high time that some of the attention we have been giving to the remarkable women of the Bible—remarkable for their virtue, or their want of it, or remarkable for their deeds—Deborah and Jezebel, and Herodias and Athalia, and Dorcas and the Marys, excellent and abandoned—it is high time some of the attention we have been giving to these conspicuous women of the Bible be given to Julia, an ordinary woman, amid ordinary circumstances, attending to ordinary duties, and meeting ordinary responsibilities.

Then there are all the ordinary business men. They need divine and Christian help. When we begin to talk about business life we shoot right off and talk about men who did business on a large scale, and who sold millions of dollars of goods a year; and the vast majority of business men do not sell a million dollars of goods, nor half a million, nor a quarter of a million, nor the eighth part of a million. Put all the business men of our cities, towns, villages and neighborhoods side by side, and you will find they sell less than a hundred thousand dollars' worth of [illegible].

All these men in ordinary business life want divine help. You see how the wrinkles are printing on the countenance the story of worriment and care. You can not tell how old a business man is by looking at him. Gray hairs at 30. A man 45 with the stoop of a nonagenarian. No time to attend to improved dentistry, the grinders cease because they are few. Actually dying of old age at 40 or 50, when they ought to be at the meridian. Many of these business men have bodies like a neglected clock to which you come, and when you wind it up, it begins to roar, and then the hands start around very rapidly, and then the clock strikes five or ten, or forty, and strikes without any sense, and then suddenly stops. So is the body of that worn-out man. It is a neglected clock, and though by some summer recreation it may be wound up, still the machinery is all out of gear. The hands turn around with a velocity that excites the astonishment of the world. Men can not understand the wonderful activity, and there is a roar and a buzz, and a rattle about these disordered lives, and they strike 10 when they ought to strike six, and they strike 40 when they ought to strike nothing, and suddenly they stop. Post mortem examination reveals the fact that all the springs, and pivots, and weights, and entire wheels of health are completely deranged. The human clock is simply run down. And at the time when the steady hand ought to be pointing to the industrious hours on a clear and sunlit dial, the whole machinery of body, mind and earthly capacity stops forever. Oak Hill and Greenwood have thousands of business men who died of old age at 30, 35, 40, 45.

Now, what they want is grace—divine grace for ordinary business men, men who are harnessed from morn to night and all the days of their life—harnessed in business. Not grace to lose a hundred thousand, but grace to lose $10. Not grace to supervise 250 employes in a factory, but grace to supervise the bookkeeper, and two salesmen, and the small boy that sweeps out the store. Grace to invest not $80,000 of net profit, but the $2,500 of clear gain. Grace not to endure the loss of a whole shipload of spices from the Indies, but grace to endure the loss of a paper of collars from the leakage of a displaced shingle on a poor roof. Grace not to endure the tardiness of the American congress in passing a necessary law, but grace to endure the tardiness of an errand boy stopping to play marbles when he ought deliver the goods. Such grace as thousands of business men have to-day—keeping them tranquil, whether goods sell or do not sell, whether customers pay or do not pay, whether tariff is up or tariff is down, whether the crops are luxuriant or a dead failure—calm in all circumstances, and amid all vicissitudes. That is the kind of grace we want.

Millions of men want it, and they may have it for the asking. Some hero or heroine comes to town, and as the procession passes through the street the business men come out, stand on tiptoe on their store step and look at some one who in Arctic clime, or in ocean storm, or in day of battle, or in hospital agonies did the brave thing, not realizing that they, the enthusiastic spectators, have gone through trials in business life that are just as great before God. There are men who have gone through freezing Arctics and burning torrids, and awful Maremgoes of experiences without moving five miles from their doorstep.

Now, what ordinary business men need is to realize that they have the friendship of that Christ who looked after the religious interests of Mary, thew, the custom house clerk, and helped Lydia, of Thyatira, to sell the dry goods, and who opened a bakery and fish market in the wilderness of Asa Miuor to feed the 7,000 who had come out on a religious picnic, and who counts the hairs of your head with as much particularity as though they were the minues of a coronation, and who took the trouble to stoop down with his finger writing on the ground, although the first shuffle of feet obliterated the divine calligraphy, and who knows just how many locusts there were in the Egyptian plague, and knew just how many ravens were necessary to supply Elijah's pantry by the brook of Cherith, and who, as floral commander, leads forth all the regiments of primroses, foxgloves, daffodils, hyacinths and lilies, which pitch their tents of beauty and kindle their camp fires of color all around the hemisphere—that that Christ and that God knows the most affairs of your business life, and, however incousiderable, understanding all the affairs of that woman who keeps a thread-and needle store as well as the affairs of a Rothschild and a Baring.

Then there are all the ordinary farmers. We talk about agricultural life, and we immediately shoot off to talk about Cincinnatus, the patrician, who went from the plow to a high position, and after he got through the dictatorship in 21 days went back again to the plow. What encouragement is that to ordinary farmers? The vast majority of them—none of them will be patricians. Perhaps none of them will be senators. If any of them have dictatorships it will be over forty or fifty or a hundred acres of the old homestead. What these men want is grace to keep their patience while plowing with balky oxen, and to keep cheerful amid the drought that destroys the corn crop, and that enables them to restore the garden the day after the neighbor's cattle have broken in and trampled out the strawberry bed, and gone through the Lima bean patch and eaten up the sweet corn in such large quantities that they must be kept from the water lest they swell up and die.

Grace in catching weather that enables them, without imprecation, to spread out the hay the third time, although again, and again, and again, it has been almost ready for the mow. A grace to doctor the cow with a hollow horn, and the sheep with the foot rot, and the horse with the distemper, and to compel the unwilling acres to yield a livelihood for the family, and schooling for the children and little extras to help the older boy in business, and something for the daughter's wedding outfit, and a little surplus for the time when the ankles will get stiff with age, and the breath will be a little short, and the swinging of the cradle through the hot harvest field will bring on the old man's vertigo. Better close up about Methuselah. I know five hundred farmers just as noble as he was. What they want is grace that they have the friendship of that Christ who often drew his smiles from the farmer's life, as when he said: "A sower went forth to sow," as when he built his best parable out of the scene of a farmer boy coming back from his wanderings, and the old farmhouse shook that night with rural jubilee; and who compared himself to a lamb in the pasture field, and who said that the eternal God is a farmer, declaring: "My Father is the husbandman."

Those stonemasons do not want to hear about Christopher Wren, the architect who built St. Paul's cathedral. It would be better to tell them how to carry the hod of brick up the ladder without slipping, and how on a cold morning with the trowel to smooth off the mortar and keep cheerful, and how to be thankful to God for the plain food taken from the pail by the roadside. Carpenters standing amid the adze, and the bit, and the plane, and the broadax, need to be told that Christ was a carpenter, and with his own hand wielding saw and hammer.

Oh, this is a tired world, and it is an overworked world, and it is an underfed world, and it is a wrung-out world, and men and women need to know that there is rest and recuperation in God and in that religion which was not so much intended for extraordinary people as for ordinary people, because there are more of them.

The leaning profession has had its Abercrombies, and its Abernethys, and its Valentine Motts, and its William Parkers; but the ordinary physicians to do the most of the world's medicining, and they need to understand that while taking diagnosis or prognosis, or writing prescriptions, or compounding medicament, or holding the delicate pulse of a dying child, they may have the presence and the dictation of the Almighty Doctor, who took the case of the [illegible] and after he had torn off his garments in foaming dementia, clothed him again, body and mind, and who lifted the woman who for 18 years had been almost double with the rheumatism into graceful stature, and who turned the scabs of leprosy into rubicund complexion, and who rubbed the numbness out of paralysis, and who swung wide open the closed windows of hereditary or accidental blindness, until the morning light came streaming through the fleshy casements, and who knows all the diseases, and all the remedies, and all the herbs, and all the catholicons, and is monarch of pharmacy and therapuetics, and who has sent out 10,000 doctors of whom the world makes no record, but to prove that they are angels of mercy. I invoke the thousands of men whose ailments they have assuaged, and the thousands of women to whom in crises of pain they have been next to God in God in benefaction.

Come now, let us have a religion for ordinary people in professions, in occupations, in agriculture, in the household, in merchandis, in everything. I salute across the centuries Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, Philologus and Julia.

First of all, if you feel that you are ordinary, thank God that you are not extraordinary. I am tired and sick, and bored almost to death with extraordinary people. They take all their time to tell us how very extraordinary they really are. You know as well as I do my brother and sister, that the most of the useful work of the world is done by unpretentious people who toil right on—by people who do not get much approval, and no one seems to say: "That is well done." Phenomena are of but little use. Things that are exceptional can not be depended on. Better trust the smallest planet that swings in its orbit than ten comets shooting this way and that, imperiling the longevity of worlds attending to their own business. For steady illumination better is a lamp than a rocket.

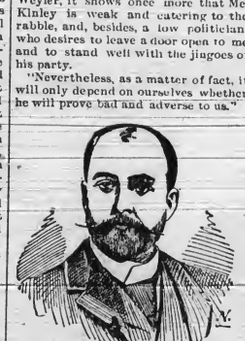
Then, if you feel that you are ordinary, remember that your position invites the less attack. Conspicuous people—how they have to take it! How they are misrepresented, and abused, and shot at! The higher the horns of a roebuck the easier to strike him down. What a delicious thing it must be to be a candidate for governor of a state or president of the United States. It must be so soothing to the nerves! It must pour into the soul of a candidate such a sense of security when he reads the blessed newspapers!

THE gold contained in the medals, vessels, chains and other objects preserved in the nation would make more gold coin than the whole of the present European circulation.

IN the yard of a Mexican prison the governor has caused a phonograph to be placed, which repeats to convicts the charges made against them in the voices of their victims.

THE PASSPORTS

Of Minister De Lome Returned to Him by President McKinley.



His Recall Was Also Suggested by the American Government—First Secretary Du Bose Will Act in His Stead Until a Successor is Appointed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Rumor is at work here about an alleged letter said to have been written by the Spanish minister in Washington, severely criticising President McKinley. It is said that De Lome wrote to Senor Jose Canalejas, of the Madrid Heraldo, characterizing our chief executive as a weak, coarse and low politician.

Following are some extracts from the alleged communication:

"Besides the natural and inevitable coarseness with which he (McKinley) repeats all that the press has said of Weyler, it shows once more that McKinley is weak and catering to the rabble, and, besides, a low politician, who desires to leave a door open to me and to stand well with the jingoes of his party.

"Nevertheless, as a matter of fact, it will only depend on ourselves whether he will prove bad and adverse to us."

SENOR DUPUY DE LOME.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Few were the senators who had not read the letter criticising this country and the present administration attributed to Minister Dupuy De Lome when the senate met Wednesday, but there were comparatively few of them willing to express an opinion upon it.

"If is a very serious matter," said Senator Gray, of the committee on foreign relations, "too serious indeed to discuss carelessly. Mr. De Lome is entitled to a suspension of judgment until the responsibility is more definitely determined than at present."

"It it is true," said Senator Foraker, "also a member of the foreign relations committee, "Mr. De Lome ought to be immediately given his passports."

Senator Spooner: "If true, it is a gross attack and most astounding, but I can not discuss it in view of the doubt as to its genuineness."

Senator Hawley: "It was a matter for the state department to deal with, and does not for the present come within the domain of congress. I have no doubt it will be properly handled by the department."

Senator Stewart: "The sentiment expressed is in a line with Spain's policy and disposition. We do everything to conciliate the spaniards; they reciprocate by despising us."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Late Wednesday the following statement as to its action in the case of the Spanish minister, Senor Dupuy De Lome, who wrote a letter to Senor Canalejas sharply criticising President McKinley, was made public by the state department:

Minister De Lome does not deny writing the letter. This department has communicated with Gen. Woodford on the subject. Until that communication reaches the Spanish government it would be improper to in any manner state the contents of the message to Gen. Woodford.

Senor De Lome received a number of callers during the day and to those sustaining a close relation to him he did not question the authenticity of the letter, making it clear that he would scorn the subterfuge of a denial for purposes of expediency. The only question raised was as to accuracy of translation, for the published translations gave a severity to some of the expressions on the president which were regarded as designed to magnify the actual statements.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—Special dispatches from Washington received in this city state that Minister De Lome cabled his resignation to the Spanish government once Tuesday and twice Wednesday, but up to a late hour he had received no reply from Madrid.

MADRID, Feb. 11.—At a meeting of the Spanish cabinet held Thursday under the presidency of the queen regent, the minister for foreign affairs, Senor Gullon, read a dispatch from Senor Dupuy De Lome, the Spanish minister at Washington, saying that the published letter to Senor Canalejas was written by him, and his position consequently had become untenable, and he begged the government to accept his resignation. The cabinet decided to accept the resignation of Senor Dupuy De Lome and the ministers subsequently met and decided to telegraph to Senor De Lome accepting his resignation and entrusting the first secretary with the conduct of the current affairs of the legation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Minister De Lome's resignation, twice cabled to Madrid, has been accepted.

Shortly after noon Thursday President McKinley sent De Lome his passports.

Premier Sagasta, when called upon by Minister Woodford, gave his word that De Lome would be recalled at once.

Spain has thus humiliated her representative to emphasize that government's utter disavowal of the sentiments so freely expressed in the personal correspondence to Canalejas.

Gen. Woodford was informed by cable from Judge Day Wednesday, that nothing less would satisfy the dignity of this government. It was intimated that if De Lome were not promptly dismissed by his own superior his passport would be forthwith delivered to him and he would be publicly warned to expedite his departure with the least reasonable delay, or this government would renounce any responsibility for his safety.

In view of the news from Madrid of the acceptance of the resignation of the Spanish minister, it may be stated that our government is not disposed to split hairs over the method of the offending minister's retirement. In other words, it is not concerned as to whether he resigns or is recalled, so long as he leaves the capital. It is true that the exact language of the message sent by the state department to Mr. Woodford indicated the president's desire that the minister be recalled, but the language was used as the most proper for such an occasion and must not be taken to mean that the president is disposed to go further than is necessary in the pursuit of Mr. Dupuy De Lome, now no longer an official of the Spanish government representing it at Washington, but simply a Spanish citizen lingering at the capital only long enough to pack up and remove his effects.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—As the representative of Spain, Senor Don Juan Du Bose called at noon Friday at the state department and presented in writing the notification of the Spanish government that the resignation of Senor Enrique Dupuy De Lome had been accepted, and that Senor Du Bose was authorized to represent his government in charge d'affaires ad interim. The notification was purely formal, giving the facts of transfer, without mention of the incident leading up to it, having assumed his duties. Mr. Du Bose took occasion to pay a call of respect to the state department authorities. He was not accompanied by Senor De Lome who, with this official act, becomes a private citizen of Spain, temporarily sojourning in this country. The incident is regarded as closed so far as Spain is concerned. How the United States will regard it the legation does not know, of course. The acceptance of the minister's resignation constitutes what should be an apology, and, beyond this, so far as present instructions go there will be no further formalities beyond the departure of Senor De Lome within the next few days. His leave will be quiet, and devoid of any official or public character. Appreciating the delicacy of the situation he has withdrawn invitations of a social character. The day of his departure from Washington has not been fixed, but it will be early next week. He will sail from the United States by the trans-Atlantic line, leaving the middle of the week. As far as possible, however, the late minister desires to occupy a purely private attitude and to be free from any public attention which has been inseparable from his position as minister of Spain.

This government says it is done with De Lome. He is regarded as a dead duck, unworthy of future notice and altogether beneath contempt. But Spain must give a prompt account of herself, and no evasive diplomatic phrases will be considered satisfactory. An absolute disclaimer of her late representative's vulgar opinions of the American chief executive must be spontaneously forthcoming or Woodford will deliver an ultimatum calling for an apology.

The United States recognizes that the wily De Lome was quicker with his resignation than could have been foreseen, and that Spain having promptly accepted the resignation and relegated him to private life had no further authority over him at the time Gen. Woodford presented the demand for his immediate recall in disgrace.

Now Sagasta will have a reasonable time to be moved by his sense of common decency.

It was thought he would hasten to assure Gen. Woodford that Spain had no sympathy with De Lome's confidential comments, or, at least, that his nation deprecated the sentiments which could have been penned officially without drastic disavowal.

However, if Spain shall choose to let De Lome's imputations stand as unofficial without its formal assurances of irresponsibility, it is believed that Gen. Woodford's continuance at Madrid as the personal and official representative of the president will be out of the question.

But for the situation in Havana the severance of all diplomatic relations with Spain would receive more immediate and serious consideration.

The De Lome incident remains wide open. Spain has added insult to injury by allowing De Lome to get off with a mere resignation and by failure to disavow his utterances.

De Lome's insult to the president must be let go as a matter largely personal, but his bald statements that Spain's vaunted policy of autonomy and commercial reciprocity was received in fraud and pursued in bad faith demand explanation from the Madrid government.

A prompt disavowal from Spain is the only thing that will relieve the constantly growing tension, otherwise diplomatic relations may be broken off, be the consequences what they may.

It is recognized in Washington by congressmen and others that the attitude of Spain is plainly unfriendly, and unless it is modified. President McKinley would be justified in stopping diplomatic relations. War is freely talked of.

Party lines have disappeared and a wave of intense patriotism has swept over statesmen in Washington. Comments are made on De Lome's oily-tongued attitude toward the president and others connected with the administration, as being at variance with his real thoughts.

The house committee on military affairs has reported favorably the bill to restore Maj. J. W. Wham to his rank and pay in the pay corps of the army. The report fully exonerates Maj. Wham of the charge on which he was court-martialed

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 8.—SENATE—The half-mile stone in the legislative session was passed Monday, and but 30 more legislative days remain. Up to this time no bills of this session have become laws and but one measure has passed both houses. Senator Lindsay was the subject of a blister thrown by Senator Bronston during the senate session Monday. The occasion for this was a resolution introduced by Senator Bronston providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate and forward to Senator Lindsay at Washington a reply to the speech delivered by Mr. Lindsay in response to the resolution demanding his resignation.

HOUSE—Mr. Myers, of Greenup, made a second unsuccessful attempt to have the Lindsay speech made a part of the house journal, but was ruled out of order by Speaker Beckham. Mr. Myers, in view of this, made a speech in which he denounced the partisan and tyrannical rule of Speaker Beckham and the democratic majority. The Louisville ripper bills were sidetracked in the house again Monday, but there was a general understanding Monday night that the bills will be fought to a finish next Wednesday. The judiciary committee, at a meeting Monday afternoon, decided to report favorably the Goebel servant bill and to report adversely the appellate bill providing for working short time convicts on country roads. The last one was introduced by Senator Hayes, of Jefferson county, and passed the senate.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 9.—SENATE—The Bronston resolution to appoint a committee to reply to Senator Lindsay's speech was the first thing taken up in the senate Tuesday, and it was adopted without further debate by a vote of 27 to 0; the Frazier bill to regulate the manufacture and sale of food was passed by a vote of 28 to 0; the house bill to amend the laws in regard to admission of testimony by allowing the husband or wife to testify for or against each other in divorce case was defeated for lack of a constitutional majority. Bills introduced: To amend "and concerning guardians," by writing into the county judge to appoint the sheriff to act as guardian in certain cases; to punish burning or poisoning stock.

HOUSE—Bills introduced: Providing that no primary election shall be held on the same day that a special or general election is held; authorizing the sale of the Northern Kentucky normal school property and to dispose of the proceeds thereof; to compel steam engineers to pass an examination and obtain a certificate before taking charge of an engine; providing for instalment payments of property holders for street improvements; exempting road overseers from service on juries and from poll tax for road and bridge purposes. After passing the Rowby story bill, repealing section 1312 of the Kentucky statutes relating to confession of judgment, and the Robey bill, to regulate the analysis of fertilizers, the house took up the Chinn school book bill. Representative Chinn made a strong argument in favor of the bill, which provides for the contract system, limiting the price a maximum price for all school books. Passed.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 10.—SENATE—The senate passed the bill continuing for two years longer the stenographers for the judges of the court of appeals. The Bennets bill to ascertain the heirs in cases of escheat, and all others was passed, but was reconsidered and recommitted on request of Senator Brown. Bills introduced: To restrict and license glove contests; to amend the statutes, and repeal all other acts in conflict therewith; to prohibit any one from handling, buying or shipping any clothing that has been worn or used.

HOUSE—Mr. Weatherford bill, providing for a reduction of salaries of certain state officers, came up, and produced a lengthy discussion. An amendment by Pullam, of Louisville, to cut down the number of legislators to 82 per day and mileage to five cents, was overwhelmingly defeated. All amendments were voted down, and the bill passed by a vote of 76 to 4.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 11.—SENATE—The local option bill, seeking to make the county the unit in local option, the question to be voted on instead of the precinct, came up as a special order in the senate. Senators Goebel, Shanks and Alexander asked that the bill be referred back for the committee for further hearing and to consider the constitutional questions in the bill. After an address by the friends of the bill agreed to recommit the bill to the committee on religion and morals, with the understanding that the committee will give the opponents of the bill a hearing and report next Tuesday. The Goebel election bill providing for a board of election commissioners to appoint election officers came up as a special order. An amendment was adopted providing for setting contests in races for governor and lieutenant governor by selecting a board of contest by lot from the senate and house. Passed by a vote of 26 to 10.

HOUSE—Bills reported favorably: To authorize trustees of sixth-class towns to construct streets and sidewalks; to authorize superintendents of public works in cities of second class to order sidewalk repairs at the expense of abutting property owners; for benefit of pauper idiots and lunatics by paying for time lost in failing to hold inquests at proper time; providing that a county judge can not grant an injunction except when the circuit judge is out of his district. The house committee on public health decided Thursday afternoon to report favorably the bill to require the osteopath hereafter to obtain a certificate and pay a license like any physician. Some of the osteopaths are here fighting the bill and propose to have a substitute offered in the way of a compromise.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 12.—SENATE—In the senate the bill to transfer Whiteley county from the Third appellate court district to the Seventh district was amended by a substitute offered by Senator Goebel which provided for transferring Bell, Harlan, Leslie, Letcher and Perry counties from the Seventh district to the Fifth district. The bill as amended passed. The bill to prevent discrimination by common carriers in the delivery or receiving newspapers was passed unanimously, 22 to 0. The bill to create a state board of pharmacy and make the pharmacy law apply to smaller towns was discussed, but recommitted without a vote. The bill to prevent the selling of private stakes and ponies without the owner's consent was passed. The bill to relieve the stockholders in newspaper companies from double liability went over till Saturday for lack of a quorum.

HOUSE—Bills introduced: Authorizing the mayors and county judges of each county to fix the hotel, boarding house and restaurant rates for their county. It provides that the maximum rate for first-class hotels shall not exceed $1.50 per day, boarding houses 50 cents per day and restaurants 25 cents per meal. The food supplies shall be of the purest wholesome and cooked in a first-class manner." The beds and bedding shall be kept clean and neat and as plentiful as the weather demands. The bills of fare and rates shall be posted in the office of the county clerk. Referred to committee on public health. Mr. Charlton says he is for retrenchment and reform; permitting co-operative fire insurance companies to do business in cities and repealing the law limiting each company to ten cities; giving police courts exclusive jurisdiction of all actions for the recovery of any fine, penalty or forfeiture prescribed for the breach of any ordinance; to protect persons, firms and corporations in the use of union labels.

Peter Adams as President of the "Union Fox Hunter's Association" accepts the challenge of Mr. O'Neal, of Verona, for a trial race for points, and selects the farm of Fielding Dickey as the starting ground. Mr. O'Neal can select the day and come right along as the boys are always ready.

Dr. Crouch says he is no "free turn pike advocate," but to the contrary, is only for "good roads" built and run as a majority of the people may decide. The Doctor is in earnest, evidently, for he proposes to keep hammering along this line till every important road in the county is a "good road" if it takes all summer.

Saturday evening as we were sitting in one of the stores, a small boy entered, pulled off his cap, walked in a manly, quiet way around the counter, asked modestly for some article, walked quietly to the front, put on his cap, closed the door and walked away. The proceeding was such a flattering testimonial to the little fellows sense of propriety and to his parents in having carefully trained him that we were led to ask his name and found it was Master Sandford Bristow.

In conversation with John L. Rouse he told us that the meeting of "Golden Grange," last Saturday evening, was one of unusual interest. Four new members were initiated and a resolution to appoint a committee to get 200 or more signers to a petition asking the General Assembly of Kentucky to pass the bill now before that body allowing the State to publish the school books used in the public schools, was carried, and a committee appointed. Mr. Rouse is an enthusiastic granger and thinks much good may grow out of earnest efforts in the work before them.

The Afterkirk brothers and Bud Kenney gave a dance at the hall Wednesday night and a large number of young ladies and gentlemen were present. The music was furnished by the Beaver Band and was lively enough to suit the most fantastic toe, and carried us back to "ye olden time" when we too used to cut the pigeon wing and swing corners with the pretty girls. We enjoyed looking at the happy young people with sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks as they glided gracefully through the waltzes and quadrilles, and wished we were only young again, but it was no use for we had to refuse half a dozen invitations to dance and go home with our gray hairs, rheumatics and other adornments of old age clinging closer, yes closer, it seems than ever.

A large crowd attended the entertainment given by the pupils of the Academy, Saturday evening. Long before the hour for the exercises to begin the seats were all taken. A number of recitations were on the programme, all of which were recited well and showed great ability upon the part of the pupils, and proof as to their elocutionary training. The most interesting parts of the entertainment were the beautiful doll and dairy-maids' drills. Prof. Pryor recited two selections, "Birthday Reflections," and "Sockery Setting a Hen." They were rendered very creditably, and he received an encore, but failed to respond. This entertainment was one among the best given by the Academy.

Gunpowder.

Jan. 14—This is St. Valentine's day. How many young hearts will be gladdened today by receiving some loving token from a loved one? How many readers can recall this day in the past when, with a joyful heart, they called at the postmaster's desk to receive a token of love from a dear one?

Extensive preparations are under way for the manufacturing of maple molasses in this neighborhood. E. L. Rouse, Will Smith, Steve Robbins and J. H. Aylor, it is said, have opened their camps.

Woodsawings, quiltings and carpet rag sowings are the order of the day in this neighborhood. There was a number of woodsawings last week, and many more to follow. Mr. Editor, if you would like to strike a good dinner, with all four corners on it, call in this part of the moral vineyard in the near future, and you will be sure to find it.

Go it, brother Crouch. Scare the people up if you can. If you get the people in the vicinity of Union to take the matter of good roads in hand and make any good roads, you should be crowned as the champion of road makers, for that matter has been discussed pro and con at least every two years for over 40 years, and all that has ever been accomplished along the road leading from Union to Rising Sun, was to grade the road, except 1 mile, ready for the metal, and it was dropped. At this time, in a great many places, what was a good grade, with stone lying on the side of the road, ready to be broken and spread, is nothing but a great wash with here and there a chuck-hole. Now you'll find quite a number of persons wanting a good road, but they are generally too busy with their own work to help stop a mud hole along their own door yard. Wake them up if you can, and you will have the good will of future generations, but look out for the present, as someone will soon be pitching into you with all their might, and you will be scared right and left, for Boone county is famous for not wanting to be taxed for anything.

Golden Grange is still on the upward beat. Last Saturday a class of 4 was instructed in the mysteries of the first and second degrees, with others ready for their turn in the near future. It looks like the Grange has taken new life and has come to stay. Golden Grange can now number among its members as an intelligent set of men and women as any organization in the county, and a large number are classed among the best business people in our county, and why should not they make a success of the Grange? They do not propose to interfere with other people, but to attend to what concerns them alone and the welfare of their fellow-countrymen. There was a committee appointed at the last meeting to circulate a petition for our neighbors to sign, requesting the legislature to do something for a relief from the school book monopoly. May success attend their efforts.

Last week the RECORDER mentioned Mr. Alford Cason's losing a $20 bill and it is with pleasure that it annonces this week, the finding of the money. Mr. Cason had put the money, with the receipt for his paper, into a vest pocket, which was clearly overlooked in his first search for the lost treasure.

"Some of the very best young farmers in the county," says the Carrollton Democrat, "have been working at the Barker tobacco works for several weeks. They do not come there merely to work for wages, but also to learn more about the requirements of such establishments as this in the matter of matching, assorting and handling of tobacco. The knowledge they gain will be of great value to them as producers."

One night last week someone borrowed a horse of W. E. Rouse, of Florence, without his knowledge and consent, and rode it over to this neighborhood and turned it loose, it showing up at William Houston's toll-gate the next morning, with the bridle tied up about its head. When Mr. Rouse missed his horse he supposed it was stolen, and sent his son and F. A. Utz to the city in search of it, but the horse reached home before they returned.

The elite of colored society assembled at Kirkpatrick's hall near the southeast corner of Jefferson and Garrard streets, last Saturday night, and tripped the light fantastic until midnight. Sometime during the evening and when all within was pleasure, proceedings were suddenly interrupted by a rock crashing through the blinds and glass, and striking one of the belles of the ball on the arm. The blow from the unwelcome missile was not serious and the dancing was suspended but a few minutes. Col. Osborn, who was master of ceremonies, reported the ball a failure as to the financial feature.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb'y. 14, 1898.

Again has Representative Conner, of Boone, demonstrated the fact that orators are not made but born, while he makes no pretense of being a spell-binder or a cloud-soarer, his speeches are always delivered with marked effect and in good taste and time. Twice the past week his voice was raised in advocacy of measures which are considered the most important to be brought up for consideration during the term. And in both instances have the acts championed by the faithful legislator from Boone passed and with votes to spare. The first act was that of Mr. Weatherford reducing the salaries of all the officers in the State. Numerous amendments were offered, but all of these, except that reducing the salaries of guards at the penitentiaries from $60 to $50 per month, were voted down, and the bill passed, practically as first introduced, by a vote of 76 to 4. The Republicans may call, this a cheeseparing, record making bill if they will, but to most men who are observant, it seems a fair way of scaling the salaries of several officials who have always been paid well enough for their work. The other bill to which Mr. Conner lent his unstinted aid, was that to raise the amount of appeal to the court of appeals from $100 to $200. The act passed the House by a vote of 49 to 26. The salary-reduction bill will make a saving of over $24 000 a year to the state, and when one takes a peep in the bare vaults of the strong box," he is convinced of the importance of this expense cutting measure.

The case of the imprisoned councilmen of Covington, which has been brought before the court of appeals here, has vied with the important legislative bills in attracting attention. Of course Recorder readers are familiar with the contention which arose between Judge Tarvin and seven of the Covington city dads, which resulted in Judge Tarvin declaring the Solons in contempt, and in their refusing to purge themselves, which was followed by their incarceration in the Independence jail. There they languish, refusing to obey the court's mandate, while their attorneys are asking the state's highest court to grant a mandamus, releasing the Solons and putting a temporary quietus on the unfortunate muddle. The case went over Saturday till today, and I have to mail this before I can get the decision. I venture the guess, however, that the mandamus will be granted.

I understood this morning that Mr. Conner had another important bill to introduce this week, but I was unable to see him and get a peep at it. This week will mark the fate of many of the bills now pending. The new acts continue to come pouring in, but few of them will ever get to the dead line. The Bronston prison commission bill is in the House for a special order Wednesday. It will doubtless be passed. The anti-school trust bill is in the Senate from the House and will go to the Governor tomorrow.

The list of bills reported the past three days was an unusually long one, which indicates that the calendar is being cleared up rapidly. The most important one of the small bills was the one providing that railroads shall carry bicycles as baggage. This was reported favorably and will be passed promptly at the first opportunity.

The last consideration of the McChord freight bill, which passed the Senate with such ease, will come up in the House this week. It is next in importance to the anti-school trust and prison commission bills. Its framer expects favorable action and if so the bill will get to the Governor this week. The anti-school trust book bill is now before the Senate and it, too, ought to get to the Governor, unless acted on unfavorably, by the first of next week.

There is a bill in the House, and one in the Senate to prevent common carriers from delivering goods to persons or corporations at less cost than to others. This will stop the indiscriminate charges made by every railroad company, if there are any railroad companies who do this. The bill is an important one.

The Bronston bill preventing the selling of race pools in any room and on the race tracks of the state but 15 days twice (60 days altogether) in a year, will be settled by the House this week. Racing men generally approve it.

That the House is an energetic body is shown by the persistency of its members in their endeavors to get through a resolution providing for night sessions during the remainder of the term. Bennett Henderson's resolution to that effect has finally been adopted, and the law-makers will now hurn the midnight oil in their work of modifying existing laws and making new ones for our guidance and government.

The failure of the bill providing for a state board of pardons, was a surprise to some men who had thought it would pass as a companion measure to the Bronston prison commission bill. If the commission bill doesn't find any more favor in the House than the pardons act, it will die ere its usefulness has been measured.

The Assembly is trying to abridge the rights of young America in more ways than one. In fact I understand that not only will the bill prohibiting cocking mains in any county, pass, but that the bill restricting boxing matches to plain scientific or amateur bouts, in which no purse money is allowed, will also get through. The up-to-date youth not only smokes cigarettes, says cuss words and chews "the weed," but he also slips off from home at night and goes to cocking mains and prise fights. He is in danger of having his liberty trifled with.

If cigarette licenses are raised so high dealers cannot afford to sell them, and the general Curfew law is passed, the chinks the dads will have to "quit their meanness," as Sam Jones would remark, and steer clear of the "Bad Man" by mending their ways.

One of the surprises of the session was the adoption of the resolution inviting Senator Foraker, of Ohio, to address the House during the present term. The honor for this sop goes to Representative Meyers, of Greenup, who has tried in vain to get favorable consideration of his other pet resolution permitting the spreading of Senator Lindsay's reply to the Legislature's resolution, on the House minutes. But Foraker will come, and Mr. Bryan says he cannot do so, on account of the rush of business he finds himself loaded down with. So, the G. O. P's tally 1, if they get no more scores this inning,

The fight of the two Louisville factions, known up here as the "ins" and the "outs", goes merrily on. The "outs" or "Reformers", as they call themselves, drew first blood by advancing their bills abolishing the Louisville executive boards over the adverse report of the committee. They won by 2 majority, but the Weaver contingent, which is fighting to save the Louisville patronage, says it has not a fair test of strength, as they will rally a majority against the bills on the final show down. This will come this week.

The Farmers' Club No. 1, of White's Tower, Kenton county, adopted the following preamble and resolutions and requested their publication:

Whereas, We believe that the manufacture and sale of Oleomargarine, Butterine and kindred compounds are inimical to the best interests of the farmers, and,

Whereas, The present law governing the manufacture and sale of such compounds seems to be inadequate and easy of evasion, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we ask our representatives in the Legislature to frame and present a bill in said body, compelling all parties manufacturing such compounds to color them pink, and to make it a penalty for anyone to have any of such compounds in their possession, or to offer it for sale, when it is not so colored. And be it further

Resolved, That we urgently request our representatives in the Legislature to use every means in their power to secure the passage of the measure.

Chas. Westbay crossed the river at Anderson's ferry, with his team on the same trip four large bears were brought over. Before the Kentucky shore was reached the horses got a whiff of the bears, and it was almost impossible to hold them on the boat until it was landed. The horses were badly frightened yet when they reached home.

"Of course it ain't pro... ...about our honesty that we ... ...of thing," remarked Borden, to... foreman, "but it's the right thing to do."

"Yes, Washington was a fine old gentleman," added the storekeeper, "an' we Virginians always will stand by him."

"Mighty nice thing to be honoring the leader of a revolution," broke in a gruff voice from the rear of the store. It was the Englishman who was overseeing the fencing of the Olympic Cattle company's new lands. He had been a farmer over in the Cimmarron country, and was always objecting to whatever was on foot.

"Hush up, you got too badly licked to talk," was the rejoinder from Borden; and Glade, the foreigner, subsided.

The celebration was to take place in the schoolhouse out on the edge of the tiny settlement. From its door could be seen the haze that covered the tops of the Spanish peaks off to the west and also the sunken lines of the Cimmarron. It was all the conception of the pretty school mistress, who thought to thus raise enough money to buy a flag for the building's roof. There were other inducements for the two men who helped in the preparations—Borden and Grade. The cattleman thought there was no one like Lizzie Dean—and the Englishman thought the same.

"You are to be Washington," said the director to Borden, and the part fitted him well.

"All right, I'll lick the Britishers out of their boots," he declared as he pranced around with a stick for a sword, and cast ugly looks at Glade.

"And you shall be Cornwallis," turning to Glade. This, too, seemed satisfactory.

Night after night they met at the schoolhouse preparing the rendition of the play. The half-dozen actors were determined that there should be no ground for criticism. Spring was early on the prairie, and the gray and brown grasses were dry as tinder. The close curling buffalo grass was, like that of the blue stem, crinkling in the breeze, and the cattle were nibbling it away to get at the tiny spears of green beneath.

One night the play was nearly over when Borden remarked, in tones that came to the ears of the entire company: "If I had my way, I'd order every one of these red coats off the soil of America."

"Maybe you can't do any better than did your first president at that," was the sneer that came from back in the flies (curtains strung on pieces of twine) somewhere.

Borden grew angry. "Well, I can try, the same as he did. He won in the end, I believe."

The Englishman came out in the middle of the room. "I would not advise thee to try it," he drawled. The words were not more than out of his mouth when there came a crash of scenery, and along with the flies and nearly everything portable came Borden from the stage which he left with a leap. He made straight for the throat of his adversary, but what met his grasp when he reached out was—Miss Dean's hand.

"There, there, let this stop right here. The man you represent would never have fought in the presence of a woman."

Borden, abashed, stood back, and then went to the stage. But it did not mean the end of the trouble—everybody knew that. The men had a fight after the evening's practice was over, but it settled nothing, except that they were both very much in love with Lizzie.

The school did not amount to much those days, for all the scholars were practicing for their parts in the coming drama. The work on the ranches suffered likewise, for there was the same interest among the older people. On the night before the festal day there was a final practicing at the schoolhouse, and again the two representatives of the opposing sides in the revolution had their warfare of words.

...Englishman took pains ... new words reflecting on the ...

...ing mass the people left the place and their wagons and horses were dotting the flame-lighted plain. Two men found themselves side by side a quarter of a mile from the building, each on his broncho and each galloping toward the north.

As they mounted a little swell in the prairie the blaze lighted their faces. From each came an exclamation: "Borden!" "Glade!"

"I thought you were with her," demanded the former, angrily.

"I thought you were the one."

For an instant the two men glared at each other and then the test came. Borden looked straight in the face of the Englishman and then at the sea of flame sweeping up from the south and whose breath was hot in their faces.

"Well," he demanded, "which shall it be? This is the time to prove which is the true representative of bravery."

"Oh, it's not that sort of a question," pleaded the other.

"It is just that sort of a question. There is a chance for the one who rides into that blaze to come out alive—and only a chance. It will be at the schoolhouse in a moment, and the race there is no small thing in itself, even if the horses will take it."

"We'll go together," after a little thought.

"Very well." The horses' heads were turned and the rivals went toward the long line of leaping flames, each determined to make the other weary of his undertaking. On and on they rode, the horses becoming wilder as each whiff of the wind brought them a stronger smell of smoke.

Finally the Englishman began to fall behind. His horse was not so unruly as Borden's, and there seemed no reason for his retrogression.

"Come on, Cornwallis," called the ranchman, and the cut was felt by the Englishman into the thick of the smoke and was lost to the sight of his comrade. With head bent low and notrils shielded in the folds of his cloak, he steered toward the schoolhouse, whose black form rose out of the flames.

Finally the door was reached and with a shout he called to the teacher. Was she there? He remembered that she had gone to the rear of the building when the alarm was given. She might have thought there was no danger in staying in the schoolhouse.

He leaped from the horse. Into the building he ran and to the rear. What was that—a sobbing? Leaning over a pile of curtains in the corner he took from them a bundle of humanity that was very frightened and very thankful to see him.

"Is it you, Lizzie?" he questioned.

"Yes—and Jimmie."

"Who is that?"

"The widow's little lame boy. I thought he would like the show and brought him. He is too heavy to carry and we had to stay here. What can we do?"

For an answer the strong man lifted the woman in one arm and the boy in the other and rushed to the door. Throwing them to his saddle he bade them cling for their lives. The fire was already around the yard and was eating its way to the building. The intense heat had made the shingles smoke and in a few minutes the whole structure would be a pyramid of blaze.

It was no easy task to control a wild and excited horse in the midst of a fire and also see that two helpless charges did not fall from the back of the animal. But Borden with his superb mastery of horseflesh did it, and the gait that they took through the wall of flame was something marvelous. Had the riders been living a little nearer to civilization they would have called it "record breaker."

"Well, that was a scorcher," remarked Borden, when they had come to a safe place. "Hello, who is that?" as a solitary rider came out of the smoke and approached them.

"Bless me, if it ain't Cornwallis!"

"Wool" exclaimed the Englishman, wiping his eyes. "I couldn't find the schoolhouse or I would have saved the little school ma'am."

"Was it her?"

"Awfully so. I suppose it is too late now to do her any good."

"Oh, I don't know, Cornwallis. She is here all right," and the form of Lizzie came to the astonished eyes of the late arrival.

The Englishman looked sheepish for a minute and then hit his horse with his hand and started off.

"Say," called Borden, "that little rivalry is settled now." And then to Lizzie: "I knew that he was not hunting that schoolhouse very hard. You gave him the right character—that is, the side that got licked!"

And Lizzie Dean agreed with him. So thoroughly was the defeat felt that the vanquished suitor did not even deign to come to the wedding—the dedication event of the new schoolhouse that replaced the one destroyed by the fire. Lizzie wanted it that way and Borden was willing to have it so.

"I don't know much about it," he said, "but I take it for granted that Washington always pleased the ladies when he could."

When Washington Was Young.

The stagecoach rolled along its way,
On tireless axle hung,
The speediest travel of the day
When Washington was young.

A wick in tallow wax impearled
Its feeble luster flung
To light the darkness of the world
When Washington was young.

But thirteen states and thirteen stars
Historic poets sung,
Who scanned the patriotic bars
When Washington was young.

That selfsame flag to-day is fraught
(O'er seventy millions swung)
With principles of honor taught
When Washington was young.

Grand history lessons are enrolled
Its stars and stripes among.
Hurrah, then, for the days of old,

INNOCENT MARK HANNA.

One of the Moral Pillars of the Republican Administration.

The party of high morality in Ohio is entirely convinced that Mark Hanna did not purchase his seat in the United States senate.

If members of either house at Columbus were improperly or successfully approached by Hanna himself they would have evidence of Hanna's corruption in Hanna's own handwriting. He would pay with his check, but the member of the assembly there who was approached improperly did not have Mr. Hanna's check. He had only a pile of greenbacks, and it is clear as noonday that that pile of greenbacks did not come directly from Mr. Hanna himself. If there was a person in the situation willing to put up money to compass Hanna's election how can Mr. Hanna be charged with complicity in the event? His signature is nowhere seen in the transaction, and people often have indiscreet friends whose zeal runs away with their judgment, even leads them into the commission of crime.

The republican party in Ohio, the republican party anywhere will not accept as true the allegation that Mark Hanna bought his way into the senate of the United States unless evidence is presented that Mark Hanna's own check passed and that a particular consideration was named in the check—namely, that it was for the bribee's vote, to be delivered at Columbus on a certain day.

Of course Mr. Hanna got away with the goods, but there is no clean-cut evidence that he used money unlawfully. If he wanted to buy a man he would give him his check, for Mark Hanna is a very unsophisticated man, a thorough business man, and in the indorsement of the purchased assemblyman he would have that assemblyman's receipt for the money paid him.

Why, then, accuse Mark himself any more than accuse Chauncey Depew when in 1882 Low Sessions actually passed a $1,000 bill to an assemblyman and engaged him to vote for the learned and voluble gentleman? Of course Chauncey knew nothing about it. Hanna would not buy his way. Unless the voice of the people, being the voice of God, called him to place and power he would remain in a private station. But God reigns and the republican party still lives, with Mark Hanna as one of its moral pillars.—Chicago Chronicle.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——Republicans have "pledged the honor of their party" so often that a republican ballot suggests a pawn ticket.—Chicago Dispatch.

——The Dingley bill deficit for the current month will be about $6,000,000. Fortunately the Kansas Pacific railroad is to be auctioned off about the 23d inst., so that we shall still have a balance on the right side of the ledger.—Chicago Chronicle.

——Mr. Dingley wants to so amend the constitution of the United States that the man who has to work for a living will be compelled to go hungry if his labor amounts to more than the protected industries can profitably employ.—St. Louis Republic.

——Now Mr. McKinley finds that Mr. Hanna promised everything to everybody in the recent Ohio campaign, and the president cannot keep the "contracts" made by the Cleveland boss unless a few score of offices are created right away.—St. Paul Globe.

——Again we are assured that the Dingley tariff has nothing to do with the strikes in the New England cotton mills. Senator Hoar says it has not, and he knows. But it is curious how often the republicans feel called upon to volunteer this information.—N. Y. Post.

——We hear a great deal of the progress that the cause of "sound money" is making throughout the country; if these recent votes in the two houses of congress be taken as a criterion of the progress of "sound money," the progress it is making is evidently after the manner of the crab, backward.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

——The McKannaites still labor frantically to explain the great wage reduction in New England. They brand as an infamous anarchist anybody who dares to remind them how they promised unprecedented prosperity to the very workingmen that are now in misery. As branders, the Dingley-billers are not less successful than as prosperity restorers.—Kansas City Times.

GAVE IT AWAY.

Dingley Exposes the Weakness of Protection.

In the defense of his tariff law in the house the other day Mr. Dingley exposed the weakness of the sham of protection more clearly than the opponents of that vicious system of taxation have done since Dingleyism was fastened upon the country.

He scolded the south for producing 2,000 bales of cotton more than we [illegible] this year, and declared that protective tariffs could effect nothing [illegible] the hours of labor in the several [illegible]tes were not equalized. He declared [illegible] the labor organizations would [illegible]ctually compel an amendment to the constitution which would permit congress to equalize hours all over the country.

This foolish contention embodies the essential principles of protection. Limiting labor means limiting production. And still, under protection, there is no other possible way of keeping production on a parity with consumption.

The Dingleyites have closed the doors of the world's markets to our products and have left the producer none but the home consumer. It is under this system that the trust flourishes. It is this that produces a labor surplus as well as a surplus of products. Low prices for these two most essential elements of wealth inevitably prevail. Mr. Dingley has himself confessed this necessary operation of his law in his contention for shortening the hours of labor. He has also admitted the un-American paternalism of his party's fiscal policy. The man able and willing to work ten hours a day is not to be permitted to do so because he will produce more than is needed.

This is the statesmanship of absolutism. It is the reincarnation of the spirit that ruled the world before mankind advanced from a condition of abject servitude under kingship and priesthood. Every free trader in the United States should feel grateful to Mr. Dingley for so concisely presenting the philosophy of protection.—St. Louis Republic.

A Man of Putty.

No one of any intelligence supposes for a moment that Mr. McKinley is a gold-standard man in the sense that Mr. Gage is. If he were, and furthermore were endowed with strong and dominating character of Mr. Cleveland, he would be using the whole power of the administration to force congress to enact the Gage bill or some similar measure into law. But he is not a dominating man. He is a purely negative quality. He surrendered to the gold power in return for its support of his presidential candidacy. He will go just as far as he can in the payment of his campaign obligations. But he dares not be aggressive. Not only is such a course foreign to his nature, but he knows that an attempt to drive a gold measure through congress would disrupt the republican party. Therefore, he will endeavor to satisfy such men as Chandler, Clark, Shoup, et al., by pointing to the "past record," reinforcing it, perhaps, with the whispered assurance that he is as good a bimetallist "at heart" as any of them, and is not "wedded to the gold standard." At the same time Mr. Gage will be allowed to do as he pleases, and the administration will be run as strictly a gold standard principle. In short, the bimetallists will have McKinley's heart and "his past record," but the gold men will dictate his policy.

Themselves to Blame.

The "sound money" people are absolutely without justification in their yell that the bimetallists, by this resolution, are disturbing the previously existing financial quietude. Whatever disturbance, if any, there is, has been set agoing the "sound money" people themselves. They have had Secretary of the Treasury Gage running around with his proposition to "commit the government more thoroughly to the single gold standard," and they have had their house committee on banking and currency fixing up a bill to give embodiment to the Gage idea—all this before the Teller resolution was so much as thought of. Secretary Gage and they have been planning quite a change in the currency status, whereas the Teller resolution is only the reaffirmation in more specific terms of a law which has been in existence for a quarter of a century. If there be any financial disturbance, therefore—which we very much doubt—it is plainly the "sound money" people themselves and not the bimetallists who are the cause of it.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

RUSSIAN ICE-BREAKERS.

A Project to Cut Through Frozen Arctic Waters.

Very prompt attention is being given by the Russian admiralty to Admiral Makaroff's scheme of ice breakers for the Gulf of Finland and the frozen ocean, says the St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Times. Vice Admiral Makaroff is no inexperienced dreamer. He has held high command in the Mediterranean and Pacific, and is recognized as one of the ablest officers in the Russian service.

His startling idea of cutting through polar ice in order to reach the pole surpasses in audacity the aeronautical flights of Herr Andree. For the immediate future, therefore, he wisely intends to confine the application of his theories to the Gulf of Finland and the Kara sea.

Capt. Sverdrup, of Dr. Nansen's ship, the Fram, has arrived here at the invitation of Admiral Makaroff to take part in a consultation on the subject at the department of the imperial admiralty, and this looks like serious business. It is also stated that a credit of 1,500,000 rubles is to be forthwith opened for the construction of a large ice breaker, and a number of drawings of such vessels submitted by various firms are already under examination. It is proposed to be ready to make the first experiment in the winter of 1899. Practically, this means increased facilities and an increase of English trade with Cronstadt and St. Petersburg, and perhaps with Siberia, at times of the year when British ships are now kept back or frozen in by the ice; besides which the building of these powerful ice breakers is likely to be undertaken only in England, unless the engineering dispute continues to ruin the chances of properly executing foreign orders.

Sea communication with the Yenisei is now carried on in a casual, desultory kind of way only once a year, whereas by means of ice brekers a regular service of boats might be maintained and a voyage made every fortnight, beginning in the first week of June or earlier, when the mouth of the river is free from ice. Siberia is so rich, and its popuintion increases so fast by natural growth and colonization, and plenty of cargo would be found to support a more regular course of sea traffic between Siberia and the rest of the world.

Another and more pressing want, which could only be satisfied by means of ice breakers, is felt nearer home. Odessa, Nikolaieff, Revel, Vladivostock and other Russian ports were all cleared of ice in this way, while St. Petersburg, the capital of the empire, and the nearest port of access to the great manufacturing districts of Moscow, still remains closed to ships throughout the winter. This can only be remedied by an ice breaker of 10,000-horse power, which would be able to cut through ice of the Finnish gulf at a rate of five to seven knots.—Detroit Free Press.

Splitting Wood with a Crowbar.

"I have seen a million men split wood with a hatchet, probably a hundred thousand splitting wood with an ax, and I have now and then," said Mr. Gozlim, "seen a man split wood with a chisel and mallet; but the other day I saw for the first time a man splitting wood with a crowbar. He raised it, point down, vertically above the block of wood and then let it slide down through his hands, and the crowbar did the rest. I suppose it must have been the only thing within reach that could be used for the purpose, and certainly it served the purpose well."—N. Y. Sun.

BIG STORAGE BATTERIES.

Chicago and Buffalo Use Them for Lighting and Traction.

One of the most notable features of the management of electric light stations during the last few years is the introduction of storage batteries to equalize the "load" on the steam engines. During the day the demand for power is small, but from dusk until ten or 11 p. m. it is very great. If all the electricity expended during the latter period be obtained directly from the dynamos, both the generators and steam engines must have a greater capacity than would otherwise be required. On the other hand, if a storage battery be added to the plant and this be charged during the dull hours of business then at night part of the supply can be taken from the accumulators, and only part need be generated by the dynamos.

Such a system, it will be seen, has two advantages. A smaller investment is required for engines and dynamos, because these will represent the average output for a whole day and not the maximum demand during four or five hours. And then a steam boiler plant is operated more economically if it is kept running at n uniform rate continuously than if a great deal more steam is called for at one time than at another.

In view of these facts, several of the great illuminating companies in New York, Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia have introduced large storage batteries within the last two or three years. Chicago held out rather obstinately for a time, but it is now reported that the largest accumulator plant yet provided for a lighting station has just been ordered for that city. It will have a capacity of 7,436 "kilowatt hours;" in other words, about 10,000 horsepower for one hour, or 1,000 horse-power for ten hours.

Electric railways, like lighting service, experience great variations in the demand for power from hour to hour, although these are not quite so extreme perhaps. Consequently, trolley companies, too, are beginning to consider the advantages of the storage battery. For instance, the Electrical Engineer remarks:

"We note, also, the intention of the Buffalo Railway company to install accumulators, to be charged from power obtained over the high tension lines from Niagara. As their load is a fluctuating one, and is particularly low during the night, the battery will be able to absorb all the surplus energy available, and thus permit the company to utilize fully the power for which it is paying. This battery, we understand, will also be the largest ever installed for railway purposes."—N. Y. Tribune.

A LESSON FROM MEXICO.

The Destruction of the Forests Has Brought Drought and Desolation.

The early conquerors of this country and their followers of to-day have been very wasteful and careless in the disposition of their forests, with the result of accelerating the date when they will be compelled to face a problem of forest preservation at considerable cost to themselves. Denizens of the northwest are familiar with the rapidity with which the valuable timber areas have been denuded, until now there is scarcely a merchantable tree between Arkansas and the Canadian line. Many notes of warning accompanied this destruction of the northern softwood forests, but they fell upon unwilling ears. Only after it was too late to stop the mischief did the country begin to recognize the indirect value of forests to agriculture, and that no high degree of civilization can exist permanently without some systematic and adequate forest management. In India the destruction of the forests commenced 1,000 years ago, and that country having at last seen the folly of such waste, is now engaged in the expensive undertaking of reforesting large areas. The effect upon rainfall and the productiveness of the cultivated tracts has already been acknowledged by investigators. When Cortes first saw the valley of Mexico it was covered with woods, not dense, but abundant, from the timber line on the volcanoes down to the water's edge. The reckless cutting down of the forests by the Spaniards in the first century following the conquest in 1521 increased evaporation, caused the lakes to dry up, led to frequent droughts, followed by occasional floods, and changed the climate of Anahuac.

Any old rancher will tell stories of streams that flowed when he was a boy, and will show the dry arroyo now. They all claim that the table lands had timber in considerable quantities where now there are barren deserts.

This government has taken some steps in the matter, but it is also necessary for the land owners to assist in this work by planting trees and irrigating them for a few years until they have taken good root. By using good judgment in selecting the trees and in planting in a few years the complaints which are now so frequent of years of drought will soon become fewer and fewer, until they finally cease.—Monterey Globe.

Alaska.

The area of the United States before the purchase of Alaska was 2,933,666 square miles. Alaska contains 550,000 square miles of mainland, 7,000 square miles of the Aleutian islands and 22,000 square miles of other islands, a total of 579,000 square miles, or one-fifth of the area of the rest of the United States. It requires the areas of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and New York to equal this. The area of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Virginia and West Virginia equals only one-half of Alaska. It equals the combined area of Great Britain and Ireland, France, Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands. It stretches from latitude 54 degrees to 71 degrees, and from longitude 130 degrees to 188 degrees.—Overland

Sarcophagus for Body of Mrs. Grant Placed in Position.

The sarcophagus which is to contain the body of Mrs. Grant has been placed beside the receptacle that holds the remains of Gen. Grant in the tomb in Riverside park. Both sarcophagi were cut from the quarries at Montello, Wis. When the big granite block to hold the body of Gen. Grant was finished, a similar sarcophagus was being h[illegible]ER. [illegible]

A pedestal to support the two sarcophagi was erected in the tomb. Its height is about 7½ feet above the floor of the crypt. It it ten feet and ten inches in depth and breadth.

Both sarcophagus welgh about eight tons. All of the exposed faces are highly polished. The color is a dark red, variegated in spots. On the sarcophagus intended for Mrs. Grant there is the name in bronze, "Julia D. Grant."

The sarcophagus of the great union general has his name "Ulysses S. Grant."

So far as the labors of the Grant Monument association are concerned, they were finished when the sarcophagus for Mrs. Grant was placed in position. There will be additional features in the tomb, such as statuary.

GETS CLEAR ON QUEER PLEA.

Federal Building at St. Louis Shields a Pugnacious Janitor.

Armistead Robinson, the colored porter in the office of Internal Revenue Collector McCreery at St. Louis, has established a precedent in the matter of state and federal jurisdiction.

A week or so ago Robinson resented a remark made by Robert Christian, a janitor in the federal building, by assaulting and battering him.

He was arrested on a warrant from the four courts, charging assault and battery. In Judge Murphy's court a plea in abatement was entered by Robinson's lawyer on the ground that the federal building was a United States reservation and the state had no jurisdiction over offenses committed inside the building.

The plea was sustained by Judge Murphy, who said that the statute of 1872 gives the United States government supreme jurisdiction over such territory.

This relieves Robinson of all fear of prosecution, as the federal statutes provides for the punishment of murder only, when committed on government property.

PIGMIES DO HAIR UP IN MUD.

South American Traveler Reports Seeing Curious Race of Dwarfs.

Eben J. Sullivan, of Boston, who has just returned from South America, reports seeing a curious race of pigmies.

Mr. Sullivan said: "I met, while on the Rio Negro, one of the tributaries of the Amazon, a race of remarkable small people, who were very ugly in shape; the stomach is distended out of all proportion of their tiny, spindling arms and legs. I think that they may number 10,000 or 15,000 souls.

"These people are not over four feet eight inches in height. Clothing is worn only by adults and consists merely of a cloth over the loins. Their hair is dressed [illegible] together [illegible] in a most repulsive fashion.

"They have tribal marks that cover the upper body and head, made by slits in the skin, are peaceably disposed and afraid of the white man."

NEW ST. LOUIS DISEASE.

Cyclonic Neurosis is Responsible for Hundreds of Suicides.

"St. Louis has what is technically known as 'cyclonic neurosis,'" said Dr. G. Wiley Broome, of that city, speaking of the scenes witnessed in the city during the recent windstorm.

"Neurosis commonly is a functional affection of the nerves. Cyclonic neurosis is attributable to fright and excitement occasioned by the cyclone. Hundreds of cases of suicide are ascribed to the cyclone of May, 1896."

Dr. Broome was asked what remedy he might suggest.

"There is only one, an abatement of strong winds," he replied.

A Benefactress' Kind Act.

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. John Tansey, of 130 Baker Street, Detroit, Michigan, is one of those women who always know just what to do in all trouble and sickness. One that is a mother to those in distress. To a reporter she said:

"I am the mother of ten children and have raised eight of them. Several years ago we had a serious time with my daughter, which began when she was about sixteen years old. She did not have any serious illness, but seemed to gradually waste away. Having never had consumption in our family, as we come of good old Irish and Scotch stock, we did not think it was that. Our doctor called the disease by an old name which, I afterward learned, meant lack of blood.

"It is impossible to describe the feeling of pain and I had as we noticed our daughter slowly passing away from us. We finally found, however, a medicine that seemed to help her, and from the first we noticed a decided change for the better, and after three months' treatment her health was so greatly improved you would not have recognized her. She gained in flesh rapidly and was soon in perfect health. The medicine used was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I have always kept these pills in the house since and have recommended them to many people. I have told mothers about them and they have effected some wonderful cures.

"Every mother in this land should keep these pills in the house, as they are good for many ailments, particularly those arising from impoverished or diseased blood, and weakened nerve force."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

How baldness begins.

How to prevent it.

Every person, male or female, shrinks from baldness. It adds to the appearance of age and is a serious discomfort. The cases are rare when the falling out of the hair may not be stopped, and a new and healthy growth of the hair promoted. The hair grows in the scalp like a plant in the soil. If a plant flourishes, it must have constant attention; it must be watered regularly and find its food in the soil where it is rooted. It's so with the hair. Neglect is usually the beginning of baldness. Dandruff is allowed to thicken on the scalp. The hair begins to loosen. The scalp loses its vitality. The hair, insufficiently nourished, begins to fade and fall. The instant need in such a case some practical preparation which supplying the needed nourishment to the scalp, will feed the hair, give it life and to produce a strong growth. A Rose of Sharon bull calf sold in Clark county for $250.

A lot of shoats in Clark county, weight 110 lbs., sold at $3 15.

In Clark county 200 barrels of corn sold at $1 75 per barrel.

Mr. E. J. Thisler, a Burgin miller, sold 5,000 bushels of wheat to Mr. Josiah Smith, for $1 10 per bushel.

It is estimated that this country contains 350,000,000 chickens and that they lay 14,000,000,000 eggs annually, worth $165,000,000.

The wheat was injured some by the freeze of last week. There was not enough snow on the ground to protect it.—Georgetown Times.

A Missouri poultry man at Centralia has ten thousand geese now on hand. He has met with such success that he will double his flock this year.

General rains throughout California are proving of great benefit to fruit and other crops which for some time had been threatened with destruction by long continued drouths.

The chance is that a large area will be planted to tobacco in central Kentucky this year. It would be like whistling against the wind to advise against it. Better cultivation is the one thing most needed.—Georgetown Times.

The farmers of Bourbon are pleased with the outlook for wheat this year, and think if no dry freeze occurs the crop should furnish a generous yield. The average is somewhat larger than last year. A week of snow just now would be of great benefit to the crop.

A large crop of tobacco, such as contemplated by the farmers, will see prices of tobacco far from what they are now this time next year. We don't presume to advise the raisers of tobacco, but a little reading up on the history of past prices will be profitable reading for them just now before burning plant beds. —Louisville Weed.

Minnesota has a law to encourage tree planting. A bounty of $2 50 an acre is offered, and at least one acre must be planted, while no one person can collect for more than ten acres in a year or for more than six years. Any tree but the black locust may be planted. Last year bounties were paid to twenty-five counties for planting 9,524 acres. The law has been in operation sixteen years. In that time more than 100,000 acres have been planted in trees.

As an evidence of the effort that will be made to pitch a tremendous crop of tobacco this season, the Hustler refers to the mammoth plant bed that has been prepared by J. G. Todd & Co., of the Grapeville country, near this city. The bed is 300 yards long and nine feet wide, and is in fine condition. It will make enough plants to supply almost any neighborhood. Boy Pritchett, of the Hanson country, has a bed that is 24 feet wide and 300 feet long. It was burned last fall and works up fine.—Madisonville Hustler.

INTELLIGENT PREJUDICE.

American Conservatism in Opposition to the Metric System.

As Mr. Spencer begins by declaring that the "advocates of the metric system allege that all opposition to it results from ignorant prejudice," which he very properly declares is far from true, it may be well to say that, in the opinion of the writer, there is relatively little of that sort of thing to contend with in the United States. What is far more dangerous as an obstacle to human progress, and often far more common, is what may be called "intelligent prejudice," meaning thereby an obstinate conservatism which makes people cling to what is or has been, merely because it is or has been, not being willing to take the trouble to do better, because already doing well, all the while knowing that doing better is not only the easier, but is more in harmony with existing conditions. Such conservatism is highly developed among English-speaking people on both sides of the Atlantic, and is likely to turn up in the most unexpected places. It is often a phase of ancestral or national pride, and finds its expression in the feeling that whatever pertains to one's own race or country is, on the whole, better than anything else of its kind. Those who are under its influence are adepts in finding ingenious reasons and excuses in defense of an attitude toward reform which they must know to be founded on neither logic nor fact. These people are numerous among opponents of reform in coinage, weights and measures, and, as already noted, it is with this class that the most serious difficulty is encountered. "Ignorant prejudice" generally disappears when ignorance disappears, and fortunately in the present instance the system which it is proposed to substitute for that already in use is so extremely simple that it can be learned and understood in a few minutes. —From the Metric System, by Prof. T. C. Mendenhall, in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

BLENHEIM CASTLE.

Everything About It Is on a Large Scale—348 Feet Long.

The late duke of Marlborough, in alluding to the size of Blenheim palace, used to say, by way of a joke, that it was the only residence in Europe which required $4,000 worth of putty a year to keep the window panes in order. Money went a good deal further in the last century than it does now; consequently when the house of commons voted $1,500,000 to build the first duke a residence there presently sprang up an edifice 348 feet long, and with an interior so vast that, when a government messenger once came post-haste there to the late Lord Randolph Churchill, during one of his visits, with a dispatch, it was over half an hour before his lordship, who for exercise had been exploring the place, with its 15 staircases, was found. The last time it was repaired the late duke was obliged to apply to parliament for permission to sell the pictures and library to pay the bills, which amounted to more than a million and a half. It is therefore not surprising that, although the estate yielded $200,000 a year, the expenses of keeping up this preposterous residence kept the duke a poor man. Altogether everything about Blenheim is grotesquely large. Some of the pictures are 70 feet square. The statue of the great duke, near the big lake of 260 acres, is 132 feet high and cost $150,000.

MORTALITY IN THE ARMY.

Soldiering the Safest Profession in the World.

As it is by no means impossible that all ablebodied Englishmen may have, in the near future, to become defenders of their country, it is reassuring to learn, on the authority of statisticians, that soldiering is about the least dangerous profession in the world.

Protestant clergymen are popularly supposed to be the best male "lives" going. But they die at a rate of nearly 11 per thousand each year, while the British army shuffles off this mortal coil at a rate of less than five per thousand. Even ladies' maids, who have usually a life of great comfort and little work, die faster than this, departing this life at the rate of eight per thousand.

It might well be supposed that the troops who do as much fighting as the British soldiers abroad would be carried off in large numbers. This was true in the past, when the conditions favored disease, but in these days war is by no means as dangerous. For instance, in all our wars of the past 20 years the death rate on the battlefield has been only 15 per thousand per annum.

Now solicitors cannot be said to be engaged in very risky work, yet they depart hence at the rate of 16 per thousand per annum. Roman Catholic priests die at the rate of 18 per thousand, and cabmen at the rate of 26 per thousand. Your chances of death, then, if you become a cabman, are five times as great as if you join the army at home, and nearly twice as great as if you form part of the fighting forces in India or Africa. And there are scores of trades—such as lead working, glass-blowing, match making, public-house keeping, etc.—over so much more dangerous to life than cab driving.—London Mail.

BILLS OF FARE.

Duke Henry of Brunswick Invented the Menu Card.

The menu was not invented in France. It was Duke Henry of Brunswick who was first observed in the intervals of a banquet to scan carefully a long strip of paper by the side of his plate. When the curious guests ventured to inquire into the nature of his studies he explained that it was a sort of programme of the dishes which he had commanded from the cook, to the intent that if some delicacy which especially appealed to him were marked for a late stage in the repast he might carefully reserve his appetite for it. The simplicity and beauty of the idea appealed instantly to the good duke's convives, and the menu card from that moment became an institution.

In the old-fashioned form the menu was usually written large, on cards, of such imposing dimensions that room for one only could be found at each end of the table. In the medieval dinner this aid to selection must have been an absolute necessity, for the medieval dinner was a mine of surprises. It was divided into courses, but whereas nowadays the diner has a general idea that fish will follow soup, and that entree is succeeded by releve, and can conceive generally the sort of demand that each course will make upon his appetite and digestion, there was no possible arguing as to what was going to happen at an early English dinner, and close study faile to reveal the existence of any principle of arrangement.—Invention.

Getting Out of a Difficulty.

Mr N——, a struggling lawyer in a small town in Ohio, received a call, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, from a farmer who wanted legal advice. Mr. N—— took down a much-used volume from his small bookcase and gave the required advice for which he charged the modest sum of three dollars. His client handed him a five-dollar bill. With a troubled look Mr. N—— flushed in the face as he passed his fingers nervously through his pockets and his embarrassment increased as he continued his search among the papers on his desk. "Well," said he, taking down the law book again and turning over the pages. "I'll give you two more dollars' worth of advice."

Sagacity.

"Did you do anything about that letter from the escaped criminal who is sick and wants to give himself up?"

"Of course," replied the detective. "You didn't think we would neglect an important clew like that, did you?"

"What steps did you take?"

"We ran no risk of letting that fellow fool us again. We sent the letter to an expert and made sure that the handwriting was his."—Washington Star.

FOR ALL WOMEN

Nine-tenths of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Some Plain Facts.

Grave errors, injustice, wrongs of greater or less degree, arise from lack of knowledge of the truth, and more frequently from deception.

The most infamous case on record of deception and injustice is the attempt to demonetize silver as a money of final redemption in the United States.

There is no learned judge, skilled lawyer, or court of justice that is capable of reconciling the effort with the constitutional laws that govern the issue of money in this country.

The people have been deceived, officials in power, chosen to administer justice under the laws, have ignored their sworn duty, and given aid to the scheme that has paralyzed industry, reduced property values one-half, and beggared millions.

There is no authority of law, either specific or by inference, by which gold alone is made the only money with which to discharge debts, either public or private. The effort to make it so is unconstitutional and a national calamity.

Plain and ample information, facts, and truth, concerning this almost successful scheme to corner the wealth of the people, is now being printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a newspaper which the combined power of money has failed to muzzle or buy.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1898. NO. 18

HAS Secretary Sherman heard of the de Lome incident yet?

THE President has more confidence in the Spaniards than anybody else has.

THE belief that the United States navy is a sham and a delusion, is gaining converts rapidly.

YESTERDAY was Washington's birthday, and it was appropriately observed throughout the country.

THE destruction of the battleship Maine, is the most appalling disaster in the marine history of the United States.

UNCLE SAM will be able to continue business at the old stand so long as he has a railroad to sell occasionally.

REPRESENTATIVE CONNER has certainly represented Boone county in a most satisfactory manner in the General Assembly this winter.

THE General Assembly is attempting to do too much legislation which it conceives will be of an advantage to the Democratic party. Look out for boomerangs.

SENATOR GOEBEL'S election bill has intensified the fight against his Gubernatorial nomination. The introduction of the bill is one of the very few political mistakes the Senator has made.

THE Civil Service Commission, in its annual report, declares civil service a great success, and recommends its extension. It now begins to look very much as though the present Congress will not interfere with the law as it now stands.

THAT fellow who suggests that if the United States had spent the money the navy has cost, in fortifying the seaport towns, the country would have a great deal more protection for the money invested than it has, is eminently correct.

MR. HANNA'S recent experience with the Ohio Legislature, interfered with his appointment making to such an extent that he is very much behind with that branch of his business, and has informed Ohio Republicans in some instances that he can not consider their claims until after he has disposed of the Louisiana and Georgia appointments. He is not disposed to do anything by proxy, and therefore the President is shut out.

THE people of this country are very much wrought up over the destruction of the warship Maine and the loss of over two hundred and fifty lives in the Havana harbor. If as the administration claimed, the Maine was sent to Havana only on a friendly visit, the public fails to see how the terrible disaster can be excused that those who are responsible for the causeless visit may be somewhat relieved, and it will continue to inquire why the great ship and human lives were so recklessly jeopardized by sending them to a harbor where they were anchored in a field of dynamite and surrounded by the most destructive guns of a nation whose friendship is of a most questionable character, and whose fame for treachery is world wide. Another fact that is creating considerable comment is the persistency with which the President and his Secretary of the Navy are claiming the Maine's fate was the result of an accident, and at the same time asking the suspension of public opinion. Would it not be just as well for those high in authority to suspend their own opinion before making the request of the public along that line? The loss of two hundred and fifty lives and six millions of dollars, the value of the Maine and its equipage, is directly attributable to a mistake of the administration in sending its battleship to a port where its presence was not required, as it was claimed the Spaniards entertained a friendly feeling for this government—all of which existed only in the minds of those who are in charge of affairs at Washington.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, February 19th, 1898.

Nothing short of absolute proof that the sinking of the battleship Maine, in the Havana harbor, and the drowning of more than 250 of its crew—a catastrophe that will cause a shudder of horror to pass over every American every time Havana harbor is mentioned for many years to come—was caused by an accidental explosion on board of the Maine will save Spain from the licking it has been inviting for some time at the hands of the United States. In view of the reports that have reached this country from time to time of boasts made by Spaniards made in Havana, since the Maine went there, that at the first intimation of war between Spain and the United States they were prepared to blow the Maine to atoms with torpedoes, and of the treachery of the late Spanish Minister towards his great and good friend, Mr. McKinley, it is not surprising that suspicion that the destruction of the Maine was the result of Spanish treachery should be expressed by more than half the men one meets. A nation which could deliberately plan to surround the house of a Cuban with several regiments of troops and coolly shoot down an old man and his children, in order to kill a Cuban officer whose sweetheart was the daughter of the old man, as the Spaniards recently did in Cuba, would not hesitate to do any sort of treachery to destroy a warship of a nation it both feared and hated. Mr. McKinley professes to regard these suspicions with horror, and expresses the belief that the investigation now being made will show them to be without foundations. It is to be devoutly hoped that his belief will be justified by the result of the investigation, for if it isn't, Spain will not only be driven out of Cuba, but will be in danger of being driven out of existence as a nation, by relentless Americans bent on revenge.

Congress is disposed to allow the administration to conduct the investigation of the cause of the loss of the Main, only asking that it be prompt and thorough and that its results be made public as soon as arrived at.

It having been arranged that Friday and Saturday of this week should be used by the House to discuss the Bankruptcy bill, reported as a substitute for the bill that was passed by the Senate at the extra session, Czar Reed did not find it necessary to make the House adjourn from Thursday to Monday, in order to prevent there being a private bill day, which under the rules should be Friday.

The National Council of the Farmers' Alliance, once a power in the political world, now scarcely heard of, was in session in Washington this week: also the annual convention of the Woman Suffragists, which always manages to occupy its full share of newspaper space.

Senator Murphy, of New York, who has gone home on business, said before leaving Washington that the resolution censuring him for voting for the Teller resolution which was adopted by the aid of Republican votes in the New York Legislature, was not worrying him the slightest little bit, as he had written evidence from prominent Democrats in every section of the State endorsing his course in voting for the Teller resolution. He regards the censure as nothing more than an attempt by the Republicans to make political capital in the State, which their party badly needs.

Ex-Gov. Patterson, of Colo., has been telling his many friends in Washington that the largely increased and constantly increasing gold production of his State has not altered the universal sentiment of its people in favor of the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1. He made this prediction of the next Democratic National Convention: It will be held in Chicago; it will reaffirm the platform of '96, without the dotting of an "I" or the crossing of a "t"; it will nominate Bryan by acclamation, and it will be the most unanimous National convention ever assembled in the U. S."

It was at first intended that the National Committees of the Democratic party, the people's party, and the silver Republican party should unite in a joint address to the voters who are friendly to the free coinage of silver, but as some objection was raised to that course it was decided that each committee should issue an address to the voters of its own party, advising general co-operation of all the friends of silver in this year's Congressional campaign, and this week the three addresses were made public. The first time that the full effect of this co-operation will be seen will be in Oregon, where the Congressional elections will be held in June, and the campaign is already practically begun. The issue is going to be squarly made in that State, and the silver men are confident of winning.

LAST Saturday's issue of the Western Tobacco Journal, of Cincinnati, says:

"We think there is no doubt of a very decided improvement in our tobacco market during the past two weeks. In the face of large offerings prices were not only sustained throughout, but were at times quite materially advanced. This refers principally to new stock, and it is simply a repetition of many years experience, namely, that new crop, for a while at least, meets with the stronger market when in competition with the old. This year, if any, ought to make a change in this condition, for, if manufacturers are not just loaded down with leaf, there will certainly be use for all that is left of the two crops. There was a very full attendance of buyers, bidding quick without the usual vacillations, and in consequence prices remained pretty steady from Tuesday to Friday. Common and Medium grades predominated in the offerings, though there were some very fine tobaccos offered, and high averages were realized, but the trade at the present time don't seem to want any more of the finer grades than just about the comparatively small quantity which now appears on the breaks."

SENATOR GOEBEL is one of the most astute politicians in the State, but he certainly misunderstood the sentiment of the people when he prepared and introduced his election bill. If honest elections are not held under the present system in Kentucky, it is clear that it would be just about as impossible to attain that object under anyother, and it is not clear wherein the Senator's plan for selecting the election officers in the several counties is any improvement over the present law which makes that the duty of the county judge. People always view with suspicion any radical changes in an election system, no matter how great an improvement the change may be, and just at this time, under the circumstances, if the Democrats stand by the Goebel bill and pass it they will find it will add another count to the indictment with which they will be confronted at the next election, and possibly a very serious one.

IT has never been clear to the masses why the Main was sent to the Havana harbor. If it was a friendly visit it was entirely unnecessary, and Capt. Bigsbee lost no time after the destruction of the Maine in advising against sending another warship to Havana.

ON the inside pages you will find an account of the Maine disaster, the proceedings of Congress and the Kentucky Legislature, and all the general news. The other pages are replete with county and State news.

PRINTING PRESS' POWER.

Some Information and Cheering Words Regarding Newspapers.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage's Two Thousandth Sermon Recalls the Start of His Universal Preaching—The Eloquent Preacher's Valuable Aid to a Law Student.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was: Nahum ii., 4: "They shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightnings."

Express, rail train and telegraphic communication are suggested if not foretold in this text, and from it I start to preach a sermon in gratitude to God and the newspaper press for the fact that I have had the opportunity of delivering through the newspaper press 2,000 sermons or religious addresses, so that I have for many years been allowed the privilege of preaching the Gospel every week to every neighborhood in Christendom, and in many lands outside Christendom. Many have wondered at the process by which it has come to pass, and for the first time in public place I state the three causes. Many years ago, a young man, who has since become eminent in his profession, was then studying law in a distant city. He came to me and said that for lack of funds he must stop his studying unless through stenography I would give him sketches of sermons, that he might by the sale of them secure means for the completion of his education. I positively declined, because it seemed to me an impossibility, but after some months had passed and I had reflected upon the great sadness for such a brilliant young man to be defeated in his ambition for the legal profession, I undertook to serve him; of course, free of charge. In a few weeks there came a request for those stenographic reports from many parts of the continent. Time passed on and some gentlemen of my own profession, evidently thinking that there was hardly room for them and for myself in this continent, began to assail me, and became so violent in their assault that the chief newspapers of America put special correspondents in my church Sabbath by Sabbath to take down such reply as I might make.

I never made reply, except once for about three minutes, but those correspondents could not waste their time and so they telegraphed the sermons to their particular papers. After a while Dr. Louis Klopsch, of New York, systematized the work into a syndicate until through that and other syndicates he has put the discourses week by week before more than 30,000,000 people on both sides the sea. There have been so many guesses on this subject, many of them inaccurate, that I now tell the true story. I have not improved the opportunity as I ought, but I feel the time has come when as a matter of common justice to the newspaper press, I should make this statement in a sermon commemorative of the two thousandth full publication of sermons and religious addresses, saying nothing of fragmentary reports, which would run up into many thousands more.

There was one incident that I might mention in this connection, showing how an insignificant event might influence us for a lifetime. Many years ago on a Sabbath morning on my way to church in Brooklyn, a representative of a prominent newspaper met me and said: "Are you going to give us any points to-day?" I said: "What do you mean by points?" He replied: "Anything we can remember." I said to myself, "we ought to be making points all the time in our pulpits and not deal in platitudes and inanities." That one interrogation put to me that morning started in me the desire of making points all the time and nothing but points

And now, how can I more appropriately commemorate the two thousandth publication than by speaking of the newspaper press as an ally of the pulpit, and mentioning some of the trials of newspaper men?

The newspaper is the great educator of the nineteenth century. There is no force compared with it. It is book, pulpit, platform, forum, all in one. And there is not an interest—religious, literary, commercial, scientific, agricultural or mechanical—that is not within its grasp. All our churches, and schools, and colleges, and asylums, and art galleries feel the quaking of the printing press.

The institution of newspapers arose in Italy. In Venice the first newspaper was published, and monthly, during the time Venice was warring against Solyman the second. The object was printed for the purpose of giving military and commercial information to the Venetians. The first newspaper published in England was in 1588, and called the English Mercury. Who can estimate the political, scientific, commercial and religious revolutions roused up in England for many years past by the press?

The first attempt at this institution in France was in 1631, by a physician, who published the News for the amusement and health of his patients. The French nation understood fully how to appreciate this power. So early as in 1820 there were in Paris 109 journals. But in the United States the newspaper has come to unlimited sway. Though in 1775 there were but 37 in the whole country, the number of published journals is now counted by thousands, and to-day—we may as well acknowledge it as not—the religious and secular newspapers are the great educators of the country.

But alas! through what struggle the newspaper has come to its present development. Just as soon as it began to demonstrate its power, superstition and tyranny shackled it. There is nothing that despotism so much fears and hates as the printing press. A great writer in the south of Europe declared that the King of Naples had made it unsafe for him to write on any subject save natural history. Austria could not bear Kossuth's journalistic pen pleading for the redemption of Hungary. Napoleon I, wanting to keep his iron heel on the neck of nations, said that the newspaper was the regent of kings, and the only safe place to keep an editor was in prison. But the great battle for the freedom of the press was fought in the courtrooms of England and the United States before this century began, when Hamilton made his great speech in behalf of the freedom of J. Peter Zenger's Gazette in America, and when Erskine made the like great speech in behalf of the freedom to publish Paine's "Right of Man" in England.

Those were the Marathon and the Thermopylae where the battle was fought which decided the freedom of the press in England and America, and all the powers of the earth and hell will never again be able to put upon the printing press the handcuffs and the hopples of literary and political despotism! It is remarkable that Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, also wrote these words: "If I had to choose between a government without newspapers and newspapers without a government I would prefer the latter." Stung by some new fabrication in print, we come to write or speak about an unbridled printing press. Our new book ground up in unjust criticism, we come to write or speak about the "unfair printing press." Perhaps through our own indistinctness of utterance we are reported as saying just the opposite of what we did say, and there is a small riot of semicolons and hyphens and commas, and we come to write or talk about the "blundering printing press," or we take up a newspaper full of social scandal and of cases of divorce and we write or talk about a "filthy, scurrilous printing press." But this morning I ask you to consider the immeasurable and everlasting blessing of a good newspaper.

I find no difficulty in accounting for the world's advance. What has made the change? "Books," you say. No, sir! The vast majority of citizens do not read books. Take this audience, or any other promiscuous assemblage, and how many histories have they read? How many treatises on constitutional law, or political economy, or works of science? How many elaborate poems or books of travel? Not many. In the United States the people would not average one such book a year for each individual! Whence, then, this intelligence, this capacity to talk about all themes, secular and religious, this acquaintance with science and art; this power to appreciate the beautiful and grand? Next to the Bible the newspaper, swift winged and everywhere present, flying over the housetops, under the door, tossed into the counting house, laid on the work bench, hawked through the cars! All read it; white and black, German, Irishman, Swiss, Spaniard, American, old and young, good and bad, sick and well, before breakfast and after tea. Monday morning, Saturday night, Sunday and week day. I now declare that I consider the newspaper to be the grand agency by which the Gospel is to be preached, ignorance cast out, oppression dethroned, crime extirpated, the world raised, Heaven rejoiced and God glorified.

In the clanking of the printing press, as the sheets fly out, I hear the voice of the Lord Almighty proclaiming to all the dead nations of the earth, "Lazarus, come forth!" and to the retreating surges of darkness, "Let there be light!" In many of our city newspapers, professing no more than secular information, there have appeared during the past 30 years some of the grandest appeals in behalf of religion, and some of the most effective interpretations of God's government among the nations.

There are only two kinds of newspapers—the one good, very good; the other bad, very bad. A newspaper may be started with an undecided character, but after it has been going on for years everybody finds out just what it is; and it is very good or it is very bad. The one paper is the embodiment of news, the ally of virtue, the foe of crime, the delectation of elevated taste, the mightiest agency on earth for making the world better. The other paper is the brigand among moral forces; it is a beslimer of reputation. It is the right arm of death and hell, it is the mightiest agency in the universe for making the world worse and battling against the cause of God. The one is an angel of intelligence and mercy, and the other a fiend of darkness. Between the Archangel and this Fury is to be fought the great battle which is to decide the fate of the world. If you have any doubt as to which is to win in the great prophecies, ask God; the chief batteries with which He would vindicate the right and thunder down the wrong are now unlimbered. The great Armageddon of the nations is not to be fought with swords, but with steel pens; not with bullets, but with type; not with cannon, but with lightning perfecting presses; and the Sumters, and Moultries, and the Pulaskis, and the Gibraltars of that conflict will be the editorial and reportorial rooms of our great newspaper establishments. Men of the press, God has put a more stupendous responsibility upon you than upon any other class of persons. What long strides your profession has made in influence and power since the day when Peter Schaeffer invented cast metal type, and because two books were found just alike they were ascribed to the work of the devil; and books were printed on strips of bamboo; and Rev. Jesse Glover originated the first American printing press; and the common council of New York, in solemn resolution, offered $200 to any printer who would come there and live; and when the speaker of the house of parliament in England announced with indignation that the public prints had recognized some of their doings, until in this day, when we have in this country many thousands of skilled stenographers, and newspapers sending out copies by the billion. The press and the telegraph have gone down into the same great harvest field to reap, and the Lord Almighty says to the newspaper, "I'll rake, while you bind;" and the iron teeth of the telegraph are set down at one end of the harvest field and drawn clean across, and the newspaper gathers up the sheaves, setting down one sheaf on the breakfast table in the shape of a morning newspaper, and putting down another sheaf on the tea table in the shape of an evening newspaper; and that man who neither reads nor takes a newspaper would be a curiosity. What vast progress since the days when Cardinal Wolsey declared that either the printing press must go down or the Church of God must go down, to this time, when the printing press and the pulpit are in glorious combination and alliance.

One of the great trials of this newspaper profession is the fact that they are compelled to see more of the shams of the world than any other profession. Through every newspaper office, day by day, go the weakness of the world, the vanities that want to be puffed, the revenges that want to be wreaked, all the mistakes that want to be corrected, all the dull speakers who want to be thought eloquent, all the meanness that wants to get its wares noticed gratis in the editorial columns in order to save the tax of the advertising column, all the men who want to be set right who never were right, all the crack-brained philosophers, with story as long as his hair and as gloomy as their finger nails, all the itinerant bores, who come to stay five minutes and stop an hour. From the editorial and reportorial rooms all the follies and shams of the world are seen day by day and the temptation is to believe neither in God, nor man nor woman. It is no surprise to me that in your profession there are some skeptical men. I only wonder that you believe anything. Unless an editor or a reporter has in his present or in his early home a model of earnest character, or he throw himself upon the upholding grace of God, he may make temporal and eternal shipwreck.

Another great trial of the newspaper profession is the inadequate compensation. Since the days of Hazlitt, and Sheridan, and John Milton, and the wailings of Grub street, London, literary toil, with very few exceptions, has not been properly requited. When Oliver Goldsmith received a friend in his house, he (the author), had to sit on the window because there was only one chair. Linnaeus sold his splendid work for a ducat. De Foe the author of so many volumes, died penniless. The learned Johnson died behind a screen because his clothes were too shabby to allow him to dine with the great men, who, on the other side of the screen, were applauding his works. And so on down to the present time literary toil is a great struggle for bread. The world seems to have a grudge against a man who, as they say, gets his living by his wits; and the day laborer says to the man of literary toil: "You come down here and shove a plane, and hammer a shoe last, and break cobble stones, and earn an honest living as I do, instead of sitting there in idleness scribbling." But there are no harder worked men in all the earth than the newspaper people of this country. It is not a matter of hard times; it is characteristic at all times. Men have a better appreciation for that which appeals to the stomach than for that which appeals to the brain. They have no idea of the immense financial and intellectual exhaustion of the newspaper press. Oh, men of the press, it will be a great help to you, if when you get home late at night, fagged out and nervous with your work, you would just kneel down and commune with your case in God, who has watched all the fatigues of the day and the night, and who has promised to be your God and the God of your children forever!

When I see the printing press standing with the electric telegraph on the one side gathering up material, and the lightning express on the other side waiting for the tons of folded sheets of newspapers, I pronounce it the mightiest force in our civilization. So I commend you to pray for all those who manage the newspapers of the land, all typesetters, for all editors, for all publishers, that sitting or standing in positions of such great influence, they may give all that influence for God and the betterment of the human race. An aged woman making her living by knitting unwound the yarn from the ball until she found in the center of the ball a piece of an old newspaper. She opened it and read an advertisement which announced that she had become heiress to a large property, and that fragment of a newspaper plucked her up from pauperism to affluence. And I do not know but as the thread of time unrolls and unwinds a little further, through the silent yet speaking newspaper may be found the vast inheritance of the world's redemption.

REPRESENTATIVE YOUNG, of Philadelphia, represents a district having the largest population in the United States. The vote in 1896 was 59,147 for Young, republican; 16,536 for Cunningham, democrat, and 538 scattering—total 76,221. Ten wards in the city of Philadelphia constitute the district, which has a population of 809,983. The congressional district having the smallest area in the country is the Tenth of New York, which is composed of the Ninth, Thirteenth and Fifteenth assembly districts in the city of New York, and has a population of 150,537. The district having the smallest population is the state of Nevada.

THE largest cable is the manilla hawser which was used to tow the dry dock in Havana. It is 22 inches in circumference, but it is by no means the largest that ever has been made. There are at least two others of a greater circumference, but both older. One of these had a circumference of 23 inches, and was used for the purpose of anchoring the ship North Carolina in a navy yard at Brooklyn, while the other was 24-inch hawser, which was used as a sheet anchor cable on the Tennessee when she was stationed in the Mediterranean in the sixties.

UNITE IN COMMON CAUSE

Strong Pleas for the Unification of Silver Forces.

The Leading Members of the Silver Democrats, Silver Republicans and Populists Issue Addresses Urging Unity of Action.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The addresses on behalf of the democratic, populist and silver republican parties, which are the result of the conferences which have been in progress among the leaders of these parties at the capitol for the past few weeks, were issued Tuesday. They seek to unite the members of the three parties in future elections upon the financial issue as the question of paramount importance, and are separate appeals to each of the parties to consolidate all along the lines for this purpose.

Address of the Democrats.

The democratic address is as follows:

"To the People: The surrender of the republican party to the enemies of the gold standard and monopoly is at last complete. The present administration, called to power upon the solemn pledge of the republican national convention at St. Louis to promote bimetallism, has formally declared for a gold basis, a bill, the leading purpose of which, the honorable secretary of the treasury avows, is to commit the country more thoroughly to the gold standard.

"The country has already, for 24 years, been as thoroughly committed to that standard, partially by law and partially by the usurpations of the executive branch of the government, that its effects are seen and felt on every hand; wages are reduced; work is harder to get; the burden of debt is doubled; the value of land and other property is reduced one-half or more; millions of the people are in distress and face to face with hard bondage. It is certainly not in the interest of humanity to have this condition of things more thoroughly established.

"A continued rise in the value of gold, of which is the same thing, the continued fall of prices, must inevitably transfer the property of all those engaged in active business, to the actual creditors of society, whether by hand, brain or capital, to those who, avoiding the risk and effort of active business, only deal in money.

Brought Commercial Disaster.

"The increase of 145 per cent. in the value of money, caused by its increasing scarcity from 1849 to 1865, as a result of the leading advocates of the gold standard, found expression at that time in extremely low prices and conditions of universal disaster. The discovery of gold and silver in extraordinary quantities and the consequent increase in the volume of the world's money resulting therefrom relieved this distress and brought instead prosperity and happiness. Prices rose, business flourished, producers prospered, all were happy. Substantially the same conditions would have continued if both the precious metals had been allowed to remain in use as money, because as they were being found in excess sufficient quantities to increase the volume of money in proportion to the increased business. A wicked conspiracy, however, deprived one of them of the money function. This was done for the express purpose of raising the value of the other by rendering the supply of metallic money relatively scarcer, a compound result of which the hour of the consummation of this crime mankind has suffered commercial disaster and social distress of constantly increasing measure. Just in proportion to the growth of arts and invention and the expansion of commerce, business and industry, the inadequacy of the volume of gold to the demand, unsatisfied, its value increased.

"The repression of life and happiness, which is inseparable from falling prices and declining prices, has now checked development, and if continued, will ultimately strike civilization. As President Andrews, President Andrews, of Brown university, some years ago said:

"'Our national debt on September 1, 1865, was $2,750,000,000; it could then have been paid off with 15,000,000 tons of pig iron. When it had been reduced to $1,250,000,000, 30,000,000 bales of cotton, or 22,000,000 tons of iron would have been required to pay it. In other words, while a nominal shrinkage of about 55 per cent. had taken place in the debt, it had, as measured in either of these two world staples, actually been enlarged by more than 50 per cent.

"'Although more than half the principal of this enormous debt, and nearly all of the accumulated interest, had been paid by the labor of the United States, the holders of the bonds—the class that has always lived by the labor of the people than they held before those enormous payments had been even begun. This rapid increase in the power of lives and liberty of the laboring millions of this country is the most stupendous crime that has been committed against the cause of civilization. Unless a government of the people, by the people and for the people, has perished from the earth, surely the present boldly-avowed scheme, not only to continue but to increase these evils, will not be permitted. In addition to this purpose of more thoroughly establishing the gold standard, the plan of the administration is to retire the paper money of the government, to issue gold bonds, and to increase the power, privileges and profits of national banks.

To Benefit the Banks.

"The retirement of government paper money must reduce the volume of circulation, and, while the secretary admits that the contraction of currency would be more ruinous in two years than now, yet he proposes to have the national banks reimburse it in 'any kind of legal tender money, at the option of the banks.' We are frankly told that legal tender money is be made relatively scarcer than it is now, and that it is intended that under the operation of the bill it will be impossible to get gold than lawful money.' Practically all of the money in the hands of the people will be such as the secretary distinctly admits is silver, chiefly in the form of silver certificates. The avowed object of the bill is to make it hereafter more difficult to get these then gold.

The Monetary Commission's Plan.

"The monetary commission, selected by the executive committee of a self-constituted Indianapolis convention, which assembled for the sole purpose of urging the propositions of the secretary of the treasury in all material particulars, has made a report and promulgated a bill, the provisions of which are strikingly like the propositions of the secretary of the treasury in all material particulars, and which, when compared and harmonized before either was given to the public. This report and bill are somewhat remarkable for the assertion of the purposes entertained—that is even the proposition of Mr. Gage. These distinctly propose that silver dollars shall not hereafter be coined; that standard silver dollars shall be redeemed in gold; that the silver bullion on hand at present shall be sold, and suggest that silver dollars may also be melted down and sold as bullion. We are assured that the notes of the banks cannot fail to be safe, because, being based upon all the resources of all the banks issuing them, they are based upon the whole business of the country.

"Certainly no bank will become liable for the notes issued by another bank over which it has no control or supervision; hence this scheme must contemplate the establishment of some central bank authority, having the exclusive control of the issue of all paper money—a great bank trust, pool or syndicate, with powers such as no man has ever before had the audacity to suggest. This committee has called upon commercial bodies all over the country to indorse their report. Thus the people are put upon full notice of the scheme intended, and of the means of its accomplishment.

Urged to Unite.

"In view of the great principle involved, and of the danger so close at hand, we urge the people everywhere to arouse themselves, and at once take steps to save themselves and their children from the fetters now being openly forged to bind them. In recent years there has been a number of instances of congressional districts where the advocates of gold and monopoly were largely outnumbered by their opponents, and where, nevertheless, by a failure to unite and act together, friends of the gold standard have been successful. Thus in the result of a personal or partisan triumph the cause of truth and justice has been overshadowed, the interest of humanity ignored and the greatest good to the government subordinated to an ignoble strife. We appeal to you to let this not be the case again. Our only danger is in division. If we are in earnest we must have harmony amongst ourselves. If there should be those who would divide us, let them be summarily and emphatically rebuked by the people, who have none but high and patriotic motives.

"After the bold declaration of the administration in favor of the gold standard no success in this behalf can ever again, by the vote or influence, of aid or encouragement to the republican party. The issue is joined, and cannot avoid it if we would. Either the friends of bimetallism or the advocates of the gold standard, trusts and monopolies must succeed. Who is not for us is against us. We are asking no man to abandon his party or change his political views. We ask no one to yield any principles; but in this great contest we do appeal to all good men to stand solidly together for liberty and humanity and strike down forever this conspiracy of gold and monopoly.

"JAMES K. JONES,
"Chairman Democratic National Committee."

THE POPULISTS.

Appeal of the Executive Committee for Unity of Action.

The populist address in part is as follows:

"The conspiracy of gold and monopoly is reaching its culmination. Every advance it has made during the last 25 years has been by deliberate and stealthy processes. These would have been impossible if it had not had its agents and confederates holding positions of public trust in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the government. Neither the beneficiaries nor the tools of this conspiracy have any particular politics. In name the last administration was democratic. The present administration is called republican, but it has ingloriously practiced and defended the perfidious policies of its predecessor.

Make a Bold Stand.

"At length the selfish and brutal interests behind this conspiracy deem themselves strong enough to dispense with the caution and duplicity hitherto necessary to their success. The administration boldly avows its indorsement of their scheme against the liberty and prosperity of the people. It thanks it has been completed and sent to congress a bill the leading purpose of which is, in the words of the secretary of the treasury, 'to commit the country more thoroughly to the gold standard.'

"This country has during the past 24 years suffered enough of the blighting effects of the gold standard, so far as fraudulent legislation and executive usurpation have been able to establish it. It is now boldly proposed to legalize what has been done in defiance of law and to use the power secured by false pretenses from a long-suffering and too trustful people to put upon this infamous design the stamp of alleged popular authorization.

Plan of the Administration.

"In the pursuit of this purpose of committing the country more thoroughly to the gold standard the plan of this administration, as of its predecessor, is to retire greenbacks and other noninterest-bearing paper money of the government, to issue in their stead gold bonds and to increase the powers, privileges and profits of national banks. This movement would turn over the duty of supplying the people's money, the very lifeblood of business, to a national banking aristocracy and foreign gold syndicate and its American agents and allies.

"In every campaign the gold syndicate and all the trusts and monopolies combine. They select the conventions they desire to control. They select the candidates that they have selected. Of course they control them after they are elected. Therefore those who are not their agents and who would not submit to their tyrannous rule are thoroughly unanimously opposed. The allied combination of gold and monopoly.

Must Be United.

"The only hope of the enemy is to divide us. Therefore let us be more united and harmonious than ever, and, further, let us organize without delay a vigorous campaign in every state and congressional district, county and precinct. There are but two sides to this mighty and portentous conflict—all those, whatever party, who favor the conspiracy of gold and monopoly, who favor industrial slavery, widespread poverty and national destruction, should be on one side; and all of those of whatever party who oppose this deadly design, who love truth and right, who love their homes and firesides, who love the principles of liberty declared by Jefferson and reasserted by Jackson and Lincoln should be on the other side. There is no room on the map. Then let us, maintaining at all times party integrity, invite the harmonious cooperation of all who are in the same end.

"The ominous dangers threatening the institutions of the republic make this the highest duty that has ever been clearly drawn. We cannot avoid the conflict if we would. Therefore let us arouse to the utmost and to all organizations and parties that oppose this conspiracy—that oppose the government of the trusts, by the trusts and for the trusts, that oppose and will not submit to the despotism of sordid wealth—to their rescue. We know that courage and manhood are not dead. A large part of the American people realize the wrongs and the dangers, the dangers, and are ready and anxious to fight this system to the end. The issue is all-important. The right is with us and the friends of liberty everywhere are awaiting the patriotic call to fight a battle that is common to all. Common for if this be done, and we shall strive everytory to inglorious defeat. Let this be done, and we shall reestablish what is almost overthrown: the government of the people, by the people and for the people."

(Signed) MARION BUTLER
And 25 senators and representatives of the populist party.

SILVER REPUBLICANS.

They Join in the Appeal for a United Stand.

The paper of the silver republicans concludes as follows:

"While this issue remains unsettled, democrats, populists and silver republicans must stand shoulder to shoulder in a common cause. United we can save the republic, and to this object we must subordinate every remaining hope of liberty, to succeeding centuries. The policy of our foes is to conquer us that they may conquer us. Let not self-interest, pride, carelessness or folly afford them hope that we shall not act in unison and ourselves. In every state and congressional district in the union the closest cooperation should be our watchword. After full counsel together we should, wherever there is a contest, choose that candidate whose support of our cause and to him should be given the true allegiance and earnest support of every friend of liberty, regardless of gold and monopoly. The men or organization that in this grave crisis needlessly complicate the issue, or in councils or divides energies does not deserve the blessings we are all striving for.

"Patriots and Citizens: We call upon you to unite in this great common service and to forget party and past partisan ties. No existing organization need be disbanded. While striving to overthrow a common enemy, no good purpose is served by emphasizing points on which we differ, but until this final assault of the enemy upon the last ramparts of our industrial and social liberties is repelled, until the control of the money system of the country is rescued and secured to the whole people, members of the great armies of political reform in every part of the United States should act in mutual justice and harmonious cooperation for the general welfare. To this object, thus urged upon our friends everywhere, we hereby pledge, jointly and severally, our earnest and constant endeavor."

CHARLES A. TOWNE,
Chairman National Committee of the Silver-Republican Party, Eight Silver-Republican Senators and Representatives and Free Coinage.

—Germany is doing only what France, Canada, Mexico and half a dozen other nations have done, but in a more direct way. Anyone with an ounce of common sense should have realized when the Dingley blunder was in process of hatching, declaring commercial war on the whole world on the pretense of protecting American interests, that we were taking the first step to impair or destroy their interests. When we get blows in return at least in self-respect we should hold our peace and not whine.—Pittsburgh Post.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 15.—SENATE—The following bills were introduced Monday: To amend section 428 of civil code by adding the following words: "But no such actions shall be brought by an heir, devisee, legatee or distributee within nine months, or by a creditor within six months next after the first personal representative qualified;" to authorize the auditor to relinquish claims for taxes on property due since 1889, in order to prevent clouding of title; to amend section 71 of the charter of Louisville by striking out of said section after the words "some board to the other." Senator Shanks called up the bill to allow trust companies to be organized and operated in any county, and it passed unanimously.

HOUSE—The committee on constitutional amendments reported favorably Monday on the bill proposing an amendment to the constitution to allow the people to vote on the proposition to move the state capital from Frankfort to Lexington. Representative Chinn moved to suspend the rules and take up the McChord railroad freight rate bill. It takes a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules, and the opponents of the bill thought they could defeat the motion, but it carried by 61 to 33, and the bill was taken up.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 16.—SENATE—The senate had a long and exciting fight Tuesday over the Roberts local option bill, which came up as a special order in that branch. The bill strikes a blow at the liquor traffic by giving to local option precincts in every county in the state where the country vote is larger than that in the incorporated towns in them. It was introduced by Senator Roberts, the preacher senator from Owsley county, and warmly championed by the biggest lobby that has been here on any measure this winter. The lobby was composed of the local representatives of the W. C. T. U. and other such organizations. Senator Bronston and several other leading democrats joined the advocates of the measure, and the administration lobby, led by Senator Goebel, to break a quorum to prevent its passage.

HOUSE—Bills introduced; Prohibiting the running of trains on Sunday except those carrying mails; prohibiting freight; requiring the act which prohibits insurance agents from giving a part of their commission to the party insured as an inducement to secure business; providing for the continuous session of magistrates' courts in cities of the second class; requiring night cars on street railway lines in cities of the first and second class; authorizing third-class cities to become incorporated into insurance companies for the purpose of insuring property in such cities at a rate in competition with foreign insurance companies. The bill requiring the school census in cities of the first class to be taken annually, instead of every five years, was passed by a vote of 72 to 17.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 17.—SENATE—The local option bill came up in the senate Wednesday over the appeal from the decision of the chair. A lively parliamentary battle was expected, and the lobbies were crowded with the friends and opponents of the bill. Pending the question took the chair pending the appeal. Senator Hays moved to postpone the whole matter till Thursday on account of the illness of Senator Alexander—a very proper motion, by the way. The motion was defeated—yeas 19, nays 19. The question was then put on sustaining the chair's decision and resulted—yeas 20, nays 19. No quorum voting the appeal remained undisposed. Further consideration of the bill was postponed until Thursday. The house bill to regulate the manner of paying out money on the "scrip" or substitute offered by the committee, was passed. The substitute provides that the miners shall be paid in lawful money on or before the 15th of each month for the previous month's work, or else the operator must issue to them interest-bearing due bills.

HOUSE—The house spent over four hours Wednesday discussing the Bronston primary election law bill, which was finally passed by a vote of 63 to 31. All the republicans present voted against the bill and eight democrats. The bill as passed provides for the election by the present legislature, of three election commissioners, for two, four and six years respectively, who shall take charge of both penitentiaries at once and conduct them under the present garden system. The salary of the commissioners is fixed at $2,000. Representative Williams moved to reconsider the vote by which his blackberry wine license law was lost. The motion is under consideration and the bill passed. It requires a license to sell blackberry wine. The bill to prevent the killing of quail for five years was passed by a vote of 71 to 9. Persons made liable for loss of life and property caused by mobs was reported adversely by the committee and killed.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 18.—SENATE—Measures passed: Resolution providing for a committee of three senators to investigate the condition of the asylum for incurables in needs; bill authorizing the city of Henderson to establish a free high school; bill providing that county school superintendents shall keep a record of all schoolhouses, grounds, etc., and relieving county clerks from further duties in that connection; to regulate the price of circus licenses by the number of cars used to transport the show. The local option bill came up on the appeal from the decision of the chair. President Pro Tem Goebel being absent, Senator McClure was called to the chair. The opponents of the bill again refused to vote and succeeded in breaking a quorum, and the appeal remained undisposed of.

HOUSE—The house held its first afternoon session Thursday and resumed consideration of the bill to allow a majority vote to authorize turnpike bonds instead of two-thirds. It was passed by 57 to 33. The bill to appropriate $10,000 to assist in the erection of a monument to the A. and M. college was defeated—yeas, 15; nays, 65. The bill to require the railroad commission to assess the franchise value of railroads as well as the tangible property was passed—yeas, 67; nays, 9.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 19.—Both houses of the legislature Friday adopted resolutions providing that when they adjourn Saturday it will be till Wednesday. It was bill day in the senate and Senator Senative Adams of Todd introduced a bill which is intended to gerrymander the Third congressional district. Congressman Rhea came here Friday to cause the bill. Senator Goebel, chairman of the joint democratic caucus, Friday morning issued a call to meet at 8 o'clock Friday night to take action on the Goebel election bill. Finance, Judiciary, Education, Union and other party leaders are here working for the bill. Chairman Johnston, of the state central committee, Hon. D. B. Smith and other prominent democrats are working for the measure openly, and a split in the caucus would not be a surprise.

Ex-Attorney General Miller Ill.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 19.—W. H. H. Miller, attorney general of the United States under President Harrison, was taken seriously ill with a congestive chill Thursday and much alarm was felt over his condition during the day. At one time it was not thought that he would survive the attack. In the evening he rallied somewhat from the prostration and is now much improved. His physician is with him constantly.

Would Incriminate Her Nieces.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 17.—Hunter Varilla and Herbert Ward, charged with having chloroformed and robbed Mrs. Catharine Hite last week, were dismissed in the city court. Mrs. Hite refused to prosecute, because it would incriminate her nieces, who were in love with the men.

Blue Grass Farm Sold.

VERSAILLES, Ky., Feb. 17.—Roger E. Early, of this county, Wednesday purchased the stock farm of E. Z. Simmons, three miles east of Lexington, on the Maysville turnpike, in Fayette county, for $42,500 cash, or $101 an acre.

THE WORLD NEEDS MONEY.

Silver as Well as Gold Necessary for Currency.

The world needs much money, and will need more of it in the future. A number of the prominent nations of the earth are now practically on a paper basis, having never been able to obtain enough metallic money to make specie payments possible. More than two thousand millions of dollars of gold and silver are yet necessary to the currencies of the world before this out-standing paper can be taken up. Here alone is a gulf that will swallow up the products of several Klondikes.

The world needs vast coinages of gold and silver to make good the losses that are constantly being sustained. Dentistry alone is using up a large amount of the precious metals, both of silver and gold. In this country it is estimated that gold and silver to the value of two thousand millions has been used in the dental business and that most of this metal has gone into the graveyards, and the rest is on the way there. But the use of gold and silver in the dental arts is an incident of civilization. What about the swarming millions of people that are even at this time being brought under civilization and under the hand of the dentist! Where civilization goes, there the dentist goes with his supply of gold and silver for his work. In the savage lands, where the sun of a new era is even now rising, stand a billion people, whose mouths are ready to swallow up the precious products of Australia, Peru and Alaska.

New nations are being born and demanding that their names be placed on the scroll of civilized nations. With their birth commerce springs up, and with it comes the demand for currencies that are recognized as such by the nations of the world. These reach out their hands and ask for the golden and silver treasure. Whence shall they be supplied? When the whole earth has been placed on a commercial basis the problem of the currencies will indeed be a stupendous one, for the reason that the earth gives no promise of being able to supply the money metals in sufficient quantities to meet the demands of trade. What does the entire world's harvest of gold and siler amount to when scattered among 1,300,000,000 people? Even if the yearly product were to be $300,000,000, the per capita would be but 20 cents, and this 20 cents would have to supply currency, dental material, gold for watches, rings, bracelets, settings for stones, material for plates and household utensils, gold leaf, gilding, silver knives, forks, cups and a thousand other articles of use and luxury too numerous to be recited.

And where is all of this vast supply to be obtained? The history of the world shows that countries and continents become exhausted of their precious metals. With all the new inventions for extracting the metals, are they finding any new mines in Europe? No; the once rich Europe has been practically exhausted, and the same is true of the long accessible portions of Asia and of Africa—yes, even of South America and California. Australia even has become inkewarm. Only in lands newly accessible are rich mines being opened. The world needs both of its money metals.

H. F. THURSTON.

A STEAL IN THE TARIFF.

It Was Passed to Protect Trusts and Monopolies.

Gradually the people are beginning to find out why the tariff law was passed. It was not passed to secure revenue nor was it passed to improve the condition of wage-workers. It was passed to protect trusts. Its operations have increased the profits of all the great combines of this country and have caused a vast number of new combines to be formed. At the same time, and as a necessary consequence, the cost of living has been increased, the trusts being placed in a position to charge consumers more for the necessities of life. That little differential on sugar alone costs the American people $20,000,000 a year. The treasury of the United States does not get one cent out of this vast tax on the consumers. The workingmen see their wages reduced and the trust puts $20,000,000 in its pockets and insolently demands: "What are you going to do about it?" Such oppression cannot go on forever. It was made possible through fraud, intimidation and misrepresentation. All these forces are now recognized by the masses, and there is going to be such a revolution in 1900 that the trusts will have no occasion to ask: "What are you going to do about it?" This question will be answered at the ballot box by an outraged and indignant people.

Away Behind.

The republicans organs had a lot to say about the little surplus the Dingley bill scraped up in December, but their silence on the January deficit of $7,000,000 is most profound. This would indicate that they don't even find the outlook encouraging, for an occasional shortage is not a thing to be discouraged over. Touching on the prospect, the Albany Argus says: "It is still regarded as improbable that the Dingley tariff can, in a full normal year, produce enough revenue from customs to make up the amount required for the expenditures of the government. The treasury statements show that for the first seven months under that law the deficit was $43,854,791, so that a gain of more than $10,000,000 a month will be required for the next five months to overcome the deficit. The republican party will be held responsible for this failure, and its political effect will be apparent in the congressional elections." It is noted, however, that the republicans have already begun to bring their philosophy to bear on their expected defeat in the congressional elections."—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

LETTER FROM A BUSINESS MAN.

Some Pointed Queries Concerning the Gold Standard.

The following letter was recently addressed to the New York Journal of Commerce. So far as we know that paper has refused to print the communication. This is the favorite plan with goldbug editors when confronted by logic in favor of the Chicago platform. We print the letter here word for word:

"The secretary of the treasury, in his report published in Messages and Documents, 1896-1897, page 291, says that a conservative estimate of the total deposits in all banks of the United States aggregate over $5,000,000,000. On page 290 he says: 'On July 1, the total gold and gold certificates holdings of the banks of the country on that date was $302,758,367.' Now if all obligations are to be paid in gold, payable in gold, as is desired by the [illegible] standard party, the total assets of the banks will be but six cents on the dollar, and if the circulating notes and silver dollars are to be made payable in gold there would not be five cents on the dollar as a basis for this huge debt to rest upon. Would not this make a very unsafe basis? It may be said there is about double the amount of gold somewhere in the country, but are there not other contingencies as well?

"The framers of the national bank act thought 25 per cent. reserve in large cities and 15 per cent. in smaller cities as little as could safely be gotten along with, which in practice is found too small when panic comes. What, then, would be the fate of banks when the slightest financial flurry or demand for gold arises, with such a small basis as five per cent.? Would not every bank in the United States have to close up in a very short time?

"It may be said that the banks would pay in notes, but as the notes would be redeemable in gold they would be presented for exchange into gold at the same time that depositors were eager for their money, making a double drain on the banks.

"The secretary of the treasury, on page 291, says: 'From May 4 to October 2, 1893, depositors called upon national banks to pay, in five months, $298,000,000. Now as national banks have not nearly half of the total deposits, it is only reasonable to assume that more than double as much money was withdrawn from banks during that period as there was gold in all the banks. What, then, would have been the result if all obligations had been at that time payable in gold? Would not all the banks have suspended?

"If the circulating bank notes are made payable in gold, will there not be quickly formed even in quiet times, agencies to present notes for the gold at banks or other places of redemption, for the purpose of creating a demand for gold to replenish their stock, and would there not be created, in consequence, a gold room of such magnitude and power that the one which existed after the war would be insignificant and lenient in comparison? Would not banks organize the ring be the first to cry out against its exactions and the gold standard?"

T. W. WOOD.

THEY WANT BRYAN.

Regarded as the Logical Candidate for 1900.

The numerous conferences held recently by the silver men in congress have culminated in an agreement on a plan for cooperation with respect to the elections to the next congress, both house and senate. The silver republicans and populists held a conference the other night in the committee room of Senator Allen, of Nebraska, and agreed upon a plan. Every silver republican and every populist, senator and representative, was present, and the conference was entirely harmonious and unanimously in favor of cooperation with the democrats in elections next fall, looking to a general cooperation in the presidential election of 1900. There was no opposition manifested to the plan which was proposed and adopted. This plan is for the three parties to cooperate in support of the candidates of each for election to the house and senate, to fill places now held by each, respectively.

There was also a unanimous expression of opinion during the informal discussion that Mr. Bryan was the logical candidate for the presidency of the cooperating silver forces. Cooperation will be encouraged in all sections. Ex-Representative Towne, the chairman of the silver republican national committee, it was decided, should go to Oregon for the purpose of assisting to a cooperation between the democrats, silver republicans and populists of that state for the election of two populist nominees for congress. The plan of cooperation contemplates that where seats in either house of congress are now held by a silver man in either of the three parties the united assistance of the three bodies shall be given to elect to that seat a man of the same party as the one now holding it.—Washington Star.

MUSIC IN A TOMB.

Mrs. Ireland Has a Music Box to Play Daily in a Vault.

Mrs. Ireland, widow of Robert Ireland, has decided to make Saratoga her home, the better to carry out the instructions of her husband, whose body rests in a vault in Greenridge cemetery annex, near Saratoga.

Mr. Ireland, who died four months ago, was passionately fond of music. Long ago he requested that, whichever of the two departed first, the survivor should honor the memory of the deceased by having a music box or some similar instrument placed in the sepulcher and played at frequent intervals.

Sexton Moslin agreed to allow Mrs. Ireland, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, to place a small oak table at the head of the casket, on which were a handsome music box and a vase of flowers. Widow Ireland, who carries the key of the music box, visits the cemetery daily, rain or shine, and pays musical reverence to the memory of the deceased. While the favorite airs of sacred melody are being rendered she calmly sits on the casket close to the vase and lovingly communes with the spirit of the deceased. More than 200 bodies are stored in the big vault, and as the silence is so dense that a heartbeat almost creates an echo, the impressive but weird notes of the music floating over the caskets and emerging through the iron-grated doors fairly border on the supernatural.

FOR BOARD OF MARRIAGES.

Proposed Ohio Law Putting Permits in the Hands of Physicians.

Representative Parker, of Cleveland, has introduced a bill in the Ohio legislature which entirely changes the manner of regulating marriages.

It provides for the appointment by the probate court of each county of a board of marriages composed of physicians. To this board, consisting of three members, persons who wish to marry must make application. The board will refuse to grant a license in case either party to the proposed contract has dipsomania, kleptomania, insanity, true or hereditary or resulting from vice; certain blood diseases or tuberculosis. It will charge $2.50 for each license, and out of the fund so made each member will be paid a salary of $1,000.

There is provided a method of appeal to the state board of health in case of any refusal to grant the license.

NEW SEAL BADLY NEEDED.

One Used on Government Bonds in Service Since 1862.

The seal of the treasury department, which has been used in the divisions of loans and currency of the secretary's office since 1862, and which has been impressed upon all the bonds issued by the United States since that year, is beginning to show signs of wear. The other morning the chief of the division showed the secretary an impress of the seal, and requested authority to have a new one engraved, which was given. It is an interesting fact that this seal has been impressed upon bonds of the face value of $10,297,534,000. Of this amount $4,756,714,000 were original issues of bonds, and the remainder were bonds issued in place of those surrendered for exchange or transfer.

GOTHAM WANTS A FAIR.

Bill to Authorize World's Exposition in New York in 1901.

Senator McNulty has introduced a bill into the New York legislature providing for a world's fair to be held in New York city in 1901.

The commissioners shall meet in New York city as soon as practicable after the passage of the bill, and shall draw up a plan for an exhibition of such magnitude as shall invite exhibitors from all parts of the world. The municipal assembly of New York may authorize the use of any park in the city.

Funds shall be provided by the comptroller of the city, who shall issue municipal stock to an amount of four per cent. scrip certificates not exceeding $5,000,000.

A Beautiful Girl's Affliction.

From the Republican, Versailles, Ind.

The Tuckers, of Versailles, Ind., like all fond parents, are completely wrapped up in their children. Their daughter Lucy, in particular, has given them much concern. She is fifteen, and from a strong, healthy girl, three years ago, had become weak and kept falling off in flesh until she became a mere skeleton. She seemed to have no life at all. Her blood became impure and finally she became the victim of nervous prostration. Doctors did not help her. Most of the time she was confined to bed, was very nervous and irritable, and seemed on the verge of St. Vitus' dance.

"One morning," said Mrs. Tucker, "the doctor told us to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which he brought with him. He said he was treating a similar case with these pills and they were curing the patient. We began giving the pills and the next day could see a change for the better.

The doctor came and was surprised to see such an improvement. He told us to keep giving her the medicine. We gave her one pill after each meal until eight boxes had been used when she was well. She has not been sick since, and we have no fear of the old trouble returning. We think the cure almost miraculous."

FRANK TUCKER.
MRS. FRANK TUCKER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 28th day of April, 1897.

HUGH JOHNSON, Justice of the Peace.

These pills are wonderfully effective in the treatment of all diseases arising from impure blood, or shattered nerve force. They are adapted to young or old, and may be had at any drug store.

G. C. Riley was returning from his brother's, driving a colt that had just been broken, and he drove into the creek to give his horse a drink and there happened to be a hole of which he knew nothing and the horse stepped in and went over his head, as soon as it came up it began to swim and Mr. Riley clung to him and the faithful animal landed him safely on the bank. Mr. Riley says he would not part with the horse that saved his life for anything. Now, boys, here is a lesson, "be good to your horse and he will be good to you."

Last Thursday night, or rather Friday morning, Ed Clegg was aroused by someone hallooing, and thinking it some person in distress, he arose and went to the door, but heard nothing more, and then concluded that some boys who were out were yelling just for fun. Next morning John Rouse came along and informed him that it was Jim Smith, who had been down to Mr Rouse's playing krokonole until after one o'clock, and had got lost on his way home. It was so dark Mr S. could not find his way. His wife kept a light burning until 12 o'clock, when she blew it out, having concluded he was not coming home.

What a difference it makes whose ox is gored. Several gentlemen have been commenting on the bill now before the legislature in regard to road overseers using their own teams and wagons for working on the roads. Of the ten overseers which I can call to mind, all but one, cultivates his entire farm with his team, and all but one owns small farms, and the pay for their teams is bread and meat for the overseer, finally to some extent, and the best work that has ever come under my notice, was done by the overseer with his own teams and hands. I have heard several persons say that they would not work their teams on roads under several overseers that I could mention. Now, what will overseers do for teams if that bill becomes a law, and who will want to become an overseer with such a fate staring him in the face? If the road law is left as it is at least a few men with good teams will accept the position, but without their own teams they have no assurance of teams when they want them.

Jas. A. Huey is the only man in this precinct who is building a house or any other kind of a building. He is building a tenement house on the Williams place.

Mr. O'Neal, of Verona, did not come down Saturday, as expected, but sent a note of regrets. The Union F. H. Association is prepared to offer Mr. O'Neal a kind, but warm reception and will be pleased to see him most any old time.

Burl Conner seems to be in line for bad luck—one of his horses kicked the other square in the forehead, with new shoes on, one of the corks crashing through the skull like a bullet. The horse is not dead but was made crazy by the blow.

Tom Burkitt lost one of his favorite dogs, last week. The dog wanted to eat up Burl Conner's lambs, so they gave him a "De Lome" passport over the waters where he may eatlamb and may not. Several farmers report dogs among their sheep, but no damage of consequence.

Joe Weaver drove out of Joe Scott's gate, last Thursday night, (it was open and Joe did not know it) and would have landed in the creek after a fall of 20 or 30 feet down a bank if his horse had not objected to committing suicide on such a dark, gloomy night and called a halt.

It is rumored that Geo. H. Stephenson has perfected a method by which dirt roads may be built for $650 per mile. The process consists of hardening the surface with a preparation that costs $3 per ton and makes the road almost as hard as iron. We have an invitation to inspect and will report.

The Maine disaster caused the strongest feeling of sorrow, hatred and revenge among our citizens, and although no Spanish flags have been burned and DeLome has not been hung in effigy, the people are a unit on the proposition to knock the dickens out of Spain on short notice. Your correspondent trotted in on one of our citizens as he read accounts of the terrible disaster and saw great tears trickling down his cheeks. Now Mr. Ed, don't you know that a stroug man who has a tender heart like that would fight a noise in the dark or the devil or a "Don" (three little differences) in his den. War might mean destruction, but better destruction than disgrace.

In many homes the RECORDER is a most welcome visitor. The letters from Frankfort and Washington are features that few county papers can or do afford, in fact no $1 paper contains any thing of the kind to our knowledge. The neighborhood news (Union items are excepted of course) is given in abundance and strictly in accordance with the facts. We were canvassing for the Recorder in Covington and Cincinnati, last year, and all the merchants solicited admitted it to be the best county paper they had seen in the Sixth District, better printed, better edited, &c. This being true, no Boone county man can help feeling proud and ought to be willing to pay $1 50 per year for it and have a "tip top" rather than a short skate $1 paper.

Florence

Martin Michaels, of the Erlanger neighborhood, gave one of the largest cotillion parties, last Saturday night, that it has been your reporter's pleasure to attend in many a day. His large residence was thrown opeu to the one hundred guests, and dauciug was continued until a late hour in three rooms. One of the features of the occasion was an elegant supper served. Those present were too numerous for us to attempt to enroll their names.

The party given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scott, on the eveuing of the 17th, was an enjoyable affair. Young people were there from far and near, and they tripped the light fantastic until a late hour, when they left for their several homes. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement. Mr. Holder and daughter extend their thanks to their many friends for the kindness shown them in their trouble.

The last reports from Smith, who was in the hospital so long, as the result of being shot by Hamliu, at the mouth of Gunpowder, say he had recovered sufficient to be discharged. To those who saw the wound, Smith's recovery is a great surprise, as they thought his death only a question of a very short time.

The Legislature ought to pass an act establishiug the line as recently located between Boone and Kenton counties as the legal line separating these two counties. Such an act will prevent an endless amount of litigation calculated to grow out of the supposed commissions of the two counties, which, in reality, had no authority to establish a line between the counties, that authority lying wholly with the General Assembly.

Mine host of the Boone House had an interesting experience with a trio of tramps, one night last week. It was after considerable palavering the price for the night's lodging and breakfast was agreed upon. The landlord had retired for the night, and the unexpected interruption of his repose ruffled his usually amiable disposition, which made the incident the more amusing to the would be lodgers, who were recognized by the hostess as soon as she appeared upon the scene.

A man and two women claiming to be from Ohio, called at the County Clerk's office, one day last week, and were not long in making their wants known, viz: That the man and younger woman, who looked to be 16 or 17, wanted license to marry, giving as a reason for coming to Burlington that two of the would be bride's sisters had been married in Kentucky, and she thought it would be so nice to marry in the same State. County Clerk Adams had no faith in their declarations that there were no objections on the part of any one, and refused to issue the much desired documents, and they took their departure very much disappointed. The party returned to Covington, where they were more successful, and were married

The Knights of Pythias conferred the third degree upon three candidates, Saturday night, and a large number of visiting brothers were present to witness the work. A Delightful Party.

The most recherche party of the season was given by Messrs. Tom Mathews and Chas. Schramm at Gordon's Hall, Petersburg on the 18th inst The stage was banked with beautiful foliage, plants and hyacinths in bloom, behind which sat the best harpist and violinist of which Cincinnati can boast. An elegant supper was served in three courses. Lemonade was constantly passed to every one. The ladies' and gentlemen's dressing rooms were fitted up to the "Queen's taste." In the ladies room, besides every toilet article that is requisite to a lady's toilet, was placed a large vase of pink and white roses at their disposal. In the gentlemens' room was a box of fine cigars. Each guest was given a handsome program with a pencil attached. Both ladies and gentlemen were handsomely attired in evening costume. There were about twenty couple present, the most of them from Lawrenceburg and Aurora. The Kentuckians present were Miss Lizzie Graddy, Mrs. Ben Smith, Mrs. E. L. Riley, Messrs. Hubert Walton, E L. Riley. Ben Berkshire, Ben Smith and wife, Will Cropper, Joe Ferris and Dr. Hays. Dancing was engaged in from 9 till 2, and then we reluctiantly turned our steps homeward, after thanking Mr. and Mrs. Mathews and Mr. Schramm for the most delightful evening in our memory.

Hicks' trading scalp, but their intended victim fought shy of them, and they returned home with their trading stock still on hand.

James Williamson, who resides on the river near the mouth of Middle creek, was a visitor to town, last Thursday. From his looks and carriage one not aware of his age would not suppose that he is one of the old men of this part of the county. He is in his 71st year, and barring the loss of teeth he is well preserved, and looks good for at least a couple of score more years' sojourn here below. He is as clever a gentleman as old Boone ever produced.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb'y. 21, 1898.

Again has Represeutative Conner, of Boone county, made another strong and effective fight ou an objectionable measure, which he believed was not for the best interests of the people of the state or of his owu constituency. I listened to his speech in the House last week in opposition to the Lackey bill establishing a medical college in connection with the A. and M. College at Lexington, and said to a friend who sat near me that if the gentleman's arguments didn't bear fruit I was not a judge of good sound logical conclusions and effective arguments. I was not mistaken. Dr. Lackey's bill was killed deader than a mackeral and that, too; within a few moments after Mr. Conner had concluded his speech opposing the new act in the House. He succeeded in dealing a death blow to the bill on the ground that it appropriated $10,000 of the state's money when it became effective, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the new octopus annually, and Mr. Conner stated, as everybody recognized the truth of the statement, that the state could ill afford to pile any more burdens on its already well loaded shoulders, and besides he thought it class legislation. This is an example of bad legislation can be scotched if there is enough members on hand who have the interests of their people at heart and devote their time to watching the work of the body they are a part of.

Mr. Conner is also opposed to the revolutionary Goebel election bill, which at present has split the party representatives and threatens to have anything but a salutary effect on the Democratic organization in future if it becomes a law. The House members 46 of them, lead the revolt against this unnecessary bill, and will caucus separately Wednesday afternoon prior to the joint caucus at night. I hope a compromise will be patched up.

The old Assembly Halls remind one of the deserted village of literary fame, today. The members have taken the first real home-going vacation of the session, this being their one accepted opportunity, Washington's birthday falling on the morrow. It took only the necessary suggestion for them to adjourn Saturday afternoon, over to Wednesday morning. And to-day there's not a corporal's guard on hand to enjoy the dullness of the state's capital city. But when it is known that some of the members who live at inaccessable points in the state, have not visited their homes since they came here, this little breathing spell can very easily be excused.

The fate of the prison commission and the McChord freight bills will be known by Thursday, and mayhap sooner, for they are both in the hands of the Governor. However, the action of the chief executive has been anticipated, and I believe correctly, in the Frankfort letters two weeks ago said then, as I repeat now, that Bradley would more than likely veto both measures, and that it would then be necessary for the Democratic majority to pass the bills over his head and thus enact them into the all important laws. The list of applicants for places under the new prison commission grows steadily, and John it almost impossible to keep up with the would-be commissioners and their homes.

As I sat in the Capital Hotel the other night I saw a strange man come in, glance around nervously and walk out. For some reason I was interested in the fellow and followed him out. On the steps he accosted me with this query: "Mr. please tell me how to git er bill thro the legislatur?" I informed my uneasy looking friend from the country, that it was a long and tiresome process the new bill must go through before it reached its happy destination. "Well," he answered "I bin enposed on by Bud Green fes long ez I'm gwine ter be, an I want 'er git a onjunction by the legislatur fur him." I then threw a little light on my friend's dilemma by telling him it was to the magistrate at home and not to the state law-makers, he must go with his grievance. But in reality that is the way some people look at the Assembly, as being a sort of public receptacle for the troubles of all.

The committee on charitable institutions, which has gone to iuspect the Eddyville penitentiary, left here on last Saturday evening, and its members will come back with facts and figures to burn. The committee is composed of Representative Thompson, of Meade; Nelson, of Hardin; Hinton of Bourbon; and Haswell, of Breckinridg, from the House and the following from the Senate: Senators Welch, of Jessamine; Jones of Bourbon, and Lay, of Barren.

Representative Gill, of Madison county, introduced a most notable measure last Friday, and one that is destiue to become a matter of moment if it gets up in the House. It provides for a fusion ticket of parties and amends the state election law so that the name of a candidate for office can be placed under two party devices and have the vote of both organizations counted for the candidate so running. It will be remembered that this device question has been a knotty problem where the Populists wanted to run and secure the votes of Democrats in county contests. This will obviate any further trouble in this regard.

Next week is the last one in which a bill can be introduced in either House with any possibility whatsoever of ever seeing its way clear to passage. In fact it is a pretty generally accepted fact that bills introduced this week are just so much time and paper and ink wasted for they stand practically no show. Still the ground hopper is heaped up with new measures, and some of them are of more than ordinary import. The calendars are full and the enrolling clerks without time to rest well in, but mark my words, this and next weeks will see more bills introduced than last and the week before did.

The numerous minor measures are being killed or so amended as to be small consideration. The bill fixing the out of sight license on cigarettes, which amounts practically to the knocking out of the little paper rolls, will probably get through. In the Senate the local option bill is still being bufletted about like a thin skift in a sea storm. This bill affects many counties, and if it passes it will deprive many a dry toper of his daily potionsor O'be joyful. I think it will be killed by obstruction and filibustering in the Senate, but if not it will provoke a red hot debate.

The appearance of those two lions of Democracy, Jo C. S Blackburn and Congressman John Rhea, on the floor of the House saturday afternoon, was the signal for a regular old hill-riding cheer from their admirers. They both spoke in the usual roseate vein and seemed happy because they were talking on their favorite theme, silver.

SOUTH AFRICAN gold mining companies last year took out $55,472,000 in gold, of which 90 per cent. was obtained in the Witwatersrand district. The greater part of this amount was produced by a few companies which paid enormous dividends, ranging from 10 to 50 per cent., and in two instances 100 per cent. of the capital.

PERHAPS the greatest waste of human life ever recorded was caused by the cutting of a canal in China. The work was begun in 1825, and though the canal was 28 miles long, 80 feet wide and 12 feet deep, and passed through forests and marshes, it was finished in six weeks from its beginning. No fewer than 20,000 men worked at it day and night and 7,000 died of fatigue.

TWELVE THOUSAND persons in St. Petersburg are to be thrown out of employment by the introduction of the state monopoly of the sale of spiritous liquors, and mindful of the helpless condition in which this will leave many of them the government has made it known that such as are by the change deprived of their means of livelihood, shall be sent back to their native places free of cost.

ALVIN ADAMS started a parcel express between Boston and New York on May 4, 1840. He carried a few packages intrusted to his care in a carpet bag and often found it difficult to pay his traveling expenses. To-day the association has a capital of $12,000,000. It employs 20,000 men, 3,000 horses, 2,000 wagons and covers more than 25,000 miles of railroad, while its system covers every state and almost every territory.

RUSSIA, is hastening the building of the railroad between Merv and the military post of Kushk, on the Afghan frontier, which will then be in direct commnnication with the Caspian and European Russia. The line is called the Murghab Branch. It is 190 miles long, will cost 8,700,000 roubles, and will be ready within three years. The Samarkand-Andijan line, with branches to Tashkend and Marghalian, will be opened this year.

LAST year a man died at Birmingham, England, who had through life the satisfaction of knowing that his birthplace was of a unique character, inasmuch as he was born on the battlefield of Waterloo. He was the descendant of a family of soldiers, and his father, who was with the Ninety-seventh Cameron Highlanders, was killed in the memorable engagement at Hougomont. The soldier's wife had followed her husband out, and thus it happened that the little stranger made its appearance amid the din and roar of battle.

MRS. AYER, the wealthy American who died in Paris recently, gave a famous dinner at the Savoy, London, about three years ago. At the principal table sat the hostess, with the Duc d'Orleans on one hand and the American minister, Mr. Bayard, on the other. There was a musical table, at which sat Mme. Christine Nilsson, Mme. Melba, Mme. Albini, Sir Arthur Sullivan and other notable musicians, while other tables were devoted to the drama, literature, unmarried girls, etc. Each table was decorated with special flowers.

SOME years ago Frank Chase, a mechanical genius of Waterville, Me., invented a machine simplifying the manufacture of shoes. A New England shoe manufacturing company purchased his invention, paying him $100,000 and agreed to pay him $2,500 every year of his life providing he would do nothing. He accepted the proposition. The object of the shoe manufacturers in buying Chase's time was to prevent him from inventing some other machine that would be better than the one bought by them and which he might sell to a competing firm.

THE SPANIARDS

Disclaim in a Positive Manner the Reflections in the De Lome Letter.

The Officials, With Entire Sincerity, Lament the Incident, and Deplore the Criticisms Tending to Offend the Chief of a Friendly Nation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The state department Thursday announced that the De Lome letter incident is closed. Spain has disclaimed the reflections contained in the De Lome letter.

The statement given out is as follows: The following is an abstract of a note sent Wednesday evening by the Spanish government to Minister Woodford at Madrid:

The Spanish government, on learning of the incident in which Minister Dupuy De Lome was concerned, and being advised of his objectionable communication, with entire sincerity laments the incident which was the cause of the interview with the minister, states that Senor De Lome had presented his resignation, which had been accepted before the receipt of the matter by Minister Gullon, that the Spanish ministry, in accordance with the opinion of a functionary whose [illegible] have opened [illegible] upon the insurgent camp. As to the paragraph concerning the desirability of negotiations of commercial relations, even for effect, and importance of using a representative for the purpose stated in Senor Dupuy De Lome's letter, the government expresses concern that in the light of its conduct, long after the writing of the letter, and in view of the unanswerable testimony of simultaneous and subsequent facts, any doubt should exist that the Spanish government has given proof of its real desire and of its innermost convictions with respect to the new commercial system and the projected treaty of commerce.

A CIRCULAR,

Incendiary and Outrageous, Passed on the Streets and Other Places of Havana.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Medical Director Wood, of the Naval hospital, Brooklyn, is in possession of a circular, incendiary and outrageous, which was passed about the streets, on railway cars and other places in Havana. A translation of this circular was sent to Medical Director Wood by an officer on the Maine, who picked it up while on a train returning from a ball fight. The circular is as follows:

Spaniards.
Long live Spain and honor.

"What are ye doing, that ye allow yourselves to be insulted in this way? Do you not see what they have done to us in withdrawing our brave and beloved Weyler, who at this very time who would have finished with this unworthy rebellious rabble, who are tramping on our flag and our honor? Autonomy is imposed on us to set us to one side and to give posts of honor and authority to those who initiated this rebellion, these ill-born autonomists, ungrateful sons of our beloved country, and finally, those Yankee hogs who meddle in our affairs, humiliating us to the last degree and for still greater taunt order to us one of the ships of war of their rotten squadron after insulting us in their newspapers and driving us from our homes. Spaniards, the moment of action has arrived. Sleep not. Let us show these vile traitors that we have yet a little shame, and that we know how to protect with energy befitting a nation worthy and strong as our Spain is and always will be.

"Death to Americans, death to autonomy.
"Long live Spain. Long live Weyler."

Death of Miss Willard.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, died shortly after midnight Friday morning at the Hotel Empire, this city. At the bedside of Miss Willard at the time of her death were her niece, Mrs. W. W. Baldwin; Mrs. L. M. M. Stevens, vice president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union; Miss Anna M. Gordon, Miss Willard's secretary, and Dr. Alfred K. Hill.

MAINE'S SAILORS

Are Smarting Over the Government's Delay in Punishing

What They Consider a "Spanish Outrage"—If No Action is Taken They Say They Will Never Again Pace the Deck of an American Man-of-War.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 21.—A special to the Times-Union and Citizen from Key West, Fla., says:

Sailors of the battleship Maine, suffering from wounds in the Key West hospital, are smarting over the delay of the government in punishing what they term a "Spanish outrage."

In their minds there is no doubt as to the cause of the explosion, and they explain the delay in taking summary action by saying that the president is morally certain that there was no accident, and, wishing to deceive the Spaniards with a feeling of security, is using the short time to make the necessary preparations to enforce his ultimatum. If no action is taken, they say, not a man among them will again pace the deck of an American man-of-war, but if business is meant, it would take a strong force to keep them from hurrying to the front, wounded though they are, to take a hand in what they look upon as a personal vengeance.

"We were warned not to go Havana," one said Sunday, "being told that danger awaited us there. When we got there we were again told, and it was current rumor that the harbor bottom was honeycombed with mines. We first chose our anchorage and rested there for several hours, but the harbor master compelled us to weigh and proceed to a spot marked by a buoy. We were reviled on the streets of Havana, and sneered at, our blood boiled and fonnd out for [illegible] safety that it was necessary to make our visits to the city [illegible]ce. No man dared to go it alone. There was no knowing what would happen to him.

The explosion itself is the best evidence that it was a mine or torpedo."

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The Herald Monday says:

Frederick R. Coudert, formerly counsel for the United States before the Behring sea commission and a well-known authority upon international law, was interviewed regarding the matter of an indemnity if it can be shown that the Spanish authorities at Havana failed to take proper precautions to insure the safety of the American warship Maine.

"The destruction of the Maine, by accident or by the act of irresponsible individnals, would not justify a declaration of war. Carnot, for instance, was assassinated by an Italian, yet France did not blame Italy. Italian subjects were killed by a mob several years ago at New Orleans. Italy was justified in demanding an indemnity, which they received, because the men when slain were in charge of officers of the law, who should have made every effort to prevent their prisoners from being killed. But it did not result in war."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—It is learned from a high diplomatic source that the representatives of three of the leading nations of Europe here have advised their governments that they regard war between the United States and Spain as inevitable, and that open hostilities can not be postponed longer than two weeks.

Their advices are based on information obtained from Havana as well as from Washington. It is learned that investigations have been in quiet progress in Havana through consular representatives of the governments in question, who, though acting separately, have reached the unanimous conclusion that the responsibility for the wreck of the Maine lies very closely at the doors of certain Spanish officers who were prominently connected with the Weyler regime.

KEY WEST, Feb. 21.—News was received here Sunday morning to the effect that Capt. Sigsbee and his officers were now convinced of treachery and foul play in the Maine wreck, and that Capt. Sigsbee had made an important report to the Washington officials to that effect. No details are given, save the bare fact that something has been discovered convincing Sigsbee of foul play.

It was given out Saturday from a source that is almost semi-official that the divers sent down on behalf of the United States to examine the wreck of the Maine have made a preliminary report of the result of their work, and that the magazine in which the explosion is supposed to have occurred is intact. If this report is true, an entirely different aspect is given to the terrific explosion which brought death and destruction to the Maine. This report reaching Key West, it is said, caused the members of the court of inquiry to decide to proceed to Havana Sunday and begin their investigation at once, instead of organizing the court here.

HAVANA, Feb. 21.—Lieut. Commander Barnett, of the survey boat Bache, said to a press correspondent Sunday:

"You want the facts. I can tell you there are 95 chances out of 100 that the investigation will show that the forward magazine of the Maine did not blow up first, if it exploded at all, and that it was not the cause of the terrible consequences that followed. The condition of the wreck when first studied and a later careful scrutiny make this an almost absolute certainty."

Farewell Audience to Senor Bernabe.

MADRID, Feb. 21.—Sunday the queen regent gave a farewell audience to Senor Polo Y. Bernabe, the new minister to the United States. Monday she will receive United States Minister Woodford who will present President McKinley's dispatch of thanks for Spain's expression of sympathy with the United States in the misfortune that befell the Maine.

RESOLUTION PASSED

Appropriating Money for the Purpose of Raising the Wrecked Cruiser Maine and Bringing the Bodies of the Dead to the United States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The house debated the bankruptcy bill until noon Friday, and then immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. Boutelle (rep., Me.), chairman of the naval committee, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolution prepared by the navy department and passed by the senate.

The mere mention of the Maine disaster on the floor brought members in crowds from the cloak rooms and lobbies, and they thronged down the aisles to listen. The spectators in the galleries leaned over with breathless interest as Secretary Long's letter was read. "It is unnecessary to say," said Mr. Boutelle, at the conclusion of the reading of the letter from Secretary Long, "that the work of salvage begin at once and that arrangements with the wrecking companies which have necessary outfits should not be delayed. I deem it proper to call attention to the fact that Secretary Long, recognizing that congress was in session, has come here for authority to do this work instead of straining any authority he might possess independently."

Mr. Bailey called attention to the fact that the resolution only spoke of recovering the bodies not of their return this country, but he added that there need be no sickling on this point.

Mr. Boutelle replied that the secretary had referred in his [illegible] to his duty in that regard. He said he had just received a telegram from the secretary of the navy containing the latest information from Capt. Sigsbee, and that it might be of interest to members. "Read it! read it!" came in chorus from the members, and Mr. Boutelle then read the cable from Capt. Sigsbee, which had already been given out by the navy department.

Mr. Sulzer (dem., N. Y.) asked Mr. Boutelle if he had any information, official or otherwise, that threw any light on the cause of the disaster.

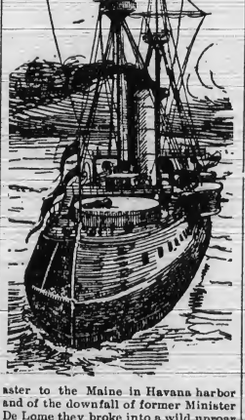
"I must reply as I did yesterday," replied Mr. Boutelle, "that I regret to say I have not. But all the information at hand seems to strengthen the belief that it was due to an accident."

The resolution was then adopted.

Pending a motion by Mr. Hale that the senate go into executive session, Mr. Bacon (Ga.) introduced the following joint resolution:

"That there shall be prepared under the direction of the secretary of the navy and placed upon the wall of statuary hall in the capital building a bronze tablet commemorative of the officers and men of the United States navy who perished in the loss of the Maine, in the harbor of Havana, February 15, 1898.

"The said tablet shall contain the names of said officers and men, and shall be an enduring memorial to their honor and a perpetual token of the sorrow of the nation."



The resolution further appropriates a sufficient sum of money to carry the resolution into effect.

It was referred to the committee on naval affairs.

SPANISH CRUISER

Viscaya Arrived in New York Waters Friday Afternoon.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The Spanish armored cruiser Viscaya is in New York waters. She dropped her big anchors five miles south of Sandy Hook lightship at 5:50 p. m., after a 13-day voyage from the Canary islands. When her officers and men learned the startling news of the disaster to the Maine in Havana harbor and of the downfall of former Minister De Lome they broke into a wild uproar of talk. For a couple of minutes all discipline on the great warship seemed to vanish to the winds.

Men rushed below to tell their comrades in the lower decks.

Early Saturday morning the Viscaya will come up to anchorage selected for her in the upper bay.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The 12th annual dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers' association was held at the Waldorf-Astoria Friday night. One hundred and fifty covers were laid. THREE APPROPRIATION Bills To Be Disposed of in the Senate During This Week.

Private Bills Will Be Considered in the House—Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Will Be Reported—Cuba and Maine Disaster May Receive Attention.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The diplomatic and consular and the military academy appropriation bills will be considered and passed by the senate during the week. There will be more or less debate in executive session of the Hawaiian annexation treaty and speeches will be made on the claim of Mr. Corbett to a seat in the senate on the appointment of the governor of Oregon. The Corbett matter will not be pressed except to the end of having the speeches so far disposed of as to make sure of getting a vote at the time fixed, a week from Monday.

The expectation is that the bill making appropriation for the consular and diplomatic service will be made the basis for considerable debate. It is understood to by Senator Allen's intention to make an effort to secure the incorporation in the bill as an amendment of his provision for the recognition of Cuban belligerency, and if he should make this effort the result might be a general discussion of the Cuban question. While, however, this is among the possibilities, it does not at this time appear probable, for the senate is now in a mood for the opening of this question pending the Maine investigation, so that if it should be taken up this week there would have to be a radical change in sentiment. There are some senators, however, who are desirous of having the subject debated and they may force the issue. As Mr. Allen's amendment was adversely reported from the commite on foreign relations, Senator Hale will raise a point of order against it. This the vice president will sustain, and Mr. Allen will, of course, appeal. There will be stubborn opposition to such an amendment, if offered, and the contest may be an animated one if Mr. Allen persists in his purpose. Independently of the Cuban amendment the diplomatic bill is likely to cause debate on other questions. It seldom gets through the senate without being made the basis of more or less general discussion of the country's foreign policy.

Unless the Cuban question or some phase of the Maine disaster should come before the house this week, the time with the exception of Monday, which under an arrangement made last week will be given up to the consideration of private bills, will be devoted, nominally at least, to the sundry civil appropriation bill. This bill will be reported to the house Monday. It is a very voluminous measure, containing all the odds and ends of appropriations as its name indicates, and is usually productive of more protracted contests than any of the other appropriation bills. It is understood that the information regarding the situation in Cuba asked for last week by the house has been prepared by the state department and is ready for transmittal. Some of the consular reports bearing on the situation have been edited in some places, but it is said that the situation as presented probably will call for some action, and if the information goes to the house this week an effort may be made to get it before the house in some manner. For this reason and in view of the condition of public sentiment pending the result of the special investigation into the cause of the disaster to the Maine it is considered probable that the answer of the state department will be withheld for several days.

CRISIS COMING

This Week Perhaps Says Ex-Superintendent Robert Porter.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—The Inquirer will Monday print under Washington date a lengthy dispatch from Robert P. Porter, ex-superintendent of census, giving what he believes to be the policy of the administration regarding Cuba. Mr. Porter thinks that Spain shall be asked to allow the Cubans to purchase their liberty by the issuance of Cuban bonds, this government to assume the responsibility of collecting the customs duties and thus see that the revenues of the government are applied to the payment of interest on the bonds.

Offer Their Services to the Country.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Monitor Association of Naval Veterans, port of Brooklyn, has adopted a series of resolutions on the subject of the Maine disaster, which, after expressing sympathy with the friends and relations of the victims, says: "Resolved, That the same spirit which led us to defense of our country in 1861 to 1865 is still alive within our breasts, and if any wrong has been done, which God forbid, but if such is the fact, we hereby offer our services to our beloved country and its flag."

Storm in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21.—A severe storm of rain, lightning and wind struck New Orleans Saturday. The gale was so heavy that in the rear of the city sheds were knocked down, chimneys toppled over, trees were uprooted and fences laid low. One man was seriously injured by lightning. Telegraph and telephone wires were crippled in many quarters. Forty thousand dollars is a rough estimate of the loss.

Twelve Fishermen Missing.

MARINETTE, Wis., Feb. 21.—Nothing has been heard from the 12 fishermen who started from Green Island for this city Saturday. The storm has continued so severe that no one has ventured on the ice Sunday. Friends of the missing fishermen believe that they must have found shelter in some of the fish shantics on the bay.

STILL A MYSTERY!

Not Yet Known What Caused the Explosion on the Maine.

The Dead Number 246 Men, and Two Officers.

Number of Injured Was 57, Some of Whom Were Brought to Key West.

It is Believed by Many That the Vessel Was Destroyed by the Hand of an Enemy.

An Official List of the Names of the Dead, Wounded and Uninjured—An Investigation Committee Appointed—The Wreck of the Maine May Be Raised—Divers at Work.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—The Tribune's Washington correspondent says: In spite of official disclaimers, the opinion is rapidly gaining ground here that the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor was not an accident.

The excitement here Wednesday night was intense, for, aside from the appalling loss of life, there is a feeling that the destruction of the Maine may be, after all, only the opening gun of actual hostilities, fired in a way peculiarly Spanish and as opposed to the usages of modern warfare, as has been the whole course of events in Cuba for nearly three years.

The United States government, pending the result of the official inquiry ordered by Secretary Long, assumes that the Maine was destroyed by an accidental explosion. While this is the official view, the suspicion is growing in and out of the navy department, that the disaster was the work of the Spaniards.

The place where the Maine was anchored was chosen by the Spanish harbor master, and is said to have been directly over the mine.

KEY WEST, Feb. 17.—Capt. Sigsbee's message to Commandant Forsyth, of the naval station here, received Wednesday reads:

"HAVANA, Feb. 17.—Advise sending American vessel at once. The Maine is submerged except the debris. Mostly work for divers. Jenkins and Merritt still missing, and there is but little hope for their safety. Those known to have been saved are the officers and 24 uninjured of the crew. Eighteen wounded men are now on board the Ward line steamer, in the city hospital and at the Mascotte hotel 59 so far as known. All the others went down on board or near the Maine. The total loss or missing is 258. With several exceptions no officer or man has more than part of a suit of clothing and that is wet with harbor water."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—After a day of intense excitement at the navy department and elsewhere, growing out of the destruction of the battleship Maine, in Havana harbor Tuesday night, the situation Wednesday night, after the exchange of a number of cablegrams between Washington and Havana, can be summed up in the words of Secretary Long, when asked, as he was about to depart for the day, whether he had reason to suspect that the disaster was the work of an enemy, replied:

"I do not. In that I am influenced by the fact that Capt. Sigsbee has not yet reported to the navy department on the cause. He is evidently waiting to write a full report. So long as he does not express himself I certainly can not. I should think from the indications, however, that there was an accident—that the magazine exploded. How that came about I do not know. For the present, at least, no other war ship will be sent to Havana."

The appalling nature of the disaster and the gravity of the situation that would arise should investigation give a basis for the undercurrent of suspicion of treachery and foul play that ran through all minds, had a sobering effect on public men of all shades of political opinion. The fact stands forth, and is little less than remarkable, that not a single resolution was introduced or a single speech made in either house of congress, save one of condolence with the families of the killed, offered by Mr. Boutelle and adopted by the house of representatives. Public men expressed their opinions with reserve when approached for interviews, but everywhere there was a demand for an investigation and full details in the light of which the horror may be justly viewed.

Secretary Long undoubtedly summarized the general opinion of the majority of the naval experts in finding it impossible just now to state the cause of the destruction of the Maine. There are a great number of theories, but most of them are of a character that makes it easy to prove or upset them by a single investigation by a diver. Secretary Long has taken immediate steps to make this investigation. Late Wednesday afternoon he telegraphed to Adm. Sicard at Key West to appoint a board of naval officers to proceed at once to Havana, employ divers and generally to make such inquiry as the regulations of the navy demand, shall be made in the case of the loss of a ship. It is expected that this work will take some time, and while there are office [illegible] say that in their opinion it will not be possible, owing to the probably disrupted condition of the hull of the ship to make out the cause of the explosion, the opinion of a majority is that the question will be easily settled by the simple observation of the condition of the ship's hull plates in the neighborhood of the hole which sunk her, whether or not they are bulged out, as would be the case if the explosion came from the inside, or whether they were driven in, as would result from the attack of a torpedo or the explosion of a mine beneath the ship. The large majority of naval officers are inclined to the belief that the explosion resulted from spontaneous combustion of a coal bunker; the over-heating of the iron partitions between the boilers and the magazine or from the explosion of a boiler, though the last theory finds little support.

Late Wednesday night the following dispatch from Capt. Sigsbee, at Havana, addressed to Secretary Long was received:

"All men whose names have not been sent as saved probably are lost. Have given up Jenkins and Merrett as lost. Bodies are still floating ashore Wednesday afternoon. I keep nine officers, one private and gunner's mate, Bullock, here with me."

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 17.—A special to the Times Union and Citizen from Key West, Fla., says: The steamship Olivette arrived here Wednesday night with a large number of the wounded and many other survivors of the Maine. The officers were, as a rule, reticent and followed in line with their chief, Sigsbee, in saying that the cause of the explosion could only be ascertained by divers, but many of the sailors were outspoken in their declaration of belief that that explosion was a deep laid plot of the Spaniards. They are greatly incensed at the Havana people, who have shown them small courtesy, who looked upon their presence as a national affront, and who have published anonymous circulars, captioned "Down With Americans." They believe that the author of such expressed and cowardly hatred would not stop at an act of such terrible vengeance as the blowing up of the Maine. These sailors, acquainted with the drills, discipline and ensemble of a man of war, pooh-pooh the idea of an internal explosion as the last thing to be thought of.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The news of the Maine disaster was learned at the Spanish legation with horror and was the occasion for many expressions of the most profound regret and condolence. Early in the day Senor Du Bosc, the Spanish charge d'affaires, received a message from Capt. Gen. Blanco which had been filed at Havana at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. It read as follows:

"With profound regret I have to inform you that the American ship Maine in this harbor blew up by an undoubtedly chance accident, believed to result from an explosion of the boiler of the dynamo. Immediately following the accident all the disposable elements of the capital hastened to the spot to extend every aid possible. These included the force of the marine fire brigade and all the generals in Havana, among them my chief-of-staff. There have been deaths and wounded. I have sent an aide-de-camp to offer every assistance to the North American consul that he may wish for. I will forward further details as they become available. [Signed] "BLANCO."

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Commodore J. E. Montgomery, once of the United States navy, a commanding officer of the confederate fleet during the civil war, and the man who raised the frigate, afterward the ram Merrimac, was very emphatic Wednesday in declaring the sinking of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor the result of treachery and an act without parallel in the world's history. In his opinion war must inevitably follow.

HAVANA, Feb. 18.—The interment of the martyrs of the Maine took place Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock. Shortly before the hour all Havana was in movement. The flags on the public buildings were at half mast and many of the houses were draped in mourning. All classes were represented in the throngs that filled the streets along which the funeral procession passed to the cemetery.

The order of the procession was as follows:

The municipal guards on horse back, in full uniform; the city fire brigade, the municipal employes, the aldermen in seven splendidly decorated firemen's cars; special cars bearing the remains; nine bodies being carried on a splendidly decorated car, the clergy, deputations consisting of the chief officers of the army, navy and the volunteers, representatives of various official bureaus and of the custom house, a committee representing the chamber of commerce, a delegation representing the grocers, the council of administration, representatives of the treasury, the press and various political organizations; then the chief officers of the Maine, the representatives of foreign governments, the city magistrates with their mace bearers, provincial deputies, employes of the general and regional autonomic governments; the municipal mace bearers; then Gen. Parrado, with four aides-de-camp, representing Capt. Gen. Blanco (whose personal presence was not allowable under the law), having on his right United States Consul Gen. The funeral music was furnished by the bands of the Isabela La Catolica and Porto Rico battalions, which accompanied the bodies.

The population that lined the route gave every indication of the profoundest respect.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The navy department Thursday night made up from its latest cable advices the following list of dead, wounded and rescued from the Maine. The names marked "doubtful" are uncertain owing to errors in telegraphic transmission which prevent their corresponding to the muster roll of the department on file in Washington. WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The following cablegram from Capt. Sigsbee at Havana, dated Thursday, was received Thursday evening by the secretary of the navy:

Following is the official list of the survivors:

C. D. Sigsbee, R. Wainwright, G. F. Wholman, J. Wood, C. W. Jungen, G. P. Blow, S. G. Heneberger, C. M. Ray, C. P. Howell, J. J. Blandin, J. N. Chinwick, J. Bowers, A. Catlin, J. R. Morris, J. N. Hallon, Senetal, A. Kruz, Benjamin.

This list is as wired by Capt. Sigsbee to the war department. The scattered bodies of 13 men were washed ashore at Regla and Casa Blanca, opposite Havana.

Capt. Sigsbee has cabled to Washington that it would be advisable to send no more warships to Havana, but to send relief boats.

UNITED STATES CRUISER MAINE.

The Mangrove light house tender has arrived and the Laurel is also expected. Adm. Monterola has summoned Capt. Sigsbee to appear before Military Judge Peral and the Marquis Ensenada, and has notified him also that joint committees of Americans and Spanish naval officers will be appointed to investigate the cause of the explosion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Upon receipt of the sad intelligence from Havana at the marine hospital bureau, an order was issued by Surgeon General Wyman assigning Surgeon B. W. Brown to duty at Key West, where the wounded of the Maine are to be cared for. Surgeon Brown immediately left for the south and will be stationed at the Key West Marine hospital, which is in charge of Dr. Gregorio Guiteras, brother of the famous yellow fever expert, Dr. John Guiteras, of Philadelphia." Reports from Havana are of such a character that it was deemed injudicious to have the injured men sent to any of the hospitals near the scene of the disaster.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Facts were few, but theories plentiful, in the navy department Thursday so far as the Maine disaster was concerned. Outside of the action indicated by Adm. Sicard in the appointment of the court of inquiry and the adoption of further measures for the disposition of the wounded and the interment of the dead the department officials felt that there was little to do at this moment and that it remained for the investigation to be completed before further action could be taken.

Adm. Sicard's board has ample authority to make the most searching investigation into the causes of the disaster. The Fern and the Mangrove reported arrived at Havana Wednesday evening. The former is provided with diving apparatus and as every warships company includes at least several expert divers there will be no lack of men to make the necessary search. These men can be depended upon to report the exact facts. They moreover will be subject to orders of the court of inquiry in every particular and as they are familiar with the botton of a warship of the type of the Maine, they are not likely to be led into the mistake of supposing the outlet hole or pipe from the interior to be a torpedo hole.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The navy department has compiled the following summary showing the total results of the Maine disaster, from all available official information up to the close of the department Friday night.

"Total officers and men on board the Maine, 355; total officers, 26; total men, 329; total officers saved, 94; total men saved, 76; total officers lost, 3; total men lost, 246; total officers injured, 0; total men injured, 57; doubtful (men), 7.

"The seven men appearing as doubtful probably represent that number or less, whose lives have been saved, but who can not be identified at present on account of errors in the transmission of telegrams.

"The 57 appearing as injured are included in the 76 appearing as saved.

"Ten men reported as having died in hospital are included in the total of 246 appearing above as having been lost."

Late in the day Capt. Sigsbee telegraphed as follows:

So far 125 have been buried. Identification very difficult. Will wire names of identified later. In regard to telegram (of inquiry) of Friday, can not furnish further information. Names read: A. Hallon, William Anderson, A. Johuson, Henry Williams, who was cabin cook and James Moriuere. Senetal's name wired by mistake.

SIGSBEE.

HAVANA, Feb. 19.—At 8 o'clock Friday evening 135 bodies had been recovered. Among those identified, whose names have not been already cabled are those of Carlton Jencks, [illegible] (Michael or Patrick), Francis Noble T. Mudd, Thos. J. Jones, J. McNiece, Barry (John L.), Charles Curran, [illegible] Wm. Donoughey.

Chief Petty Officer [illegible] Daniel J. Peter [illegible] ly, Jas. [illegible] F. [illegible]

F. BUCHANAN [illegible]

George [illegible] Roebeling, John [illegible] ton and Jeremiah Shea are somewhat improved. Dr. Mass does not despair of saving them all.

Up to the present time 110 bodies have been taken from the ruins.

Havana still mourns with the American people. Since the funeral ceremonies of Thursday the city has removed the outward signs of grief, but the work of succoring the living and caring for the dead, whose bodies are recovered proceeds tenderly and unceasingly. Every care is shown the survivors.

Gen. Blanco and the officials continue to co-operate with Capt. Sigsbee and Consul General Lee. The messages received from Spain and the United States showing that the action of the Havana authorities is appreciated give satisfaction to the officers, who are making further efforts to ameliorate the condition of the survivors.

The feeling of the community is that social functions would be out of place at a time of such mourning and these will be suspended for the present.

Statements from Madrid and Washington published here to the effect that many people in the United States believe the explosion was accidental coincide with the opinion held by the Spanish officials and the excitement which followed the disaster has subsided into quiet waiting.

The Mangrove sailed Friday evening for Key West, with Edward Mattson, B. R. Wilber, J. C. White, Daniel Cronin, John Coffee, J. H. Blover, Alfred Hernes, James Rowe, Charles Pilker and William McGuinness. Two more of the wounded sailors died Friday. Up to the hour at which this dispatch is sent, 9:50 p. m., 130 bodies have been recovered. Each is placed in a coffin and carried to the Colon cemetery, where Chaplain Chadwick, of the Maine, conducts funeral services.

Adm. Manterola refuses to allow the divers sent here by American newspapers to make any investigation near the wreck, at least until Capt. Sigsbee shall have finished his official investigation. Friday morning Lieut. Commander Wainwright, Lieut. Holman and Chief Engineer Howell went with divers to search for the bodies of Lieut. Jenkins and Assistant Engineer Merritt, but the guards would not allow them to make the search and they returned to the consulate and lodged a formal complaint with Gen. Lee.

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 19.—Rr. Adm. Sicard is preparing a precept, or advance order, for assembling the court of inquiry here into the loss of the Maine. The war ships Iowa, Indiana and Massachusetts are expected Saturday night or Sunday morning. Their officers and those of the cruiser New York will probably compose a majority of the court. The court may proceed later to Havana. A room in the federal court here will most likely be secured for the sittings.

As regards the story that one of the crew of the Maine saw a small object emitting smoke approaching the warship just before the explosion, a correspondent has interviewed the man in the hospital who was said to have circulated the report and has had from him an absolute denial. Lieut. Blandin, officer of the deck at the time of the explosion, and Lieut. Hood, who was with him, both positively deny that such a story could have any foundation, unless it was the smoke of the City of Washington that misled some one.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The president has allowed this statement to be made:

"The president hopes that the Maine was blown up as the result of an accident, and he hopes the court of inquiry will develop that fact. If it shall be found that the disaster was not an accident, prompt and decisive steps will be taken in the premises.

"The finding of the naval court will develop the cause, and until that shall be submitted nothing will be done."

HAVANA, Feb. 19.—The divers at work at the scene of the wreck of the Maine are only employed in recovering the bodies of the dead. Up to 9 o'clock Friday morning 97 bodies had been recovered. Eight funeral wagons are employed in carrying the bodies from La Macina to the Colon cemetery.

The steamer Alliance sailed Wednesday night for Fort Values, Alaska, via Dyea and Skaguay, with 250 passengers.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—SENATE—The senate devoted four hours in executive session Monday to the consideration of the Hawaiian treaty. The principal speech was made by Senator Pettigrew, this being the third instalment of his remarks upon the subject. Senator Morgan's resolution was passed calling on the president for copies of the report of the consul general and of the consuls of the United States in Cuba written and received since March 4, 1897, which relate to the state of war in that island, and the condition of the people there; also whether any agent of a government in Cuba has been accredited to this government, or the president of this government with authority to negotiate a treaty of reciprocity or any other commercial agreement with the United States.

HOUSE—Considerable unnecessary excitement was caused among the members of the house Monday by the rumor broadly circulated before the house convened that important action relative to Cuba was to be taken. It turned out to be simply a resolution of inquiry unanimously reported [illegible] foreign affairs committee last week [illegible] ished on the state department for [illegible] to the condition of the re[illegible] Cuba and the progress made [illegible] duce the Cubans to [illegible] olution was adopted. [illegible] her resolution was [illegible] pondence relating [illegible] fruits, beef and [illegible] mainder of the [illegible] Columbia basin [illegible] Mr. Harris [illegible] mission of the [illegible] Tues[illegible] attorney [illegible] him to [illegible] first motion [illegible] branch of the [illegible] the road oper[illegible] Mr. Harris [illegible] plan to sell the road [illegible] organization committee, as [illegible] government of something more [illegible] Mr. Forster (O.) explained [illegible] taken of the matter by the administration showing the president was convinced the reorganization committee proposed a way for the road at least it was worth. The resolution was finally passed in amended form.

HOUSE—The house put in a busy day. The time was devoted to the consideration of bills and joint resolutions reported under the call of committees and 16 of more or less public importance were passed. An order was also entered by unanimous consent for the consideration of the Loud bill relating to second-class mail matter, on March 1, 2 and 3, and the order for the consideration of the bankruptcy bill which begins Wednesday was altered so that the final vote shall be taken on Saturday instead of Monday as arranged last week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—SENATE—A discussion upon coast defenses was the interesting feature of the senate Wednesday. Many senators took the ground that the appropriation should be for the full amount estimated by the war department, instead of some four millions less. Senators Perkins and Hale also that it was the policy of the appropriation committee to make an annual expenditure of $10,000,000 a year for fortifications. Senators Stewart, Hawley, Chandler and Lodge spoke in favor of increases. Senator Teller also advocated liberal expenditures, and during his remarks made significant allusions to Cuba and Hawaii.

HOUSE—The debate on the bankruptcy bill, which is to continue until Saturday, when a vote will be taken, opened in the house Wednesday, but it attracted little attention, the interest of the members being entirely absorbed by the disaster to the Maine. Just before the house adjourned Mr. Boutelle, chairman of the naval committee, presented a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, expressing regret for the disaster, condolence with the families of those who lost their lives and sympathy with the injured.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—SENATE—After a spirited debate occupying more than two hours the senate Thursday by a vote of 24 to 29 agreed to the resolution of Mr. Turpie (ind.) declaring the senate's opposition to the confirmation of the sale of the Kansas Pacific railroad. After the disposition of the resolution the Corbett case was discussed by Mr. Pettus (Ala.) and Mr. Hoar (Mass.), an agreement having first been reached to take a final vote upon the case on Mondy, February 28. The senate then at 4:10 p.m. went into executive session and five minutes afterward adjourned.

HOUSE—The debate on the bankruptcy bill dragged along listlessly in the house Thursday, interest in it being overshadowed, as on Wednesday, by the Maine disaster. The speeches on the floor attracted almost no attention and were delivered in most instances to a handful of members. At 5:05 the house recessed until Friday morning.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—SENATE—A debate decided in its sensations, was unexpectedly precipitated in the senate Friday over the consideration of the resolution of Mr. Gallinger (N.H.) directing the committee on naval affairs to investigate the disaster to the battleship Maine. An arrangement has been made for the adoption of the resolution with a brief statement without debate. Mr. Mason (Ill.) however, proposed a substitute, providing for an investigation by the committees on naval affairs of the two branches of congress. The resolution went to the calendar. A resolution, offered by Mr. Hale, appropriating $300,000 for raising the warship Maine and saying what property could be saved was passed without a dissenting voice. Adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—The house debated the bankruptcy bill until Friday noon and then immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. Boutelle (rep., Me.), chairman of the naval committee, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the following resolution reported by the naval department and passed by the senate, appropriating $300,000 for the purpose of raising the Maine, etc. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

JUDGE D. M. KEY

Expresses Himself Strongly on the Disaster to the Cruiser Maine.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 19.—Judge D. M. Key, of this city, postmaster general in President Hayes' cabinet and ex-United States judge, expresses himself strongly on the disaster to the Maine. He is quoted literally as follows:

"If this catastrophe can be traced to any Spanish officials or any subjects claiming allegiance to Spain, I think the United States should demand an enormous indemnity and use any necessary measures to collect it without delay. No dilatory tactics should be employed with Spain in a matter of this kind. No amount of money can pay for the lives lost, but the American people will demand some heavy compensation for the disaster and will not rest until they get it. The time has come for decisive action."

Gladstone Laments the Maine Disaster.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Daily Chronicle has secured from Mr. Gladstone the following message for America: "I am deeply grieved at the sad loss the American people have suffered."

New York Police Held in Reserve.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Chief of Police McCullough has ordered all the police not on duty to be held in reserve Friday in the station-houses. The action was taken in anticipation of some disturbance on the arrival of the Spanish warship Viscaya.

Spanish Vessels on the Way to Cuba.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Feb. 19.—The Spanish armored cruiser Infanta Oquendo left here Friday for Havana. The Italian third-class cruiser Giovanni Bausani is expected here on Saturday next. She is on her way to Cuba.

Comments On The Legislature.

The new local option bill which makes the county the unit, is meeting strong opposition.

The House has passed a bill which, if it becomes a law, will prevent any more squabbles like that of Judge Tarvin and the Covington Council.

The indeterminate-sentence bill, recently introduced by Senator Thomas, is attracting much attention. The bill provides that, persons convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary shall be sentenced to an indeterminate term between the minimun and maximum time now fixed by law for such offenses. THE winter schools are closing and many of the teachers have made arrangements to resume their labors in the school room again after a few days intermission. The interest in education has made a great stride in this county in the last decade, and in nearly all the districts where the school houses were closed from the expiration of the term of one public school until the beginning of the next free school, a subscription school follows immediately the public school, and instead of only a four or five months being taught eight and sometimes ten months tuition are given the children. This is as it ought to be.

Corinth has a band of youthful burglars. Last Wednesday Dr. Harry Simons' Drug store was broken into and the cash drawer robbed of $56.00. It now develops that the robbery was committed by several small boys of the town. The boys would not have been suspicioned had they not spent their money so freely. No arrest have yet been made.

When it comes to raising lambs Adam Conrad is a world beater. He has a ewe which has become the mother of 4 lambs of the masculine gender, all of which are living and doing well.

Newt, son of James Basset Gouge, and Lawrence Clark, of this county, have concluded to try their their luck at delving in the frozen regions of Alaska for gold nuggets, and left one day last week for the great gold fields.

The grand jury, after having been in session seven days, reported 39 indictments.

All of our farmers are busy this week making tobacco beds and preparing for another crop.

JOSEPH LEITER, the wheat king says he proposes to sell his wheat at $1 25 to $1 50 per bushel. He is still buying.

THE Kentucky Legislature took a hand in national affairs, one day last week, and declared in favor of Cuba's independence. If the matter was left to Kentucky Cuba would be free in thirty-six hours.

Some Plain Facts.

Grave errors, injustice, wrongs of greater or less degree, arise from lack of knowledge of the truth, and more frequently from deception.

The most infamous case on record of deception and injustice is the attempt to demonetize silver as a money of final redemption in the United States.

There is no learned judge, skilled lawyer, or court of justice that is capable of reconciling the effort with the constitutional laws that govern the issue of money in this country.

The people have been deceived, officials in power, chosen to administer justice under the laws, have ignored their sworn duty, and given aid to the scheme that has paralyzed industry, reduced property values one-half, and beggared millions.

There is no authority of law, either specific or by inference, by which gold alone is made the only money with which to discharge debts, either public or private. The effort to make it so is unconstitutional and a national calamity.

Plain and ample information, facts, and truth, concerning this almost successful scheme to corner the wealth of the people, is now being printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a newspaper which the combined power of money has failed to muzzle or buy.

The Weekly Enquirer is only 75c. a year. The address is

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2, 1898. NO. 19.

PREPARATIONS for war have been making all over the country for ten days. In time of peace prepare for war.

THE Carrollton News was seven years old last week, and appears to be enjoying its share of the patronage in its locality.

SENATOR BRONSTON is a political enigma. One day it is belived he is a candidate for Congress, and the next it is claimed he wants to be Governor.

A BILL introduced in the Legislature this late in the day has very little chance of passage, while many that have started on their way are in danger of being talked to death.

THE Legislature which made such a flattering start, is proving to be no better body of business men than its predecessors, many of which were the subjects of the se verest criticisms.

THE RECORDER is opposed to any law that creates new county or State offices. There are several offices that could be abolished without injury to the State government, but now new offices are needed.

IT was strange that the Republicans fought the Goebel election bill so savagely when they claimed all the time that it would annihilate the Democratic party in Kentucky. They were not expected to be so concerned in the welfare of that party.

THE Goebel election bill creates 358 additional county offices in the State, creates 3 additional State officers, is a centralization of power, and has too many of the characteristics of the Lodge Force Bill, which the Democrats defeated some time since in Congress.

A South Sea Islander greets a friend by flinging a jar of water over his head. In Russia it is correct for gentlemen to press the foreheads of ladies whom they know intimately with their lips, and in Germany and other continental countries kissing between men is by no means uncommon.

IF the assessor's book is any indication, the several banks in Scott county carry very meager deposits, there being only "$7,070 cash on deposit in bank," listed for taxation, while the amount of "cash on hand" is $86,040. Each of the above amounts is supported by the oaths of Scott county taxpayers. Times are tight in that county.

The warehouse of the National Tobacco Co., in Louisville, burnt last Friday. The loss is estimated at $2,000,000. The building was full of tobacco. Several persons were injured by falling walls, but none were killed. Many of the employes were injured while attempting to escape from the burning building. The warehouse covered nearly a square.

THE Goebel election bill, the Bronston educational bill and the Chinn school book bill are three measures that have consumed much of the Legislature's time, and which should have never been introduced. The two latter bills would revolutionize the educational system of the State, and place additional expense on those who support the public schools, and the people are in no condition for an increase of expenses.

The much-needed rain has come at last and ended the long drouth, which seriously threatened the farming regions of the principal valleys of California. A down-pour, which commenced shortly before midnight Wednesday, has been the heaviest for some time past, and extended all over the northern part of the State and as far south as Monterey. Only the extreme South seems to have escaped the drenching. Los Angeles country was visited by but light showers, barely sufficient to do much good.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
Washington, February 26th, 1898.

Senator Morgan's plain talk, in a speech against Senator Allen's attempt to make the recognition of Cuban belligerency [illegible] to an appropriation bill, was refreshing in these days of trickery statesmanship. He said that he had voted for the belligerency resolution that the Senate adopted last May—he was its author—and that he was not only ready to vote for the same thing again as an independent measure, but was ready to vote for a declaration of war against Spain, which he regarded as more proper than attempting to sneak a belligerency declaration through by attaching it to an appropriation bill. He added that he had always believed that Spain and the United States would fight over Cuba and that he still believed it: that he had always believed that as soon as Spain realized that it had lost Cuba, it would seek a war with us, in order to save Spanish pride by making it appear to their people at home that it was the U. S. that secured Cuban freedom.

Things are looking decidedly better in Washington, to those who believe that it is better to fight than to be trampled upon and spit upon, than they were last week. Members of the administration are still talking peace, but they have quit trying to cram the "accident" theory of the loss of the Maine down men's throats, and what is better than all, they are preparing to fight. They still claim to have no more information than they have given to the public, and to be waiting for the report of Naval Court of inquiry, now sitting in Havana harbor, in order to ascertain why the the Maine was accidentally blown up or was blown up by a Spanish torpedo. Their claims are not worrying anybody, so long as they are going ahead energetically making preparations for that war with Spain which a majority of Congress now regard as inevitable. In fact, Mr. McKinley is said to have become convinced by reports from Gen. Lee, and other U. S. Consuls in Cuba, that regardless the Maine catastrophe the time has about come when he must either intervene in behalf of Cuba or eat the threats of doing so, after giving Spain an opportunity to try its autonomy fake, made in his annual message to Congress. Those consular reports, which show beyond the shadow of a doubt that autonomy in Cuba is dead beyond hope of resurrection, have been called for by both the House and Senate. Mr. McKinley has held them back, he says because of the excitement caused by the wreck or the Maine; but it is probable that his knowledge that he must act after they are laid before Congress also had something to do with the delay. Unless all signs fail he is getting ready to act, and not a minute too soon, either.

The administration is much alarmed about the success of Hawaiian annexation, and fresh efforts are being made to get enough votes to ratify the treaty in the Senate, in order to keep the matter from getting before the House at all. This fresh alarm was started by Representative H. U. Johnson, of Ind., who surprised everybody by making a corking good speech against the policy of annexation in general, and especially against the annexation of Hawaii, while the Sundry Civil bill was under consideration. The applause given Mr. Johnson from his side of the House indicates that more Republicans will vote against a resolution for annexation than had been put down in the opposition column, and the administration fears that annexation will be defeated in the House, if it gets before that body. There are about 20 Democrats in the House who would vote annexation.

Representative Perkins, of Iowa, is the latest Republican who tried to take a fall out of Jerry Simpson and failed, as the following dialogue, which occurred in connection with a few remarks of Jerry concerning the tendency of present conditions to make millionaires?" Simpson—"I should not. I don't believe in playing the hypocrite. But that I am not a millionaire is evidence of my disinclination to take advantage of my fellowmen." Perkins—"If you were a millionaire I presume you would admit that there was some respectability among them?" Simpson—"Yes, I have no noubt I should add at least an air of respectability to them." The shouts of laughter convinced Mr. Perkins that he had enough.

Czar Reed has not yet given his consent for the House to pass the bill authorizing the enlistment of two additional regiments of artillery in the army, which the Senate has passed, and without which it will be impossible to properly man a number of heavy batteries which have been established in connection with our system of sea coast defences, but public opinion in favor of this legislation is making itself so distinctly felt in Washington that he will probably see the wisdom of doing so.

POLITICAL.

Hon. Chas. J. Bronston announces that he will not be a candidate for Congress this year.

This session of the General Assembly will expire on March 15th, it being the last day of the sixty legislative days allowed by law.

Hon. Fountain Fox Bobbitt will be a candidate for Congress in the 8th District, unless Ex-Gov. McCreary should become an aspirant.

Col. Sam Roberts, Collector of this district, was surely not the choice of the Republican of this city. Although Mr. Roberts has been in office but a short time the Republicans here have openly condemned his course in the appointment of men under him. Col. Roberts, this week, appointed Ed Lane, colored, to take Capt. Humphry Hyde's place in the federal service, and Capt. Hyde, being a very prominent Republican here, and an old Union soldier, the party is up in arms. The ones who are murmuring were against the separate coach law, and it seems like they are now entirely out of order.—Argus.

Mr. Shephard located and arrested Breeden and delivered him to the jailer of Trimble county, and is justly entitled to the reward, and we can conceive of no grounds for resisting it.

Rev. O. M. Huey closed his meeting at Vevay Sunday night, and a number of people from that place tell us it was the most successful of any for years; that it was a general revival. In the opening, Bro. Huey incurred the displeasure of many people by preaching Christ and Him crucified, and defining the dutics of Christian people, and because he did not preach little sermonettes, in sympathy with the society people, it was predicted that the meeting would be a failure. We are happy to say his efforts went to the hearts of all, and 53 additions was the result of his meeting.

It is believed in London that a conflict between British and French forces in West Africa can not much longer be averted unless there is a change in the attitude of the French. England has dispatched more officers and war munitions to the scene.

At the birth of a Japanese baby a tree is planted which must remain untouched till the marriage of the child. When that hour arrives the tree is cut down and a skilled cabinetmaker transforms the wood into furniture, which is always cherished by the young couple as the most beautiful of the ornaments in the house.

To show the manner in which silk is adulterated, an English chemist recently analyzed a piece of silk with the following results: Real silk, 28; water, 11; ash (mostly tin oxide and silica), 14.30; organic matter, not silk, 46. Such silk becomes shabby in a few weeks, but so rapid are the changes of fashion that it is said to be preferred by many purchasers.

The ministry of finance in France recently instituted an inquiry to learn the amount of gold in circulation. It has ascertained that there is $930,000,000 worth bearing the French stamp in circulation. It is claimed that this is a record amount. It is stated that the United States has $720,000,000, Germany $680,000,000, and Great Britain and Russia $600,000,000 each.

As a result of a special trip to Florida and investigation of its agricultural resources secretary of agriculture Wilson is reported as expressing the opinion that straight farming will be of more value to the people than the raising of tobacco, sugar cane, vegetables, etc., and that the staple industries of the state would be dairying, cattle raising, sheep raising, bacon hog raising.

Another Roman villa has been dug up at Boscoreale, on the slopes of Vesuvius, near Pompeii, where the great find of silver ornaments was made two years ago. The walls are covered with beautiful frescoes, chiefly landscapes and marines. One represents a bridge over a river, with an angler fishing with a line. Four wine jars were in the cellar and seven skeletons have been found in the excavation.

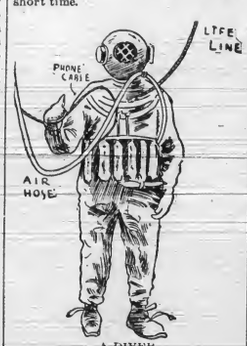
The annual report of the state labor commissioners will, for the first time, give statistics as to the fishing industry of North Carolina. It will say: "There were caught in eastern waters during 1897 142,960,000 fish, valued at $1,585,600; 78,000 bushels of clams, worth $32,000; 38,000 terrapins and turtles, valued at $19,000; shrimp and crabs, $8,000; oysters, $160,000; caviare, $5,000." There were employed 12,000 persons and 3,800 vessels and boats. Of gill nets 124,000 were used.

It is said by people in a position to know that John D. Rockefeller some time ago owned $25,000,000 par value Standard oil stock, and in the last year or so he has increased his holdings to about $30,000,000. With the present value of Standard stock, about $132,000,000, Mr. Rockefeller, with these holdings, is probably the richest man in the United States, and one of the richest men in the world. This of course, is exclusive of other properties, and he is known to have large interests elsewhere.

David W. Ramsdell, aged 73, died recently. He was born in Washington, Vt., In 1861, in a package of seeds he received from the government at Washington, Ramsdell found a peculiar variety of seed, which experiments showed to be a new kind of oats, which he named "Norway oats." Ramsdell in ten years made an enormous fortune from the sale of this grain. Over $3,000,000 was spent in advertising it. Poor business ability, however, dissipated his riches and he died practically a poor man.

An odd case is reported from Lille in France. A chemist who weighs 240 pounds bought a third-class ticket for a railway journey, but found the doors both of the third and second-class car too small to admit him. So he squeezed into a first, and refused to pay the excess. The company therefore sued him for the balance of the fare, their contention being that a first-class compartment alone would receive him, he ought to have taken a first-class ticket. The court supported the company and gave judgment against the chemist.

An interesting novelty at the Paris exposition will be the Mareorama (sic), which will give visitors the illusion of a voyage by steamer from Marseilles to Constantinople, with calls at Tangiers, Algiers, Naples, Venice, Alexandria and Smyrna. They will be standing on the steamer, which will appear to be in the sea, even to the rolling of the vessel and the salt breezes. The unrolling of the canvases will make them think the ship is moving, the principle being the same as that which makes railway passengers in a standing train think they are in motion when another train passes.



AT KEY WEST.

The Court of Inquiry Leave Havana on the Vessel Mangrove.

The Members of the Court of Inquiry Will Say Nothing as to the Result of Their Work—Admiral Sicard Has Frequent Consultations With Capt. Sampson.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 28.—The lighthouse tender Mangrove, bearing the members of the court of inquiry, arrived from Havana at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. The court resumed its sessions in the United States district court room in the Federal building at 10 o'clock Monday morning and will probably return to Havana on Wednesday.

The most important witness to be examined here is Lieut. Blandin, the officer of the deck when the explosion on the Maine occurred. The testimony of the other survivors will take only a short time.

A DIVER.

Capt. Sampson, Capt. Cadwick and Lieut. Commander Potter came ashore and arranged preliminary details for the sessions of the court.

Martin Redding, a diver, returned here Sunday. He was taken to Havana to work on the wreck and his arrival caused much comment, it being said that he had talked too much at Havana and had been removed in consequence. On his arrival he held forth at considerable length before a street corner audience and but little credence could be given to his numerous statements.

Rr. Adm. Sicard has had frequent conferences with Capt. Sampson and other members of the court of inquiry at the hotel. He said Sunday night: "I think they ought to get away on Wednesday. As yet there is nothing that can be said about their work."

In reply to a question as to the rumored removal of the war ships to Cuba, Adm. Sicard said: "The fleet is now moving and I know nothing about it going to Cuba. Still you know I have steam up and could go anywhere if ordered."

He was asked if anything had happened to justify the statement that the situation was more serious to-day then it had been, and he replied: "They know at Washington about that. Just how strained our relations are with Spain I am unable to say."

The excitement Saturday after the arrival of the Cuban filibusters, headed by Gen. Nunez and Capt. John O'Brien, completely eclipsed all the doings and sayings of the court of inquiry officers. Their quick departure prevented very much being learned as to the expedition, but the Cubans here are elated. An expedition has been preparing to get away from Key West for some time, but it probably will suffer another delay, as the plot has leaked out through two Spanish spies.

Havana, Feb. 28.—Senator Proctor, of Vermont, arrived here Saturday. He comes on a mission similar to that of Calhoun last year, and will make a special investigation of the general conditions prevailing in Havana and in the island, as well as into the Maine disaster. He expects to remain ten days or two weeks.

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 28.—Capt. Hanlon, of the Plant steamship Maseotte, which arrived here Sunday night from Havana, was granted an audience Saturday by Consul General Lee, and took breakfast with him at Hotel Inglesfora. To him Gen. Lee positively denied the reports to the effect that he had advised Americans to leave Havana, and that he has discovered no evidence of any anti-American feeling there, and that he anticipated no unfriendly demonstration whatever the finding of the court of inquiry in the Maine disaster might be.

Capt. Hanlon states that the body guard of Gen. Lee consists of only three soldiers, and that fewer soldiers were in evidence on the streets of Havana than usual, and that no excitement among the people there had been caused by the rumors of war published in the papers of this country. Gen. Lee admitted to Capt. Hanlon that both Cubans and Spaniards are intensely interested in the result of the investigation by the board of inquiry, but said that further than that reports of excitement or threatened demonstrations were groundless.

Havana, Feb. 28.—The excitement in the city, growing out of the Maine investigation, continues unabated. An outbreak of some kind, sooner or later, is expected.

Commerce Destroyers to Be Put in Commission.

Philadelphia, Feb. 28.—It is stated at the League Island navy-yard that the commerce destroyers Minneapolis and Columbia will be put into commission as soon as men can be got to man them. Work is being pushed at the navy-yard to put the monitor Miantonomoh and ram Katahdin in readiness for instant service.

Attempt to Assassinate King George of Greece.

Athens, Feb. 28.—An unsuccessful attempt was made Saturday to assassinate King George of Greece.

REAR ADMIRAL ERBEN

Says the Spanish Admiral Was Responsible for the Safety of the Maine While at Havana.

New York, Feb. 28.—Regarding the ten-inch loaded powder case and the empty one, smashed and burned, recovered from the wreck of the Maine, Rr. Adm. Erben said to a World reporter:

"I should certainly take the first as an indication that the magazine containing the ten-inch ammunition did not explode. I agree that if the empty powder case had exploded there would have been nothing left of it—absolutely nothing. It is more than likely that the empty case was one of those returned to the magazine after target practice.

"In the absence of other information than that in the newspaper we can not tell anything definite about it, but if the magazine did not explode, what kind of torpedo could do it? Let them tell us that. No torpedo that I ever heard of could do that amount of damage."

Continuing, the admiral said:

"While I do not think much of the theory of an accident by spontaneous combustion, the statement that spontaneous combustion could not have taken place because the coal was only three months old need not be considered. I have seen the same kind of coal, lying right out in the navy-yard shed, catch fire of its own accord in two weeks after it was put there.

"I have said from the first, and I repeat it now, that they will never find out what sunk the ship until it is raised, and the sooner the wrecking companies' divers get to work the better. It is dangerous down there in Havana's dirty bay. Ships' divers are amateurs at the business and no good results can be expected of them. The professional men go at it in a systematical way, and they are, as a rule, fearless men."

SENATOR PROCTOR

Leaves Key West for Havana on a Tour of Observation.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 26.—Senator Proctor left Friday for Havana. Although he disclaims having been sent on any special missions by the president, there is good grounds for the belief that he will be in possession of a vast amount of vainable information when he returns.

"I can not believe," said the senator, "that 20,000 people have died as a result of Weyler's order. That would be a large proportion of the total population of the island."

NINE LIVES LOST.

An Early Morning Blaze at Charleston, S. C., A Tenement House on Church Street Enveloped in Flames.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 26.—Nine lives were lost in a fearful fire which raged for a short while in Church street Saturday morning. At 2:10 a policeman on duty noticed big sparks flying from the tenement house at No. 160 Church street. The officer found that a blaze was issuing from one of the windows on the first floor. The doors were broken open and the family on that floor were rushed out without any damage. Somebody yelled that a family of women were sleeping on the third floor. The police rushed up stairs and when they reached the top story the life saving work was stopped by the flames which seemed to be playing over the entire building.

Screams from dying women were heard, and Officer Bagby rushed in and pulled out three charred bodies. The quick work of the fire department checked the fire and it was soon under control, but not until nine lives on the third story had been lost.

The dead—Mrs. Rebecca Knickmeyer, Albert O'Neal, Caswell O'Neal, Josephine Knickmeyer, 17 years of age; Katie Knickmeyer, 10 years; Anna Knickmeyer, 9 years of age; Francis Knickmeyer, 6 years of age; Lilly Knickmeyer, 3 years; a baby of Mrs. Knickmeyer, 1 month old. Mrs. Knickmeyer is the wife of Theodore R. Knickmeyer, a carpenter.

Death of Superintendent Doren.

New York, Feb. 26.—Dennis Doren, of this city, general superintendent of construction of the Western Union Telegraph Co., died suddenly Friday at Norwalk, O. His death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Doren went west about a fortnight ago on business for the company. He was born in Wooster, O., in 1830.

Wrecking Tug Underwriter Leaves for Havana.

Boston, Feb. 26.—The wrecking tug Underwriter left for New York and Havana Friday night. Diver Michael Sullivan left on the tug. The tug also took out two powerful wrecking pumps and two boilers.

Reports Greatly Exaggerated.

Center Point, Ia., Feb. 26.—Henry Mentzer has just returned with $100,000 as a result of two years spent in Alaska. Despite his good fortune in the Klondike country, Mentzer states that the reports of its fabulous wealth are greatly exaggerated, and that far more money is now being taken into the country than will ever be brought back.

Silver Going to Europe.

New York, Feb. 26.—The steamship Campania, sailing for Europe Saturday, will take out 621,000 ounces of silver.

STEAMER BURNED.

The Fire Broke Out So Suddenly That Eleven Men Forward Were Cut Off.

In an Attempt to Save Them the Boat Capsized and Five Men, Including Two Officers, Were Drowned—A Fireman Burned to Death.

Boston, Feb. 27.—The British steamer Legislator, Capt. Tennant, bound from Liverpool for Colon, was burned at sea February 16 in Lat. 31.32 N. and Long. 44.10 W. The fire broke out on February 13 and burned fiercely for three days, during which time Fireman Thomas Roberts was burned to death. Second Officer Jas. Batteman and Seaman William Angell were drowned by the capsizing of a boat. Third Officer Martin and Chief Steward John Gaffney went adrift in another boat, and Chief Cook Fred E. Lee, crazed with fearful burns, jumped overboard. The rest of the crew of 30 men, with two passengers, Dr. Wm. E. Mortimer and wife, of London, were rescued by the fruit steamer Flowergate and brought to this port arriving here Sunday. Four of the crew, Chief Engineer John Tronghear, Second Engineer John Holdem, Fourth Engineer Robert Miln and Seamen Charles Ibbitson, were so severely injured that they were taken to the Marine hospital upon arriving at this port. Holden is not expected to live.

The suffering of those who survived the fearful three days in which they were tossed about by the waves while on fire, makes a tale seldom equaled by sailors of the merchant marine. The Legislator left Liverpool February 3, with a miscellaneous cargo, including phosphate, cotton goods and percussion caps for Colon and Central American ports. Nothing out of the ordinary occurred until four o'clock in the morning of the 13th, when without warning an explosion took place from a hatchway forward of midships, followed by a tremendous outburst of smoke and flames. All the firemen and engineers but one came tumbling on deck, some of them more or less burned. The missing man was Thomas Roberts, and it was not until two days that his charred body was recovered during a lull in the fire. The crew were badly handicapped in fighting the fire, as the hose and pumping engine were disabled or consumed. Soon after the fire started it spread so rapidly that the forward part of the boat, on which were seven men, were cut off, and Capt. Tennant asked for volunteers to rescue the remainder of the crew. Second Officer Batteman and Seaman Wm. Angell at once offered to row along the side of the ship and bring the men aft. One of the boats was launched with difficulty as there was a heavy sea running and by careful work managed to reach the almost doomed man. All were finally taken on board and the boat dropped astern, but before the nine men could be pulled on the after deck a tremendous sea capsized the small boat and every man was thrown into the water. After their heroic work Batteman and Angell were the only ones who were not rescued. In the meantime, through some confusion, another boat had been launched and in it was Third Officer Martin and Chief Steward John Gaffney.

Another big sea swept them away, and they have not been seen since. The fighting of the flames still continued, and as the fire reached the boxes of percussion caps there were almost constant explosions. In one of these Fred E. Lee, the chief cook, was so severely burned that he jumped overboard and could not be saved.

IMMENSE DISTILLERY

Of Jack Daniel at Lynchburg, Tenn., Seized By the Government.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 28.—Friday at Lynchburg acting under orders of United States Collector Nunn, several officials seized the immense distillery, capacity 400 gallons per day, and warehouse of Jack Daniel, one of the best known whisky men in the state. Daniel is a man of means, the distillery is an extensive one and the seizure is the largest ever made in this state. The warehouse contains 3,000 barrels of whisky. The charges against Daniel is the illegal removal of whisky and the reuse of stamps. In taxes to the government this distillery pays about $100,000 annually. No arrests have been reported.

Guilty of First Degree Murder.

Philadelphia, Feb. 28.—Alexis Churkoff was Saturday convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of George E. Haas on December 3 last. Haas was assistant superintendent of the S. S. White Dental Co.'s manufactory in Frankfort, a suburb of this city, and Churkoff shot him dead as Haas was on his way home to dinner. Churkoff is a Russian and is believed to be an anarchist. He had several times been refused employment at the factory and it is supposed killed Haas on account of his failure to get work. The defense made a plea of insanity.

Legal Wit.

"What's the matter there?" said the judge to the defendant in the suit, who had just been released from the witness stand, and was rummaging around the jury.

"I've lost my handkerchief," said the defendant, in an injured tone.

"Perhaps Mr. H. has it," said the defendant's counsel, indicating the counsel for the other side.

"Not I," replied that gentleman, "but I hope to have his whole suit before we get through."—Chicago Tribune.

Sound Money Discussions.

Between now and next presidential election there will be lots of discussions of the questions of "sound money" and silver. However opinions may be divided on these points, there is but one public and professional opinion, and that is a favorable one, regarding the merits of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy for and preventive of malaria, as well as a curative of kidney complaint, dyspepsia, constipation, liver trouble and rheumatism.

Bad Investment.

Mrs. Holden—John, we'll never be able to save a cent if you don't quit being so extravagant.

Mr. Holden—Why, my dear, I'm not at all extravagant.

"Yes, you are. There's that accident policy you bought nearly a year ago, and you haven't used it once; if that isn't extravagance I don't know what it is."—Chicago Evening News.

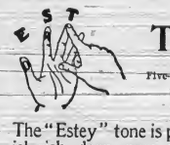
America's Greatest Medicine



Greatest, Because it does what all other medicines fail to do. As an instance of its peculiar and unusual curative power, consider the most insidious disease, and the disease which taints the blood of most people, producing incalculable suffering to many, while in others it is a latent fire liable to burst into activity and produce untold misery on the least provocation.

Scrofula is the only ailment to which the human family is subject, of which the above sweeping statement can honestly be made. Now, a medicine that can meet this common enemy of mankind and repeatedly effect the wonderful cures Hood's Sarsaparilla has,—clearly has the right to the title of America's Greatest Medicine.

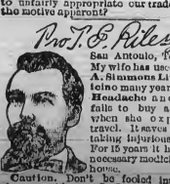
ALABAMA LADIES
DON'T LIE

Mrs. W. A. Garrett



Oak Lowery, Ala., writes: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family for 10 years, with good results. I think it is stronger than "Zeilin's" or "Black Draught."

Cramps

Are caused by an irritation of the nerves. They are local spasms, frequently the result of uterine disease. There are pinching, gnawing and contractive pains in the region of the stomach extending to the back and chest. They are often the symptom and effect of indigestion. Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be used to stimulate the digestive organs and Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine to give immediate relief and permanent cure.

After the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" were by the United States Court enjoined from using the words constituting our trade name—does not comply require that they stand on their own trade name and merits (if any) of their article, and not seek to appropriate the trade for our article called for and known as Dr. Simmons Liver Medicine, by publishing the picture of another Dr. Simmons on their wrapper and falsely advertising that their article "Black Draught" was established in 1840, that being the year in which our article was established, while no one ever heard of "Black Draught" till after 1876. Why do they advertise that falsehood and associate their article with ours (having the picture of Dr. M. A. Simmons on it) by their publication of the picture of another Dr. Simmons, if not done to unfairly appropriate our trade? Is not the motive apparent?

Prof. E. Riley

San Antonio, Tex., says: My wife has used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine many years for Sick Headache and never fails to buy a package when she expects to travel. It saves one from using injurious drugs. For 15 years it has been a necessary medicine in my home.

Caution. Don't be fooled into taking cheap worthless stuff. If the merchant tells you "it is just as good" as M. A. S. L. M., you may know that he is trying to palm off on you a wholly different article.

SINKING IN MUD.

The Wreck of the Maine Is Slowly Settling.

The Court of Inquiry Continues Its Investigation.

The Tug Right Arm Will Salve Small Portions of the Wrecked Maine.

Americans in Havana Treated With Kindness by the Citizens.

Neither the Officers of the Court of Inquiry Nor the Witnesses Will Give the Slightest Indication of the Testimony or the Conclusions Formed From It.

HAVANA, Feb. 22.—Consul General Lee says the Spanish officials are not interfering with the investigation into the causes of the disaster. He has notified the captain of the port that the wrecking tug Right Arm will be here Tuesday from the Merritt & Chapman Derrick and Wrecking Co. No objection will be made to the presence of the tug or her prospective work. She probably will make an early attempt to save the big guns and if possible the more valuable parts of the Maine's machinery.

Monday afternoon the court of inquiry personally inspected the wreck of the Maine by the invitation of Capt. Peral, appointed by the Spanish government as a special judge to investigate the disaster, and his secretary viewed the divers at work. Capt. Peral expressed his appreciation of the courtesies shown to him by the court of inquiry.

A number of bodies were discovered Monday in the forward hatch. It was not possible to remove them, but they probably will be removed Tuesday.

HAVANA (via Key West), Feb. 23.—The situation Tuesday night was more grave than at any time since the Maine explosion a week ago.

Although the officers of the naval board of inquiry preserve an impenetrable reserve, the World correspondent learns that some of the best naval experts now believe that the explosion was the result of treachery.

They do not believe that Spanish officers were part of the conspiracy. From evidence now in their possession they believe the Spanish government Gen. Blanco and all his military subordinates were guiltless alike of knowledge of or participation in the crime. It is believed to have been set off by a fanatic.

HAVANA, Feb. 23.—The court of inquiry opened at half-past ten and took a recess at half-past twelve. Lieut. G. F. W. Holman, navigator and ordnance officer of the Maine, was examined at the morning session. The court met for the afternoon session at half-past one, and Lieut. Commander R. Wainwright, executive officer of the Maine, was called to the witness stand. Lieut. Commander Wainwright has been in immediate charge of the wreck since the explosion.

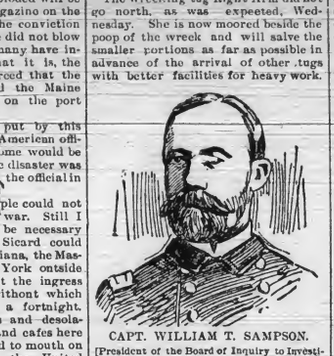
Nearly all the possible salvage has now been made from the cabin aft. The efforts to reach the ward and mess rooms are frustrated by some unknown obstacle. It is expected to find bodies in those rooms. Two cases of ten-inch ammunition have been found, the one having exploded, the other full of powder. These were found forward.

Among the salvage were table ware and the silver service of the Maine.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The navy department received a dispatch from Capt. Sigsbee Tuesday evening saying that 14 more bodies had been recovered from the wreck of the Maine. All the remains are unidentified.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Much interest was shown in a dispatch received shortly before 3 o'clock from Adm. Sicard giving the recommendations of Capt. Sampson, of the court of inquiry, as to the raising of the wreck. The view of naval officers was that Capt. Sampson and his associates were giving this advice, not as a court, but as officers in a position to speak as to the best methods to be adopted for wrecking the Maine. Various interpretations were put on the expression "forward half completely destroyed."

HAVANA, Feb. 24 (via Key West).—The situation, which may be changed at any moment by fresh discoveries, may be summed up when this dispatch was sent Wednesday afternoon, substantially as follows:



The divers having discovered cases of brown hexagonal powder for the 16-inch guns unexploded, and believing also that other unexploded will be found in the 10-inch magazine on the starboard side forward, the conviction grows that this magazine did not blow up. If this be so, and many have insisted from the first that it is, the further conviction is forced that the explosion which wrecked the Maine came from the outside on the port bow.

In reply to a question put by this correspondent to a high American official as to what time would be if it were proved that the disaster was due to an outside agency, the official in question said:

"Sir, the American people could not be restrained. I mean war. Still I doubt whether it would be necessary to fire a shot. Adm. Sicard could anchor the Iowa, the Indiana, the Massachusetts and the New York outside Havana harbor to prevent the ingress of the food supplies, without which the city could not exist a fortnight. Cuba is a waste of ashes and desolation. Even the hotels and cafes here in Havana live from hand to mouth on supplies brought from the United States.

"If Adm. Sicard demanded the surrender of Havana, giving 24 hours for the removal of the women and children, surrender would follow. The forts are old structures and could be demolished by a six pounder. Such new guns as have been mounted are short of ammunition and have never been tried. If Gen. Blanco should decline to surrender, the Spanish merchants here who represent 80 per cent. of the property and pay 75 per cent. of the taxes of the island, would compel him to accede to Adm. Sicard's terms. As for volunteers, the men are, for the most part, the employes of these merchants, and the volunteer officers are largely their sons or their junior partners.

"It is well to look these things in the face. At the same time it is well for the Americans to restrain themselves until there is some proof of an outside agency of explosion. We can afford to wait a little longer, seeing that we have waited so long. We could not wait after it had once been proven that the Maine disaster was the result of a dastardly plot. Spanish officers from the old country hold to the unaccountable belief that their arms would overcome us in a few weeks, but the Cuban merchants have no such delusion, and they would control the situation. Hence I believe that no shot from a big American gun would be necessary."

CAPT. WILLIAM T. SAMPSON.
[President of the Board of Inquiry to Investigate Cause of Maine Disaster.]

HAVANA, Feb. 25.—The coast survey steamer, A. D. Bache, after many delays, left for Dry Tortugas Thursday afternoon with three wounded, all doing well, for transfer to the American quarantine station there, the wounded having been in hospitals here and exposed to fever, must be taken to hospitals in the Tortugas for quarantine. The names of the wounded on the Bache are:

John Heffron, of Freemanstown, N. J.; Thos. J. Waters, of Philadelphia, and Jeremiah Shea, of Haverhill, Mass.

The other wounded were doing well late Thursday night. Even Holzer, though sorely wounded, is better, and is making a gallant fight for life. No bodies were recovered Thursday from the wreck. Recent orders from Capt. Sigsbee strictly forbid all officers of the Maine to give out any information except to those officially empowered to ask it. The order is generally understood to apply to all official matters though some think it affects only matters connected with the disaster.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Rumors of startling discoveries in the wreck of the Maine were frequent but there were enough of them still afloat Thursday to warrant Secretary Long in making this statement to the newspaper men as he left his office:

"Summing up the situation, I should say that the navy department knows Thursday nothing more about the cause of the disaster than it did five minutes after the receipt of the first dispatch from Capt. Sigsbee."

Capt. Sigsbee's statement that the divers have been down aft seven days and forward four days, gave the navy department the first information of the time that the divers had been in the vicinity of the "zone of explosion," as he has termed it. This zone is confined to the forward part of the ship, and while the divers have been down aft for the last week, their work forward in the vicinity of the large magazine has been in progress only four days, which presumably began on Monday and included Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The Evening Star has received the following cablegram from Mr. Charles M. Pepper, its staff correspondent in Cuba:

At this writing divers are developing important results. From examination of the interior wreckage they have secured evidence which seems conclusive that the explosion came from underneath the ship.

Some of the smaller magazines may have exploded. The main ten-inch magazine did not explode. The condition of the interior of the ship shows further probability of the wreck having been due to outside forces.

The further the investigation progresses the more untenable becomes the theory which the Spanish government adduced to show accidental cause. It is evident the Spanish cause will be based on the claim that a fire preceded the explosion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—In view of the widely published report that the harbor of Havana contains a system of sub-marine mines, a statement around which has centered the chief public interest in connection with the disaster to the battle ship Maine, Senor Du Bosc, Spanish charge d'affairs at Washington, Friday night made to a reporter the following statement, which, coming from such authority, may be considered an official denial:

"I wish to state on my own official knowledge that no mine exists inside or outside of Havana harbor; nor is there any sub-marine defense of any kind. The report is so absolutely false and ridiculous that it could only have originated in the minds of those persons anxious to incite the evil passions of both nations for their own miserable ends. I consider the very suggestion of such a thing an insult to Spain."

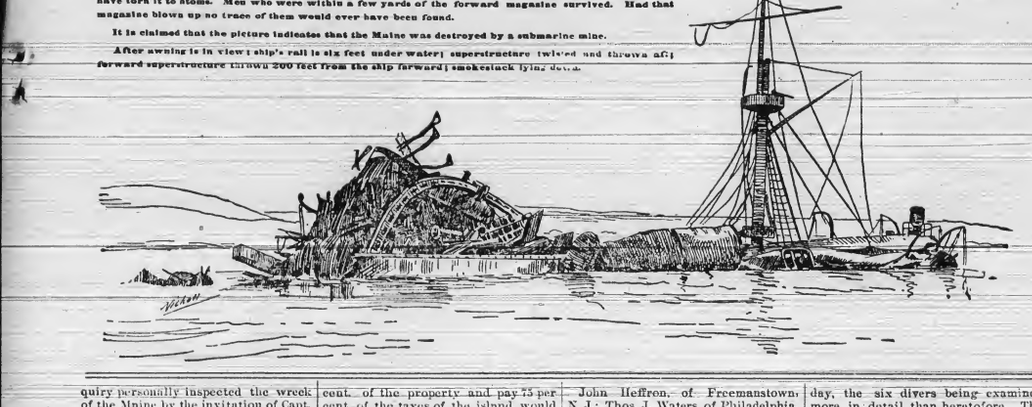
The friends of the victims of the Maine disaster have discovered that they can not have their bodies brought to this country in cases where they have already been interred. This is due to the fact that the Spanish laws forbid the exhumation of corpses until the expiration of the period of five years after burial.

The prohibition had its origin in the fear of infection from contagious diseases. Some applications have already been made to have bodies brought to the United States by private individuals and they have encountered this obstacle.

Whether an effort will be made to have it removed is not yet apparent.

HAVANA, Feb. 26.—The wreck of the Maine is slowly but surely sinking into the mud. Before the hull could be raised it would be necessary to remove the guns and deck debris. For lack of proper appliances practically nothing in this line has been accomplished. Aside from the officers and cabin effects the salvage thus far has been pitifully small. The cloudy weather and rain made the work of the divers unsatisfactory Friday and very little was done. It is said that a hole has been made by the divers in one of the forward hatches, and it is hoped that a number of bodies will be recovered. The court of inquiry sat longer than usual Friday, the six divers being examined more in detail than heretofore. The time of the departure of the Mangrove with the court for Key West has not been determined. Capt. Sampson said Friday that it was doubtful whether his vessel would sail Saturday, that all depended on the developments of the testimony.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—In spite of the stories that come from unofficial sources in Havana as to sensational developments in connection with the work of the divers in the Maine's hull, the administration remains firm in its statement that there is no credible evidence one way or the other as to the cause of the disaster and holds to its purpose to await the conclusion of the investigation now making by the court of inquiry.

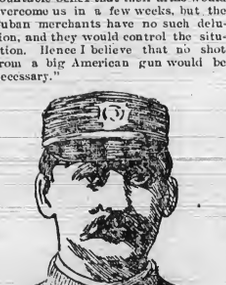


CAPT. J. E. CHADWICK,
Of the Battleship New York.

This position was emphasized at Friday's cabinet meeting. People who looked for some startling announcement were disappointed, as the members without reservation frankly admitted that the subject of the loss of the Maine had been discussed, but said the government had received no information from Havana since Thursday, and had no intention of changing its policy until there was something of substance to warrant it. The Spanish legation was equally in the dark as to any of the discoveries reported from sources that are not cited, as was shown by the message from Capt. Gen. Blanco.

HAVANA, Feb. 26.—The United States light house tender Mangrove is still here and the naval court of inquiry continued its usual sessions Friday. Its members hoped to get away to Key West late Friday evening or early Saturday morning, but they are not sure which it will be. It is probable that the testimony of the civilian witnesses did not add to the courts knowledge of the circumstances attending the explosion, of the causes of which these witnesses could know nothing, as they were quite a distance away at the time of the occurrence.

The wounded were reported to be doing well Friday.



THE WRECK OF THE MAINE—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN THE MORNING AFTER THE EXPLOSION.

The main deck between the forward and after magazines is blown upward and to the starboard. The forward smokestack is thrown back and to the starboard. The whole wreck has a list to port.

The main deck just above the forward magazine is little wrecked. An explosion of the magazine would have torn it to atoms. Men who were within a few yards of the forward magazine survived. Had that magazine blown up no trace of them would ever have been found.

It is claimed that the picture indicates that the Maine was destroyed by a submarine mine.

After awning is in view ship's rail is six feet under water; superstructure twisted and thrown aft; forward superstructure thrown 200 feet from the ship forward; smokestack lying down.

COMMANDER ADOLPH MARIX,
Of the Battleship Vermont.

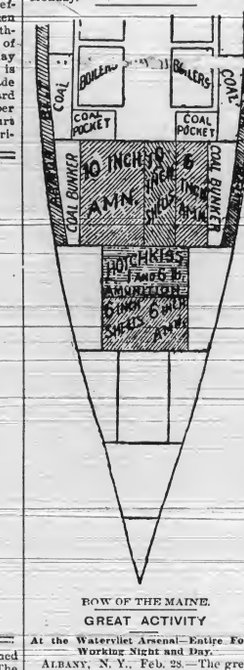
HAVANA, Feb. 24.—The wrecking vessel Right Arm arrived here Wednesday morning, with Capt. Magee in command. The board of inquiry boarded her, and the work of raising the Maine's big guns began at noon. Thus far the work of the divers has been inside the sunken ship. An examination of the outside of the hull will be made at once if the permit of the Spanish shall be obtained. Consul General Lee is here, and says that he never once thought of leaving Havana.

HAVANA, Feb. 25.—The court of inquiry held its usual sessions Thursday. Capt. Sampson reports that Chaplain Chidwick was examined as to his personal experiences at the time of the disaster to the Maine, and that the testimony was taken of the captain of a Spanish bark in the harbor and the superintendent of the West Indian oil works, across the bay at Regla, both of whom witnessed the explosion. Mr. Rolf, the British engineer of the floating dock in the harbor, wrote a letter to the court, but did not add anything material to what was known.

At the afternoon session the divers were examined more fully than before. Their testimony is taken from day to day. The court expects now to finish here Thursday and to sail on the Mangrove for Key West, where the other officers and men will be examined.

The wrecking tug Right Arm did not go north, as was expected, Wednesday. She is now moored beside the poop of the wreck and will salve the smaller portions as far as possible in advance of the arrival of other tugs with better facilities for heavy work.

STEAMER LA CHAMPAGNE



Towed Into Port at Halifax in a Badly Damaged Condition.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 28.—The overdue French steamer La Champagne was towed into Halifax Sunday afternoon by the steamer Roman. At 5:15 La Champagne let go the hawser by which she was towed into port by the Roman and dropped her anchor in midstream, off the center of the city, while the Roman steamed to her dock. Hundreds of people flocked to the wharves to watch the two big steamers move slowly up the harbor.

After drifting for five days on the Newfoundland banks with her engines disabled and the screw shaft battered, the great Boston-bound freight steamer, Roman, from Liverpool, came along, picked her up and brought her into Halifax without further mishap of consequence. Great was the joy on board the big French steamer when the cloudy Sunday morning broke with the shores of Nova Scotia in sight and the word was passed that Halifax would be reached before dark.

The damage to La Champagne is a most serious one and will necessitate the ship going into dry dock.

La Champagne mails, consisting of 250 bags, were landed here Sunday night and given in charge of the post office authorities, and they, with the saloon passengers, will be forwarded to New York, leaving here at 8 o'clock Monday.

GREAT ACTIVITY

At the Watervliet Arsenal—Entire Force Working Night and Day.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 28.—The greatest activity known since the late rebellion is now witnessed at the Watervliet arsenal and the entire force is working night and day.

On Friday night an order was received for the immediate shipment of two car loads of 12-inch projectiles for Fort Hamilton with the greatest possible haste. The projectiles were boxed for shipment and Saturday afternoon they were dispatched to Fort Hamilton. Orders have also been received for the shipment of all projectiles now on hand to the several forts about New York and to forward all completed guns as speedily as possible to the proving grounds at Sandy Hook.

Such an order has not been received at Watervliet since the close of the war. It is expected that at least six carloads of projectiles will be shipped during the present week.

KING GEORGE,

Of Greece, Congratulated on His Escape From Assassination.

ATHENS, Feb. 28.—There is a great patriotic outburst throughout the country over the escape of King George from assassination Saturday, with thanksgiving service everywhere and demonstrations of every kind. Praise for the king's coolness and bravery in protecting his daughter, the Princess Maria, is on every lip.

All the members of the royal family, the ministers and the entire diplomatic corps attended the te deum at the cathedral Sunday, after which an immense crowd went to the palace and gave King George an ovation.

His majesty has received telegrams of congratulation from all the sovereigns of Europe. The press, even the papers opposed to the royal family, is unanimous in its expressions of indignation.

There is no trace of the miscreants, though several arrests have been made with the object of obtaining information. The incapacity of the police is making a bad impression.

H.) navy yard, has at last been recommended to the president for promotion and will succeed to the vacancy in the grade of commodore, to be created by the retirement of Adm. Selfridge.

The Cortes Dissolved.

MADRID, Feb. 28.—A decree has been issued dissolving the cortes.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—SENATE.—For three hours Monday the senate had under discussion the bill providing for the taking of the 1900 and subsequent census. It was so amended as to place the census bureau under the secretary of the interior, but the extended discussion which followed disclosed so wide a divergence of views on the part of senators as to the various features of the measure that no further action was taken. A resolution offered by Mr. Allen (Neb.) directing the committee on naval affairs to make an investigation of the disaster to the battleship Maine was adopted without debate.

HOUSE.—Tuesday was private bill day in the house, but little was accomplished owing to the fact that most of the time was consumed in the passage of private pension bills coming over from the Friday night session three weeks ago. The feature of the day was the spirited contest over the bill to pay Newberry college, a Lutheran institution in South Carolina, $15,000 for damages by federal troops. It was finally passed. On motion of Mr. Bailey, the democratic leader, the house voted 58-35 to observe Washington's birthday by adjourning over Tuesday, but Mr. Dingley raised the point of no quorum and before further action could be taken the house recessed under the rule until 8 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—SENATE.—After Washington's farewell address was read by Mr. Lodge, Mr. Hale (Ct.), chairman of the military affairs committee, called up the bill providing for the enlistment of two additional regiments of artillery for service for manning the heavy modern defense batteries which congress has provided during the past two years. The bill, after a short debate, was passed by a vote of 56 to 4. The negative votes were cast by Messrs. Bate (Tenn.), Clay (Ga.), Chilton, (Tex.) and Vest (Mo.). Mr. Morgan (Ala.) secured the adoption of the following resolution: "That the committee on naval affairs is instructed to inquire and report whether a man-of-war, equal at least to any warship in the world, to be named the George Washington, can be built, armed and commissioned within a period of 12 months by the use of the facilities of the ship yards, machine shops, mines and forests of the United States, or wherever the same are found, and that the committee have leave to report at any time by bill or otherwise." The resolution was adopted without debate.

HOUSE.—Washington's birthday was celebrated in the house, after a motion of Mr. Bailey to adjourn had been voted down, with a vast deal of political speechmaking, and it was also signalized by the firing of the first gun in opposition to Hawaiian annexation. Mr. Johnson, an Indiana republican, delivered a speech that electrified the house and the galleries in denunciation of what he termed an attempt to cut loose from the traditional policy of the United States enter upon a scheme of colonization that had proved the ruin of empires and of nations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—SENATE.—Wednesday while the senate had under consideration the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, a sharp debate on the Cuban situation was precipitated by Mr. Allen (Neb.), who offered as an amendment the resolution passed by the senate a year ago recognizing the belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents. The debate became general and occupied nearly four hours. Mr. Hale made the point of order against the amendment that it was general legislation and had under the rules no place in the bill. The vice president sustained the point and Mr. Allen took an appeal from the ruling. Appeal not sustained.

HOUSE.—A variety of subjects occupied the attention of the house during the consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. Mr. Mahany (N. Y.) made an attack on the patriotism of some of the social leaders of New York, whom he said held high revel while the nation was bowed down with grief over the loss of life resulting from the Maine explosion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—SENATE.—A feature of the senate's session Thursday was the speech of Mr. Spooner (Wis.) on the right of Henry W. Corbett to a seat in the senate from Oregon, under appointment of the governor. Mr. Spooner made a constitutional argument in favor of Mr. Corbett's claim and had not concluded when the senate adjourned. An effort was made to obtain consideration of the Alaskan homestead and right of way bill, but on a parliamentary technicality it went over. The resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Allen (Neb.) to appoint a committee of five senators to investigate the Cuban situation was withdrawn by its author when it was laid before the senate.

HOUSE.—The house devoted itself strictly to business Thursday and disposed of 30 additional pages of the sundry civil appropriation bill. The fact that the government is preparing for contingencies was recognized in the house Thursday when Chairman Cannon, who has been laboring to keep down appropriations, accepted without a word of protest an amendment to increase the appropriation to care for the unused machinery at the Springfield arsenal. Mr. Gillett explained that necessity for using this machinery might occur at any time. Resolutions which were objected to a few weeks ago for the appointment of two ex-naval cadets to positions in the engineer corps of the navy were also adopted. One of them will fill a vacancy caused by the death of Lieut. Merritt, of the Maine.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—SENATE.—The senate Friday confirmed a number of appointments, among them H. C. Corbin to be adjutant general of the army with rank of brigadier general. Little business of importance was transacted Friday.

HOUSE.—A long and somewhat exciting debate over the question of river and harbor appropriations was precipitated in the house during the consideration of the sundry civil bill Friday. Mr. Berry (Ky.) succeeded in securing the adoption of an amendment increasing the appropriation for the Kentucky river from $100,000 to $350,000. Only four pages of the bill were disposed of Friday. The senate amendments to the army appropriation bill were agreed to without debate. An unsuccessful effort was made to secure consideration of the bill passed by the senate for two additional regiments of artillery but on objection from Mr. Cox (dem., Tenn.) it went over. An amendment appropriating $150,000 for Yaquina Bay, Ore., was pending when the house at 5 o'clock recessed until 8, the evening session to be devoted to private pension bills.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—SENATE.—During the greater part of the senate's session Saturday the right of Henry W. Corbett to a seat from the state of Oregon was under discussion. Mr. Thurston (Neb.) in an extended speech opposed the admission of Mr. Corbett, while Messrs. Foraker, Kyle and Mantle supported Mr. Corbett's claim. The vote on the case, it has been agreed, will be taken next Monday at 2 p. m.

HOUSE.—The house did not complete the consideration of the sundry civil bill Saturday, but Chairman Cannon held the floor with it until adjournment, refusing to yield to Mr. Boutelle (Me.), the chairman of the naval committee, who was anxious to secure consideration for the bill reported by his committee for the relief of the victims and survivors of the Maine disaster. After 20 pages of the sundry civil bill were disposed Saturday, many efforts were made by different members to inject river and harbor items into the bill, three of them being successful—amendments appropriating $300,000 for Cleveland harbor, $230,000 for Wilmington, Del., and increasing the appropriation for Boston harbor from $100,000 to $250,000—were adopted.

Your correspondent dropped into Florence, Thursday, and while listening to the broad-sides of "war talk" as they were being fired by the war veterans like Col. Wilson, Gen. Dan. Oliver and others, were approached by a well known and highly esteemed citizen and asked if "they would take something." Knowing that as a rule, to take something in Florence means get in the lock up if Col Patty Hampton happens to see you, we thought it best to find a leedle out about it so knowing Judge Stephens was at the postoffice, we went down to consult him. Well, when we entered the post-office the first thing we heard was Judge Stephens declaring to a large circle of friends, "Yes boys, we can take any thing either on land or water," and that settled it, we went and took water. Judge Stephens is one of the original 49ers and always shows his Democracy by saying "we" when there is anything good to the front.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

(Special to the Recorder.)

Frankfort, Ky., Feb'y. 28, 1898.

The local option bill, which has been a living nightmare to the lovers of frumenti, has been passed and it it is not side tracked in some way will haunt the jag-steerers sleeping and waking, while they dwell in this vale of tears. This bill will make dry a number of counties which are now enjoying the irrigating privileges which are assured only in localities where the option law is in force. But it is claimed the bill will be held up and may-be pigeon holed till it no longer has vitality sufficient to withstand the deadly pull of the opposition.

One of the sensational episodes of the past week was the spirited verbal set-to between Senator Bronston and young Morgan Chinn, of the House, who, by the way, is a chip off of the old block and as aggressive as a well fed rattler. The spat came up over the Chinn school book bill, which Bronston has been opposing sternly. Chinn on Friday made some cutting remarks about the Fayette county Senator, and on Saturday the representative from the bluegrass, took occasion to peel the epidermis of the young legislator from Mercer, leaving great rolls of "roasted" "rib rusts" in the area about the only real animosities that can be reported in this session, be it said to the credit of the members, and this particular exchange of courtesies will hardly result in any further hostilities.

The Chinn anti-trust book bill, which the Mercer county law-maker has nourished with all the tenderness a mother could have bestowed upon a growing plant, has been killed by the more conservative bill of Senator Bronston, which it is claimed will not pile up increased expense on the people of the state in expenditures for new text books for local and county schools. The Chinn bill was safely on its way to final passage when Bronston picked it out as a special target for his telling darts, and behold it lies shattered and past the bounds of possible passage through the shrewed machinations of the "gentleman from Fayette."

Representative Haswell, of Breckinridge, tried mighty hard last week to kill the Bronston prison commission bill. in the House by correcting the journal relating to the record of the bills' passage, but the young man fought a losing fight. The majority saw to it that Mr. Haswell, and his co-partner, Mr. Meyes, of Greenup, were promptly squelched when they arose for the purpose of stealing the Bronston bill a few verbal jabs and sledge hammer upper cuts. Body blows were not permitted, and the majority sat on Mr. Haswell with a vim He is aggressive, however, and was "up and at 'em" again when another opportunity offered.

The bill abolishing the state board of equalization, has been passed since my last letter. The bill for removing the capital to Lexington, which is only the vehicle for the transport of argument pro and con on objectionable measures bobs up semi-weekly. In other words it is a time killer and when there is need for filibustering the capital removal question is trotted out as a subterfuge. Representatives offer all sorts of amendments, from one moving the capital to Butchertown to another locating the state's preserves at Bungtown.

The bill has been passed giving the Dispatch the Associated Press franchise, which some conservative Democrats think was an unjustifiable measure because owners of the Associated Press franchise has paid largely for the news privilege and ought to have some protection.

The newspaper men of Kentucky are trying to work together in concert to secure some sort of legislation, and it is much needed, protecting state publications from the omnipresent libel suit bringer, and to compel the filing of actions in the county in which the alleged libalous publication has been made, thus preventing the publishers from spending needless money in defending suits in foreign counties. It is to be hoped the remedial legislation still be enacted for no other profession in the country is so much imposed upon as newspaperdom.

The number of applicants for places on the Bronston prison commission continues to increase. I saw a list last night and it embraced the name of sixty-four. I think I can name one member who is sure of a place if the bill is not laudered and that is Capt. Moore, of Bourbon county.

The sale of personal property by Mrs. Mary Adams, Monday, was well attended and good prices were realized. Horses brought $22 to $35; 75 pound shoats, $3 55 per head; corn, 39 cents a bushel.

Keep your powder dry, boys, to—hunt squirrels with this summer.

3d. 20,000 acres of land in Pike county, Ky., on the waters of Levisa Fork of Big Sandy, beginning at the west corner of the above described of 5,940 acres at a white oak; thence south 45 degrees, east 1180 poles with the back line of said survey to the above described 4,060 acre survey, and with the back line of said survey the same course 1200 poles to the south corner of said 4,060 acre survey to two maples and a poplar; thence south 45 degrees, west 1344 poles to a sugar tree, poplar and walnnt; thence north 45 degrees, west 2380 poles to two red oaks; thence north 45 degrees, east 1844 poles to the place of beginning.

4th. 5,000 acres of land in Pike county, Ky., on the waters of Levisa Fork of Big Sandy, (and the head waters of Shelby Creek) beginning at two chestnut oaks, it being the west corner of 40,518 acres, now known as the survey of May & Ross, but called for in this original survey as "withdrawn from entry," thence south 45 degrees, east 1190 poles to a sugar tree; thence south 45 degrees, west 672 poles to a stake; thence north 45 degrees, west 1190 poles to two white oaks; thence north 45 degrees, east 672 poles to the place of beginning.

By reference to the calls of a survey of 14,280 acres in the name of Robinson, Young & Co., at the mouth of Shelby creek, it will be found that the point of beginning from which all the foregoing surveys may be located is the northeast corner of said above described survey of 5,940 acres, designated in said 14,280 acre survey as John Craig's survey, and which point, by the calls of said 14,280 acre survey, is 412 poles south of the mouth of Shelby creek, on Levisa fork as the same meanders.

It will be further noted that the stream designated Elkhorn, as traversing said 5,940 acre survey from southwest to northeast, is a small stream of that name, as designated by the surveyors of one hundred years ago, whose mouth is 950 poles south of the mouth of Shelby creek, and not the stream noted on modern maps as flowing along the base of Pine mountains into Russell's fork, and whose mouth is 17 miles from the mouth of Shelby creek.

The title hereby offered for sale is the paramount title acquired by patent from the State of Virginia by John Craig as the assignee of Merry Walker, in February, 1790. This sale is made on a judgment of partition had in the Circuit Court of Boone county, Ky., where said John Craig lived and died and his estate was administered. His living decendents, 231 in number, are named as parties to this action.

The purchasers at this sale must execute bond with approved security or securities, bearing the legal rate of interest from day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien therein retained until purchase money is all paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply with terms.

Duncan's sale, last Wednesday, and property brought excellent prices; Work horses brought from $56 to $70; 57 old sheep, $8 25 per head; 17 yearling sheep, $8 per head; 80 lbs. stock hogs, $5 per head; 3 sows and 23 pigs, $66 50; Durham cow and calf, $50; chickens $3 per dozen; wagon $18; hay bed $14; farm sled, $18; hay, $6 25 per ton; corn in crib, 38 to 39 cents. I have been quite busy the past two months getting ready for my sale and moving to Hamilton Will and I are engaged in the drug business, having recently purchased the Doeller Drug Store. He, Will, will attend to store while I will give my whole time to selling fire and burglar proof safes, desks, &c. If you or any of your friends contemplate buying anything in my line let me know, for I can save your from $5 to $100 on safes, and sell you the very best that are made. I can sell any size from 100 lbs. to 8,500 lbs, safe, vault doors, deposit boxes, &c.; also office desks, chairs, &c. If there is a chance to sell anything in this line let me know and I will come over."

There appears to be an unusual move for a crop of tobacco in this county. The demand for tobacco seeds extends to every neighborhood in the county, and among those who are going to try the crop are farmers who never before cultivated the weed. If Boone county is an index to the State, Kentucky will produce more pounds of tobacco in 1898 than ever before, and the large prices which have caused such an increase in the acreage will be knocked out. The discreet farmer will be careful not to over crop himself with tobacco, only planting the area which he can cultivate nicely and for which he will have plenty of barn room. A few acres of tobacco well cultivated and nicely handled this year will be worth more than many acres which receive too little attention. Don't plant too much tobacco. Try a few potatoes.

New tobacco brought the highest price of the season on the Cincinnati market, last week $22 75. The market was strong, and everything was taken by the buyers in a hurry, the prices being entirely satisfactory to the shippers. The Western Tobacco Journal says, "the sales consist, to a considerable extent, of farmers' packing. Country dealers having commenced to hang their purchases, the offerings will probably not be as heavy as they have been, and we are in hopes that old stock will now take its turn. The latter has been doing very well, when we consider that the average quality of the breaks is not much over medium. Stocks of old have not changed much during the two months of the present year, the disposition being to hold what remains of the same until the shortness of the new crop shall make itself felt."

A JAIL DELIVERY.

The Three Prisoners Confined In The Jail Make Good Their Escape.

One Conceals Himself In The Corridor, and Then Unlocks The Cells And They All Go.

The Jailer Gave Chase But Could Not Overtake Them.

The Trick Turned At The Most Opportune Time To Be Successful.

John Leopold, one of the fellows who burglarized Gaines & Cropper's store at Utzinger; Mike Teeters, who stole a cow belonging to Mrs. Alice Brown, of Pt Pleasant, and Harry Hamlin, who shot old man Smith at the mouth of Gunpowder creek, escaped from the jail here last Friday evening about 6:30 o'clock The prisoners were allowed the privilege of the cell corridor during the day, and Jailer Adams had gone in to lock them in their cells for the night, fire up, and get them a bucket of water. When he entered the cell one of the men said to him, "Uncle Tom, we got cold and had to put our coats on" They also said to him that Hamlin, who had been complaining of being sick, was in the back cell. The Jailer then pulled the lever and locked the prisoners in their cells, and took the bucket and went to the public cistern for the water, also one at the pump, which is just accross the street and nearly opposite the jail, Mr. Adams heard someone run across the floor of the scales which are located just east of and near the jail door. It was not too dark for him to recognize the fleeing men as his prisoners, and he started in pursuit, but they were too fleet of foot for the old man who returned and gave the alarm, but the prisoners had so much of a start they could not be overhauled, the last seen of them being by a boy who saw them jump over a fence into a field near Crisler's blacksmith shop.

The escape was made just at a time no one was on the street, except the jailer and Chas. Finch, the latter not knowing the men were the prisoners when they ran past him. The prisoners had been gone 15 or 20 minutes before the jailer and the sheriff started in pursuit. They were out some time but could see nor hear nothing of the three men. Ed Hawes was sent to Florence to notify a Covington police to keep a lookout for the fugitives.

The jailer's theory as to how the escape was so successfully made is, no doubt, the correct one. He believes that Hamlin, instead of being in the rear cell, was crouched down in a dark corner of the corridor, and when he (the jailer) had locked the cells and bolted the corridor door and gone to the cistern leaving the jail doors standopen, Hamlin slipped the bolt, opened the corridor door and then pulled the lever that unlocked the doors to the cells of Leopold and Teeters. When the cells were examined the door to Hamlin's cell was locked while the doors to the other two cells were not.

The escape annoys jailer Adams very much, and he censures himself for being at the jail at that hour of the night, as well as for leaving the jail doors open while he went over to the cistern.

The Jailer offers $50 reward for the capture and dellvery to him of John Leopold and Mike Teeters.

The following three notes were found in the jail, and are supposed to have been written by the prisoners who escaped:

Read this to Mr. Adams i will be Back in time for cort i will be onest to you so look out for me I do not like to wait in jail for trial to Mr. Adams from Harry Hamlin i will Be Back.

Burlington Boone Co Ky hobo lay out this is a very sad not. please take ceare of the shake we are goiug to kondike to hunt for some gold we heard that they wanted some men up there and thought that we get a job this is all for this time hobo Shack.

this is to Mr Adams Many Many thanks for Your Klud feelings you had for us Poor Boys for we got mity stiff in the Burlington Boone t'ounty Freezer-we watch our P & Q. till we got and opeing and we hop the cutter for Points unnoing Yours Respectfully

LATER—Hamlin surrendered to the police in Covington Sunday, and jailer Adams brought him back to jail here yesterday. Hamlin says they all crossed the river at Constance, Friday night and that Leopold and Teeters took a train for the west. He says that Leopold and Teeters placed a ribbon over the cell door bolt so it would not fasten when the lever was pulled. The appearance of things in the jail do not corroborate this statement.

Mrs. J. C. Revill has been in Cincinnati at a hospital with her little daughter, Jonette, since last Thursday. A delicate operation was performed on the little girl, last Friday afternoon, the operation being the removal of a portion of the mastoid process, it having became diseased. At last accounts the patient was getting along nicely.

A few days since an ex-federal soldier and every day citizen, were talking about the Maine disaster and the probability of a war with Spain. when the veteran remarked: "I believe those who wore the blue in the last war, to a man, are willing to go to the front again at the call of their country." This declaration was followed by laughter on the part of the civilian that shook the ground on which the two men were standing. This out-burst of hilarity on the part of the veteran's companion surprised him and he asked rather indignantly, "what are you laughing about?"

"I was just thinking," said the civilian, "what a mangled, diseased, no account aggregation Uncle Sam would present as an army, if you fellows told the truth when you applied for and received your pensions." Each man then went his way.

The war is about over.

SUICIDE.

Found In the Creek With Feet Tied Together and Rope Around Neck.

Ben F. Craig, who lives down on Gunpowder, found, one day last week, the mule he had advertised as lost. It was dead and had apparently been washed down the creek some distance. The animal's hind feet were lashed together with a rope. The fore feet were tied together, the rope extending to the neck, where it was fastened by a slip knot. It is believed that the mule was bound as above described and then pushed into the creek, where it drowned and lay until carried towards home by high water.

The League Entertainment.

The Epworth League gave a nice entertainment at the Methodist church on the evening of February 22d That being the anniversary of Washington's birth the programme was arranged with that fact especially in view. The church was decorated with flags and bunting, giving it a decidedly patriotic appearance. The house was called to order by the President, Mrs. Geo. W. Craven, who announced that the exercises would be introduced by the singing of a song, "Welcome To-Night," by the League This song was followed by the "Welcome Address," delivered by Miss Jennie Lee Castleman in a most captivating manner. Miss Annie Garrison and Mrs. Marcellus Riddell each entertained the audience with select reading. Masters Shelby Cowen, Howard Kirkpatrick, Bruce Clore, Lennie Eddins and Wyatt Westbay, each had a speech that created a storm of applause. Mrs. Dudley Rouse and Mrs. Nettie Hughes read well prepared papers—the first a biography of Washington, the other a visit to Mt. Vernon. The dialogue, "The Expected Visit," by Misses Annie and Lottie Garrison and Lottie Hall was well received by the audience. Miss Lottie Hall recited "The Two Bricks," in a very pleasing manner. "Vandyke's New Year's Leaf" was rendered by Miss Birdie Martin in a style that sustained her reputation as a natural elocutionist. The above exercises were interspersed by vocal music: "Ring the Bells," by the League; duet, Mrs. Nettie Hughes and Miss Elia Duncan; solo, "Dream of Home," Mrs. Lizzie Berkshire; duet, Mrs M. L. Riddell and Mrs. C. C. Hughes.

IN MEMORIAM.

Saturday the 5th of February, 1898, the village of Walton was the scene of an accident most appalling in its nature which resulted in the death of sister Eliza A. Holder, wife of Mr. William Holder, a most excellent lady, which has cast a gloom over the entire community. Sister Holder had washed a dress skirt in gasoline and hung it before the fire when the vapor arising from the gasoline ignited and enveloped her in flames, burning her so severely that despite all that could be done by loving hearts and willing hands to save her life, after two weeks of intense suffering the grim monster, death claimed her as his own. Sister Holder was born September 12th, 1852, being 45 years, 5 months and 5 days old at the time of her death. October 24, 1897, she was married to Wm. Holder (her maiden name being Eliza A. Ryland) She professed faith in the blessed Master October, 1880, and united with the Baptist church at Walton and remained a consistent member of that church until her death. Sister Holder was kind and pleasant, faithful to her friends and no one could exhibit greater delight in the entertainment of her friends at her lovely home. But her cheerful spirit has flown from that home and a dark pall has fallen over it that coming years will not suffice to remove. She leaves a devoted husband and loving daughter to mourn the loss of a faithful wife and affectionate mother. But their loss is her eternal gain, She has passed beyond the boundary of pain and suffering, sorrow and death; she has gone into the presence of Him who has said He will wipe all tears from our eyes and in whose presence is full ess of joy forevermore. We would commend them for comfort in this dark hour of bereavement to Him who is able to heal the deepest wound and console the most disconsolate heart.

Her funeral sermon was preached by the writer in the Baptist church at Walton, Saturday, February 19th, 1898, at 11 o'clock a. m., from John 14: 1-3, to a large congregation of sorrowing relatives and friends who had gathered to pay the last tribute or respect to one they loved. After which she was laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery which surrounds the church, to await that morning when the voice of Him Who awoke the sleeping Lazarus, shall awake the sleeping nations of earth. Until then dear sister, rest in peace.

Nature, as Seen By Shepherds, Furnishes A Fruitful Theme for Dr. Talmage—David, While Caring for the Flock, Absorbed His Ideas Expressed in Poetry.

The text of Dr. Talmage Sunday was Psalms xxiii., 1: "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

What with post and rail fences, and our pride in Southdown, Astrakhan and Flemish varieties of sheep, there is no use now of the old-time shepherd. Such an one had abundance of opportunity of being a poet, being out of doors all ship the day, and of times waking [illegible] pounds, at night on the hills. David, the shepherd[illegible]to Rising Sun his father's sheep. TH[illegible]ame life on the very hills when[illegible] Lamb was born of wh[illegible]ing heard much, "the Lamb of [illegible]n Ri taketh away the sin of t[illegible]ome David, the shepherd-boy, wa[illegible] Pful, brave, musical and poetic[illegible] often forgot the sheep in his revel[illegible]ies. There in the solitude he struck the harp-string that is thrilling through all ages. David, the boy, was gathering the material for David the poet, and David the man. Like other boys, David was fond of using his knife among the saplings, and he had noticed the exuding of the juice of the tree; and when he became a man, he said: "The trees of the Lord are full of sap." David, the boy, like other boys, had been fond of hunting the bird's nests, and he had driven the old stork off the nest to find how many eggs were under her; and when he became a man, he said, "As for the stork, the fir trees are her house." In boyhood he had heard the terrific thunder storm that frightened the red deer into premature sickness; and when he became a man, he said, "The voice of the Lord maketh the hinds to calve."

David, the boy, had lain upon his back, looking up at the stars and examining the sky, and to his boyish imagination the sky seemed like a piece of divine embroidery, the divine fingers working in the threads of light and the beads of stars; and he became a man and wrote: "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers." When he became an old man, thinking of the goodness of God, he seemed to hear the bleating of his father's sheep across many years, and to think of the time when he tended them on the Bethlehem hills, and he cries out in the text: "The Lord is my shepherd."

If God will help me I will talk to you of the shepherd's plaid, the shepherd's crook, the shepherd's dogs, the shepherd's pasture grounds and the shepherd's flocks.

And first: The shepherd's plaid: It would be preposterous for a man going out to rough and besoiling work to put on splendid apparel. The potter does not work in velvet; the serving maid does not put on satin while toiling at her duties; the shepherd does not wear a splendid robe in which to go out amidst the storms, and the rocks, and the nettles; he puts on the rough apparel appropriate to his exposed work. The Lord our Shepherd coming out to hunt the lost sheep puts on no regal apparel, but the plain garment of our humanity. There was nothing pretentious about it. I know the old painters represent a halo around the babe Jesus, but I do not suppose there was any more halo about that child than about the head of any other babe that was born that Christmas eve in Judea. Becoming a man, He wore a seamless garment. The scissors and needle had done nothing to make it graceful. I take it to have been a sack with three holes in it; one for the neck and two for the arms. Although the gamblers quarreled over it that is no evidence of its value. I have seen two rag-pickers quarreling over the refuse of an ash barrel. No: in the wardrobe of Heaven He left the sandals of light, the girdles of beauty, the robes of power, and put on the besoiled and tattered raiment of our humanity. Sometimes He did not even wear the seamless robe. What is that hanging about the waist of Christ? Is it a badge of authority? Is it a royal coat of arms? No, it is a towel. The disciples' feet are filthy from the walk on the long way, and are not fit to be put upon the sofas on which they are to recline at the meal, and so Jesus washes their feet, and gathers them up with the towel to dry them. The work of saving this world was rough work, hard work, and Jesus put on the raiment, the plain raiment, of [illegible]

[illegible] were to beat Him, the [illegible] were to jostle Him, the dust [illegible]ankle Him, the mobs were to [illegible]m. Oh, Shepherd of Israel! [illegible]come thy bright array. For [illegible] streams to ford, what nights [illegible]ced! He puts upon Him [illegible]ment of our humanity; [illegible] and white earth and [illegible] and [illegible] around Him the [illegible] was thrown over its neck, and in that way it was pulled back. When the sheep were not going astray the shepherd would often use it as a sort of crutch, leaning on it; but when the sheep were out of the way the crook was always busy pulling them back. All we, like sheep, have gone astray, and had it not been for the shepherd's crook we would have fallen long ago over the precipices.

Here is a man who is making too much money. He is getting very vain. He says: "After awhile I shall be independent of all the world. Oh, my soul, eat, drink and be merry." Business disaster comes to him. What is God going to do with him? Has God any grudge against him? Oh, no. God is throwing over him the shepherd's crook and pulling him back into better pastures. Here is a man who has always been well. He has never had any sympathy for invalids; he calls them coughing, wheezing nuisances. After awhile sickness comes to him. He does not understand what God is going to do with him. He says: "Is the Lord angry with me?" No. With the shepherd's Northas has been pulled back into terred [illegible]ares. When I was on the s[illegible] across the ocean I got a [illegible] eye, and several persons t[illegible] it out very gently, but it could no[illegible] be taken out in that way. I was told that the engineer had a facility [illegible] cases. I went to him. He [illegible] large, sooty hand on me, took [illegible] and wrapped the lid of the eye around the knife. I expected to be hurt very much, but without any pain, and instantly, he removed the cinder. Oh, there are times in our Christian life when our spiritual vision is being spoiled, and all gentle appliances fail. Then there comes some great trouble, and, black-banded, lays hold of us and removes that which would have ruined our vision forever. I will gather all your joys together in one regiment of ten companies, and I will put them under Col. Joy. Then I will gather all your sorrows together in one regiment of ten companies, and put them under Col. Breakheart. Then I will ask: Which of these regiments has gained for you the greater spiritual victories? Certainly that under Col. Breakheart.

In the time of war, you may remember, at the south and north, the question was whether the black troops would fight; but when they were put into the struggle on both sides they did heroically. In the great day of eternity it will be found that it was not the white regiment of joys that gained your greatest successes, but the black troops of trouble, misfortune and disaster. Where you have gained one spiritual success from your prosperity you have gained ten spiritual successes from your adversity.

There is no animal that struggles more violently than a sheep when you corner it and catch hold of it. Down in the glen I see a group of men around a lost sheep. A plowman comes along and seizes the sheep, and it seems as if it would die of fright. After a while some one breaks the thicket. He says: "Let me have the poor thing." He comes up and lays his arms around the sheep, and it is quiet. Who is the last man that comes? It is the shepherd. Ah, my friend, be not afraid of the shepherd's crook. It was never used on you, save in mercy, to pull you back. The hard, cold iceberg of trouble will melt in the warm gulf stream of sympathy.

There is one passage I think you misinterpret: "The bruised reed He will not break." Do you know that the shepherd in olden times played upon these reeds? They were very easily bruised; but when they were bruised they were never mended. The shepherd could so easily make another one that he would snap the old one and throw it away and get another. The Bible says it is not so with our Shepherd. When the music is gone out of a man's soul God does not snap him in twain and throw him away. He mends and restores. "The bruised reed He will not break."

Next I speak of the shepherd's dogs. They watch the straying sheep and drive them back again. Every shepherd has his dog—from the nomads of Bible times down to the Scotch herdsman watching his flock on the Grampian hills. Our shepherd employs the criticisms and persecutions of the world as his dogs. There are those, you know, whose whole work is to watch the inconsistencies of Christians and bark at them. If one of God's sheep gets astray the world howls. With more avidity than a shepherd's dog ever caught a stray sheep by the flanks or lugged it by the ears, worldlings seize the Christian astray. It ought to do us good to know that we are thus watched. It ought to put us on our guard. They can not bite us if we stay near the Shepherd. The sharp knife of worldly assault will only trim the vines until they produce better grapes. The more you pound marjoram and rosemary the sweeter they smell. The more dogs take after you the quicker you will get to the gate.

You have noticed that different flocks of sheep have different marks upon them; sometimes a red mark, sometimes a blue mark, sometimes a straight mark, and sometimes a crooked mark. The Lord our Shepherd has a mark for his sheep. It is a red mark —the mark of the cross. "Blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the [illegible] herds used to take the sheep upon the mountains in the summer, and dwell in the valleys in the winter, so as sheep, being out of doors, perpetually, their wool was better than if they had been kept in the hot atmosphere of the sheep-cot. Wells were dug for the sheep and covered with large stones, in order that the hot weather might not spoil the water. And then the shepherd led his flock wherever he would; nobody disputed his right. So the Lord our Shepherd has a large pasture ground. He takes us in the summer to the mountains, and in the winter to the valleys. Warm days of prosperity come, and we stand on sun-gilt Sabbaths, and on hills of transfiguration; and we are so high up we can catch a glimpse of the pinnacles of the heavenly city. Then cold, wintry days of trouble come, and we go down into the valley of sickness, want and bereavement, and we say: "Is there any sorrow like unto my sorrow?" But, blessed be God, the Lord's sheep can find pasture anywhere. Between two rocks of trouble a tuft of succulent promises; green pastures beside still waters; long sweet grass between bitter graves. You have noticed the structure of the sheep's mouth? It is so sharp that it can take up a blade of grass or clover top from the very narrowest spot. And so God's sheep can pick up comfort where others can gather none. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him." Rich pasture, fountain-fed pasture, for all the flock of the Good Shepherd.

The Islands of Zion yields
A thousand sacred sweets
Before we reach the heavenly fields,
Or walk the golden streets.

Lastly: Consider the shepherd's fold. The time of sheep-shearing was a very glad time. The neighbors gathered together, and they poured wine and [illegible]rd for joy. The sheep were put [illegible]e inclosed by a wall, where [illegible]next day to count them and [illegible] The [illegible]er any of them had day [illegible]by the jackals or dogs. Go[illegible]re was called the sheep[illegible]od news I have to tell you, in

Lord the Shepherd has a fold, and those who were gathered in it shall never be struck by the storm, shall never be touched by the jackals of temptation and trouble. It has a high wall—so high that no troubles can get in—so high that the joys can not get out. How glad the old sheep will be to find the lambs that left them a good many years ago! Millions of children in Heaven! Oh, what a merry Heaven it will make! Not many long-meter psalms there. They will be in the majority, and will run away with our song, carrying it up to a still higher point of ecstacy. Oh, there will be shouting! If children on earth clapped their hands and danced for joy, what will they do when, to the gladness of childhood on earth, is added the gladness of childhood in Heaven?

It is time we got over these morbid ideas of how we shall get out of this world. You make your religion an undertaker planning coffins and driving hearses. Your religion smells of the varnish of a funeral casket. Rather let your religion to-day come out and show you the sheepfold that God has provided for you. Ah, you say, there is a river between this and that. I know it; but that Jordan is only for the sheep-washing, and they shall go up on the other banks snow-white. They follow the Great Shepherd. They heard His voice long ago. They are safe now—one fold and one Shepherd.

Alas for those who are finally found outside the inclosure. The night of their sin howls with jackals; they are thirsting for their blood. The very moment that a lamb may be frisking upon the hills, a bear may be looking at it from the thicket.

INTERESTING ITEMS.

THE French, loving entertainment so much, are already talking of the reception they will give Menelik, king of kings. It is of interest to women that while Menelik is on a trip around the world of kingdoms he has left the care of his own troubled country in the hands of his queen.

EXPERIMENTS have been going on for the past 12 years for the purpose of trying to learn something of the characteristics of the Atlantic ocean as a great moving body of water. As a result the whole Atlantic is shown to be slowly circulating round and round like an enormous pool.

THE oldest throne or state chair in existence is that which belonged to Queen Hatshepsu, who lived about 1600 years B. C. This throne is now in the British museum. It is made of hard wood and highly ornamented, the carving being very curious throughout. Round the legs there is a quantity of gold filigree work, and from these spring out, as it were, two cobras modified in silver. The termination of the throne legs are well designed hoofs. The back is inlaid with silver and there are other cobras enlacing the arms, which are highly gilded.

A MOTOR cradle is the latest domestic invention, and a strong-minded lady who has purchased one declares that if science goes on much longer with improvements of that kind there will soon be nothing left for her husband to do. The thing is said to be a great advance on the hand-rocked article, and can be worked with either electricity or petroleum. The motion may be accelerated or checked by simply turning a screw, and one great advantage is that the berceau does not cease swinging though the baby may be left in the room alone.

IT is now said that women's hair is becoming more beautiful in color every year, and is also growing thicker and longer. This is said to be due to the small, light bonnets that women wear. Certain it is that the air and sunshine improve the color and texture of the hair. Sun bleaches the hair, and Venetian beauties always dried their ruddy locks in the sun, thereby getting that [illegible]nt so much admired. Titian red, [illegible] course, sunshine will not bleach dark hair, but it gives a deeper color [illegible] all kinds of tresses, and will bright[illegible] [illegible] hair.

KNAVERY OF REPUBLICANS.

Legislative Corruption for Organized Wealth.

Conservative men and conservative newspapers hitherto affiliated with the republican party are beginning to recognize the corruption of that organization. Gov. Pingree has given his views on the situation and has been attacked fiercely by the subsidized press as a republican renegade. Now the United States Investor, one of the most influential of the financial papers in this country, speaks serious words of warning. In an article discussing the political situation the Investor has the following to say concerning the republican party:

"Here we have knavery pure and simple. In a word, legislative corruption in the interests of organized wealth! Where is the person who will venture to deny this? Was it many years ago that one of the leading business men of Boston—the promoter of large schemes for the public benefit—frankly admitted under investment that he had spent large sums in obtaining necessary legislation from the legislatures of Massachusetts, excusing himself with the plea that such a course was absolutely necessary?"

Remember, this is not the utterance of a partisan newspaper. It is not even an argument made by the editor of the Investor. It is a statement of historical fact proved by the records of a court of law. But this is not all the Investor says. It points the moral in the following strong and vivid words:

"How much longer can the republic tolerate such a state of affairs with impunity? The concentration of wealth in a few hands and its employment in influencing legislation are phenomena which have been carefully studied in the past. The history of the Roman empire affords an interesting study in this direction. Or perhaps the career of France prior to the revolution would be more pleasing."

When a financial newspaper, naturally inclined to favor the party pledged to serve the money power, sees the danger which threatens this country, is it not time for the people to assert their power? Indeed, the time is ripe, and the people are not closing their eyes. In 1900 there will be a revolt against corruption and the republican party will be swept out of power.

ENGLAND AND BIMETALLISM.

A Republican Scheme to Help the Gold Power.

Those who still have a lingering faith in the myth of international bimetallism will do well to read the dispatches received from London recently. That England will never consent to an international agreement looking to an enlarged use of silver has long been apparent to the best friends of silver, and it has become perfectly apparent that the republican party has used this plea of international bimetallism to keep silver republicans in line and thus keep the gold clique in power. In the dispatches from London, the following statement is made: "Replying to a question of Mr. Field in the house of commons as to whether the government intended to cooperate in promoting an international conference to consider the currency question, Mr. Balfour, first lord of the treasury and government leader, said he was happy to say the government would be very glad to see an international agreement regarding currency, but that he had nothing to add to the information already in the possession of the house." Thus it will ever be with England. The true friend of bimetallism in that country can never overcome the influence of Lombard street, and while government leaders may express and even feel a desire for an international agreement, that desire will never find expression in action. Silver men in the United States should demand consideration of international action. It is a delusion and a snare.—Chicago Dispatch.

John Sherman's Silence.

There is notable absence of the name of John Sherman in the current dispatches, though the counsel and action of the head of the state department are now of more moment than at any time since the inauguration of the president who placed him at the head of the department. The work is done by the first assistant, Diplomat Day, and not well done. John Sherman is superannuated and incapable. But that was known when he was appointed only to make room for the money backer of the administration in the senate of the United States. That at this important juncture the state department is without a capable head is the result of McKinley's effort to pay his debt to Mark Hanna.—Chicago Chronicle.

Returning in Kind.

Germany is doing what France, Canada, Mexico and half a dozen other nations have done, but in a more direct way. Anyone with an ounce of common sense should have realized when the Dingley blunder was in process of hatching, declaring commercial war on the whole world on the pretense of protecting American citizens' interests, that we were taking the first step to impair or destroy their interests. When we get blows in return, at least in self-respect we should hold our peace and not whine.—Pittsburgh Post.

The Consumer Is Embarrassed.

The American consumer is likely to fall between two stools and be severely bumped. If he taxes himself to use American products exclusively there will be no imports and, therefore, not enough revenue for the expenses of the government. If, on the other hand, he buys foreign products and increases the government revenue, the American manufacturers get no bounty and threaten to go out of business.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

——The Dingley deficit is now pegging along in the fifty millions, with a respectable chance of making a century before the year is out.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

WILD SCHEME OF BOUTELL.

Would Forever Deprive Silver of Its Money Value.

Congressman Boutell may be of that intellectual fiber which places him in the same class with former President Harrison, Justice J. Brewer and Bishop C. Potter, but his speech at the Chicago Marquette club banquet on "Chicago a Political Storm Center," gives little proofs of that fact, if it be a fact. However, Congressman Boutell added to the hilarity of the occasion by proposing a "new" system of coinage which he explained as follows:

"I suggest the establishment of a money [illegible] system based upon the unrestricted coinage of gold and silver by weight according to the metric system, and I would like to venture the prediction that within the lives of many of us who are here to-night this will be the generally accepted money system of the world. It can be adopted at any time by any nation without waiting for the cooperation of other countries, and foreign exchanges can be adjusted to such a system more readily than our fathers adjusted their outstanding contracts under our present system when it was adopted a century or more ago. Under this system we would have a unit[illegible] image. Each coin would express on one side its national character and on the other its universal character. On the obverse side of the coin would appear the arms, insignia and legend of the nation that issued it, and on the reverse side would appear the simple story of its weight, told in the universal language of the metric system."

This "new" scheme was old to the ancient Greeks, as it is proved by the terms they used in characterizing their money. The talent, the mina and the drachma are all measures of weight, though drachma means literally a handful. It must have appeared to the banker secretary of the treasury that Congressman Boutell had too large a grasp on the financial question, when he advocated the free unlimited coinage of gold and silver at a gold monometallist's love feast. Of course, the objection to such a method of coinage is self-evident. No man could tell just how much his talent, his mina or his drachma was worth until he had considered the market report of gold and silver bullion. But Congressman Boutell's heart is in the right place. He denounces the "40-cent dollar" with due republican scorn, and he appeals to "national honor" with true republican gush.

DINGLEY EXPLANATIONS.

Republican Statements Which Are Intended to Mislead.

The faithful little band of Dingley defenders are rending the air with wild huzzas over the treasury statement of our January exports. "Nine millions and a half larger than under the Wilson law last year!" they shout. "Who dares say that Dingley is not building up our foreign trade?"

It is a pity to interfere with these sights and sounds of glee where gloom has reigned ever since the New England strikes were announced.

But—

An examination of the figures shows that there was an increase in two items of food products of more than $11,000,000. And even the most devoted Dingleyite admits that Dingley is not chiefly the author of the shortage in the European and Asiatic food supply.

If Dingley is to be credited with the general increase of nine and a half millions, and if he is not the author of the crop failures abroad, then on the showing of his friends he must be responsible for the decrease of about two millions in exports of products other than breadstuffs and provisions.

The January statement seems to call for more of those Dingley explanations that do not explain.—N. Y. World.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

——In case war should break out Lieut. Mark Hanna could be depended upon to guard the guests' room of the white house.—Kansas City Times.

——No doubt Senator Hanna will feel tickled to death when he hears that Gov. Bushnell has reappointed Col. A. L. Conger a member of his military staff. Col. Conger is the talented Ohio republican who advised his fellow republicans to throw the harpoon into Hanna.—Columbus (O.) Press.

——One result of the Hanna-Foraker-Bushnell-Kurtz vendetta opened by the recent fight on Hanna in President McKinley's state will be that of causing the country at large to entertain a profound distrust of Ohio republicanism as a factor in the production of the more desirable types of American public men.—St. Louis Republic.

——During the present month the government has paid out about $1,000,000 a day more than it has taken in. The revenue from customs has not been equal to the disbursements for the single item of pensions. The deficit is piling up every day. In short, the Dingley tariff seems to work at all points for the confusion of its advocates and supporters.—Boston Post.

——The administration's dealing with the Kansas Pacific, having agreed to settle a $13,000,000 debt for half that sum, is regarded as a great victory for the jobbers and the corporation. At the last moment, after having stood out for full payment, the attorney-general telegraphed from Washington to accept the half-pay proposition. The effect of this is seen in the advance of Kansas Pacific bonds from below par in ten days to 115.—Pittsburgh Post.

——Senator Hanna, who has been confined to his apartments at the Arlington for several days with a severe cold, was able to transact business yesterday and expects to resume his duties at the capitol to-morrow.—Washington Dispatch.

"His duties" consist of waylaying his fellow senators and begging them to vote for the confirmation of malodorous heelers who have been nominated to public office because they "swung" delegations to McKinley in the St. Louis convention.—Chicago Chronicle.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 24.—SENATE—The senate passed the bill providing for removing the state geographical collection of specimens, maps, etc., now in the state house at Frankfort, to the A. and M. college at Lexington, and providing for the establishment of a school of mines and mining in said college. Bills introduced: To establish the Bradley colony for epileptics as an annex to the Central Kentucy Asylum; to require treasurers of the state charitable institutions to give bond for $50,000, instead of $30,000, and allowing the treasurers to keep the money "in some bank doing business in this state," instead of "in some bank incorporated by the laws of this state."

HOUSE—The senate bill regulating the sale of the Associated Press reports so that any newspaper can purchase said reports, was passed. The bill providing that in counties containing cities of the first, second and third classes the county school superintendent shall be elected by the voters of the county outside the cities was reported favorably by the committee. The house resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the proposed amendments to the constitution. The referendum amendment was discussed, but the committee took no action.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 25.—SENATE—In the senate Mr. Bronston offered a joint resolution to appropriate $3,000 to fit up a new room in the state library. Mr. Lay also offered a resolution asking the Kentucky congressmen to urge an appropriation to lock and dam Smit river, in this state. Mr. Lay also offered a resolution providing for afternoon sessions of the senate four days in the week, but it was cut off by the school book bill, which was a special order. Senator Elmore said the school book bill had been discussed by frequent committee meetings and comparisons with other states, and that he thought it would accomplish the proposed object, i. e., to secure cheaper books for Kentucky children. The bill was discussed until adjournment hour.

HOUSE—The house passed the bill to abolish the state board of equalization by a vote of 60 to 47. The bill to put the distillers on the report whisky for assessment the same as other property was reported favorably by the committee. Several other minor bills were reported favorably and the house went into committee of the whole again to consider the proposed constitutional amendments. The capital removal, referendum and abolishment of agricultural commissioner were discussed at length, but the only one reported on by the committee was the one proposing to abolish the office of agricultural commissioner, and it was reported unfavorably to the house, which immediately ratified the committee's report by defeating the amendment by a vote of 37 yeas to 56 nays during the discussion in the committee of the whole on the capital removal question some warm words were indulged in between Representatives Tracy, of Covington, and Trimble, of Franklin county.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 26.—SENATE—The Roberts prohibition bill was passed in the senate Friday, to the great surprise of both sides, as up to Thursday night the bill had been practically given up for dead. The friends of the opponents of the measure, led by Senator Shanks, of Newport, had been forced from the start to break a quorum to prevent its passage. Friday Senators Turner and Dolph, who had been co-operating with the opposition, changed over and gave it the required number of votes. The bill makes the county, instead of the precinct, the unit in local option elections, thus allowing the country vote, where local option largely predominates already, to control future elections.

HOUSE—Friday was bill day, and the republicans for the purpose of delaying action on the Goebel election bill, presented 50 or 75 new bills on all sorts of foolish subjects, such as "an act to regulate the use of tin cups." This consumed much time and it was after 11 o'clock when the roll for bills was finally completed. Mr. Cooke moved that an afternoon session be held. The republicans and opponents of the election bill voted no, but the motion carried by a vote of 51 yeas to 45 nays, and it was regarded as a test vote on the election bill. Mr. Tracy moved that the vote by which the election bill was recommitted be reconsidered. The speaker ruled it out of order, because the bill had already [illegible]committee. Tracy appealed from the decision and Trimble took the chair pending the appeal. The decision of the speaker was sustained by a vote of 57 to 43, amid loud applause.

WITNESSES SUMMONED.

General Remonstrance Raised Because There is No Remuneration.

OSGOOD, Ind., Feb. 26.—The trial of the men alleged to have been implicated in the killing and lynching of the Levi gang in Ripley county was continued Friday at Cross Plains.

A constable arrived here Friday morning from Cross Plains with subpenas for a number of the most prominent citizens to appear for the defense.

They are John Echert, Sam Smith, H. B. Andrews, J. M. McCoy and Ed D. Glascoe, A. R. Harding, William C. Leslie, H. P. King, Wells John, Gus Ross, Will Prentice, C. W. Gray, editor of the Journal, and D. G. Glendenning.

The constable had a dozen subpoenas for people at Napoleon.

Witnesses are remonstrating greatly against having to go twenty or thirty miles over the almost impassable roads, and have to wait two or three days to be called. They say that it is an imposition to have to be out time and expense and get no remuneration.

ABE'S MAUL.

The Ohio Lincoln Used to Split Rails Will Be Preserved.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Feb. 26.—Dr. Bozell, formerly an old resident and practicing physician of Cincinnati, but now a resident and practicing physician of Clifford, is the owner of an old maul, made from the knot of a beech tree which grew on Anderson's creek, in Spencer county, this state, and with which Abraham Lincoln, who afterward became president of the United States, split the rails that fenced in the old Lincoln home near the present site of Lincoln City, but then a howling wilderness.

The maul was given to Isaac Bozell, Dr. Bozell's father, by Thos. Lincoln, father of Abe, after the family had moved to Illinois, where they lived as neighbors. The maul has had considerable hard usage, but is still in a state of perfect preservation except wear and tear, and has the same handle still in it used by the immortal president. It has been used but very little since it went out of the possession of the Lincoln family, about 1830.

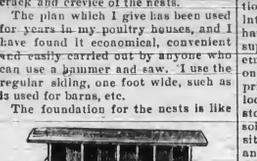
Big Sale at An Auction.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 26.—Inwood stock farm, the property of Mrs. T. D. Talbott, situated one mile from Lexington, on Versailles road, and containing 100 acres, was sold Friday at public auction to W. W. Mantell, of Hardin county, for $22,061.

Left Brooks Will Live.

WINCHESTER, O., Feb. 26.—Lafe Brooks, who was shot in the abdomen by Marshall Pence during a country dance near here about two weeks ago, is able to be out and not in a critical condition as reported. Pence is under $500 bond.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS



REMOVABLE NESTS.

They Are Easily Cleaned and Can Be Removed at Will.

The more inconvenient the nests of the poultry house, the more probability that the cleaning will be neglected. This means a harbor for lice and this, in turn, forebodes disaster and ruin to the poultryman. Removable nests seem to be the best solution of the difficulty, for in this manner the wash used for cleaning can penetrate every crack and crevice of the nests.

The plan which I give has been used for years in my poultry houses, and I have found it economical, convenient and easily carried out by anyone who can use a hammer and saw. I use the regular siding, one foot wide, such as is used for barns, etc.

The foundation for the nests is like a table. It is made of two boards as long as you wish your row of nests to be. Five feet is a good length and will make four nests, but it may be readily made twice as long if desired. Nail a stout piece two feet long at each end of the long boards, on the under side. To these two pieces are nailed the four boards for the legs. This table fits closely up against the side of the hen house and must stand firmly.

To make the nest, take one board the length of your table. Mark it off by lines about 14 inches apart, the first one about two inches from the end. Now upon each line nail at right angles a board, sawed by line, one foot square. This practically finishes the nests, as you will see when you settle them in place, with the top of the table for the bottom of the nests and the side of the henhouse for the back. A thin piece of board two or three inches wide must be nailed along the lower edges of the squares to hold in the straw and eggs. I have used two laths, laid side by side, when nothing else was handy. The dimensions I have given are for hens of medium size; perhaps they would be too small for Brahmas and Cochins—especially the sitters.

It takes only a short time to remove these nests—and the table also, if necessary—into the yard and give them a bath of boiling hot soapsuds with a broom or long-handled brush. Then a coating of lime and water into which a little disinfectant or coal oil has been stirred—wash with lice paint, and you can feel that your duty has been not only done, but well done.

We all know that food and water are necessary to the life of our poultry, but not until we realize that cleanliness and absolute freedom from vermin are fully as necessary to their health and speedy growth, will we make poultry keeping a profitable and satisfying success.—Ohio Farmer.

RAPE FOR FEEDING.

Can Be Used Advantageously in Two Distinct Ways.

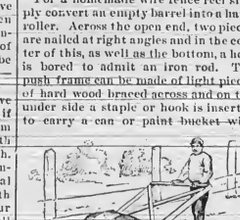
An agricultural bulletin says of feeding rape: This plant has a specific place and is recommended for a sheep food and can be used in two ways: First, it may be cut and fed in the barns and is especially good for fixing up show sheep, for bringing up sheep that have gotten out of order, and may be fed in the same way to the general flock. But its wider use is as pasture. For this purpose it is a good plan to plant some at the time of oats sowing and plant every two or three weeks after that until the 1st of August. This would, under ordinary circumstances, furnish good pasture throughout the season. When the rape is two feet high the sheep may be turned into it, lambs earlier, but the precaution should be taken, if possible, to have them run into an old pasture field that joins the rape patch, for the rape alone will not likely agree with them. While they are not likely to eat too much the first few days there is danger after they get to eating it that they may overload while it is wet, which may result in indigestion or blouting, and in some instances purging may be a result. The dry pasture, even if not very plenty, will correct in most cases all these difficulties. If the first few days are passed without trouble there will be but little danger after that. But it will always be judicious to look after them frequently.

Turkeys for the Farm.

The common black turkey is as good a general purpose turkey as any, with the possible exception of a cross of American black with the mammoth bronze. Do not attempt to raise the cross of the wild turkey with the tame for it will only result in a half wild bird which can never be kept within proper bounds. Large fields for feeding by day and well-ventilated houses near the fields for roosting by night are necessary to make turkey raising profitable. It is essential that the house for the turkeys be near the fields over which they feed, with no trees between, or the chances are they will roost in the trees instead of in the house. In the winter, house warmly and feed out of doors, scattering the grain thinly over the ground to make the turkeys take the necessary amount of exercise.—Prairie Farmer.

WORN-OUT FARM SOIL.

It Can Be Improved by Plowing Under Green Crops.



Soils that have been in long culture, without having been in clover or the grasses, or received periodical dressings of barn-yard manure, have been deprived of the greater portions of their mold. And, as is also an admitted truth, that mold is an indispensable ingredient in every productive soil, it stands to reason that, when in the course of improvident culture, it has been extracted, it is essential that it be restored. The question, then, how shall this restoration be brought about, is of full interest to every farmer. Those who have ample resources, who have full supplies of animal and mineral and vegetable manures, who have the means on their land to form composts, comprising the elements in question, need look no further for the means of restoring the needed constituents to the soil. But those who are differently situated, who have but little manure and are but ill-supplied with the raw material to make compost, must turn their attention to the best means of placing such matters in the soil as will form mold. The growing and plowing in of green crops is often advised, and we here repeat that advice. No soil can be truly productive unless both organic and inorganic plant foods are present. The air can supply a portion of the organic food, as clover roots can by their tubercle bacilli convert the unavailable nitrogen of the air into available plant food. This can be done only while the plant is growing.

What kinds of crops should be cultivated and plowed in? This question must be solved by circumstances. The facility with which seed may be obtained, the facility with which plants selected can be grown on these poor lands, their cost, etc., will determine to a great extent which shall be used. Chief is red clover, valuable for pasturage and equally so as a fertilizer. Clover is first and no doubt the best mortgage raiser there is, for it surely does restore the fertility of the land. As mentioned before, it supplies the nitrogen supply as none other can. I know farms that would raise scarcely anything, which in course of four or five years' treatment with clover, and with proper rotation, have become very valuable as cropproducing farm. Clover is a good crop for green manuring. Rye and rape are likewise recommended, but clover undoubtedly stands first.—Charles W. Burkett, in Farm and Fireside.

WIRE FENCE REEL.

It Does Not Require Much Skill to Make One at Home.

For a homemade wire fence reel simply convert an empty barrel into a hand roller. Across the open end, two pieces are nailed at right angles and in the center of this, as well as the bottom, a hole is bored to admit an iron rod. The push frame can be made of light pieces of hard wood braced across and on the under side a staple or hook is inserted to carry a can or paint bucket with tools, staples, etc. This may be suspended from the rod just inside the open end of the barrel by means of an S-shaped wire, but is not quite so convenient. In removing wire, one end is stapled to the barrel and then it is a simple matter to push the contrivance before you. In this way the wire is not dragged through the dirt and so does not gather much litter. If it is a temporary fence, it is frequently necessary to move it but a short distance and then it can be pushed all the way, but if the removal is to a greater distance, the rod can be taken out and the barrel, with its coil of wire, lifted into a wagon.—J. M. Shull, in Orange Judd Farmer.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

When eggs are kept for hatching they should be turned half over three times a week.

Clover contains more of the necessary elements for egg production than grain, but it is a bulky food.

The guinea fowls come the nearest to being self-supporting of all the kinds of fowls in domestication.

Ground bone is one of the best forms in which to give lime to laying hens; but do not give it in the food.

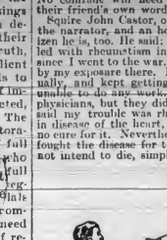
When the weather is damp the ducks are as uncomfortable as the hens, and always seek a dry place at night.

During the winter, when the weather is damp and the yards are often muddy, sulphur should not be given to the fowls.

The fowls should be fed as late and as early as possible now, so that the time between supper and breakfast will not be too long.

Sifted coal ashes and dry road dust in equal parts makes one of the very best materials for dust baths.—St. Louis Republic.

Some Facts About Bees.



In a colony of bees about swarming time there are three kinds of bees—a queen, the workers and the drones. The queen is the mother; the workers, of course, do the work, while the drones are the gentlemen of leisure. As a general rule there is but one queen, from 20,000 to 45,000 workers, and the drones will number from a few dozen to a many hundreds; but these gentlemen of leisure are very short-lived—but few of them ever live to see their mother and sisters safely quartered for the winter. The life of a worker is about 45 days of actual working time, or about 80 days from the time the egg is laid until the bee has died from overwork. If there has been a flow of nectar.—Journal of Agriculture.

A VIGOROUS BATTLE.

From the New Era, Greensburg, Ind.

The following is a straightforward statement of facts by a veteran of the late war. No comrade will need further proof than their friend's own words, as here given.

Squire John Castor, of Newpoint, Ind., is the narrator, and an honest, respected citizen he is, too. He said: "I have been troubled with rheumatism in all my joints, ever since I went to the war. It was brought on by my exposure there. It came on me gradually, and kept getting worse until I was unable to do any work. I tried several physicians, but they did me no good. They said my trouble was rheumatism resulting in disease of the heart, and that there was no cure for it. Nevertheless I had lived and fought the disease for thirty years, and did not intend to die, simply because they said

I must, so I hunted up some remedies for myself, and finally happened on Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I asked some of my neighbors about the medicine, for it had been used by several persons in the community, and they recommended it very highly. I procured a box. The pills helped me right away, and I continued taking them, and soon owned that they had fully, and finished taking the sixth box a few months ago. I am not bothered with the rheumatism now—the medicine has cured me. I have certainly recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

These pills are not only good for rheumatism, but are invaluable for any disease that arises from impoverished or bad blood. They do not act on the bowels.

FIRE GRENADE AGENT FOOLED.

The Proprietor of the Hotel Lost a Good Customer.

The proprietor of a suburban hotel has a son whose sense of humor seems likely to result in the destruction of the business of the house. Recently one of the guests was the traveling representative of a fire grenade manufacturing house. The grenades are green glass bottles filled with a compound that is said to smother fire. They are hurled into the center of the blaze, and, bursting with the force of the impact render an engine and a hose unnecessary.

The fire grenade agent remained several days at the hotel and advertised that before his departure he would give a grand exhibition of the efficiency of the green glass bottles. Early in the evening when the exhibition was advertised to take place a large and curious crowd gathered in front of the hotel. The agent caused a fire to be built in the street, boxes and barrels being piled many feet high. After seeing that the fire was roaring merrily the agent made his appearance bearing an armful of fire grenades. He hurled the bottles one after another into the blazing pile, but instead of smothering the flames the grenades seemed to have the opposite effect. The fire blazed up nearly twice its former height, and the surrounding buildings began to shed their paint, while the crowd drew back from the fierce heat.

The agent was the most astonished man in the group until he learned that the son of the hotel proprietor had extracted the grenades from the sample case, poured out the contents and then filled them with gasoline. The crowd soon found out that the grenades had been "doctored," and yells of derision nearly drowned the protests of the agent as he attempted to persuade the hotel proprietor that the house should pay the costs of the indulgence of the small boy's humor.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A JOYFUL MOTHER OF CHILDREN.

Mrs. Pinkham Declares that in the Light of Modern Science no Woman Need Despair.

There are many curable causes for sterility in women. One of the most common is general debility, accompanied by a peculiar condition of the blood.

Care and tonic treatment of the female organs relieve more cases of supposed incurable barrenness than any other known method. This is why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has effected so many cures; its tonic properties are directed especially to the nerves, which supply the uterine system. Among other causes for sterility or barrenness are displacement of the womb. These displacements are caused by lack of strength in the ligaments supporting the ovaries; restore these organs to their natural positions. Here, again, the Vegetable Compound works wonders in this way.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE.
And what it led to.

It is not a common occurance that a friendly word should be the means of giving one nearly forty years of happiness and health to the person heeding the advice it carried. This was the case with Mary Lingard. At twenty-five she was dragging out her days in misery. At sixty-one she finds herself so active and strong she can do work that would shame many a younger woman, and looks back on thirty-six happy, healthful years of industry. But let her tell her story:

"Thirty-six years ago I had great trouble with my liver. The doctors allowed that there were tumors growing on it and they blistered my side in an effort to give me relief. I was at that time earning my living as a tailoress, but for five years between the pain in my side and the blisters I was in constant misery, and work was a drag to me, with no prospect of relief; fortunately for me, however, a friend advised me to take Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and finally persuaded me to take a regular course of it. When I first commenced taking the Sarsaparilla my side was so painful that I could not fasten my dress, and for a time I did not get any relief, but my friend advised me to persevere and relief was sure to come, and come it did. This happened, as I say, thirty-six years ago. My liver has never troubled me since, and during these years I have passed through the most critical period of a woman's life without any particular trouble, and to-day, at sixty-one years of age, I am active and strong, and able to do a day's work that would upset many a younger woman. Ever since my recovery I have taken a couple of bottles of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the spring, and am quite satisfied that I owe my good health to this treatment. I give this testimonial purely in the hope that it may meet the eye of some poor sufferer."—Mary Lingard, Woodstock, Ont.

Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has won its way to every corner of the world by the power of its friends; those who have tried it and who know it best are the truest friends of the remedy. There is nothing so strong as this personal testimony. It throws all theories and fancies to the winds and stands solidly upon the rock of experience challenging every skeptic with a positive "I know." Ayer's Sarsaparilla with its purifying and vitalizing action on the blood is a radical remedy for every form of disease that begins in tainted or impure blood. Hence tumors, sores, ulcers, boils, eruptions and similar diseases yield readily to this medicine. Some cases are more stubborn than others, but persistence with Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla usually results in a complete cure. Mary Lingard began with a bottle, and went on to a course of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. When she was cured she realized that a medicine that could cure disease could also prevent it. So she took a couple of bottles each spring and kept in perfect health. There are thousands of similar cases on record. Some of these are gathered into Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a little book of 100 pages which is sent free by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass. Write for it.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1898. NO. 20

$50,000,000 will be placed at the command of the President to carry on the war with Spain. That is the first dash out of the box.

JOHN D. WHITE, the "crested jayhawker" of the monutains, is threatening to give Kentucky the benefit of a lecturing tour, his subject to be of a political nature.

THE Goebel Election Bill disclosed the existence of a new county in Kentucky—Hinton, the Democrats of which demanded the passage of the bill over the Governor's veto.

THE Tartars have a quaint custom of taking a guest by the ear when inviting him to eat or drink with them. In this country a fellow is taken by the ear on a very dissimilar occasion.

GOV. BRALEY used his veto pen freely when the new laws desired by the Legislature began to reach his table. He presents his objections to a law in a very plain and comprehensive style.

GOV. BRADLEY would not veto a law that puts the penitentiaries under the control of a non-partisan board of commissioners: but he will not have the opportunity to approve that kind of a bill.

THERE has been a vast amount written and printed pertaining to the destruction of the Maine, and much of it was manufactured in the offices of the papers belonging to the syndicate that used the matter.

ANOTHER attempt to discover the members of the Versailles, Indiana, mob bore no fruit. Public opinion in Ripley county endorees the lynching, and it will be impossible to apprehend those who did the work.

SENATOR FORAKER, Gov. Bushnell and Mayor McKisson, of Ohio, have been in consultation at Columbus, and it is supposed they have been placing mines of dynamite for explosion during the next campaign for Republican nominations for office in that State.

SOME of those who think that it would take only about ten days to whip Spain, would find her a more powerful foe than her efforts in Cuca indicate. Her navy would be very much in the way, and with the inability of Uncle Sam's boats to float or prevent blowing up, she might make a laughing stock of this country.

HERE is a partial list of the Kentucky papers that are opposed to the Goebel Election Bill: Stanford Journal, Danville Advocate, Lexington Colonel, Owen News, Fulton Democrat, Hawesville Plaindealer, Mt. Sterling Gazette, Louisville Critic, Scottsville Reflector, Allen News, Monroe Herald, Smith's Grove Gazette, Mountain Citizen, Anderson News, Paducah News, Lexington Herald, Graves County Index, Beattyville Voice, Harrodsburg Democrat, Madisonville Hustler, Murray Times, Richmond Register, Owensboro Inquirer, Lexington Argonaut, Paris News, Owen Herald, Williamstown Courier, Carrollton News, Owingsville Outlook, Georgetown Times,

IF reports be true Senator Deboe and ex-Congessman John D. White came near creating a very unusual scene in the White House, one day last week. They became involved in a quarrel over the appointment of Hill as District Attorney for the District of Kentucky, White being opposed to Hill, and claims that the Senator promised him that he would request the President to withdraw Hill's nomination, a statement that Deboe says is a lie. White says Deboe reached for his pistol as they started down the White House steps, and not being armed himself, he went back into the White House. No doubt but what White acted on the belief that a good retreat was better than a bad stand.

As the time for the appointment of overseers for the public roads in this county approaches, there is a very perceptible increase of activity on the part of those who are seeking the appointments, and the County Judge meets an applicant at nearly every turn, whether he remains at home or visits a distant part of the county. There are in the county forty-eight road districts for each of which an overseer is to be appointed, and for these forty-eight positions there are about one hundred and fifty applicants. Numerous petitions in favor of applicants are being circulated, and it can be said that the road department of the local government is the center of considerable interest at present. It is certainly one of the most important branches of county affairs, and effects every taxpayer in the county, not only in the matter of dollars and cents, but because everyone is interested in good roads, which they are seeking to obtain by means of a tax.

Into the hands of these forty-eight overseers go about $7,000 each year to be expended on the public roads, and in the last ten years the taxpayers of Boone county have given up of their hard earned money between $60,000 and $70,000 for expenditure on the public roads. Much of that vast amount has been judiciously expended, while, in some quarters, it is charged that the money has not been applied in the manner intended. If an overseer misappropriates the road money that comes to his hands he is liable on his bond which he is required to execute before taking charge of the office, and if the County Judge accepts a bond that is not sufficient, he is liable on his bond for the overseer's default. If the communities that claim that the road money to which they are entitled has been misappropriated will inaugurate the investigation for which the law makes provisions, it can soon be ascertained whether the reports the overseers make to the County Judge are correct, as each overseer is required to settle, annually, with the County Judge on account of the road money that comes to his hands. These settlements are public records, and can be inspected at any time.

A settlement shows the amount of road money that comes to the overseer's hands, and how he has expended it, a receipt for each amount paid out being filed with the settlement. Thus a plain exposition of disbursements is made, and if it is not correct, the overseer can be called to an account. With the safe-guards the law provides the waste of the road money could be reduced to the minimum if those who have information on that subject would submit it to the proper authorities, but if the derelictions on the part of some of the overseers as complained of in the past, have existed they have been suffered to pass unpunished because of what is everybody's business is nobody's business.

The large amount of money the county has spent, annually, on the dirt roads in the past fifteen years has failed to put a stop to the declaration, "I never saw the roads worse than they are now," coming up from every quarter at this season of the year. If this declaration is true there is some cause for it being true, and the honest, capable overseer will be active in his efforts to remove it in so far as it relates to his roads, by applying the money he receives wholly for their benefit. The public is not slow to recognize and acknowledge the merits of an official, and the capacity of no officer is revealed as readily as that of an overseer of public roads, which requires especial qualifications, but it is not every man, by any means, who can discover and properly direct the work a road needs, and it is owing to this lack of qualification on the part of some overseers that better results are not acquired from the money which they expend for the county.

There is more responsibility attached to the office of overseer than appears at first thought, and in the selection and appointment of these officials a grave responsibility devolves upon the County Judge, as it is through them that more than half of all taxes for county purposes is disbursed, and it is upon their dilligence and intelligence the county depends for an improvement in its public highways, by the condition of which the prosperity and contentment of the people is gauged.

It is believed that County Judge Roberts will select and appoint road overseers with an eye single to the best interests of the county, and that his long business relations with the public will be of material assistance to him in choosing proper men in whose charge to place so important an interest.

Regarding the office of overseers of roads of vastly more importanee than it is generally conceded to be; and, believing further, that considerable good might result from an interehange of views, on the part of the overseers, in regard to working roads, the RECORDER suggests that the overseers hold a convention as soon as practicable after their appointment and commission in April, for the purpose of considering matters pertaining to the roads of the county.

THE attorneys for Peter Vinegar, colored, who was convicted of murder at Georgetown, filed grounds and moved the court to grant Vingear a new trial. One of the grounds was that the Sheriff had allowed the jury to separate. Having disposed of the motion by refusing a new trial, Judge Cautrill arraigned the Sheriff and his deputies for contempt of court, committed by allowing the jury to separate. Of the contempt proceedings the Times gives the following accoun t:

"The Court then gave the Sheriff a severe reprimand for neglect of duty. Said it was an unheard of thing in the State of Kentucky for a Sheriff to put a jury in different rooms; asked if he meant to tell him that this had been going on all the time; if he had not sworn him three times to keep the jury together; said he had been remiss in his dutics not only since he had been Sheriff, but while he was deputy Sheriff; that his greatest fault was that he was to lenient; that he was afraid of hurting someone's feelings, was too accommodating and did not want to diseommode people. Like the Court, the Sheriff must know no man. He must perform the duties of an officer and put aside the social amenities of life. He held the Sheriff in high esteem, but his duties as an officer must not be interfered with. No transgressions of any officer of the Court or member of the bar would be overlooked.

"The Sheriff said in reply he could find no room big enough and for that reason he put the jury in different rooms. While it was not an excuse, others had done it. When he thought it was impossible to conform to the strict letter of the law, he always came as near to it as he could. That the deputies were new to their duties. If the Court would be clement with him, he would promise it should never occur again. He had not intended to be guilty of any contempt.

"The Court then imposed a fine of $20 on the Sheriff, and directed if it was not paid or replevied at once that the Sheriff be sent to jail to work it out at hard labor at $2 per day. The deputies were then fined $10 each."

At some county seats in Kentucky it is impossible for the Sheriff to keep the jury together at night, because there is not a sleeping apartment in the town large enough to accommodate thirteen men at the same time. This is true of Burlington, and the Sheriff is, therefore, bound to ignore that part of his oath requiring him not to allow the jurors to separate. The Sheriff has been confronted with this impossibility on many occasions in Burlington, and, believing that, if the Sheriff's oath and the Court's admonition are worthy of the observance the gravity and regularity with with which they are always delivered by the Court, indicate, something shouldd be done that would result in an arrangement whereby the Sheriff could observe the admonitions of the Court, easily, the RECORDER has been induced in the past to suggest that arrangements be made by which the Sheriff would be enabled to keep jurors together at nights during the pendency of murder trials, and it suggested a plan both feasible and of small cost, viz: That the county purchase cots and bed clothing and have the jurors occupy a room in the Court House at night during the period the law requires that they shall not separate. Thus it would be made possible for the Sheriff to comply with the law, while the jurors would be, at least, as comfortable as it is possible for them to be made elsewhere in the town, while their expenses would be redueed. The cost of carrying this suggestion into effect would be very small compared with the cost resulting from a new trial granted in a single murder case because the Sheriff had failed to keep the jury together at night as required. This is a matter that the Fiscal Court should consider. In time of peace prepare for war."

The fact is that under the Goebel bill, as a law, not a Democrat in the State could hope to successfully contest for a seat in the National Congress. The Kentucky force bill may give Senator Goebel the Democratic nomination for Governor, but it will never put him in the ehair of the chief executive of the State.—Louisville Commercial.

IF the Commercial really believed that the Goebel bill would defeat every Democeratic candidate for Congress in Kentucky, it would be only too glad to see it become a law.

IT is amusing to see how some of the leading Republicans are praising the administration for its course in regard to the Maine affair, while others are thoroughly disgusted. The Chicago Times-Herald, President McKinley's organ, is one of the thoroughly disgusted. It says: "The vultures circling over the wreck of the Maine in the harbor of Havana have more patriotism than the political vultures who are poising to take advantage of further delay in regard to Cuba."

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON, of Tuskegee, Ala., the colored leader, has written an open letter to the Louisiana Constitutional Convention, commending the restriction of the ballot as a protection against the ignorant of both races and urging that in the degree that you close the ballot box against the ignorant you open the school house.

IN Louisville a colored Baptist preacher informed his congregation from the pulpit that he would rather take a gun and kill an American citizen than to aid Americe in a war with Spain. He ought to have been given a passport then and there.

JUDGE LYNCH held the second session of his court in the Constance neighborhood, last Thursday. Not many years ago he held a session in that neighborhood, and administered the same punishment to a fellow who was convicted.

THE House of Representatives passed a resolution complimenting Miss Christine Bradley's determination to christen the Battle Ship with a bottle of pure Kentucky spring water instead of a bottle of Kentucky's best.

WHEN the people of Lawrenceburg want their city brought to the front, they select W. H. O'Brien for Mayor, and he will, therefore be Lawrenceburg's next Mayor.

SOME people write too much and others talk too much—De Lome and Secretary Long are examples of those two classes.

THE appointment of ex-King Milan as general-in-chief of the Servian army is assigned to a curious cause. King Alexander's mother, ex-Queen Natalie, it seems, set such a pace in dress and court festivities that the Belgrade husbands could not stand it. They remonstrated with the king, and, as the surest way to keep Natalie out of the capital, her spendthrift husband was invited back.

THE regular army of China is said to consist of 323,000 men. Besides this, the emperor's army, there is a national army of 650,000 men, who are paid about one dollar a month. But in consideration of this munificence are required to feed themselves. The cavalry receives $3 a month, feed their own horses, and, if they are lost or killed, are required to replace them out of the pay given by the government.

ABOARD the Vizcaya there in an English speaking midshipman, Sanchez Farragut by name, who is distantly related to the great American Adm. Farragut. He is proud of his American relative, and so announced in the presence of his commanding officer. His grandfather was an American and closely related to Adm. Farragut. It is from his mother that the young midsy gets his Spanish blood.

DURING the civil war the confederate cruisers captured or destroyed 80 ships, 46 brigs, 67 schooners and eight other vessels flying the American flag. The number of men withdrawn from industry to take part in the civil war on the union side was 2,772,408, while the confederates enlisted over 600,000. The expense of the war department in 1863 was $394,000,000; in 1864, $599,000,000; in 1864, $600,000,000; in 1865, $1,031,000,000.

THERE has been considerable discussion as to the proper pronunciation of Vizcaya. Captain Eulate—pronounced "Ay-oo-lah-tay," with the first two syllables run together a little, the third accented and the fourth very short—pronounces his ship's name "Vith-Kye-ah," or as near that as an English tongue can get it. The second syllable rhymes with "rye," and is really two syllables, but the two vowel sounds are run close together.

SINCE the overwhelming defeat of home rule for Ireland, when the Gladstone party went to the wall, several years ago, little has been heard of the subject, but the Salisbury ministry has prepared and will doubtless pass a bill which will establish a system of local governing boards to have control of taxes, expenditures, poor relief and all other matters now properly in the jurisdiction of the courts. These county councils are to be elected by the people.

CONSIDERING that the United States army now numbers only 26,955 officers and enlisted men, the addition of two new regiments of artillery is a considerable one. At present there are five artillery regiments, with 292 officers and 2,800 men, so that the proposed addition will increase the branch of the service 40 per cent. The increase is made necessary by the large increase in the number of batteries for coast defense already made or about to be made, which have to be manned.

GERMAN analysis say that the apple contains a larger proportion of phosphorous than any other fruit or vegetable adapted for renewing the essential nervous matter of the brain and spinal cord. Scandinavian traditions represent the apple as the food of the gods, who, when they felt themselves growing old and feeble, resorted to this fruit for renewing their powers of mind and body. A modern maxim teaches us "to eat an apple before going to bed, the doctor then will beg his bread."

A RUSSIAN prince who is fond of Verdi's music has spent $6,000 to enable himself to hear "Rigoletto" whenever he pleases in his palace at St. Petersburg. The opera is acted by life-sized puppets, whose acting is regulated by machinery, and the singing is done by phonograph. The owner has secured phonographic reproductions of the principal parts as sung by the principal artists of Europe, and changes his cast to suit himself. After putting the cylinders in place the owner presses a button, and the opera proceeds automatically.

IN order that mothers who have children too young to be left at home may have the opportunity to attend church service the Epworth league of the First Methodist church of New Brunswick has adopted a novel plan. The league has an enrollment committee, which obtains the names of mothers with young children, putting their names upon the "cradle list." In a side room have been placed cradles, and volunteer nurses will take care of children while the mothers are attending services. The plan is proving such a success it is believed that it will be adopted as a fixture.

WAR ALMOST CERTAIN.

Naval Officers and Civilians Discussing Measures to Adopt

In Case an Indemnity Payment is Refused by Spain—No One Seems to Doubt That the Capture of Havana Would Be Comparatively Easy.

HAVANA, via Key West, Fla., March 7.—As the conviction becomes general that the court of inquiry will decide that there was a mine explosion under the Maine, discussion among American naval officers and civilians here is prevalent as to the warlike measures which, it is believed, the United States government will adopt in case the question of the payment of indemnity by Spain is overruled. A majority believe that American troops will be landed at some point east of Havana and the insurgents communicated with, that the Spanish soldiery will be defeated or captured in detail, and that in the meantime a fleet of United States vessels will blockade, if not bombard Havana. No one seems to doubt that the reduction of this city would be comparatively easy. Four 12-inch guns—two west and two east of the city—are the only ones that are considered dangerous. These are not likely to be well served, while their emplacements are modern.

That some Spaniards are of the opinion that an attack on Havana will be made is believed to be shown by the abnormal activity displayed on board the Vizcaya. A press correspondent has the naval authority for the statement that the Vizcaya is in a constant state of readiness for emergencies and that picket boats are on the alert day and night inside the harbor and outside the harbor at night.

It is pointed out that the men-of-war Vizcaya and Almirante Oquindo, which has arrived, might be caught in a blockade and fall an easy prey to a United States fleet. The cruiser Alfonso XII. is without boilers and would be of no account. All this discussion of the probability of war among the Americans and Spaniards proves nothing and only shows the state of feeling here.

The conduct of the Spanish divers who are investigating the wreck of the Maine is a mystery. Thus far they have not been down five hours in the aggregate, and they show no disposition to make a thorough inquiry.

It is impossible to learn the truth fully regarding the purpose of the Spanish court of inquiry, but it is generally believed that the divers were sent down for form's sake only, and that a report will be made in accordance with instructions from Madrid. It may be that the Spanish divers have discovered that the whole port side of the Maine forward is gone, and having so reported, further examination is deemed unnecessary. The work of our own divers henceforward is bound to be slow, owing to the ponderous weights to be moved and the safety clamps, nuts and rivets that must be cut.

Senator Proctor is likely to make a speech in the senate on his return that will have great weight in determining the future policy of the United States. He is much affected by the suffering that he found in Matanzas, and highly indignant at what he called the "inhumanity of the course pursued." He says that in Matanzas, this province, he saw thousands of reconcentrados who refused to beg, though starving. They were evidently of a class accustomed to make their living and unwilling to become paupers. He saw thousands of acres of the best tobacco and banana lands in the world reduced to waste, with trochas and garrisons at every village and cross-road. His driver, pointing to the mountains 15 miles away, says: "There are plenty of insurgent camps there that the Spanish have never discovered."

HAVANA, March 7.—The Spanish first class cruiser Aimirante Oquendo arrived in Havana harbor at 8:45 o'clock Saturday morning from Spain. She received a hearty welcome from the ferry boats and tugs on board of which were the civil and military authorities and different societies which had been waiting for the warship's arrival. The docks were crowded with sightseers, rockets were sent up and flags and other decorations were displayed from the vessels in port, the public buildings and the palaces.

The Almirante Oquendo made a fine appearance as she returned the salute from Fort Cabanas, and then saluted the fort and admiral.

Capt. Joaquin Lasaga is in command of the Almirante Oquendo.

The smokestacks of the Maine have been removed. The divers hoped to recover some more bodies Saturday.

HAVANA, March 7.—The board of inquiry arrived here Saturday from Key West and continued its deliberations on the cause of the Maine explosion.

Adm. Sicard has wired the Washington government that it is impossible as yet to fix a date for the adjournment of the board.

Col. Henry Wounded in a Duel.

PARIS, March 7.—Col. Picquart, who was disciplined for giving testimony favorable to the case of M. Zola, at the recent trial of the author, fought a duel with swords Saturday in the riding school of the Military school, with Col. Henry, who in the course of his testimony against M. Zola denounced Picquart as a liar. Col. Henry was wounded in the wrist and arm. Col. Henry succeeded Col. Picquart as chief of the secret service of the war office.

Army Officer Killed by a Train.

BURLINGTON, Ia., March 7.—Lieut. Frank Kalke, of the United States Army, commandant at Iowa Wesleyan university at Mt. Pleasant, attempted to board a freight train here Saturday. He missed his footing and was cut completely in two at the waist. He leaves a wife and two children at Mt. Pleasant.

Many Lives Lost in a Burning Mine.

BRESLAU, Prussia, March 7.—A fire started in the Saturn and Soznowiec mine here Saturday. Twenty dead bodies have so far been recovered. There are more in the burning mine.

CONGRESS THIS WEEK.

Appropriation Bills Will Be Under the Senate's Consideration.

House Will Pass Bills for Relief of the Survivors and Victims of the Maine, and for the Creation of Two Additional Regiments of Artillery.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The action regarding the cruiser Montgomery and the gunboat Nashville is looked upon by officials here as much less grave than that affect Gen. Lee. Secretary Long said Sunday that he did not regard the action as to what ship would carry the relief supplies as serious in any way, or as likely to present any perplexing issues.

The senate will in all probability begin the week with the consideration of the bill making appropriations for the District of Columbia and when this is completed will take up the conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, which has been agreed upon and will be made to the senate Monday. It is considered quite probable that the district bill will consume two or three days or even more. One of the questions in this bill which may arouse debate is the action of the senate committee on appropriations in striking out the item in the bill as it came from the house limiting telephone charges in the district. There will be an effort to restore this provision.

The census bill, the Methodist book agent bill and Senator Pettigrew's bill donating five per cent. of the proceeds of sales of public lands to the various states in which the lands are located will contend for right of way when there are no appropriation bills to receive attention and it is as yet uncertain which of them will be first taken up.

All of these may be antagonized by the Hawaiian annexation treaty but the plans of the foreign relations committee with reference to the treaty are so far too indefinite to permit any prediction as to what it will do.

It is probable that both the bill for the relief of the survivors and the victims of the Maine disaster and the senate bill creating two additional regiments of artillery with which to man the coast defenses will pass the house this week. The former bill was held up until it could be investigated, as it was said that the special bill for the relief of the survivors and victims of the Samoan wreck in 1888 led to some scandal. That bill was loosely drawn and it has been asserted some advantage of its provisions were taken. The present bill has been carefully drawn and is now satisfactory to Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations. Practically all opposition to the artillery bill has now disappeared in the house. The leaders were, it is said, in favor of delaying action upon it to allay public alarm which might have been intensified had it been rushed through the house as it was through the senate. Beyond action on these two measures the house programme this week so far as is now anticipated is entirely peaceful and has no reference to possible foreign complications. Monday and Friday of Columbia day and Friday, by special order, has been set aside for the consideration of the Bowman act claims bill. The Thorp-Epps contested election case will occupy two, possibly three days.

GEN. SICKLES

Says Spain Has a Perfect Right to Ask for the Recall of Consul General Lee.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, who was minister of the United States to Spain from 1869 to 1874, during which period occurred the strained relations between that country and the United States over the Virginius affair, said Sunday that Spain's request for the recall of Consul General Lee was a serious move and likely to lead to serious results.

Gen. Sickles continued: "It is Spain's right to ask for Gen. Lee's recall. When I was minister to Spain I was instructed to demand the recall of the Spanish consul general here and my request was immediately granted by the Spanish government. Spain would be justified to-day in demanding the recall of Consul General Lee on the ground that he is persona non grata.

"Do you consider that this move on Spain's part puts this country nearer war than it was over the Virginius affair?"

"Not at all. If anything, we were nearer war then than now."

"I do not regard the request as a casus belli; and it is no more than their right to demand that if we send supplies to these people they shall be sent by merchant vessels.

"The use of warships at such a time might justly be regarded as a hostile act on our part. Spain's right to demand that these supplies be sent by peaceful merchantmen can not be questioned."

Smallpox Subsiding.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Ky., March 7.—No new cases of smallpox Sunday. Two suspects. Twenty-seven are quarantined in the pesthouses and houses of detention. Dr. McCormick says the outlook is brighter than it has been for some time.

The Alfonso XIII. Arrives at Havana.

HAVANA, March 7.—The Alfonso XIII., of the Spanish line, with 1,500 soldiers from Spain, arrived at this city Sunday. Rockets and batteries for an hour were never silent, and bugles sang accompaniment to the steeple bells ashore.

ALASKA BILL PASSED.

Homestead Law Extended and Railway Right of Way—Two More Appropriation Bills Finished and Ready for the President's Signature.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—After a debate lasting several days the senate late Friday afternoon passed the bill extending the homestead laws and providing for right of way for railroads in the district of Alaska.

Two more appropriation bills were sent to the president Friday for his signature, the pension bill and the consular and diplomatic bill, both of which went through the house Friday.

Naval officials are deeply interested in the reports of the purchase of warships by Spain, and make the reports of these transactions the text for complaints of the inability of our navy department to do likewise. However, as to the report from London Friday of the purchase of the Amazonas by Spain it is said at the department that this vessel sailed for Brazil several months ago and has been delivered to the Brazilian government. Her sister ship is near completion in the Armstrong yards. They are useful cruisers, copies of the Barossa, now of the Brazilian navy, and their strong point is their great radius of action—8,000 miles—which would enable them to cross the Atlantic and recross without renewing their coal supply.

The other two ships building for Brazil in France, which are also reported to be about to pass into Spanish possession are presumed to be the Deadoro and the Floriona, which are building at La Seinne, London. These are small, but powerful little battleships. Their tonnage is only 3,162, but they carry four 10-inch rifles in turrets, in addition to two 6-inch and four 4.7 inch guns and a good secondary battery. Their coal endurance, however, is small and their forte would seem to be coast defense operations, or cruising near a base of supplies.

The London reports also caused comment at the state department. In some quarters the feeling was expressed that pending the finding of the court of inquiry on a case having the international phases of the Maine explosion, the obligations of neutrality were as strongly imposed on Great Britain and Brazil as in time of war. The precedents only apply to a condition of war and not to conditions which may eventually lead to war. In the Geneva award, however, unfriendly acts by Great Britain prior to the breaking out of the rebellion constituted part of the case on which heavy damages were awarded against her. But, as a general rule, foreign governments are free to sell warships, either directly or through their citizenship up to the actual date of hostilities.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The house committee on banking and currency has ceased to have meetings, and this leads most of the members of that body to conclude that no currency reform bill will be reported this session. It is claimed that a subcommittee is still at work and they promise to report later a measure to the full committee.

A resolution was passed by the senate Friday authorizing the printing of 15,000 copies of a pamphlet by Commodore George W. Melville, on the commercial, military and strategic advantages to the United States of the Nicaraguan canal and of the Hawaiian islands.

Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, presented the report of the committee on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. It recommended the adoption of all the senate amendments, which was agreed to.

The house of representatives and the senate adjourned until Monday.

Friday's cabinet meeting occupied about three hours and at its conclusion it was announced that nothing of an important nature had occurred. No information of any character, it was stated, had been received either from Gen. Lee or the court of inquiry, nor had any intimation reached the government as to the character of the information so far obtained by the court or as to when the court would conclude its investigation and make its report. An hour or more of the time of the cabinet session was occupied in the reading of a long report from the special agent of the post office department on the killing of Baker, the colored postmaster at Lake City, S. C. In view of the peculiar circumstances connected with the murder and the enormity of the crime it was decided to increase the government's reward to $1,500 in each case. Every effort will be made by the federal authorities to bring the guilty parties to justice.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The navy department is making preparations to replenish the supply of ammunition of the United States warships on the Asiatic station. To this end orders have been sent to the training ship Mohicanu, now at Mare island, to carry the ammunition. The ship was just about to leave for a long cruise with the naval apprentices, going as far as the Samoan islands. Her first stop was to be at Honolulu, and the department has seized the opportunity to utilize her as a powder ship without interfering with the itinerary already arranged for her cruise. She will carry 50 tons of ammunition for the China fleet, and will start almost immediately. It is said at the department that this is only a part of the regular supply of ammunition forwarded to the United States naval stations abroad when opportunity serves.

Suffocated by Coal Gas.

FT. WORTH, Tex., March 5.—Four men were found dead in a refrigerator car Friday. Death resulted by gas from a fire built with coal. Six men, supposed to be tramps, entered the car Thursday night, closing the door behind them. Two of the men escaped Friday morning in a dying condition, but were resuscitated by physicians.

Turkey's New Minister.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 5.—Ali Ferouck Bey, the newly appointed Turkish minister to the United States, has started for his post at Washington.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—SENATE.—Hon. H. W. Corbett was Monday denied admission to the senate as a senator from Oregon on the appointment by the governor by the decisive vote of 50 to 19. Speeches were made against the admission of Mr. Corbett by Bacon (Ga.) and Harrows (Mich.), and in favor of his admission by Morgan (Ala.). After disposing of the Corbett case, the senate began the consideration of the Alaska homestead and railway right of way bill and had not concluded it when it adjourned.

HOUSE.—The house passed the sundry civil appropriation bill Monday after four days' debate. The most important action was the elimination of the appropriation for our representation at the Paris exposition on a point of order. On Friday last the house, in committee of the whole, where there is no record of the vote, knocked out a provision in the bill for an appropriation to pay those who furnish the government with information leading to the conviction of the violators of the internal revenue laws and Monday in committee an extra month's pay was voted to the employs of the house. Both these propositions commanded a very respectable majority in committee, but when the members voted on all calls in the house both of them were overwhelmingly defeated. Several minor bills were passed, after the sundry civil bill was disposed of.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—SENATE—Mr. Hoar renewed his motion of Monday that the senate disagree to the house amendments to the bankrupt bill, and that a committee of conference be appointed. Mr. Stewart spoke until 2 o'clock, when the Alaska homestead and right of way bill was laid before the senate. Mr. Stewart addressed the senate in support of his address Wednesday. Mr. Rawlins (Utah), continued his speech, begun Monday, in opposition to the general features of the bill. He reiterated his charge that the bill as framed gave dishonest speculators a marked advantage over the public generally. No action was taken.

HOUSE.—The house Tuesday entered upon the consideration of the Loud bill relative to second-class matter. The bill is identical with the bill passed at the last congress, but Mr. Loud, its author, gave notice of an amendment permitting the transmission at pound rates of sample copies up to ten cents of the bonafide circulation of the newspaper periodical. Only three speeches were delivered Tuesday. Mr. Loud made an exhaustive speech in its favor; Mr. Moon (dem. Tenn.) spoke in opposition to the bill and Mr. Perkins (rep. Ia.) in favor of it. The debate will continue until Thursday when the vote will be taken at 4 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—SENATE.—Wednesday's debate in the senate on the Alaskan homestead and railway right of way bill was decidedly spirited. Mr. Carter (Mont.) delivered a vigorous speech in reply to that made during the past two days by Mr. Rawlins (Utah). One of the special features of the debate was a speech delivered by Mr. Elkins (W. Va.) in which he explained that the Canadian Pacific railway was created to menace war upon American interests, and how and why the aggressions of that great railroad ought to be stopped by the United States. The speech drew replies from Mr. Hoar (Mass.) Mr. Chilton (Texas) and Mr. Nelson (Minn.)

HOUSE.—The house spent another day in debate upon the Loud bill relating to second class mail matter. The speeches are of an uninteresting character. The speakers were Messrs. Bromwell (rep., O.) and Ogden (dem., La.), in favor of the measure, and Messrs. Bell (pop., Col.), Simpson (pop., Kan.), Clark (dem., Mo.), Brown (rep., O.) and Lentz (dem., O.) in opposition to it.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—SENATE—During almost the entire session Thursday the senate had under consideration the Alaskan homestead and railway right of way bill. One of the features of the discussion was a speech delivered by Mr. Vest (Mo.) in which he ridiculed the idea of homesteading any part of Alaska or constructing railroads in that district. His motion to eliminate the homestead feature of the bill by striking out the first section was defeated.

HOUSE.—The Loud bill to correct alleged abuses of the second class mail matter privilege was defeated Thursday by a vote of 163 to 109. Mr. White (rep., N. C.), the only colored member of the house, then asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the following resolutions: "Whereas, On or about February 21, one hundred or more armed men fired upon the residence of the postmaster at Lake City, S. C., killing one of the family and wounding several others and burning all they had, and Whereas, The said family is now suffering even for necessaries for medical treatment and for other necessaries of life, therefore, Resolved, By the senate and house that the sum of $1,000 is hereby appropriated and made immediately available for the relief of the said family." Objected to and went over.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—SENATE—After a debate lasting several days the senate late Friday afternoon passed the bill extending the homestead laws and providing for right of way for railroads in the district of Alaska. Comparatively little discussion of general interest was created by the bill. Section 18, granting for certain bonding concessions to Canada in lieu of privileges to be extended by the Dominion government to this country, however, induced a pretty lively debate, as it brought to the front once more the old fisheries question of the New England coast which has been pending between the United States and Great Britain for a hundred years or more. Adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE.—Two more appropriation bills were sent to the president Friday, the pension bill and the consular and diplomatic, both of which went through their final stage in the house without a word, the pension bill day. The most important action taken was acquiescence in an agreement to make the bill appropriating about $1,200,000 for war claims approved by the court of claims under the provisions of the Bowman act a special order for next Friday. The claims carried by the bill, 730 in number, are for stores and supplies seized during the war in the southern states. Only two bills were passed Friday, one to pay the heirs of Sterling T. Austin about $99.00 for cotton seized during the war, and the other to pay the estate of $1,300 in a mass of claims growing out of back pay, etc., earned during the war. Adjourned until Monday.

ORDERS RECEIVED

By Adm. Kirkland to Enlist All the Able Bodied Seaman He Can Pass.

VALLEJO, Cal., March 7.—Adm. Kirkland has received telegraphic orders to instruct Capt. Louis Kempff, of the receiving ship Independence, to sign all the able bodied seamen he can possibly pass. The shipment of boys which has been going on for some months will continue. The Charleston, Yorktown and Philadelphia are the best ships here, but little work is being done on them at present. Adm. Kirkland says that he can prepare the vessels for sea within six weeks. There are 500 men employed in the construction department and orders have been issued for the employment of additional labor.

Will Double Their Capacity.

A Grecian Gag.

Virgil occasionally indulged in humor at the expense of his freind, Maecenas. He made a witness a pilgrimage to the oracle at Delphi, and on his return said to Maecenas:

"I was awfully bored while I was away."

"So?" said Maecenas, "and what was it that bored you, amicus mens?"

"The augurs, of course," was Virgil's quick response.

This incident goes far to prove the inventive genius of the Greeks and Romans, since even at that early date augurs and gimlets had come into use.—Detroit Free Press.

Hypnotic Wonders.

No one need to go to Paris now to see all that is marvelous in hypnotism. Use it also systematically for malarial, bilious, dyspeptic, rheumatic and nervous diseases.

THE FRAUD ENJOINED.

Report of Decree—The Famous 8.30, 1000 Dollar Cases Decided—C. F. Simmons Medicine Company, St. Louis, Defeats J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia.

(From St. Louis Republic, July 4, 1893.)

In the Supreme Court of Tennessee on June 20 decided the most important trade-mark case that has ever been tried in that State and one of the largest ever tried in the Union, affirming the enjoining opinion of the court below. The court held:

1. That C. M. J. Simmons, the successor of complainant, by extensive advertising of his celebrated remedy known as "Simmons Liver Medicine," made the name of said remedy of great value long prior to the acquisition by J. H. Zeilin & Co. of any rights.

2. That the assignor of J. H. Zeilin & Co., through whom they claimed the right to make the fraudulent packages and labels, had no right to assign to C. M. Simmons to make the medicine nor to use his name or picture, and that such use by Zeilin & Co. is a fraud upon the public, and is therefore enjoined.

3. That Zeilin & Co. purposely, fraudulently labeled their medicine in imitation of complainant's medicine to unfairly appropriate the trade of the Simmons Medicine Company, and that the exception of this fraudulent purpose and acts is enjoined.

4. Enjoined Zeilin & Co., from using their competitor's trade-name, trade-marks, or symbols, or limitations thereof, to deceive the public and unfairly appropriate to themselves the trade of the C. F. Simmons Medicine Co.

5. Enjoined Zeilin & Co., from deceiving and practicing a fraud upon the public by labeling their packages in imitation of those of the genuine trademarks of the complainant.

6. Enjoined Zeilin & Co. from the manufacture and sale of the medicine under the name of "Simmons Liver Medicine," or "Dr. Simmons Liver Medicine," or "Liver Medicine" by C. M. Simmons, and from using the picture of A. G. Simmons in connection therewith.

7. Enjoined Zeilin & Co., their assignees, agents and employes from deceiving and practicing a fraud upon the public by the sale of packages that falsely labeled, either upon orders or calls for the genuine "Simmons Liver Medicine" of complainant, or in any package thus falsely labeled.

8. The court stated that it was the purpose of the court to entirely destroy the fraudulently labeled packages above described, and cause their removal from the market, and ordered Zeilin & Co., and their to the clerk to be destroyed, all cuts, dies, electrotypes, engravings and other paraphernalia used in impressing either of the above names or the picture of A. G. Simmons.

9. Decreed that Zeilin & Co. pay all the damages which have accrued to complainant by the sale of these fraudulently labeled packages. The damages claimed by complainant were $40,0 0.

10. Decreed that Zeilin & Co. pay all the costs, which amount to several thousand dollars, the record being one of the largest ever filed in the Supreme Court.

Cheap Medicine.

As a rule, "cheap medicine" is "cheap," worthless, or dangerous. In Zeilin & Co.'s answer to our bill they said the packages enjoined were designed as "cheap negro medicine for the negroes of the Mississippi Valley." Now, as Zeilin & Co.'s advertisements say, and their managers swore, they sell the liver medicine which they make is made by the same formula, i. e., is not cheap nor a negro medicine. From their own sworn and advertisements, that all the liver medicine emanating from them is "Cheap Negro Medicine." Question: Do the sick of America desire "Cheap Negro Medicine?" Let the afflicted answer by their future purchases. Dr. M. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine, established in 1840, is not "cheap medicine." It is "the same as ever," and for any ailments recommended for those indigestion one caused by inactivity of the liver.

BACK TO HAVANA.

Court of Inquiry Leaves Key West on the Mangrove.

It Will Probably Finish Its Work There Within Ten Days.

Japan Threatens to Join Uncle Sam in a War With Spain.

While the Members of the Court Have Their Individual Theories, They are by No Means Prepared as a Body to Render a Decisive Verdict as Yet.

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 28.—The lighthouse tender Mangrove, bearing the members of the court of inquiry, arrived from Havana at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. The court resumed its sessions in the United States district court room in the Federal building at 10 o'clock Monday morning and will probably return to Havana on Wednesday.

The naval board shifts its inquiry to Key West temporarily. While it is holding sessions there the work of the divers will go forward and something may be done toward raising portions of the wreck of the Maine. Members of the board discourage laying too much stress on what the divers are doing or drawing positive conclusions from their labors. Nevertheless, they have found the forward magazine intact and have been bringing up powder which was not likely to have remained powder if the explosion had been an internal one. Much of the evidence leads to support the belief of an explosion produced by a submarine mine. The inquiries of the board are directed along a line to bring out facts bearing on the point. The proof is neither final nor positive, but it is strong enough to make the theory of an accident a growing improbability. Until the huller plates can be examined no conclusive opinion can be formed. That may be determined by the time the board returns to Havana. Capt. Sampson and his associates are aware of the impatience with which the result of the inquiry is awaited in the United States, but their labors are too momentous in consequence to be hurried.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 1.—All the Maine's dead that remain unburied will be laid to rest in Key West. Orders to this effect were received from the navy department and the coast survey boat Bache will bring here any bodies found. Fifty coffins have been ordered from Key West undertakers.

WRECKING DERRICK CHIEF.
(Now Being Towed to Havana.)

Officers and men of the Maine were examined Monday. The members of the board of inquiry, after taking testimony of these men, will return to Havana to complete their work.

HAVANA, March 1.—Little work was done Monday by the divers from the tug Right Arm. Capt. McGee, who is in charge, seems to lack authority from the wrecking people or others, and is indisposed to work on his own judgment except in smaller details.

Capt. Sigsbee thinks Spain has a moral and international right to make an independent examination, and he will give the Spanish divers such facilities as are possible.

Only one body was recovered Monday and it has not yet been identified, though there are hopes that it may be later. With any others recovered in time it will go with the wounded on the Bache to the Dry Tortugas and Key West. On her next trip north the Bache will carry to Key West the first company of wounded taken to the Dry Tortugas.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 2.—The second day's session of the court of inquiry is over, and nothing new is known regarding the fate of the Maine, at all events outside the members of the court. Some who confidently declared a week ago that the court had already found that the vessel was intentionally blown up have modified this conviction and, for the most part admit that such reports must have been based largely on speculation.

The tug boat Merritt passed here at sunset with a large scow in tow and other wreckage apparatus. She is bound for Havana.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 3.—Capt. Hanlon, of the steamer Mascotte, which arrived from Havana Wednesday night, says that when the vessel left Havana there was no signs of impending riot or of an anti-American demonstration. On the contrary everything was normally quiet.

HAVANA, March 3.—The wrecking tug I. J. Merritt, of the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking and Dredging Co. commanded by Capt. D. A. Wolcott, arrived here from New York Wednesday morning and later in the day she moved a barge near the wreck and commenced work.

Fred. J. Sharp is here in charge for the company. The Merritt is a powerful boat, but another and bigger tug is expected here shortly. The Right Arm will probably remain as long as she can be useful.

The wrecking company expects from six to keep four expert divers at work.

Two Spanish divers were at work about the wreck Wednesday and it is understood they will report to the Spanish board appointed to inquire into the cause of the disaster. Capt. Feral is the president of the Spanish board of inquiry.

It is reported that Capt. Sigsbee does not expect to find any of the dead in the zones of the explosion, but he still believes bodies will be recovered from portions of the wreck as the divers remove the debris. The divers, who are working steadily forward, are encountering continual difficulties, and it is certain the new tugs, additional men and complete apparatus will hasten the work of salvage.

THE WRECKING TUG RIGHT ARM.
(Now at Work in Havana Harbor.)

The barge brought with the wrecking tug I. J. Merritt is proving of great value in carrying away debris and in the course of a few days much of the wreck above water will be removed. No bodies were found Wednesday and there was no salvage of any value.

Without ing unnecessarily to the flood of surmises, conjecture and prophesy concerning the finding of the court of inquiry, it is fair to say that, as a matter of fact, most of the naval officers here and at Key West incline to the opinion that the court will find that the disaster was caused by the explosion of a floating sub-marine mine under the port side of the ship, forward. Opinions differ as to whether this mine was made of high explosives, such as wet and dry gun cotton or ordinary gun powder.

Opinions agree, not only as to the existence of mines in the harbor, but also that this one was laid purposely near the buoy where foreign war vessels were directed to moor, and was fired from an electric battery on shore.

It is believed barely possible that the explosion of the mine was the result of the carelessness or ignorance of Spanish officers in charge of the mine station keys when testing the circuit, but the latter supposition is not felt to be probable. It is further regarded as settled by the evidence before the court that the port side of the hull forward was completely blown to pieces, and that the only explosion on the Maine, except of isolated cases of fixed ammunition, was that of 2,000 pounds of sai in powder, stored forward and of which no trace can be found.

These views are gathered from officers who talk with great reserve and only upon the assurance that their identity will never be revealed. The fact remains that only the members of the court of inquiry know all the testimony elicited, and no one is authorized to make public matters in advance of the final judgment.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 3.—The United States court of inquiry into the loss of the battleship Maine resumed its sessions here at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Ten more enlisted men were examined by the full board, and Commander Forsyth, the first of the witnesses not on the list of the crew of the Maine was called. It is understood that he gave testimony regarding the coaling of the battleship at the navy yard here.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 3.—The sailors and officers of the Maine have testified before the board of inquiry. As a man they have said that the explosion was from the outside. Each was heard separately.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Japan will be the ally of the United States in case of war with Spain. Seven of her subjects were killed in the Maine explosion and she has notified the Washington government that she will demand indemnity and stand with us.

HAVANA, via Key West, March 4.—An American official here whose position is such that his name can not be used, but who has been connected with the investigation of the disaster to the battleship Maine, told your correspondent Thursday that there is absolutely no doubt that the vessel was blown up by a submarine explosion. He said that the board of inquiry is in possession of undeniable proof of this fact.

"You can not make it too emphatic," he said. "My information is direct and positive."

Active work at the wrecking of the Maine commenced Thursday. The guns and a part of the equipment will be saved, and the debris will be towed out to the ocean and sunk.

American divers who have been at work on the wreck say that the hull can not be saved. The decks will probably be blown up to release those bodies which have not yet been reached."

Two Spanish divers are now at work outside the hull, but they are maintaining the closest secrecy as to the result of their work.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The state department has ascertained, at the instance of the Japanese legation, that the following Japanese were on board the Maine at the time of the disaster: L. Sugisaki, O. Ishita, S. Chinji, M. Oye, U. Kitsgata, T. Nagamine and K. Sazuki.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The president and cabinet have received a report that the Maine was blown up from the outside. A partial report to this effect has also been received, it is stated by a high authority, from the board of inquiry. Nothing has as yet been developed, however, according to this information, which connects Spanish officials with the crime.

The information that such a message has been received was gained Thursday from an official who says he read it. It is from a source regarded as reliable as an official statement.

It was said that the policy of the administration might be perfected and ready for immediate application, if necessary, when the full official report of the board is made public. It is believed to be the basis of the action now being taken by the administration in fortifying the coasts, assembling the warships, purchasing supplies and ammunition, and securing options on cruisers being built abroad.

The government has employed an expert photographer, now in Havana, who will send to the naval departmeat in Washington photographs of armor plates and different portions of the wreck immediately upon recovery from the water.

If the Spanish court of inquiry under Capt. Peral has a definite plan of action, which seems doubtful, it has not been made public. The Spanish divers will, of course, report the results of their observation to the Spanish court of inquiry, but when or where has not been known.

It is believed now that the body recovered last Friday and buried here was that of Quartermaster Robt. Burkhardt, a German. It was identified from a description by a piece of cloth and a paper bearing his name. It is possible but not certain, that another body buried last week was that of Chas. A. Scott, of Orange, N. J., carpenters mate. It had odd fellow links tattooed on the arm.

The Spanish divers did not go down Thursday, but the American divers got some fixed ammunition out of the forward part of the wreck.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 4.—After two postponements of its departure the court of inquiry left for Havana Friday evening on the lighthouse tender Mangrove. It is believed by the best informed here that the court will complete its labors in the Cuban capital within ten days.

Only three of the six days the court was here were devoted to the work of investigation. The inactivity of Thursday and Friday is still unexplained, except by a semi-official statement that Rr. Adm. Sicard was awaiting instructions from Washington.

The sessions, it is generally understood, developed no evidence by which the court could definitely determine the cause of explosion.

A naval officer in close touch with the members of the court said to this correspondent:

"With one exception the witnesses who testified here were Maine survivors. The evidence though in most cases taking longer to tell, can be summed up in the words of an enlisted man who, when Judge Advocate Marix asked him what he knew about the explosion, replied, 'Sir, I was blowed up. I was saved and I'm here. That was all he could swear to."

One important fact has been learned, however. It is this, although members of the court may have their individual theories, they are by no means prepared as a body to render a decisive verdict. The officer already quoted said: If the court has yet heard any testimony which would enable it to decide intelligently that the Maine was blown up from external causes. I am the most mistaken man in the world. Before the coming Havana sessions are over it may secure some evidence and possibly find the blowing up was intentional. It will learn from the divers the actual condition of the ship after the explosion as it has already learned from the survivors most of the details of the ship's condition before the explosion. With these bases thoroughly established the court will hear more expert theoretical testimony and then reach a verdict."

This statement can be taken as more worthy of reliance than that of the Maine officer who said the other day he believed the court was bound on evidence already heard to find the cause of the explosion external. It's conservatism is also at variance with the opinions of many other naval officers here, especially those of the younger set, and directly contrary to the belief of most of the Maine survivors that their ship was intentionally blown up.

Before sailing Friday night Capt. Sampson had a long consultation with Adm. Sicard.

HAVANA, March 5.—The American divers, having examined more or less thoroughly the ward room of the Maine and the senior and junior officers' mess rooms, were Friday trying to effect an entrance into the petty officers' compartment in the hope of finding bodies there. However, each day the belief grows stronger that few if any more bodies will be recovered. Not one body was recovered Friday.

Capt. Sharp, who is in charge of the Merritt and Chapman wrecking outfit, appreciates the difficulties of the situation better than others. He will not specify any time when the big guns will be released. It is necessary to first remove the tops of the turrets. These are held in place by steel bolts, which must be cut loose. The best informed people here think a month will elapse before the turrets are opened.

HAVANA, March 5.—The Spanish officials seem to be in no hurry to discover the true cause of the Maine explosion by divers. The understanding freely expressed on the streets is that the board will find a verdict exonerating Capt. Sigsbee and his men from any lack of care. It is absolutely true that submarine mines are in Havana harbor, notwithstanding the denial of the Spanish authorities at Washington.

TENEMENT HOUSE FIRE.

One Woman Suffocated and Five Other People Badly Burned.

Three of Them May Die—Three Families Were Penned In a Ramshackle Building —The Heroic Action of the Firemen Saved Them a Horrible Death.

PITTSBURGH, March 8.—One of the most exciting fires the Pittsburgh department has ever been called upon to fight occurred at 614 Webster avenue Sunday when one woman was suffocated and five other people so badly burned that three may die. Three families were penned in a ramshackle building, the fl irs eaten away by flames whi the slept. Here was the result of 18 mi tes captivity.

Dead: Mrs. Dominie Enriello, aged 30, wife of Dominie Enriello, fruit huckster, was separated from her husband in the smoke and was suffocated while trying to raise a window, died in the patrol wagon.

Injured: Harry Levin, aged 16, burned about face, arms and shoulders, injuries possibly fatal; Lillian Levin, aged 6, burned about hands, feet and face, condition serious; Max Verlinski, aged 22, burned about legs and head and fatally injured internally. Jessie Verlinski, aged 22, his wife, burned about the neck, feet and face; injuries serious. Ethel Verlinski, aged eight months, burned about hands, head and body; will probably die. Elizabeth Levin, aged 18, ankle broken by jumping from second story window; also hurt internally. Rita Levin, aged three years, thrown from second story window; badly bruised.

The building at 614 Webster avenue is a three-story brick tenement, old and shaky. On the first floor and the rear of the second floor lived Samuel Lavin with his wife and seven children. On the second floor front lived Dominie Enriello with his wife. On the third floor lived Max Verlinski with his wife and eight-months-old baby.

The fire started in Levin's dining-room, in the rear of the first floor. It burned through the door and up the stairway, and in a very short time the entire building was in flames. Only lightning-like work of the rescuing firemen prevented a tenement house horror.
